Representatives of the communist party and the young communistic league and the Young Communists' league were addressing a meeting that drew 5,000 persons to the Parkman bandstand on Boston Common, when Jackson Wales, secretary of the communist party in Boston, engaged in a fist fight with a man whom he thought was heckling the speakers.

Wales was arrested and then the greater part of the crowd swept the streets toward the state house. Policemen, mounted, on foot and carrying ropes charged the crowd, swept the streets clear and restored order.

Six of the nine persons arrested were taken into custody during the clash in front of the capitol.

William B. Trafford, 19 year old Harvard student reputed to be a member of a prominent New York family, was one of those arrested. Police said he was a member of the Harvard Socialist club.

DEMONSTRATIONS IN CONN. RESULTED IN 14 ARRESTS

By the Associated Press

Unemployment demonstrations staged under communistic auspices in Connecticut yesterday, resulted in the arrest of fourteen persons. Three persons were injured, none seriously.

Police, in some cases, using their night sticks, dispersed crowds without difficulty in Waterbury, Stamford, New Britain, Bridgeport and New Haven. Hartford also had a demonstration, but it was attended by only a small crowd and was of a more peaceful character.

Four persons, including a woman, were taken into custody in Waterbury; five in Stamford, three in New Britain and one each in New Haven and Bridgeport.

Miss Rose Ross, 19 year old communist, who has been arrested several times for her activities, led a small band against police drawn up in front of the Waterbury city hall. She and three men, two of whom felt the sting of police clubs, were quickly seized, and the charge came to an abrupt ending as police drove the demonstrators against a building.

Attempts to speak when they had been denied permission to hold a meeting caused the arrest of four men in Stamford. One man was held when he urged the crowd display placards he had in his possession.

New Britain police also banned a meeting, and arrested three men who disobeyed their order. A bystander was injured in Bridgeport, when police arrested one man and broke up a forbidden parade.

In each city crowds ranging from 1,000 to 2,000 of the unemployed and curious gathered out to witness the demonstrations, which, in all cases, were short-lived.

Farm Board To Call For Delivery Of Grain

Decision Announced A[illegible] Conference At the [illegible] House Yesterday.

WASHINGTON, Ma[illegible] (AP) — After conferring at [illegible] house today with President [illegible]r and Secretary Hyde, Chairman [illegible]egge of the far mboard revealed a decision of the board to call for delivery of actual grain on May futures contracts purchased by the Wheat Stabilization corporation.

"The Stabilization coroporation is being accused of speculating in grain market," he said. "There is no foundation in fact for such a statement. The corporation is prepared to, and expects, to take delivery of all grain purchased on future contracts."

The contracts referred to were those involved in the recent purchase of May futures which, as a signal part of the board's effort to stabilize the wheat market, were generally credited here with halting the rapid succession of price deflections that had forced cash wheat to $1.00 a bushel on the Chicago market.

The chairman purposely withheld announcement of the board's decision today until after the markets closed, explaining that he did not wish the statement to affect prices during the day's trading. He said the call for actual wheat put those who sold the futures in the position of having to go into the market, unless they already had grain in storage, and buy sufficient quantities to fulfill their contracts. It was understood that much of the wheat was in storage now and that delivery would involve no more than its transfer to the stabilization corporation, which probably would take over the storage space along with the wheat and assume the carrying charges until market conditions made merchandising possible.

The original purchase of May futures has been variously estimated at from 3,000,000 to 6,000,000 bushels. The stabilization corporation is continuing the purchase of both spot and futures wheat in quantities unofficially estimated to average from 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 bushels a day.

Futures purchases are all on contracts for May delivery, July wheat being considered a new crop for which the board has declined to announce plans ahead of harvest.

Wheat in the visible supply is now estimated by the government at about 162,000,000 bushels, with mills grinding more than 1,000,000 bushels a day. Most of the supply is in terminal elevators and the stocks still held in the country are not believed in farm circles here to be sufficiently large to replace the daily drain made by the mills. So far, for all purposes, the board has used somewhat less than half of the cash made available by the original appropriation of $150,000,000.

TESTIMONY IN TRIAL OF "ICE BOX" BANDITS

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—Testimony that Roland Lalone said he would not tell what happened here Jan. 17 because if he told the truth "they will send me to hell," was introduced by the state today in the trial of Lalone and Watson Moulthrope for the killing of Detective W. D. Smith.

The witness was Edward Hickey, who as a detective for the state's attorney at Hartford, Conn., traced Lalone and Moulthrope to Florida after their escape from the Connecticut state prison Jan. 4.

Hickey told the jury of his interview with the defendants after their arrest in Pensacola, Fla., Jan. 24, seven days after Smith was killed in a gun battle here.

The detective was one of a number of witnesses appearing for the state today.

Archie Bowman, a Pensacola detective, said he arrested Moulthrope on board a ship in Pensacola, where he had signed as a member of the crew. He said Moulthrope told him that he was glad to hear that Detective Willie Jones of Jacksonville, who was shot during the battle, was not fatally wounded.

"Why?" Bowman said he asked.

"Because he's the man I shot," he quoted Moulthrope as saying.

Bowman said Clyde M. Quattlebaum, a Jacksonville detective, then asked Moulthrope how he knew Jones was the man he shot.

"He was searching Leo Landry and I shot him loose from Landry," Bowman said Moulthrope replied.

"He explained," Bowman said, "that Smith was the one who was searching Landry and Moulthrope said: "Well, if it was Smith I shot, I'm sunk."

Landry, who escaped from prison with Lalone and Moulthrope, has been indicted for Smith's death but will be tried later under an agreement for a severance. Landry is expected to testify for the state.

FORMER BROADWAY FAVORITE LEAPED TO DEATH YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, March 6.—(AP)—Donning for the last time her favorite jewels—a costly jade pendant and several diamond rings—Christine Norman, Broadway favorite of a generation ago and who Neysa McMein, the artist, once said was one of the 12 most beautiful women in America, leaped to her death today from a window of her 20th floor in the Hotel Warwick.

She left six letters, one of which requested that she be buried beside her father in Cincinnati, Ohio, in a metal casket and dressed in a pink satin gown which would be found in one of her wardrobe trunks.

Miss Norman was in the original companies of such famous productions as "Peg o' My Heart," "The Bird of Paradise" and the "Unchastened Woman." She had not appeared on the stage recently but had devoted herself to writing plays, in which, according to her estranged husband, Enos Booth, a lawyer, she achieved a fair degree of success.

Recently she had been in ill health and feared a cancer, police learned. She had been in California, but came east to consult a specialist. The letters she left behind disclosed that she had been contemplating suicide for a week.

NO CHANGE IN CONDITION OF WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT

WASHINGTON, March 6—(AP)—William Howard Taft continued today to hold his own against the complications of diseases that for more than a month have kept his life in the balance.

Worn themselves by the steady vigilance over their patient, the doctors who have assisted Mr. Taft to resist the illness, Francis R. Hagner and Thomas A. Claytor, returned only twice to his bedside. After the noon visit they said the former chief justice had lost none of the ground gained during the past few days, but no change in his condition was noted. Still gravely ill, Mr. Taft was able to take more nourishment and to greet briefly those who entered the room.

OBITUARY

Admiral Alfred Von Tirpitz

BERLIN, March 6—(AP)—The death today of Admiral Alfred Von Tirpitz removes from Germany's public scene one of the staunchest personifications of the old regime—a one time great naval leader who could not adjust himself to the republic.

When once he assured a newspaperman that "God has let me live too long; I see only chaos ahead for Germany," he revealed his true inner self.

The greatest blow to his hopes probably came when he saw that President Von Hindenburg, whom he had persuaded to run for the presidency, had proved a firm bulwark for the new republican state instead of becoming a chair-warmer for a restored monarchy.

The news of his death at Ebenhausen, was a great surprise to his countrymen and especially in Berlin, where he had visited friends until February 3. His illness had seemed slight.

One of the first condolences came from President Von Hindenburg who said that "the great services of the deceased for the German fleet in peace and war will continue to live in the history of Germany's defensive forces."

DRY LAW BOON TO SOCIETY WOMEN AND TO FARMERS

Mrs. Ruth G. K. Strawbridge, Philadelphia Society Leader, and Louis J. Taber, Master of the National Grange, Disputed Testimony Given By the Wets — Mrs. Strawbridge Characterized Atterbury's Testimony Favoring Repeal of the 18th Amendment As "Utterly Unsportsmanlike and Unworthy a Leader of Public Opinion."

WASHINGTON, March 6—(AP)—Upholding prohibition as a boon to society women, beneficial to the farmer, and as saving 100,000 lives in a decade, prohibitionists today demanded that the eighteenth amendment be retained in the constitution.

Rounding out two days of testimony before the house judiciary committee at hearings on measures to repeal the dry laws, the prohibition forces were assured by Chairman Graham, of the committee, that they would be granted all the time they needed for a full presentation of their contentions. The drys devoted today to assailing the arguments advanced by the wet advocates, and at the end the hearing was continued until next Wednesday.

Both Mrs. Ruth G. K. Strawbridge, Philadelphia society leader, and Louis J. Taber, master of the National grange, attacked W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, and Pierre S. DuPont, Wilmington, Delaware, industrialist, for their advocacy of repeal.

Besides these two witnesses, the committee heard Patrick H. Callahan, a Louisville, Ky., manufacturer, who is general secretary for the Association of Catholics Favoring Prohibition, and C. P. Connolly, of East Orange, N. J., former prosecuting attorney of Butte, Mont., and magazine writer. In addition Representative Burtness, republican, North Dakota, presented a statement from prominent North Dakotans, contradicting the charge of Pierce Blewett, a farmer of that state, who testified to the house committee that prohibition had ruined many grain growers.

During the hearing, Representative Celler, democrat, New York, issued an invitation to Commander Evangeline Booth, of the Salvation Army, to appear before the committee to discuss her organization's problems with young liquor drinkers. Throughout the hearing the wet members of the committee closely questioned the witnesses about their claims of prohibition's benefits to the various social classes and the farmers. Mr. Callahan said he thought the middle classes had benefited from prohibition, while the "dress and the smart set" had suffered. In the hearing yesterday, dry witnesses contended that the "under privileged" class was a great beneficiary of prohibition.

American high society was represented by Mrs. Strawbridge as considering serving of liquor at social entertainments "an unutterable nuisance and their only anxiety was as to how most effectually free themselves and their families of it."

Her testimony was based, she said, on replies to a poll she conducted among society matrons after conferring with, and largely under the influence of, former Chief Justice William Howard Taft. Out of 2,330 women approached, she said 1,337 favored obeying the law while only 247 disapproved.

She characterized Mr. Atterbury's testimony favoring repeal as "utterly unsportsmanlike and unworthy a leader of public opinion." She termed Mr. Du Pont a private prohibitionist "in his own gun powder plant and publicly an anti-prohibitionist for himself and his motor driving friends."

After arguing that the farmer was immeasurably better off under prohibition, as a result of better markets and prices for almost all his products, Taber said it was "indefensible for the president of a great railroad to advocate nullification and the return of the saloon."

Without mentioning by name either Mr. Atterbury or Mr. Du Pont, Taber said "an automobile manufacturer placed himself in a ridiculous position of advocating intoxicating liquors when every one recognizes that as drunken drivers on the highways increase, the use of automobiles must decline."

Taber said the reason why the liquor traffic would never return to America was the automobile. Asserting that it was evident that the 18th amendment would not be repealed and the saloon would not return in any form, the farm leader said the government would not be forced into the liquor business. He predicted the next congress would have a dryer membership than the present.

Setting out to clear up an impression which he said was prevalent that there was a difference of opinion between Catholics and Protestants on the prohibition question, Callahan declared this had been fostered by "vicious and insidious propaganda by the liquor people."

He presented a letter to the committee from Monsignor M. F. Foley of Baltimore, who termed the present movement for repeal or nullification a revival of the whiskey insurrection of 1794 on a "larger and more dangerous basis."

An assertion by Callahan that prohibition had saved the lives of 100,000 Americans met expressions of disbelief on the part of several wet members of the committee, particularly after the figures from the census bureau were analyzed by the questioners to show that since prohibition the number of deaths from alcoholism had again begun a steady increase. The witness, however, contended that the peak was reached three years ago.

The great majority of the American people would not permit repeal of the dry law until it had "a white man's fighting chance," Connolly declared, after presenting figures which he said showed lawlessness in America was not a product of prohibition but had existed for several decades.

Metropolitan newspapers were accused by him of "dropping poison into breakfast cups all over the Atlantic seaboard," with their ridicule of the prohibition laws, and he blamed the founders of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment with responsibility for much disrespect for law.

The witness became involved in a lengthy discussion with Chairman Graham of the committee and Representative Laguardia, republican, New York, which ended after Representative Michener, republican, Michigan, suggested that Laguardia "rent a hall" to finish the "debate".

"My answer to that," Laguardia replied, "is that thousands of citizens of New York elected me to come down here to do my duty and I am going to do it."

Dry members of the committee objected to the prolonged discussion which they said was consuming the time allotted to prohibition witnesses, but Chairman Graham advised them the dry side would have all the time it needed to present its case.

Under questioning by Laguardia, Connolly said he "would hate to see the country give in but, if the dry law is found impossible of enforcement, I would repeal or modify it."

"How far would you go to enforce the law?" Laguardia asked.

"Not beyond the Volstead law," replied Connolly. "I never would favor anything but strictly legal enforcement methods protecting the rights of the law violator all the time.

"I am opposed to this going into a man's home on suspicion without a warrant."

Asked by Laguardia whether he would favor employment of 100,000 federal officers to patrol the borders and the interior in order to make prohibition effective, the witness replied:

"That is hard to say. The great majority will not stand for repeal until they see that the law has had a white man's fighting chance. But, we have not had a fair fight for it yet."

Connolly, while agreeing that graft was responsible for much of the failure in law enforcement, would not agree with Laguardia that it was a "creature of prohibition" and insisted that it had existed in the saloon days.

"You cannot run a speakeasy, you cannot smuggle a shipment of liquor across the border," Laguardia said, "without the knowledge and connivance of officials.

"Graft has so contaminated the police of all the cities of the country that they cannot do their duty."

"No," said Connolly, "it is the politicians behind them who collect the graft."

"Isn't that worse?" asked the questioner.

"Yes, but there is a way to stop it. Enlighten the people, they don't know what's going on," asserted Connolly.

The witness insisted modification of the Volstead act would put the government in a position to "go on down the line retreating before lawlessness."

"Isn't history of the world one long series of retreats away from oppressive laws?" asked Laguardia.

"That's another matter," Connolly replied. "I don't agree that this is an oppressive law."

DEVELOPMENTS IN FOX FILM FINANCIAL TANGLE

NEW YORK, March 6.—(AP)—New legal knots have formed, in the opinion of interested attorneys, to complicate the solution of the financial troubles of the Fox Motion Picture companies whose stockholders today supported William Fox in plans to avert a receivership.

The recapitalization plan to raise $60,000,000 to meet pressing claims, was approved by stockholders of both the Fox Film corporation and the Fox Theatres corporation. The result of the voting was announced at adjourned meetings today.

While the underwriting syndicate composed of Bancamerica-Blair, Dillon, Read & company, and Lehman Bros., announced they would proceed with sale of securities to raise the money, trustees and creditors questioned the legality of the procedure and prepared new moves to defeat the plan.

Actions in both federal and state courts and settlement of legal questions raised by opponents of the bankers' plan loomed tonight as barriers which must be hurdled to effect financial rehabilitation of the concerns.

SLAYING IN CHICAGO REMAINED UNSOLVED

CHICAGO, March 6—(AP)—The gang world's newest secret—who killed Johnny Oberta and why—remained a riddle today while police hunted through gang imbroglios and labor rackets for the motive behind the slaying.

Oberta, the suave-mannered gangster and self-made politician who never talked through the side of his mouth, was "taken for a ride" last night and shot to death along with his chauffeur and bodyguard, Sammy (The Shadow) Malega.

The killing removed another figure from thinning ranks of gangland's "big shots" and two of them, Frank McErlane and Polack Joe Saltis, were on suspicion as persons who possibly had reason for wanting Oberta slain.

Besides his gang connection, in which Oberta had worked both with and against Saltis and McErlane, Johnny had broken into the labor racket and police saw any number of likely motives for removing him from his varied activities.

WRECKAGE OF WESTERN AIR EXPRESS PLANE SIGHTED

LOS ANGELES, March 6—(AP)—Dudley Steele, a pilot for the Richfield Oil company, telephoned Western Air Express headquarters here today that he had sighted the wreckage of the air line's missing transport about 16 miles from Lake Arrowhead in the San Bernardino mountains. The plane and its crew of three have been missing more than a week.

Steele said the tri-motored passenger ship was wrecked in a box-shaped canyon. The flier landed at Miller's ranch, the only suitable landing site in the San Bernardino mountain region, soon after locating the plane.

W. A. E. officials said a searching party would be sent from here immediately to the ranch, from where a land hunt will be made to verify the report.

The W. A. E. plane piloted by James E. Dole, disappeared on Feb. 23, during a storm over the San Bernardino mountains.

OBITUARY

Patrick McDermott

Following an illness of several weeks, Patrick McDermott, 72, of 242 Windham Road, died at the Willimantic General hospital on West Main street early this afternoon. He was born in New York city, July 29, 1857, a son of Henry and Ellen McGonigle McDermott. He came to this city with the family as a boy and attended the local district school. He entered the employ of the old Willimantic Linen company and for several years worked on a night shift. He was ambitious, however, to engage in business on his own account and carefully saved earnings, made this possible in 1889 when he established a small confectionery store on Main street in the vicinity of Thread Mill square. He remained in business up to the time of his recent illness, a period of nearly 40 years. Mr. McDermott was married December 30, 1891, to Mary E. Carey of Rockville and two children were born to them, one of whom, Henry L. McDermott survives.

He was, for many years, considered one of the progressive business men of the city and won a reputation as an enthusiastic baseball fan, a sport at which he had shown considerable ability in his youth. He was a member of St. Joseph's parish and affiliated with Camp No. 1546, Modern Woodmen of America and Division No. 1, Ancient Order of Hibernians of this city. He had also held membership in the chamber of commerce and had been a director of the Willimantic Building & Loan association. The deceased was a staunch democrat through his lifetime.

There were 67 prisoners, all but two serving short sentences, registered at the county jail in Brooklyn today. Sheriff Charles A. Gates said that there would be a considerable decline in this number the latter part of the month when short sentences expire in a number of cases. Unless the April weather proves inclement it is expected that many of these prisoners will remain in the open for the remainder of the season, the rigors of winter having induced them to seek jail sentences to secure shelter and food. Prisoners at the jail this spring will be given work on the farm which annually harvests a substantial crop of farm and garden crops.

A social with several feature numbers was held this afternoon by the Ladies' society of the Congregational church in the church house. A one-act play, The Burglar, was given under direction of F. W. Austin D. Boss, who with Mrs. Boss is on a world tour, is now en route to Egypt. Mr. Boss writes interestingly of India, especially of the Hindu religious sects which appeared to him to be the most corrupted. Mr. Boss stated that he was surprised to find all the different religions so well founded and basically so much alike. They are all for the peoples' good, he writes, but more or less corrupted now for the financial benefit and pleasure of the priests. There are faithful who give their bodies to the vultures to eat, Hindus who burn their dead and cast the ashes into the Ganges or into the ocean. The Bosses will go from Egypt to southern France and plan to sail on the President Jackson for home about April 1.

COLCHESTER

TOWN RECORD BUILDING SITE NOT YET SECURED

One of the principal topics of discussion among the townspeople the past few days has been the proposed plans for the selection of a suitable site and the erection thereon of a brick building with fireproof vault for the housing of the town records. At the adjourned town meeting held March 12, 1929 it was voted to expend not to exceed $4,000 for that purpose. Samuel McDonald, C. H. Norton, James F. Purcell, Dr. Cyrus E. Pendleton and Charles A. Kramer were elected a building committee authorized to select a suitable site, preferably on town property and to erect the building. Nearly a year has elapsed since the committee was appointed, but due to difficulty in finding a suitable site the committee has thus far been able only to secure an estimate of the cost and general plans of the building. The committee proposes to erect a one story building, 18 by 24, with a work room and fireproof vault. Among sites considered was land between the Hayward Fire House and Bacon Academy; the plot of ground north of the Congregational church property and the Cragin lot west of the Rutka store building. Various obstacles have arisen to prevent the selection of these sites and in order to have the matter definitely disposed of, a special town meeting is to be called for April 15 for the purpose of hearing the report of the committee as to the actual cost, plans of construction, site to be procured, etc.

The town is badly in need of a record building as the facilities furnished during past years to Town Clerk and Judge of Probate John Condren are entirely inadequate.

State Policeman Clarence R. Hoxie of Beacon Falls, a former local resident visited Thursday with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Rathbun.

A lunch of sandwiches, doughnuts and coffee was provided.

The following books have been added to the Cragin Memorial library: By purchase, Wilder, "The Woman of Andros"; Hall, "Big Book of Boys' Hobbies"; and by gift, White, "Life of Lyman Trumbull" and Taylor, "Life on a Whaler." The Life of Lyman Trumbull is of particular interest to Colchester people as Trumbull was born in Colchester in "Butternut Cottage," the house now owned by the Misses Joy on Broadway. He received his education at Bacon Academy before going to Illinois where he spent the remainder of his life. The book "Life on a Whaler" has just been published by the New London County Historical society.

Little squashes have been taken popular fancy, the dark green heavily ribbed variety sold as walnut or nut squash having been a recent introduction. It is known as the "Des Moines" in the trade. The thick flesh is of the best Hubbard quality. Half a squash baked is an individual serving. The skin is harder than the earlier sweet potato or banana squash but it can be split easily with a heavy butcher knife or cleaver. If no such kitchen tool is handy, the squash may be parboiled until soft and then cut in half and baked.

DANIELSON

KILLINGLY MAY NOT HAVE REVALUATION OF PROPERTY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 6.—There may or may not be a general revaluation of the property of the town of Killingly in this year of 1930. This doubt developed this morning, just after the calling of a special town meeting to fix the compensation for the assessors for making such a revaluation, and just as the preliminary work is getting underway.

Tonight the whole proposition appeared to hinge on whether or not the electors of the town will authorize the expenditure of the several thousand dollars that will be required to do the work.

Attorney Harry E. Mack pointed out this morning that while there is a statute providing that a general revaluation shall be made once in ten years following Feb. 1 1930 (Sec. 1158 General Statutes) that no penalty is provided in case of failure to do so. In other words, if the town of Killingly decides that it does not care to make an appropriation to cover the cost of a general revaluation of the property of the town, that the town, nor its officials nor its citizens generally cannot be penalized therefor. Attorney Back also pointed out that the ten-year period in which the revaluation should have been made expired Feb. 1, 1930, and that any revaluation that might be made at this time would have to be considered as covering the ten-year period between 1930 and 1940.

Attorney E. L. Darbie, counsel for the town, said this afternoon, that town officials were not insistent upon the revaluation being made at this time, but if the voters decide they wish to have it made and are willing to make the necessary appropriation to pay the assessors for doing the work, they will have an opportunity to go on record to that effect at the special town meeting called to be held next Wednesday evening just ahead of the adjourned annual town meeting. This puts the entire proposition entirely up to the voters.

This week the assessors, authorized by law to make the general revaluation, have been taking preliminary steps to get the work underway. Then arose the matter of how much money they might expect to receive for the job. It was stated in official circles this morning that the assessors, three in number, desired $6 a day each for their services to the town. The selectmen declined to accept responsibility for making such a rate without consulting the electors, so the special town meeting was called.

Then, this morning, came the assertion that the town need not have the work done at all, and the forecast of opposition to an appropriation for doing it at next Wednesday's special town meeting.

Incidentally, Brooklyn also held up plans that it had been making for a general revaluation, and today withdrew a notice about to be published calling a meeting to make an appropriation for the work.

The testimony of Detective Willie Jones, definitely charging Raymond Lalone with wounding him in their gun battle at Jacksonville, Fla., in January, where the trial of Lalone and one of his companions is now proceeding, is exactly in line with what has been anticipated here. Lalone, given a life sentence in the Connecticut state prison at Wethersfield for his part in the killing of State Officer Irving H. Nelson of the Danielson barracks in April, 1928, has always been regarded by numbers of officials that investigated the circumstances of the Nelson death as the actual killer of the state officer.

The project to make Blackwell's brook a state-leased stream for trout fishing seems well on the road to realization. This week end it will be explained to land owners who will be asked to give leases that they are not to be asked by the state to sacrifice any degree of control over their properties. The state merely asks of them the right to give fishermen the right of way over their lands during the open fishing season, a matter of ten or 11 weeks in the spring season, and in exchange will stock the brook heavily, build step-overs, fix regulations limiting fishermen to remaining within ten feet of either border of the stream, make fishermen entirely responsible for their actions in traversing leased stream areas and establish a daily patrol to see that all regulations are obeyed.

The state neither seeks nor asks any arbitrary control over leased brook areas. It merely sets up an agreement allowing what may be termed a traffic right of way for fishermen along the course of any given leased brook. Land owners surrender no rights of control beyond letting the fishermen through, under close regulation, for a few weeks in the year. Incidentally, once the state is assured that any leased stream is worthy of remaining such, and Blackwell's brook is most certainly in that category, it pays land owners generously, in cash, for either a ten-year or a perpetual fishing right lease.

Compensation generally is based on the distance that any leased brook runs through any given property.

All of this will be more definitely explained to land owners along the lower reaches of Blackwell's brook Friday by Homer Judd, representing the state fish and game commission.

Dr. C. R. Garcin of Dayville will open his office in Danielson, at 7 Broad street, on Saturday, March 8. Telephone and office hours will be the same as formerly.—adv.

This afternoon, Mrs. Oliver Bassett, matron at the town farm near Dayville, was hostess to three of the women inmates at their first talking motion picture entertainment at the Orpheum theatre, and it proved a real treat for them. Other women inmates of the farm were unable to accompany Mrs. Bassett because of physical infirmities.

The supreme court of errors for the state, at Hartford on Tuesday, heard arguments of attorneys in an appeal in the interest of the town of Brooklyn from a superior court decision by Judge Allyn L. Brown of Norwich finding that Frank M. Bedard was duly elected a grand juror of the town of Brooklyn at the annual town meeting last October though not declared elected by Moderator F. E. Cunneen. Attorney E. L. Darbie is counsel for Mr. Bedard, and before the supreme court the town clerk of Brooklyn, Judge Oscar F. Atwood, and Moderator Cunneen were represented by Attorney M. J. Blumenfeld of Hartford.

Mr. Bedard based his appeal from the action of Moderator Cunneen in failing to declare him elected last October on the ground that Brooklyn prior to 1929 has regularly elected six grand jurors, and that this practice could not legally be changed until after the town of Brooklyn in a town meeting had voted specifically to reduce the number of grand jurors to be elected. This, it is held, the town has not done, although the warning for the annual town meeting of 1929 contained a clause specifying that only five grand jurors would be elected. Mr. Bedard having a lesser number of votes than five other persons who were candidates for election as grand jurors, Moderator Cunneen followed the text of the warning for the meeting and declared only five elected.

It is not anticipated that the supreme court will render its decision in the matter for several weeks to come.

Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart, commanding officer of the Danielson barracks, and State Officer John Murphy were in Hartford today, attending a meeting of lieutenants of the state police department.

Stakes being driven today by men in the employ of the state highway department would indicate that there are to be many changes in the route of the trunk line highway between Danielson and Wauregan when it is rebuilt. The stakes being set today near the Andrew Wollow place at the Plainfield-Killingly line would take the course of the new highway through what are now fields west of the present route and along the edge of the state rifle range and the old roadbed of the trolley line. The change would eliminate a number of curves.

W. W. Wheatley, tyler of Putnam lodge of Elks for a number of years, has been renominated for the place.

Numbers attended the first of the mid-week Lenten services tonight under the auspices of Rev. C. J. Armstrong of the Baptist church at the Methodist Episcopal church.

A delegation from Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., of this town, will be in Bridgeport Thursday and Friday, March 20-21, in attendance at the 37th annual state conference of the Connecticut D. A. R.

Three miles of concrete highway—or, to be exact, 15,944 feet—will be built this year between Wauregan and Danielson. It is understood the work will be undertaken as soon as the weather becomes favorable.

At 2:10 this afternoon a "33" call brought out the fire department for the first brush fire of the season, sweeping over grass and brush land in the area between Hawkins street and Reynolds street, and holding a threat for many homes in that section.

Gas On Stomach Is Dangerous

TELLS HOW TO STOP IT

Gas, Pain, Bloating and a feeling of fullness after eating are almost certain evidence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach.

Too much acid irritates the delicate stomach lining, frequently causing chronic Gastritis and dangerous Ulcers. Food ferments and sours, forming a gas that distends the stomach and often seriously affects the Heart.

It is genuine folly to neglect such a condition or to treat with artificial digestive aids that cannot neutralize the stomach acid. A better way is to get from any reliable drug store some Bisurated Magnesia (powder or tablets) and take a little in water after each meal. Bisurated Magnesia will stop the worst gas attack quickly and without embarrassment. Taken right after eating, it prevents formation of gas and acids so there is no sourness, bloating or pain. Pleasant and perfectly harmless to use—Bisurated Magnesia does give wonderful relief in nine out of ten cases. Ask your Doctor or Druggist. Try it today.

NO. GROSVENORDALE

T. M. H. S. five was defeated by Putnam high basketball team, 44-17, Wednesday night in Tourtellotte gym. At the end of the first quarter the score was 14-2 in Putnam's favor. The scoring in this period for Putnam was centered around Capt. Carmen Leo and Reynolds DeBaradinis. At the end of the first half the score was 22-10, again in Putnam's favor. In the first part of the second quarter T. M. H. S. team seemed to wake up. With a burst of speed and fine team work they brought the score from 2 to 7 in three minutes, which made Captain Leo of Putnam call time.

At the start of the second half, Putnam team again got off to a fast pace and rolled in basket after basket, the Tourtellotte team seeming helpless in the attack. The game was Putnam's all the time. The Tourtellotte team was entirely spent after the game they played in Plainfield, which seemed to absorb all their strength.

The summary:

T. M. H. S.—O'Brien, rf; Sherry, lf; Johnson, lf; Chubbuck, c; Blanchette, c; Demetry, lg; Seney, rg; Eddy, rg.

Putnam—Leo, lf; R. DeBaradinis, rf; King, rf; Weiss, c; Ross, c; Coucia-ponti, rg; Sabin, lg.

The Over-the-Top bowling team took four points from the strong Artisans team, the first time during the season that any team has taken four points from the Artisans. The teams were composed of only four men Wednesday night on account of a meeting of the Artisans' society.

PUTNAM

TWO ADDITIONAL WITNESSES APPEAR IN MURDER CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 6.—The police of Webster investigating the murder of Mrs. Leon Trudeau, whose body was found on the outskirts of that town two weeks ago, have this week been contenting themselves with the ferreting out of witnesses of Leon Trudeau's strange actions on the day of the murder. Since Monday two witnesses who claim to have seen Trudeau, charged with the brutal slaying of his wife, on the day the body was discovered, have been found by the police and their testimony will be included in the general outline of the murder case which will be presented to the court when Trudeau is arraigned in district court in Webster Saturday morning on a charge of first degree murder.

One of the new witnesses is a man, who claims to have seen Trudeau drive by the spot where the body of his wife was lying Sunday morning after the gruesome discovery was made on the Thompson-Putnam road. The man says that Trudeau did not stop, but he craned his neck in an effort to get a glimpse of the corpse, which was shrouded with a gray blanket.

The latest witness to be found is a woman who claims to have seen Mrs. Trudeau enter the automobile of her husband on the night she is believed to have met her death. The testimony is most satisfactory, police say, and definitely places the alleged murderer being in Webster on the night of Feb. 22. The woman says that the estranged couple met on Prospect street and that from what she could glean, Mrs. Trudeau seemed affable to her husband's invitation to enter the car. The woman said that they drove into the center of the town.

The names of the two witnesses are being withheld by the police.

One of the most startling disclosures made in the case since the investigation was started was the advancement of a theory by police that Trudeau with the dead body of his wife in his car drove up Main street in Webster on the night of the murder, and turned onto Lake street, from there turning onto the Putnam road and drove to the watering trough, 20 feet beyond the Connecticut border. Here he washed himself and returned to his car, driving back up the road a distance of one mile to the spot where he deposited the body. According to the theory of the police, he drove back to Webster to find that the hat of his wife was still in the car. He turned up the Webster gore road where he threw the hat in the bushes and returned to Webster at 9:30. A watchman at the East Webster Slater mills has told police that he saw a sedan pass his office about 9:15 o'clock Saturday evening and return a few minutes later, going at a fast rate of speed. If the police are correct, then the statement by Trudeau that he did not drive over the Long Branch road from Wilsonville, Conn., where the murder is believed to have been committed, is untrue.

Deputy Chief John C. Templeman of Webster, head of the investigation, has stated that many discrepancies in Trudeau's alibi have been found. He is confident that the lower court will find probable cause and will bind Trudeau over for a grand jury hearing.

It was learned yesterday that physicians who performed an autopsy on the body of Mrs. Trudeau have filed a formal abstract of their finding with police, in which it was revealed that the woman had not been criminally attacked.

Miss Bella Bertrand, 36, a life-long resident of this city, died this morning in St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester, following a brief illness. Miss Bertrand was born in this city and had always made her home here. She was a member of St. Mary's church and was affiliated with the Order of Children of Mary, a church society. Besides her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Maxime Bertrand of Marshall street, the young woman is survived by four brothers and four sisters.

It is expected that the new two-hour parking laws, adopted Tuesday evening as a solution of the traffic situation in the downtown section by the common council will be in effect in about five days. Preparations for their formal enactment were being made today by Ernest C. Morse, corporation counsel.

MRS. JULIA PLACE REACHES HER 100TH BIRTHDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 6.—To Mrs. Julia Place of Putnam Heights goes the honor of being the town's oldest resident. Mrs. Place passed her 100th milestone of life today in the presence of relatives and a few friends at the home of Selectman Clarence E. Pierce on Putnam Heights, where she makes her home.

Many people in Putnam were totally unaware of Mrs. Place's advanced years—until the fact that she had rounded out a century of life was announced this morning during the Cheerio hour, a radio broadcast from station WEAF, New York city. Mrs. Place received birthday greetings over the air, which were also received by many listeners in this section.

Mrs. Place is a native of Putnam. She was born here on March 6, 1830, and has spent most of her life in Putnam. When Mrs. Place first saw the light of day 100 years ago, Andrew Jackson, the fiery soldier from Tennessee, was serving his first term as president, being the seventh president since George Washington. The Civil, Spanish and World wars were fought during her life. In 1830 only 17 states comprised the Union. Since 1837 Mrs. Place has witnessed the conversion of 31 territories into states which were admitted to the Union over a period of 93 years. She has seen the development of methods of transportation and communication from the introduction of the pony express to the railroad, steamship and airplane, and from the invention of the telegraph and telephone to the perfection of radio. In fact, all the wonders invented in the 19th and 20th centuries recorded in the annals of American history came into existence during the life of Mrs. Place, who marvels when she hesitates to compare life as it was in the days of her youth with the present day. Despite her advanced years, Mrs. Place enjoys good health. Her hearing and vision are somewhat impaired, but with the devotion of the members of the Pierce family, Mrs. Place manages to keep informed of the topics of the day.

Claiming that her son is being unlawfully detained by her estranged husband, Burton D. Bosworth of East Woodstock, Mrs. Daisey P. Bosworth of Pomfret and more recently of Waterford, filed an affidavit Wednesday with the superior court officials of New London county to that effect. The result of her action was a writ of habeas corpus being issued by Judge Christopher L. Avery of New London demanding the appearance of Bosworth in superior court in New London today at 12:30 o'clock to answer to charges filed against him by his wife.

While the result of the court procedure was not known here at a late hour this afternoon, it was understood that its primary purpose was to have the court determine whose custody the child shall remain in. It is within the province of Judge Avery to commit the custody of the child to the parent best fitted for his care.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Remington and three children of Oneco were callers at Mrs. Remington's parents Sunday. They went by the way of Jewett City and on their way they called at Mrs. Remington's brother and family at Pachaug and her newhpew and family, Herman Bitgood, and on her sister, Mrs. Charles Barber and family in Jewett City.

Where has all the peeping frogs gone and the blue birds and robbins. Birds are very scarce around these parts.

The roads are bad in and around here. Lots of mud to plow through. Albert Dawley was going home from Voluntown Saturday afternoon. He got into the mud about 4 o'clock and did not get out until 9 in the evening. He was about one mile from home. There is no one living on the road from his house to Voluntown so he could not get any help, but he got out himself just the same.

Mr. Dawley went to Norwich Monday, trading.

Milton and Edith Remington of Oneco, grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Bitgood, one 6 years old and the other 8 years old, picked a nice big bunch of pussy-willows all in full bloom a few days ago.

TRAFFIC REGULATIONS

Placed before the court of common council is a proposed change in the traffic ordinance by which it is intended to meet the existing situation in Shetucket street and encourage a better movement of motor vehicles.

At the present time Shetucket street is obliged to handle the traffic coming from the southern entrance to the city by way of Laurel Hill avenue and that coming from the west through Water street. It is required to take care of its normal traffic in both directions and in addition the east-bound Main street traffic, since the latter is a one-way street. Add to this the fact that there are almost always two lines of cars standing in the street during the busiest part of the day, and the bad corner at the junction of Water and Shetucket, and there is presented a short stretch of street where there is much congestion during heavy traffic. The situation is not helped in the least by the fact that there is a bus station at the Shetucket-Main street corner.

For the relief of this situation the plan is to eliminate the south-bound traffic in Shetucket street, thus doing away with the conflict at the Water-Shetucket street corner, and require traffic destined down Laurel Hill avenue to pass through Main, to Market, to Water to Laurel Hill avenue. This is going to require such traffic to circle a block, which will be rather awkward for those who are strangers, but it will eliminate much of the Shetucket street congestion due to both-way traffic. What it will do to the situation at Market street and to the long lines of cars which are held up by the Shannon corner signals remains to be seen.

Inasmuch as Shetucket street is forced to handle double traffic because of one-way Main street, it is unfortunate that all cars going to the right around Shannon corner cannot be permitted to "go" at all times. They interfere with no cross traffic and if moved along there would be a much-needed relief to the congestion which has been caused in Shetucket street traffic. Much of that traffic moves east through Main street when it gets the chance. Nothing is gained by holding it back, though obedience to the signal often keeps a line formed well into Laurel Hill avenue and far down into Water street, to which latter line, by the new plan, will be added the machines which are waiting to get into Laurel Hill avenue headed south.

To have a "go" line in Shetucket street at all times would necessitate two lines of traffic, one going to the right without stopping, the other going up Broadway or west into Main street under regulation of the signals. With Shetucket street a one-way street this arrangement might not be difficult.

Meeting traffic requirements under present-day conditions is by no means an easy proposition. Each year sees new demands to be met, more relief to be furnished and greater safety to be provided. The committee that has been at work upon the proposed changes believes that it will be an improvement. If there is a better solution, it will unquestionably welcome suggestions.

FEEBLE AND FRUITLESS

The demonstration that was made in a number of cities on Thursday can be of no real benefit to the cause of communism. Any movement that must depend upon efforts to break down commonsense regulations and to defy all authority will find certain adherents, but they react adversely upon the rank and file.

For the most part the communists were told what they would be permitted to do. They were not denied the right to talk and they were not told that they could not assemble peaceably. They were told that there were limits beyond which they could not go. This meant that in some places they could not parade, in others they must confine their outdoor activities to the streets and remain away from public buildings and grounds and naturally that they should not maintain an obstruction to public traffic.

This attitude on the part of city officials recognized all the rights they had reason to expect. It was against the sane regulations that they found an opportunity to start trouble. When they displayed defiance they encountered opposition that was able to disperse them, but they were in a position that could command no sympathy. There was likewise little opportunity for martyrdom, one of the chief things they rely upon for the advancement of their cause.

Communism has made very little progress in this country. Endeavors to create the impression that it had gained wholesale recruits, through efforts to capitalize the unemployment in this country, accomplished nothing. All that was done by the demonstrators was to create conditions which called for the preservation of order. They displayed the fact that their aim was to make trouble instead of trying to gain recruits through setting forth their principles. It was a feeble and fruitless demonstration.

WHAT WILL HAITI DO?

We do not think that the rather veiled hint of a revolution in Haiti will appeal to the commission that is making an investigation of conditions there or influence it in its finding of facts or in such recommendations as it may make.

That the commission will be disposed to lend an attentive ear to the pleas that are being made for a free and open election under constitutional provisions seems probable. The commission will doubtless recognize the importance of looking into the possibilities of such an election being held and ascertain what the sentiment concerning it from both sides really is.

The desire of the United States is that Haiti shall have the best possible government that it can get. It is unfortunate that it has not made the most of its opportunities. We are not forcing our assistance upon it because we have a desire to meddle. It is solely from an altruistic standpoint. Haiti encouraged conditions which meant that others would take a hand in the situation, and for a different purpose, if this country didn't. It had gotten into a sad state of affairs. Haiti has been helped by our being there and nothing would please Uncle Sam better than to be able to withdraw today.

If Haiti can demonstrate that it is able to handle its own affairs, conduct an honest and open election and maintain an efficient government, it will be good news to this country. Our withdrawal cannot, however, be precipitate. We must be assured that Haiti is able to do all it should for itself. When that time comes our gradual retirement can be expected and Haiti should know that it cannot come too soon. We have no desire to go back to furnish aid in repairing a needless wreck.

ARTHUR T. HADLEY

After having devoted his efforts and shed his influence for so many years in this state and held for a score of years the presidency of Yale university, it means a profound loss when Arthur T. Hadley is removed by death.

His labors in behalf of Yale were productive of great benefit for the institution. He was thoroughly familiar with the work and needs of the university, since he was a New Havener by birth and a graduate of the institution, in which he was later moved along steadily from tutor to professor of political economy, from which chair he was taken to be the president. There was the same success attending his work as the administrator of its affairs as there was during his years as teacher. He brought to it much prestige, his influence brought to it much financial support and he instituted valuable changes.

Dr. Hadley was always a scholar and, while he was an authority on many subjects, he was thoroughly grounded in railroad transportation and finance, having been of most valuable service to the New Haven road as a member of its board of directors.

It is inevitable that one of his ability who labored so long in one institution or who made his home for so many years in one city should have had an unusual influence upon the many with whom he came in contact. But it was not to Yale or to New Haven that his influence was restricted. He was one of the country's scholastic figures and in his death there has been suffered a distinct loss. Through his service at Yale and through his work in other fields he has left an impress that will not be eradicated.

CONGRESSMAN GLYNN

In this part of the state, Congressman James P. Glynn was not as well known as in the Litchfield hills, but no citizen can represent the state of Connecticut for seven terms without becoming more or less known to the people of the commonwealth. His name and the service that he rendered are well known to the people of Connecticut even if they did not all have the opportunity and pleasure of personally knowing him.

What they thought of him in the fifth congressional district is fully disclosed by the many times that he was sent to Washington. In whatever he undertook he was successful. He had the faculty of making and keeping friends. Therein he laid a fine foundation for his political career, but aside from being held in high esteem by the people of his district regardless of party, he was ever conscientiously working for the best interests of his constituents. That included the state as well as the district. He was a conscientious representative who was ever alert to his duties, one who understood that he was the representative of the whole district and who did his utmost to faithfully discharge that responsibility.

Having served for so many years he was thoroughly in touch with his problem and his death will be the cause of sincere regret. He has established a record that will not be easily outdistanced and his service to that corner of the state is one that will long stand in the political history of the fifth district. The passing of such a valuable public servant means a distinct loss in the Connecticut delegation at Washington and in the citizenry of this state.

MORE HELP WANTED

Edwin McKenna took the train for his office that morning with a light heart. An architect with a big reputation, Edwin was beginning on a new project—one that probably would take him far into the winter, and it meant work—both for him and his secretary. His secretary! Edwin McKenna smiled complacently. At last he had exercised rare diplomacy in the matter of secretaries and he felt that the outcome would be very satisfactory.

Edwin's was not the usual type of office. The young woman who worked for him must know blueprints, plans, specifications and the business of letting contracts. And she must be quick enough to act many times a day on her own initiative in matters of a highly technical nature. All of this, of course could not be learned in a hurry and it was up to Edwin painstakingly to train his youthful assistant.

Alas, it had been his sad experience, sometimes after months of patient effort, to see the young girl he had so carefully trained run off to get married. There had been cute little Jane Warren. Jane had been so anxious to learn and he had been such a patient teacher! After a year she had been able to run the office for him when he was out of town. Jane had been a joy—while she lasted. But Jane was so cute that six months after Bill Hershold came to work in the office as assistant draftsman he induced Jane to quit the business world and keep house for him!

Jane's successor had been Marjorie Ann Clemens, fresh from business college. For months Edwin had trained Marjorie, brought her up to the point of high efficiency when, sad to relate, Marjorie had fallen in love with the young lawyer who handled Edwin's legal business and had given Edwin her two weeks' notice.

There had been Peggy McNeill. The office had held little lure for her after the day Edwin's young brother blew in from the east. Four months later Peggy and brother Bob went off to be married. Helen Harris, who followed Peggy, met the same fate after she met young Dr. Blount, and Berenice White had lasted less than six months when she announced her betrothal. Edwin stood it until Berenice departed. Then he revolted.

"From now on," he vowed to himself, "there will be no more chic young things in this office, whose chief object is matrimony. I'll get an older woman, one whose mind is on business, who will be a real asset to me in my work, who will not require months of training by me and then leave when some good-looking young man intrudes upon her horizon."

For the next few weeks Edwin looked around very carefully. He talked his problem over with his friends. And then one day, while having luncheon at the club, Marvin Williams, one of his contemporaries, had said he was moving out of town and did Edwin know any one who needed a secretary?

"She's been with me eight years," Marvin said. "Supports her mother and a couple of younger sisters. You'll like Margaret Manning."

She was coming today. Edwin smiled complacently, got off his train and went up to his office. She was there before him. And, the funny thing was, the minute he looked at her Edwin's heart gave a smaller flutter and he began worrying, not that, like all the others, she would be likely to run off and get married but of fear lest she wouldn't—to him! For what Edwin saw was his dream of perfect womanhood come true. Margaret Manning was beautiful—she was poised, she was a personality.

Edwin called her in for dictation, he looked at the shining hair bent over her notebook, he gazed into blue-gray eyes when she looked up at him—and he felt himself grow incapable of speech.

"Ummm," he said, "no more work today, Miss Manning. Besides, I can think better over a good meal, so if you'll get your coat we'll go somewhere for lunch together."

Three months later Edwin met Marvin Williams again at the club.

"I don't suppose," he began, "you know another capable young woman looking for a good job—?" Marvin jumped.

"Don't tell me," he said, "that Margaret fell—like all the rest?"

"Well," Edwin answered, "at least I did—and Margaret's consented to marry me the first of June!"—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 6—It would not be altogether safe to trust senate soothsayers when it comes to estimating causes underlying presidential actions.

Some senators have a real gift for pointing the political clouds with anything but sunshine, viewed from the president's angle on the subject in hand.

Take so seemingly innocent an interlude as the Hoover fishing excursion to Florida in mid-winter. Unless the Bystander's memory is at fault, Mr. Hoover has rather made it a habit during his Washington life to do something like that every winter. Fishing seems to be his only real relaxation.

But at least two of his volunteer senate biographers managed to see a lot more in it than that.

Genial Pat Harrison of Mississippi, being in the mood to stir up his republican colleagues, found a way to relate the Florida excursion to the simultaneous visit there of Calvin Coolidge.

He pictured Mr. Hoover as rushing home deeply aroused for the security of his 1932 fences against a possible back to Coolidge movement.

Norris, Too

On another day George Norris was moved to advert to that fishing trip. He noted that the yacht on which the excursions to the fishing grounds were made belonged to a railroad director. That led him to recall the Hoover economy gesture which sent the presidential yacht Mayflower to the boneyard.

"The economy is demonstrated now," Norris said. "The president does not have to have a yacht paid for by the people. He can get one when he wants it from officials of big railroad companies."

All of which was, no doubt, entertaining for the senators; but how did Mr. Hoover feel about it? He has always been regarded by the Washington press as a man peculiarly sensitive to criticism. There were a number of incidents of his commerce department days indicating that.

What actually inspired the Florida excursion almost certainly was Mr. Hoover's over proneness to concentration on his job, whatever it may be. Sixteen hour working days are not good for anybody.

They are particularly hard on a man who has no liking for the movies, the theaters, light or even frivolous erading or any other of those forms of diversion in which previous occupants of the white house have found relief in off hours.

Doctor's Idea

President Wilson liked detective stories and went often to the theater, even in war times. Warren Harding was an inveterate golfer and liked informal reunions with congenial friends o' nights. Calvin Coolidge had a fixed quitting time each day, and shut his worries up in his office when he quit.

Mr. Hoover has at least a three year sentence still to serve at the white house. It's the business of his doctors to see that he keeps fit and does not overdo. No doubt the fishing trip was their idea, not his.

"The Hour of Prayer"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "After saying goodbye to them, he went up the hill to pray" (Mark 6:46). Read: Mark 6:35-46.

MEDITATION: This is Moffatt's translation. Jesus had had a busy day caring for the multitude. And there were exacting days ahead. He felt the necessity of saying "goodbye" even to the Twelve that He might retire to the hill for prayer. Today is the "World Day of Prayer," in recognition of the day of Pentecost. That was a day of witnessing to the glory and power of Christ. Every man heard the witness in his own tongue. The enterprise of carrying the Christian message to men in their own tongue has been one of the most noble and daring tasks in the history of mankind. To be strengthened for the work we need to pause, lift Christ up before us, open our spirits to the beauty of His life and be granted a sense of divine help. On this day we say "goodbye" to many activities and ascend into the hill of prayer.

PRAYER: Teach us to be still before Thee until our ears have caught Thine accents and our eyes have glimpsed Thy truth. Then, Lord, open Thou our lips, and our mouths shall show forth Thy praise and bear witness to Thy glory. Amen.

YOUR INCOME TAX

No. 29

Bad debts may be deducted from gross income in computing net income only for the year in which they are ascertained to be worthless and charged off the books of the taxpayer. The taxpayer should attach to his return a statement showing the propriety of any deductions claimed for bad debts. Where the surrounding circumstances show that a debt is worthless and uncollectible, and that legal action, in all probability, would not avail, proof of these facts is sufficient of their worthlessness.

Unpaid loans made to relatives or friends with little or no expectation of their return are not deductible, but are regarded as gifts. If a debt is forgiven, it can not be claimed.

A valid debt proved to be worthless is not always a proper deduction. For example, unpaid amounts representing wages, salaries, or rentals, or similar items of taxable income, are not allowed as deductions unless included in the creditor's return for the year or in the previous year. The fact that expected income was not received does not decrease the amount of taxable income.

A YANKEE ABROAD

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

Dino Grandi of Italy

LONDON (AP)—One of the outstanding figures of the London naval conference is a young man who already has smiled himself into quite a political career.

This gentleman of smiles is His Excellency, Dino Grandi, foreign minister for Italy and head of the Italian delegation to the conference. At the age of 35 he is Mussolini's right hand man.

One may perhaps dismiss the fact that he is a fine looking man of the type women are inclined to rave about. He sports a small moustache and a neatly trimmed Vandyke, possibly to conceal his comparative youth.

His Infectious Smile

That beard may, or may not, add to his good looks. However, his wide-set eyes, which always are alive with fire, certainly are an asset.

So are those long, artistic hands of his, which speak quite as expressively as does his diplomatic tongue. His hands are never quiet as he talks.

There are many elements which go to make up that vivid personality, but I think it is the smile which influences one most.

Signor Grandi shows his white teeth in a smile even when he is driving home some serious statement. That smile crops up everywhere, just as it used to do with our own Teddy Roosevelt.

Yet Grandi's smile differs from Roosevelt's. T. R.'s famous grin sometimes carried a degree of menace in it. Grandi's smile has a sort of naivete about it which conveys the impression of extreme friendliness.

Dino Grandi is one of the youngest foreign ministers ever to hold a portfolio in the cabinet of a great power. Soldier, lawyer, politician, statesman, he has played a leading part in the life of Italy for several years, despite his youth.

Hard-Working Diplomat

It was in 1925 that Mussolini picked out young Grandi and made him undersecretary for home affairs.

He has represented Italy at several international conferences and has performed many special missions for his chief. He is a hard worker, frequently devoting as many as 18 hours a day to his labors. And he is said to be efficient. He never loses his head. While he works fast, he works methodically.

Signora Grandi chooses to efface herself as much as possible from the limelight, and takes part in public affairs only when it is necessary.

YOUR HEALTH

Hemorrhoids

By George B. Lake, M. D., Chicago
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Hemorrhoids or "piles" are nothing more nor less than varicosities (like varicose veins on the legs) of one of the circular veins which surround the lower end of the rectum. Of course, they may become complicated by fissures (cracks in the mucous membrane), fistulas (false passages) or other inflammatory conditions, or they may split open and bleed. When we hear of "bleeding piles," "itching piles," etc., we may be sure that some complication of the primary condition is present.

When men began to walk upright one of the penalties they incurred was liability to hemorrhoids, for, in this position, the entire weight of the abdominal organs presses down into the pelvis instead of being supported by the front wall of the belly and the lower ribs, as is the case with the four-footed animals.

Other peculiarities of human anatomy work against us, too. These hemorrhoidal veins connect directly with the veins of the liver, which is often subject to congestion; they pass directly through the powerful muscles which are used in bowel movements and in "straining"; they are liable to be pressed upon by tumors in the pelvis, including a full bowel; and they are situated just under the delicate mucous membrane, where they are peculiarly exposed to injury.

If we look over the conditions which predispose to the development of these troublesome little tumors, we see what must be done to prevent them. The diet must be digestible and must contain enough fruits and fresh vegetables to prevent constipation. Too much mustard, ketchup, spices and such "hot" things will irritate the rectum.

Long hours on the feet, without lying down for a few minutes to rest, bring heavy pressure to bear in this region; and this is, of course, especially true in pregnant women.

Strong purgatives also cause trouble, because they result in "straining," with consequent congestion. Plenty of fruit and, if necessary, a little mineral oil are much better.

Another matter of importance is the thorough cleansing of the anal region after going to the toilet. It should also be thoroughly washed at least once a day.

It is very dangerous to look upon every troublesome condition about the anus as "nothing but piles." It may be only that; but also it may be an abscess, a fistula, or even the first and curable stage of cancer of the rectum. All who think they have hemorrhoids should see a doctor at once, and let him decide.

IN DAY'S NEWS

Premier Pilots Americans

England's 1930 tourist season started when the first guide of Great Britian, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, recently piloted members of the American delegation to the Naval Conference on a 30-mile trip through Buckinghamshire.

"Three thousand miles separate the the hamlet of Jordans, Buckinghamshire," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society, "yet there can be read in the visit to Jordans a gesture of friendliness to President Herbert Hoover.

"The simple, red-brick meeting house at Jordans has been called the 'Quaker's Westminster Abbey.' In the peaceful graveyard lie buried the famous Quaker leader William Penn, founder of Pennsylvania, his two wives and five children; Thomas Ellwood, secretary to John Milton; and the Penningtons, early leaders of the Society of Friends, who suffered persecution for their faith.

"Jordans, which is 15 miles from Chequers, the official country home for England's premiers, is at the southern limit of the historical pilgrimage circuit taken by the delegates. The journey over the Chiltern hills took the touring delegates and their families through Great Hampden, Hughenden, High Wycombe, Beaconsfield, Chalfont St. Giles, Amersham and back to Chequers. This district, which is a favorite week-end retreat for Londoners, is about 25 miles northwest of London.

"Nearly all of the communities visited are homes of men whose fame, widespread in England crosses: Great Hampden is the home of Walter Hampden, who fought the battle against taxation without representation in England a century and a half before it had to be refought in America; Hughenden is the home of Earl of Beaconsfield, better known as Disraeli, twice prime minister; Beaconsfield is the home of Edmund Burke, the Irish champion of the American colonies; and Chalfont St. Giles is the village where John Milton took a cottage while the plague raged in London. In Chalfont St. Giles he completed 'Paradise Lost.'

"Prime Minister MacDonald probably told the party, when it reached Milton's cottage, of how the poet gave the manuscript of 'Paradise Lost' to his Quaker secretary, Thomas Ellwood, to read. Milton urged him to make any suggestions that came to his mind.

"'He asked me how I liked it and what I thought of it,' wrote Ellwood in his autobiography, 'which I modestly, but freely, told him; and, after some further discourse about it, I pleasantly said to him, "Thou hast said much here of Paradise Lost, but what hast thou to say of Paradise Found?"'

"Ellwood's remark, it is believed, prompted Milton to write 'Paradise Regained.'

"Chequers, where the American guests of the Prime Minister assembled, is confortable old manor house that came to the English Government in 1917 by gift from Lord and Lady Lee. The familiar game has no link with the estate's name, which it owes to the pride that an early owner took in his appointment by Henry II to the Exchequer. The name happens to be appropriate because in modern times England's premiers frequently have stepped up from the secretaryship of the treasury: that is from the Exchequer to Chequers.

"Its location 33 miles out of London on the main line railroad to Birmingham puts Chequers within easy reach of the British 'White House' at No. 10 Downing street. In an hour Premier MacDonald can escape from the noise and confusion of the city to the heights of the Chiltern hills where the garden terraces command a view over the peaceful, green countryside sloping down to the Thames river.

"In the days when these old hills were not so peaceful, Parliament regularly assigned a bailiff to the Chiltern Hundreds to put down the bandits and outlaws. The office still figures prominently in the proceedings of Parliament, although the outlaws have vanished. An appointment as bailiff of the Chiltern Hundreds, an office with no duties and, until modern times, a salary of but 20 shillings (about $2.50 per year), permits a member to resign with honor on the plea that, holding an office of trust from the crown, he cannot remain in Parliament as a representative of his constituency.

"Chequers' associations are chiefly with Cromwell, although he never entered the halls. Frances Cromwell, daughter of the Protector, married John Russel of Chequers and brought to the manor mementos of her famous father. Of these historic treasures the most important is the mask of Cromwell, found a few years ago in a neglected corner."

Stories That Recall Others

Why Not?

Little Helen was sitting on Uncle Charlie's lap. He had been entertaining her, as uncles sometimes do, by drawing pictures for her.

"Now, Uncle Charlie, draw me a dish of mashed potatoes."

"Child," he laughed, "I can't draw that."

Helen looked quickly up at him saying: "I don't see why. You know what they are. You have eaten them at our house, haven't you?"

Loved 'Em All.

The second grade teacher was seated at her desk. Up came a little girl with a note, which read, "I love you," signed Carl A—. Another girl ran up with a note just like it.

The teacher stood up saying: "All the children who received notes bring them to me." It seemed as if the whole school rose as 23 little girls came forward with notes, all reading: "I love you. Carl A—."

"Why did you write to every girl in the room, Carl?" the teacher asked.

By this time the little fellow was crying, but blurted out: "I just love them all and I thought they ought to know it."

The first false teeth, as far as known today, were worn by a woman of Sidon in Phoenicia about 300 B. C., according to Dr. Roy L. Moodie, widely-known anatomist of Santo Monica, Cal. The Phoenician woman's jaw, with the false teeth, is now preserved in the Louvre, in Paris. The two right incisors are represented by artificial teeth, held in place and bound to each other by gold wire. The wire has been drawn through careful perforations in the artificial teeth. Although the Egyptians pioneered in treatment of many diseased conditions of the body, this sort of dental replacement apparently was never devised by Egyptian physicians. Thousands of mummies, representing 7,000 years of life in Egypt, have been examined, but no clear evidence of such repair work has ever been found. It appears that we not only owe our alphabet and numerous geographic discoveries to the restless inquiring minds of the Phoenicians, Dr. Moodie points out, but also we are indebted to them for this entrance into prosthetics, which is a particularly valuable field of dentistry.

STRATFORD RECTOR OPENS SERIES OF WEEKLY UNITED LENTEN SERVICES

Rev. L. T. Graham, rector of Christ Episcopal church, Stratford, was the preacher Thursday evening at Christ Episcopal church, at the opening service of a series of five union meetings that are being held during the Lenten period under the auspices of Christ and Trinity Episcopal churches. The service Thursday evening was in charge of the rector, Rev. Thomas Richey, who was assisted by Archdeacon J. Eldred Brown, rector of Trinity church, and the organist, Arthur Hall. There was a large congregation.

Rev. Mr. Graham, taking as his text Matt. 4, "Then was Jesus led up of the spirit into the wilderness to be tempted by the devil," said in part as follows: "After His baptism, Jesus gave Himself up to fitting meditation and prayer. For 40 days He was in solitude in close communion with God. Then He met the test of His vision and inspiration—He was tempted.

"Temptation is common to most of us; we all meet it; no one escapes. Jesus meets it at the very beginning of His ministry. The Bible gives us a very vivid account of this temptation in symbolic language because that is easier for us to understand. We remember that the Genesis account of Adam's temptation is recorded in that way. Jesus is hungry and weary. His resisting power is suffered to be low. So He is approached in three ways.

"First, to abuse His miraculous powers; to doubt the word of God; to appetite. He is hungry.

"Second, a temptation to take a short and easy road to recognition as the Messiah by giving 'a sign from heaven,' which He would be compelled to accept, presuming upon the word of God, an appeal to pride.

"Third, the third was a temptation to reject the word of God, to do evil that good might come, and was an appeal to ambition.

"Jesus did not fall. He successfully parried the three attempts to shake Him from His purpose and then went forward on His mission. Jesus conquered Satan in Himself and now came out to conquer him among men.

"Temptation is always found in the way of the cross. Only through temptation can human nature gain perfection. But we must not forget that wherever temptation is, there God is, also. No man can be entirely free of temptation as long as he lives, because the source of temptation is in ourselves by the inheritance of a corrupt nature. The kingdom of God is within you, says Christ. Yes, but in most of us the kingdom of earth holds it fettered in sin.

"Beginning of all evil temptations is inconstancy of mind and too little trust in God. We trust ourselves too much! For as a ship without a rudder is driven hither and thither by the waves, so a man who is negligent and inconstant is tempted in many directions. A great many of us are ships without rudders.

"Fire proves iron, so temptation tries a just man. We are often ignorant of the amount of power we possess, but temptation makes clear to us what we are. We must repel the invader at the first knock on the door of our hearts. Don't wait for the disease to get a running start before you call the doctor.

"For, at the first, there comes into the mind simply a thought, then a strong imagination, often the feeling of pleasure, then an evil motion, then consent and so by degrees the malignant enemy gains full possession, because he was not resisted in the beginning. The longer a man continues slack in resisting temptation, the weaker he daily becomes and the stronger becomes his adversary. There is only one way to make sure that we shall be safe from evil imaginations and that is by placing before our secret thoughts matters for consideration that are pure and wholesome.

"We must keep our thoughts on higher things. Temptation is not sin. Being attacked is not being defeated. But we must stick to God, just as Christ did. We must stick to prayer and worship and communion. We must rise from our meditation and prayer and go out into the world, but we must not go out into the world without our meditation and prayer. We must not dare to live a day without seeking strength to live, asking Christ to deliver us from temptation, by so dwelling in us, and so filling us with the fulness of His peace and joy that there is no room for anything else. But if He is to do that, we must continually come back and seek, voluntarily, to put ourselves into communion and contact with beauty, goodness and truth. We must build within ourselves an inner shrine, into which we can at will, retreat, and there seek God and lay at His feet the temptation that has to be met with and the problem that has to be solved.

"'The kingdom of God is within you,' said Jesus. Be master of your passions, sublimate them, make them merge into one grand passion for God. The kingdom of God for your soul and mine is that condition where God is your or my soul's King, where your soul or my soul seeks and obeys the highest, where your soul or my soul loves truth and duty more than comfort or luxury!

"Thanks be to Christ for His temptation. He has shown us the way to conquer it. God's love carried Him through His trials and through Christ we can carry on. In this world we must either be conquerors or slaves. We all know what it is to be the world's slaves, but what it is to be its conqueror through Christ, that, no man knows entirely. Experience in the daily battle gives us more and more knowledge. But we shall know some day when the freed spirit casts the flesh away and goes to the God by whom it has lived so long."

The next service in the series is to be held Thursday evening, March 13, at 7:45 o'clock, at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, the preacher to be Rev. Donald W. Greene, rector of St. Paul's church, Wallingford.

STATE HEALTH DEPT. NEEDS ADDITIONAL ROOM

The need for additional quarters for the state department of health laboratories within two years is pointed out in the annual report of Commissioner of Health Stanley H. Osborn, just given out. The annual report of the state health council stresses the need for additional whole-time health officers in the state, with the suggestion that the smaller communities band themselves together as public health districts, and employ one such health officer for several towns.

The health council report points out that a state statute exists permitting communities not large enough to employ a full-time health officer to group themselves together in the form of a health district. The minimum requirements for a full-time public health office consist of a health officer, sanitary inspector, clerk and public health nurses, the report states.

Connecticut has only one full-time health officer in the town group, it is pointed out, that being in Fairfield.

The present quarters occupied by the bureau of laboratories is practically all utilized, Commissioner Osborn states, but additional workers can be added to care for the increased demands for the next two years, but new work which entails additional space for equipment must wait until the new quarters are provided. Examinations during the year showed an increase of 12 per cent, it is stated.

A total of 96 new licenses to practice healing arts were issued during the year, Dr. Osborn reports, 93 of which were for the practice of medicine and surgery and one each for chiropractice, natureopathy and chiropody. The total number of persons registered under the healing arts law was as follows: Medicine and surgery, 1,980; chiropractice, 152; natureopathy, 109; chiropody, 94; registered nurses, 3,062; midwives, 106.

In the medical diploma mill investigation, 118 persons lost appeals and can no longer practice and two persons surrendered their licenses. At the time the report was made out 48 appeals from decision of the department were pending, 10 appeals had been sustained and four injunctions preventing revocation of license had been issued.

Six prosecutions resulting in conviction of persons practicing the healing arts without a license or for performing an illegal operation were brought.

In the last year the state had its second lowest annual death rate on record, Dr. Osborn's report points out.

BEAUREGARD IN FIGHTING TRIM FOR BOUT WITH JOHNNY VACCA TONIGHT

Tonight's Card

Main Bout.

Al Beauregard of Taftville vs. Johnny Vacca of Boston, 10-rounds, at 120 pounds.

Six Round Semi-Final.

Johnny Kop of Norwich vs. Billy Prince of Waterbury, 140 pounds.

Six Round Preliminary.

Rene Pelequin of Danielson vs. Pat James of Providence, at 122 pounds.

Two Four Round Preliminaries.

Young Guoin of Taftville vs. The Walloping Wop, of New York, at 140 pounds.

A glance at this card will convince the local fight fan that he is in for an evening of action tonight at Parish hall. Four bouts on the card are certain to be fast bouts and the fifth bout no one seems to know much about, that being the Bobby Wells-Harry Ryder four round preliminary. From reports gathered from Montville it would indicate that the fans may be treated to a surprise. It is said that Wells, who is employed at the Robert Gair plant, is an old time boxer who has boxed in New York and New Jersey and comes to Montville with quite a reputation. However, it is known that there has been a big sale of tickets in Montville, especially among the employees of the Gair Co., who are backing their man very heavily.

All the rest of the bouts are between boys well known to the patrons of the ring and everybody knows what they can expect of these lads.

As can be expected, the chief interest centers about the main attraction in which Al Beauregard, Connecticut bantamweight champion, clashes with Johnny Vacca, of Boston, the New England titleholder. Beauregard is intent upon taking the victory from Vacca as it will give him a valid claim to the New England title. Vacca, who has held the title for several years, has difficulty in making the 118 pound limit and has not engaged in what might be called a title fight, in a long time. Beauregard will come in at 118 pounds and although spotting Vacca two or three pounds, he is confident that he will be in better condition and faster than at the heavier mark. Al scouted Vacca at New Bedford last Monday night and is confident that his plan for campaign against the champion will gain him the victory. Beauregard says that Vacca is hitting harder than when he met him in Hartford and Pittsfield and has a left hook that is dangerous. It is against the left hook that Beauregard has perfected his plan of fighting. Whether Beauregard or Vacca wins the decision it is bound to be one sweet little scrap.

Another sure-fire hummer is the Pelequin-James fight. Those who saw Pelequin whip a better man than himself two weeks ago know that he will put up a strong battle against James, who is quite some boy in his own right. James is former New England amateur bantamweight champion, and has been continuing his success since joining the professional ranks.

Johnny Kop, local boxer, who fights for the first time before a hometown audience, is favorite to win over Billy Prince of Waterbury in the semi-final. Kop made a nice showing at Hartford the other night against the clever Rocky Rayo and although disqualified with the results himself, fans who saw the bout thought Kop fought exceptionally. The local boy should have little difficulty in taking Prince inside the six-round limit and it is safe to say there will be action while it lasts.

The four-rounder between Young Guoin, the good looking Taftville youth, and the Walloping Wop of New York will be another whirlwind bout. Guoin is an ambitious youngster who made a sensational debut two weeks ago and plans to continue his success against the visiting opposition this evening. Little is known of the Walloper other than that he is a stiff puncher and a great little fighter.

The ticket sale is good and another packed house is anticipated. The first preliminary goes on at 8.15.

RUPPERT TO STAND PAT ON OFFER TO RUTH

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—Col. Jacob Ruppert, president and sole owner of the New York Yankees, reached St. Petersburg this evening for an all-important contract conference with Babe Ruth and immediately made it clear that he stood pat on his offer of $75,000 a year for 1930 and 1931.

Before a talk with Ruth tomorrow, Col. Ruppert was reluctant to discuss what might transpire. He indicated he meant business, however, by bringing a lawyer with him to attend to any legal or technical matters that may arise in drawing up the new salary terms for the home run king.

So far, Ruth has given no more indication of yielding from his demand of $85,000 for each of the next three years than Col. Ruppert has in raising the club figures which the slugger rejected some time ago in New York. The general feeling in the camp, however, is that Ruth will sign, whether or not a compromise is reached.

Col. Ruppert, discussing the situation tonight, expressed the conviction that the New York club always had treated Ruth fairly and that he, as well as baseball men generally, considered the $75,000 offer for the next two years fair. The colonel considers the Babe has been unreasonable in demanding a salary $10,000 higher. It is no secret the club's owner resented Ruth's lengthy statement, mailed to New York newspapers from Palm Beach several weeks ago, threatening to retire and live off a $25,000 income if his figures were not met.

Under no circumstances, Col. Ruppert declared, will Ruth receive a three year contract, such as he has demanded. The colonel was non-committal on the talk of an $80,000 contract for one year.

Ruth said it with base hits today, in advance of the colonel's arrival, connecting for a triple and a single in three times at bat during the practice tilt.

BRITTON BEATS SCHELL WITHOUT MUCH TROUBLE

HARTFORD, March 6.—(AP)—Jack Britton, former welterweight champion of the world, who is essaying a comeback, handily defeated Al Schell, Bostonian, in the feature ten round bout of a card at Foot Guard hall tonight. Schell was unable to puzzle the veteran with his best punch, a left hook, that Britton dodged with ease.

The defeat brought to an end the winning streak of Schell, who previous to this bout had won four straight contests on knockouts. Britton weighed 153 1-4, Schell 145.

In the semi-final, Joe Smith knocked out Joe Howard, in the second round after flooring the latter boy twice. Smith weighed 157 1-2, Howard 163 1-2.

Sammy Kraft, 140 3-4, Bridgeport, knocked out Billy Smith, 148 3-4, of Yonkers, in the fourth round of a scheduled six round match. In another rounder, Mike Toronto, 164, of Bridgeport, won the decision over Roy Powers, 165 1-2, of Holyoke. In the opening bout, a slam-bang affair, Marty Martino, 126 1-2, won a four round decision over Joe Cilante, 124. Both boys are from Hartford.

Gyome and Polakevich starred for the Shamrocks with 18 and 14 points respectively, while Morosky and McDermott featured for Montville. ALL STARS WIN MATCH FROM THE WHIRLWINDS

At the Recreation Billiard Parlor Thursday night the All Stars, captained by Tim Griffin, defeated the Boston Whirlwinds by the score of 100 to 73. The game at all times was exciting and closely contested. The feature of the match was the playing of Capt. Griffin who time after time came to the rescue of his team by executing some very difficult shots. Herts for the losers made what was probably the fanciest shot of the tournament so far, when he executed a four ball combination kiss shot. The shot was more remarkable because of the fact that the ball that was lying the cue ball and the first object ball almost three-quarters of the way down the table. The winners lined up as follows: T. Griffin, Capt. S. Levinsky, J. Dongvanski and the losers, T. Williams, Capt., P. Shea, O. Herts. Tonight the Chumps play the Shoemakers.

Y SENIORS PLAY AT MIDDLETOWN SATURDAY

The Y Seniors will play their first Saturday game out of town this season tomorrow night when they tackle Middletown Y at Middletown in a state league game. The Seniors were beaten by this club on the local floor in January but are confident of reversing this score this time. Middletown is one of the leaders in the race.

The Seniors have only three more league encounters, only one with Torrington here Saturday, March 15 and a game with Stamford at Stamford remaining on the schedule. The Stamford game will probably be played as part of a New York trip that is planned the last of this month.

Palace Beats Jewett City

The Palace billiard team got sweet revenge from the Jewett City team at the Palace in Norwich last evening, thus making it one each. The tie will be played off in the near future. The summary: Palace—Schultz 74; Johnson 100; Morin 100; total 274. Jewett City—Arremony 100; Miller 85; Bissonnette 25; total 210.

Mulligans Accept Challenge

The Mulligan bowling team will meet the Rock Water Soda team Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock for money or marbles according to Joe Dugas, its manager.

DO YOU REMEMBER THIS ONE?

(Another of a number of articles recalling local baseball of other years.)

A request from Taftville has been received to bring back one of the old Taftville-Jewett City games, and what a game! It was played at the Providence street grounds Saturday, May 13, 1915, and the final score was 28 to 1 in favor of the Taftville boys. No less than seven home runs, three of them by Billy Gley, were made by Taftville, which team scored in every inning of an eight-inning game.

It will be noticed that Jewett City had only eight players and whether this contributed to the Taftville victory or whether it was an error, is not known. Taftville made 28 hits, including besides the seven homers, five doubles and two triples. It sure was a great day for the Taftville fans.

Why is it that intoxicated people are attracted to policemen like flies are to molasses?

What is the peculiar kink of the mind that nine times out of ten will guide the wavering feet of the inebriate directly to the officer on the beat.

The other afternoon at Shannon's corner there seemed to be an especial attraction for those who had imbibed too long and too well.

One of Norwich's finest was operating the traffic light when up the street came an individual weaving an unsteady course.

There was a collision and the officer was bounced off the sidewalk into the gutter. The officer turned and there was the inebriated one making a profuse apology being upheld by a sturdy telephone pole at the corner.

The officer did his duty and the inebriated one was taken to the place in front of which glow two green lights. Back to his post of duty came the officer.

As he approached the corner he stopped and stared. Across the street and leaning against the pole was another man much worse for his over indulgence.

The officer went across the street, "Shay, Officer, whatcha do with my buddy?" asks the second desciple of Bacchus. "You, didna arrest him didja?"

"That's no way to do to separate two buddies like that, you oughta know we gotta stick together."

"All right," says the officer, "if you feel that way about it you won't be separated. Come along with me!"

And he went.

GRIFFITH AND FRIEDMAN BOX AT BOSTON GARDEN TONIGHT

BOSTON, March 6—(AP)—Gerald Ambrose "Tuffy" Griffiths, the rising young heavyweight battler from Sioux City, Iowa, and Al Friedman, of Boston, will settle their month's old argument here tomorrow night, when they clash in the Boston Garden's 10 round feature bout.

These boys fought in Chicago last summer, and though Griffiths was awarded the decision, Friedman has been insistent that he really outpointed the mid-westerner.

Wild Willie Oster, rugged New London middleweight, and Ralph "Kid" Wagner, of Philadelphia, will meet in the eight round semi-final.

SENIORS-ALTEX GAME OFF; MAY NOT BE PLAYED

The Y Seniors-New London Altex game that had been scheduled for tonight at the Y gym was cancelled Thursday evening by the New London five. This would have been the deciding game of a three-game series between these inter-city rivals. Indications now are that the game will not be played as the Seniors' schedule is completely filled for the remaining few weeks of the season.

GAMMAS CLASH AT Y WITH NEW HAVEN TEAM

The local basketball attraction Saturday evening at the Y, what with the Y Seniors playing out of town, will bring together the Norwich Gammas of the Greek Orthodox and the Pericles club of New Haven. The Gammas intend to uphold the honor of the local church league with a victory over the speedy Elm City quintet, which is reported to be among the best in its class in that section.

ONE FORCED OUT OF RACE BY INJURIES

NEW YORK, March 6.—(AP)—Hurt in a spill which occurred in the course of the afternoon sprints, Anthony Piemaqtasi, Italian participant in the six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden, was forced to quit the grind. His partner, Edward Baffo of Italy, was given four hours in which to find a new team mate.

Miss Shanahan Scores 25 Points

STORRS, March 6.—(AP)—Helen Shanahan of Waterbury, playing right forward on the Connecticut Aggies' girls' basketball team, scored 25 of her team's 27 points today against St. Lawrence university. The Aggies won, 27 to 25.

Miss Shanahan, who is a junior, has been a consistent high scorer for her team this season.

COLD WEATHER HOLDS UP ACADEMY PRACTICE

The cold weather of the early part of the wee khas slightly altered Coach Brigham's plans of getting an early practice start for his Academy baseball squad with the result that the first call is not expected until Monday of next week. The local mentor had planned to get his boys out the middle of the present week but there is still a little frost in the ground that would hamper the training. The campus, however, is in far better shape than is usually the case at this time of the year.

YESTERDAY IN THE TRAINING CAMPS

Reds

ORLANDO, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—Harry Heilmann, Bob Meusel and Tony Cuccinello today demonstrated to John Heydler, president of the National league, the noble art of fence-busting by lifting four mighty wallops over the barrier at the Cincinnati Reds' training camp at Tinker field here. Cuccinello just up from the Columbus Senators, contributed two over-the-fence clouts.

The Reds' camp was the first of the Florida training sites inspected by President Heydler. He left after the practice for Winter Haven to visit the Phillies.

Stripp, another former Columbus Senator, battling with Cuccinello for a regular infield berth, bounced some drives off the fence.

Manager Dan Hawley again put the pitchers through a long drill covering first base on infield hits, drilled the infielders on the art of catching short outfield flies and then put the squad through a fast fielding practice.

Senators

BILOXI, Miss., March 6.—(AP)—Fred Marberry and Ad Liska, two of Walter Johnson's pitching dependables, are giving the Nationals' pilot much satisfaction by their rapid progress rounding into form for heavy mound duty.

The bulk of the Senator squad is expected here by Monday, although "Goose" Goslin, slugging outfielder, and Roy Spencer, catcher, may not be numbered among those present.

Both have been at odds with President Griffith over salaries terms and although it is the feeling in the Senator camp that Goslin eventually will return to the fold, Griffith has announced that unless Spencer reports Monday he will suspend him.

Cardinals

BRADENTON, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—Earl "Sparky" Adams, infielder purchased from the Pittsburgh Pirates, was the first Cardinal casualty of the training season. Adams injured a tendon in his left hand today, and went through the day's training program with the hand in a bandage. The injury was not believed to be serious.

Coach "Buzz" Wares, who gained a reputation as clever base runner, when he was a big league player, today took charge of Charley Gelbert, Ernest Orsatti and Taylor Douthit, and tried to teach the fine points of getting a good start from a base.

Yankees

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—Babe Ruth's war club struck the deciding blow as the New York Yankees' Yannigans trimmed Lou Gehrig's regulars, 3 to 1, in a practice game today. The Babe cracked out a long triple and a single for exactly half of the Yannigans' hits off Rhodes and Andrews. The regulars got only five safeties off George Pipgras and Americus Polli.

Two catchers were hurt during the battle. Bubbles Hargrave caught one of Rhodes' slants on the wrist and had to retire. Benny Bengough went in for him and the second ball he caught tore off the nail of the little finger of his left hand.

Robins

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—Some high powered pitching by Johnny Morrison and Cy Moore was the high spot of the Brooklyn Robins' daily practice game today, the regulars beating the irregulars, 7-4.

Moore and Morrison were rivals over the last three innings and neither was scored on. Moore gave up only one hit to the irregulars and Morrison two to the regulars.

Giants Win Exhibition

AUSTIN, Tex., March 6.—(AP)—The New York Giants ushered in the 1930 baseball exhibition season today with a 4 to 1 victory over the University of Texas nine.

The McGraw clan of veterans and rookies got to Johnny Railton, who started in the box for the collegians, for its four runs in the first two innings. Mike Lafuente, who went to the mound in the third, held the National leaguers to four scattered hits for the balance of the nine innings.

The pitching for the Giants was divided by Jim Tennant, formerly of the York club, and Wally Brush, a semi-pro acquisition. Andy Reese, starting at third base for the Giants, was forced to retire in the first inning, when he was spiked in the left hand by Umpire Boggess as Reese was sliding into the bag.

Score by innings:

New York Giants	220 000 000—4	9	1
Univ. of Texas	100 000 000—1	9	0

Tennant, Brush and Healey and Lavacque, Railton, Lafuente and Lewis.

Browns

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—When two movietone outfits visited the Brown's training camp here today, Manager Bill Killefer carefully refrained from predicting where the team would finish, but Coaches Blackburne and Austin were not so conservative. Both coaches stated the team was "there."

Manager Killefer is worried over the continued absence of Pitcher Sammy Gray. Skipper Bill has not yet decided upon a lineup to use in a practice game with a Palm Beach resort team Sunday.

Tigers

TAMPA, Fla., March 6.—(AP)— It appears now that the Detroit Tigers list of regulars this year will show more changes from last season than that of any other American league team.

The showing made by all recruits in the training camp here has convinced critics of the sport that a team which would be far from weak can be assembled with every regular of 1929 replaced.

YANKEES SUFFER TWO CASUALTIES IN CAMP

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—The New York Yankees suffered two casualties to their catching staff today in the first practice game of the season.

Eugene (Bubbles) Hargrave, the veteran obtained from St. Paul, was painfully hurt when hit on the right wrist by a pitched ball, hurled by Gordon Rhodes. Shortly afterward Benny Bengough, working behind the plate with George Pipgras pitching, had three fingers on his right hand split by a foul ball.

It was feared at first Hargrave's wrist was broken but an x-ray tonight disclosed no fracture.

Both players will be out of action for at least several days, leaving the main catching burden up to Bill Dickey.

WILL HOLD ALL CENSUS INFORMATION CONFIDENTIAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, March 6 — Every farm operator may be assured that information given to the enumerators in the 1930 agricultural census will be held strictly confidential and cannot be given to tax officials for taxation purposes, according to Dr. E. A. Perregaux, marketing specialist at Connecticut Agricultural college in a radio talk given over station WCAC. The economist emphasized the importance of this census which is to include every farm operator in the United States, and commented on the sample questionaires which have already been sent out. These sample questions will greatly facilitate the work of the census board by allowing each farm operator to have ready all necessary information for the enumerators. Another advantage in the sample blank, the economist pointed out, is that greater accuracy is possible in the answering of the questions when the information has been assembled previously.

One of the most important uses of these census figures is in determining trends in different types of agriculture in different areas, Dr. Perregaux said. A knowledge of these trends is vital in planning sound policies for the future, not only of Connecticut agriculture but of the country as a whole. The census furnishes valuable source material in regard to changes in types, and it is to the interest of each farmer in the state to answer questions for his farm as accurately as possible.

If the exact figures are not available and a fairly accurate estimate is possible such a figure is more valuable than none at all, the state college economist said. In the large number of records taken the accuracy resulting from the larger number offsets by far the slight inaccuracies resulting from estimates when the actual figures are not available. This is especially true in agriculture where the individual farmer can estimate much more closely than is possible in many other types of business in which the large number of small transactions make it impossible to furnish accurate estimates.

Another item of considerable interest, especially in view of the recent formation of the federal farm board, will be the answers to questions relative to the extent of cooperative purchasing and selling last year.

Trading in seed potatoes during the past two weeks has shown some improvement, Dr. Perregaux said. Demand is still not as active as has been expected by the shippers, and prices have shown little change although they are lower than at the beginning of the season. Sales of certified Green Mountains were made during the last two weeks in Maine, f. o. b. shipping point at $4.00 to $4.50 per 11 peck sack or $1.45 to $1.64 a bushel at Maine stations.

CLOVER SEED UNUSUALLY WEEDY THIS SPRING

Clover and lespedeza seed are abundant this spring but much of the supply is so full of weed seeds that the bureau of plant industry of the U. S. department of agriculture warns farmers that they must use more than ordinary care in selecting or purchasing seed for spring planting. The weed problem is so serious this year that the bureau advises farmers to be "sure of the quality of seeds they are sowing, particularly as to purity and freedom from weed seed."

"Above all else," says the bureau, "the farmer should use seed that will produce a clover crop—not a weed crop. We can not urge too strongly the value of hardy home grown clover seed of adapted varieties for use wherever possible."

"The situation with respect to weed seeds, especially dodder, applies with equal force to lespedeza. A large and growing industry has developed in certain sections of the south in the production of seed of the new improved varieties of lespedeza. The presence of dodder in enormous quantities of a serious menace to the industry. In the summer of 1929 few fields of the improved lespedezas were free from dodder, in some cases, there was more dodder than lespedeza. Many growers were inclined to blame the people from whom they had bought their seed. The situation is nothing short of serious. Dodder is perhaps the most generally feared of all noxious weeds, and, if the growers of lespedeza seed wish to retain a profitable market for their product, they must make a concerted effort to exterminate this pest in the seed fields.

"Because of the value of home grown adapted varieties of clover the production of home grown clover seed should be encouraged in every way possible. But the effort will be useless unless weeds are kept under control."

The department of agriculture suggests that farmers discuss the clover seed problem with the county agent and follow his advice regarding the quality of home grown seed available. County agents, says the department, will help in securing an analysis of seed for weed content as well as for germination if this is found necessary.

SEARCH FOR SOYBEAN SEED IN JAPAN IS SUCCESSFUL

W. J. Morse, forage-crop specialist, bureau of plant industry, U. S. department of agriculture, who has been in Japan for several months collecting new varieties of soybeans, reports that to date he has collected more than 5,000 lots, representing every type of soybeans grown in Japan.

A large number of soybean introductions have been sent into the United States by the Foreign Plant Introduction Office of the department in the last 20 years. Now the crop has established itself as one of major importance in this country, with a value of $70,000,000 for 1929. Due to increased utilization as a forage crop, for production of soybean oil and meal, and as a human food, it seems likely that the soybean will continue to grow in importance in the United States.

Soybean oil is becoming an important item in the manufacture of soap, paints, linoleum, rubber substitutes, and glycerin in this country. When properly refined, the oil may be used in almost any foodstuff in which a vegetable oil is used. In China one of the principal uses of soybean oil is for human food, but it is also used in the manufacture of soap, varnish, printing ink, paints, candles, waterproof goods, and for lighting and lubrication.

With increase in the demand for soybean oil from American industries, efforts are being made by the department of agriculture to develop varieties with a high oil content. Where the beans are grown as a forage crop, especially for hogs, there is a demand for varieties with a low oil content, as the oil has a tendency to cause the meat to be soft especially where large quantities of the beans are fed.

Samples from every lot of seed collected by Mr. Morse will be planted at the United States experiment farm at Arlington, Va., this spring, and when the seed is harvested tests will be made for oil content. In this way it is hoped that selections may be made which will ultimately develop into varieties with a wide range of oil content.

Mr. Morse writes that the Japanese use the soybean in a number of ways in their diet. They grind the beans and make flour, they serve the green beans as we would green lima beans, and they cook the dried beans in a manner similar to navy beans. Besides this, they make soy sauce, soybean curd, beverages, and bean sprouts from the soybean. He believes that the use of soybeans as a human food in this country will increase steadily.

Mr. Morse is now spending the winter in Tokio studying the Japanese methods of utilizing soybeans. While he expects soybeans to grow in favor as a feed for livestock and food for people, he feels that the largest future development of the crop in the United States will be in the utilization of the oil and meal in industry.

Samples of the seed collected in Japan will be sent to some of the experiment stations for trial, but will not be available for distribution to individuals.

OIL SPRAYS LOOKED UPON WITH APPROVAL

Practically no new developments have been made in the past year which would tend to change either spray practices or choice of materials for the control of fruit pests, says A. I. Bourne of the entomology department at the Massachusetts Agricultural college. Many of the newly presented materials are still in the experimental stage and have not definitely proven themselves to be practical.

Oil sprays continue to be an important part of the spray program. Tests this past season show most of the oils tried to be effective. None caused any serious burning of twigs or buds. The slight amount of injury experienced was attributable to the high temperatures prevailing when the oils were applied.

Combinations of oils and fungicides tested here and elsewhere, if well chosen, proved safe to the trees without lowering the insecticidal value of the oils. No significant difference was noted between different brands or types of spray oils in the matter of coverage.

Preliminary experiments with a newly-developed oil, intended to serve as an activator of nicotine, show this to have promise and make possible a considerable reduction in the dosage (and cost) of nicotine sprays.

EARLY PLANTING IS BEST

Spring planting days will soon be here and if you want to make the best of your opportunities, now is the time to get your order in for new trees, shrubs, vines and flowers. Then you will get early delivery of your plants and can plant them during the first warm days. The early spring rains are of great benefit to newly planted trees and shrubs in that it aids their roots to become firmly established before the hot weather sets in.

Spring is the ideal planting time for all plants excepting possibly a few of the early spring blooming perennials such as peonies and iris. These may be safely moved then, however, but not without some sacrifice of bloom the first year. Then, of course, there are the spring and summer flowering bulbs which require fall planting. All other plants take very kindly to moving in the spring.

Trees. It takes so long for trees to grow they should be one of the first things considered. In addition to planting trees in the front lawn to frame the view of the house, they are likewise needed in back of the house on the rear lawn. Very popular these days are the small flowering trees, such as crabs, hawthorns and cherries which are rich bowers of beauty in springtime. The gift of the Japanese government to the U. S. several years ago of a planting of Japanese cherries, for one of the capitol parks, brought to this country a realization of the superb loveliness of the Japanese cherries of which there are several. Both weeping and upright forms of the Japanese cherry are now being grown in American nurseries.

Shrubs. Too often the planting is made up of too many of one kind of shrubs. There are really so many delightful varieties to choose from one should have a good assortment in the average home planting. And shrubs are so inexpensive these days one can afford to dig up a few and substitute some new varieties. A change in the planting now and then keeps the whole place more interesting. There is a new shrub from China, which is very popular now, called the Beauty Bush. It is very hardy having come from the high peaks of Hupehi mountains. This charming shrub has a general resemblance to both Weigela and Honeysuckle its beautiful trumpet shaped pink flowers appearing in great profusion during June.

Evergreens. Spring is an ideal time to plant evergreens. Although evergreens to do not well under city conditions where smoke is prevalent, they are very successful otherwise. The rich green foliage of evergreens makes a delightful contrast to other plants. In winter and summer they are equally beautiful. By adding a few plants each year one can soon have a fine variety of evergreens placed for foundation or lawn planting.

Getting Ready to Plant

First have a plan or a general idea of what you wish to accomplish. Then the plants can be ordered and arranged intelligently. As soon as warm spring days come and the ground can be worked it is wise to space the beds to receive shrubs and flowers and prepare the soil just as thoroughly as you would for a vegetable garden.

POULTRY "DOPES" IN FEED OR WATER WON'T KILL VERMIN

As a matter of economy the United States department of agriculture suggests that before investing money in "vermin eradicators" to be fed to poultry, the poultry keeper might better invest a penny for a postal card, address it to the office of information, United States department of agriculture, and request a copy of Technical Bulletin 60-T, Ineffectiveness of Internal Medication of Poultry for the Control of External Parasites.

The chances are, the department of agriculture believes, that after reading this pamphlet the poultryman will not want to spend any money for louse medicines, flea and mite medicines, or tick medicines to be given internally.

In a long series of experiments with a long list of such medicines and with about 50 such proprietary preparations in powder, liquid, and tablet forms, the investigators of the Food, Drug, and Insecticide Administration were unable to discover any conclusive evidence that these advertised "vermin eradicators" were of any use whatever. On the contrary, some of the chemicals injured the health of the fowls and, consequently, made them even more open to attrack by parasites.

As a result of the experiments reported in this bulletin, the Food, Drug, and Insecticide Administration forced a number of manufacturers to withdraw these nostrums from the market. Some are still sold locally, however, and others are recommended by rule-of-thumb advisers as effective. The prevailing idea is that these substances given internally are taken up by the blood and then excreted to the surface, either to poison the parasites or to drive them from the fowl. Unfortunately for the theory, the results are not as predicted.

Poultry require careful and effective treatment for control of vermin, and there are many excellent powders, disinfectants, sprays, and dips that are of great value. Use the approved methods for controlling external parasites, says the department, but do not try to achieve the same results by dosing the poultry with medicine. Internal medication for external parasites is a waste of time and money at best, and at worst it may lead to serious injury to the health and well-being of the poultry.

FARM NOTES

Vegetables to vary the monotony of the staples of the menu are welcomed and the development of vegetable growing in the last few years has produced several novelties. One coming into more and more popular use is the Italian green sprouting broccoli. Broccoli, as commonly known before this introduction arrived, was a variant of the cauliflower and practically indistinguishable from it when cooked.

Unlike the cauliflower, "the flower" of Italian broccoli is not an imperfect form as in the cauliflower except that it is a fascia stem, that is several stems and flower clusters grown together. The green "flower" part of the vegetable is a head of green buds of perfect flowers which when they stand too long in the market open into yellow blooms similar to mustard. This vegetable is at its best when steamed. Sometimes if overboiled it loses its delicate flavor. Steaming develops it.

It is a delicate cauliflower flavor so far as it can be described although differing somewhat from cauliflower in taste. It is easily raised from seed and when the main head is cut develops side branches also bearing heads. It requires the same treatment as cabbage or cauliflower.

Something new in the line of greens is offered in seed catalogues and has come into the winter markets from the south. This is the new "spinach" which is really mustard, the Florida broad-leaved mustard. It is the best leaves six by ten inches and having the fine flavor of the old-time mustard greens, a favorite dish boiled with bacon.

It is often a great disadvantage for a young man to begin a career with superior advantages.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Whitefoot Enjoys the Joke

The most retiring sort of folk
Will sometimes have their little joke.
—Whitefoot the Wood Mouse.

Whitefoot the Wood Mouse is one of the most timid of all the little people in the Green Forest. He has every reason to be timid. No one has more hungry folk looking for him than does Whitefoot. Wherever he may be—on the ground or in a tree—he must always be watching for an enemy. Hooty the Owl all the members of the Hawk family, Reddy Fox, Old Man Coyote, Yowler the Bobcat, Shadow the Weasel, Buster Bear when he is awake, even Butcher the Shrike are always looking for Whitefoot. Do you wonder that he is timid?

Now Whitefoot enjoys a joke. He knew all about the hunt for his home that Peter Rabbit was conducting. As a matter of fact, he more than once has sat in his doorway and watched Peter poking his wabbly little nose into this place and into that place; and as he watched he chuckled. He took care to make it a silent chuckle, however. He knew when Chatterer the Red Squirrel and Sammy Jay became curious and began hunting for his home. He heard them talk and he chuckled more than ever. He chuckled until his sides shook.

"I knew when I picked out this place for a home that it would be the safest place anywhere about," said Whitefoot to himself. "No one will ever think of looking here for my home. As long as I do not let any one see me entering it or leaving it, I can live here with the certainty that there will be nothing to fear while I am in it. I have had some good homes before, but never one quite like this one."

Meanwhile, Sammy Jay and Chatterer the Red Squirrel and Peter Rabbit were searching high and low. Sammy and Chatterer would have given up had it not been that two or three times they had glimpses of Whitefoot. Before they could get near enough to him to ask him any questions, he had mysteriously disappeared. The very fact that he had disappeared so mysteriously had led those two clever little folk to suspect that it was true that Whitefoot had a home somewhere near—a home of which they knew nothing.

So Chatterer once more went over every stump and log and every tree that had a hole in it anywhere. And Sammy Jay once more went peering here and peering there. But it was quite all in vain. If only it were not so near spring, and there would come a nice, light fall of snow that would take the tracks of little feet, the finding of that hidden home would not be so difficult. Anyway, that is what Peter Rabbit thought. But there was no snow and so there were no dainty little footprints to follow.

"I don't see what Whitefoot wants to be so fussy for," said Peter as he scratched a long ear with a long hind-foot.

"Don't you?" said a squeaky little voice. "If you were as little as I, and had so many people looking for you, you would never let any one know where your home is." It was Whitefoot himself. He sat on the end of an old log and daintily washed his face with his little white hands.

He knew all about the hunt for his home that Peter Rabbit was conducting

"You're enough to drive any one crazy," declared Peter. "You know very well that I wouldn't hurt you. All I want is just to know where your home is."

"A great many other people want to know the same thing," squeaked Whitefoot.

TWIN-IGNITION MEANS—
Greater Power, Greater Smoothness, Extraordinary Economy

BECAUSE two different motor cars are alike in price, it does not follow that they are also alike in quality, value or performance. ¶ There is always a best, and if you are looking for it, drive a Nash Twin-Ignition Eight or Six. They are the only cars in their price field which offer the superiority of Twin-Ignition performance. ¶ Twin-Ignition (two spark plugs, two simultaneous sparks, per cylinder, instead of one) produces smoother, more thorough combustion and consequently a smoother, more vigorous flow of power. You can feel the difference. You will know immediately what you have been missing, driving a car with single ignition. ¶ Other "400" features of superior performance and value are Bijur centralized chassis lubrication; lifetime-lubricated springs, encased in steel spring covers; built-in, automatic radiator shutters; and Duplate non-shatterable plate glass in all windows, doors and windshields (no extra cost in the Twin-Ignition Eight—optional at slight extra cost in the Twin-Ignition Six and Single Six).

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Danbury Printing Company, Danbury

This business was established in 1885 by Dr. W. C. Wile for the purpose of printing a medical publication, The New England Medical Monthly, of which he was the owner and editor. One printing press was operated in a barn in the rear of Dr. Wile's residence. Later, outside business was solicited in order to fill in the idle time of the press. The business rapidly outgrew the quarters in the barn and in 1891 the present company was incorporated, a new building was erected and additional machinery installed. The company occupied this building, without interruption for a period of 38 years, when, on April 16, 1929, it was completely destroyed by fire, with all its contents. A new building was at once started on the same site. This modern building is now complete and entirely new printing and binding machinery, of the latest automatic type is installed and operating.

This company's new plant is one of the largest and best equipped printing establishments in the state.

The present officers are: H. G. Ward, president and secretary; C. W. Ward, treasurer and vice president.

FEW RIDE BY PLANE FOR THRILL OF TRIP

CHICAGO —(AP)— Utility has replaced novelty as the major motive for airplane travel.

Out of 568 air passengers questioned in a survey by the American air transport association to learn why they flew, only 146 gave the "thrill of the ride" as a reason.

One hundred thirty-six flew to save time, 117 to keep business appointments, 103 because they preferred air travel and 52 to keep social engagements. Twelve flew as tourists, and one took part in a sporting event.

POLITICS AND THE PEOPLE

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

"Politics."

Just why do you understand by that word?

"The science and art of government," as defined by the dictionaries?

Or the chancery and jockeyship by which shrewd tricksters and self-seeking jobbers bamboozle the voters?

Does the word suggest to you just partisanship? If so there's no use discussing it. For partisans are not open to argument or susceptible to reason. Moreover, they're apt to be so durned touchy that they take every word as an insult and every gesture as a threat.

Your venerable uncle, Old John Farmer, has too much regard for his own peace of mind to stir up the hornets of party politics. Moreover, he's too lazy to feel like wasting time arguing with freshets or expostulating with "reformers."

But he owns up to a deep and growing interest in certain fundamental principles of government. As between democratic and prohibition and republican "politicians" he finds the same differences as between squash-bugs and chinch-bugs and potato-bugs. They wear different liveries and have slightly different smells but their chief object is always the same—to stuff their own insides with the pillage of somebody else's crops.

But, when it comes to the question of how government should govern so as to conduce to the greatest good of the greatest number, which is the true science and art of government, the matter becomes more interesting and more important.

Recent occurrances in the current news fields seem to your Uncle John to suggest a few thoughts worth thinking in this larger poltical sense. They haven't anything to do with partisan politics, with caucuses and elections and spell-binders and wire-pullers. But they have or should have, a lot to do with the conditions under which you and I live and work.

There's the tariff, to begin with. Since both major political parties, in their latest platforms, have practically agreed upon the wisdom of some sort of a tariff, references to it can no longer be construed as partisan.

Abraham Lincoln was almost unique in our history for two characteristics. He was a consummate politician, in the popular sense of that term. Yet, even when "playing politics" of the regular sort, he never let go his grip on the principles of government. He was both politician and statesman, in a sense and to a degree which no other American has ever reached.

He was also gifted with an extraordinary power to condense into one sledge-hammer blow all the energy of a thousand tappings by lesser tack-hammers. For example: he once boiled down the entire theory and practice of tariff legislation into a scanty 30 words, as follows:

"When we buy goods manufactured abroad, we get the goods and the foreigner gets the money. When we buy goods manufactured at home, we get both the goods and the money."

You can't take a word away from that without weakening the meaning; you can't add words without diluting it.

It is as easy to understand as the proposition that two and two make four. It is rather difficult for a direct-minded man to see any great trouble in translating the idea into action.

Yet heer the U. S. senate, a body composed of specially selected and supposedly super-men from all the states, can't settle either the details or the general policy of a tariff bill, after nobody knows how many months of side-stepping and over-reaching and round-a-bout blatherskitting.

Of course, it is easy for us to blame the senators for this demonstration of their own incapacity and unfitness. But—

Who put them in the senate?

When the people of the United States have the power, any time they choose to exercise it, to send their wisest and most capable fellows to represent and act for them at Washington and elsewhere, but, instead, send such demagogues as Brookhart, such fanatics as Norris, such swollen-headed egotists as Borah, etc., etc.—isn't it about time for some later Nathan to point an accusing finger at the electorate and say, as the first Nathan said to royal David, "Thou art the man?"

When one of us wants a man to work in the potato-field, he seeks one who knows the difference between a hoe and a hand-saw, when one is wanted to keep books he is expected to know that a pen is not a pick-axe; when one is wanted to repair watches it is thought desirable that he should have some idea of how watches are made. And, in every case, we want our employee to consider our interests and welfare.

But, when we, collectively, want people to make our laws and manage our government for us, we don't seem to care a hoot whether they're the best men to be had for the job, or not. So long as they can out "holler" the other fellow, or out-manouevre him in packing a caucus, or make bigger and more imposible promises, we throw up our caps and dump in our ballots for them.

"And then we wonder at crime." Also, we wonder why it takes the senate interminable hours of frothy oratory to decide whether to make the duty on peptone fifteen or sixteen per cent or to admit saw-dust briquettes free.

The simple truth seems to be that most of the senators who are making the senate a spectable of ideal inefficiency are absolutely lacking in any comprehension of that sort of politics which Webster defines as "the science and art of government." They are some of them, so engrossed in admiration of their own holiness that they can't afford the time to consider the needs of comomn creatures. Others are so impressed with their own superior wisdom that they can't hear the admonitions of common sense. Others are more solicitous for their own re-election than for anything else. And others are putting party advantage above the general welfare.

Altogether, they're making a "sweet mess" of it.

—Recently renewed interest in ex-President and ex-Chief Justice Taft suggests a thoughtful consideration of one or two political improvements which his almost unique experience led him to advocate. Here is one, in his own language:

"There are certain political obligations that the custom of a party requires the president to discharge on the recommendation of senators and congressmen and men who have had the conduct of a political campaign in which he was successful. I hope that that form of obligation will be reduced to its lowest terms by a change of the law."

Is it any wonder that senators and representatives who are more deeply concerned about their own elections than about the efficiency and honesty of government should ignore this advice?

Still another change towards more intelligent and effective legislative action which Mr. Taft strongly urged was an authorization for cabinet officers to have seats in congress where they could "introduce measures, advocate their passage, answer questions as if they were members," but, of course, without votes. This could be done without any constitutional change being required.

It is perfectly evident that there are many and great advantages for such a bringing together of the legislative and the administrative agencies of the government. While it manifestly would open new opportunities for "heckling" by nit-wits, it would, as manifestly give sincere legislators a chance to find out the practical advantages or disadvantages of proposed legislation. The man who is charged with the actual administration of a law is much more apt to see wherein it may need revision or amendment than the legislator who merely reasons that it should be so-and-so. The latter chap thinks he knows how it ought to work; the executive officer knows how it actually does work. In common daily life, we've most of us learned that a combination of theory and practise is apt to make a stronger pulling team than either amounts to separately.

Mr. Taft had an almost unprecedentedly long and varied experience as lawyer, federal judge, cabinet officer, governor-general in the Philippines, president and chief justice of the supreme court.

In the larger and better meaning of the term "politics" his advice seems to one old fellow up in the country worth considering by those who care more for their country than they do for their party.

Of course congress won't pay any attention to it. That's about the best reason in the world why the plain people should.

A keen observer of the senate once said that he considers Senator Borah a very useful member. He served as a pointer, always to be taken on the contrary. Whatever side he took made it prima facie evident that the place for sensible people was on the other.

It is getting so that almost as much can be said about the whole congress. Whatever it does gives ground for question as to the action's wisdom or policy.

Isn't it about time for the people—who are masters if they choose to exercise their mastery—to take a little more interest in that politics which is both the science and the art of government, and a little less in the rivalries of office-seekers?

To think a little less about caucuses and a good deal more about causes?

To put good government above party success?

LARGE SLABS OF PAVING MADE FROM COMMON CLAY

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—(AP)—Road paving in slabs eight by 20 feet may be made from common clay deposits in a process developed by Prof. Joseph B. Shaw, head of the ceramics department at Pennsylvania state college.

His method completely reverses the usual clay products manufacturing processes. Instead of forming the object first and then firing it, Professor Shaw fires the clay and then presses or rolls it into shape.

Cracking or warping is prevented by sending the product through a furnace to eliminate strains. The process permits the incorporation of reinforcing iron, heretofore impossible because heat firing the clay burned up the iron.

Professor Shaw has been able to stamp out sides for small houses in single pieces and made bricks of light weight and high insulating properties. The discovery is the result of a request of Senator Pine of Oklahoma for a road building material "harder than concrete and cheaper than macadam."

Grid Star a Pilot

ATHENS, O.—(AP)—W. Dale Jones of Athens, who starred in the backfield of Ohio State's elevens in 1915 and 1916, has qualified for a transport pilot's license. Before entering aviation as a profession he was a football coach.

W. B. Officer, principal of the Gravity, Iowa, public schools, spent summer digging the basement for a new building and during the school year keeps records of the contractor erecting it.

LOW FLYING MOST COMMON VIOLATION OF AIR RULES

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Low fliers, rather than "high fliers," are the worry of the commerce department's policemen of the air.

One hundred two pilots were charged with low flying in enforcement of air commerce regulations during 1929. Only "miscellaneous violations," of which there were 211, exceeded that offense in number of cases.

The department dealt with 523 violations, 95 pilots being charged with acrobatics, 94 for holding no license while flying licensed planes, six for flying without navigation lights, and 15 for flying without identification numbers.

Fines totaling $4,755 were collected from 179 violators, 55 cases were dismissed for lack of sufficient evidence, 163 pilots were reprimanded, 110 licenses were suspended, and 16 licenses were revoked. Thirty-eight cases are pending.

Iowa Accidents Increase

DES MOINES, Ia.—(AP)—Eighty-three persons were killed and ?68 injured at grade crossings in Iowa during 1929. There were 161 accidents, 11 more than in 1928. Ninety-four occurred in daylight and 67 after dark, 128 in clear weather and 33 in inclement weather.

Clubs Start Farm Careers.

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Michigan 4-H clubs seem to start farm careers. Ninety-six former members of boys and girls clubs are freshmen at the state college here. Thirty-two of the boys are specializing in agriculture, 14 of the girls in home economics.

Improved Farm Practices.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP)—A total of 247,021 improved farm and home practices resulted from extension work of Pennsylvania state college last year, says Prof. J. M. Fry, director Dairy husbandry, with 42,783 practices adopted, led the list. Home economics was second with 39,565.

SIMON BREWSTER DIES IN HOUSE WHERE HE WAS BORN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, March 6.—Simon Brewster, 78, Griswold's oldest and highly respected farmer, died at the Brewster homestead Thursday morning after a long illness. Born May 25, 1851, in the house where he died, he had lived there all but one year of his long and useful life. He was the son of Simon and Abby Prentice Brewster, the fourth to bear the Christian name, and a direct descendant of William Brewster of Mayflower fame. His home had been the residence of his ancestors for three generations. His father, Simon, the son of Elias, was a Revolutionary soldier and his mother was the daughter of Nathan Prentice, both of Griswold. The Brewsters of his line, from Benjamin, whose farm was in the southwest corner of Griswold, bounded on the south by Broad Brook, and on the west by the Quinebaug river, have lived in Griswold more than 200 years. By intermarriage the family has become connected with nearly all the early settlers of the town. His wife, whom he married April 2, 1873, was the daughter of Beriah and Sarah Campbell Browning of Griswold, she having passed away Jan. 27, 1923. Mr. Brewster was born within a short distance of the Brewster schoolhouse, where he acquired the foundations of an education which, with natural ability, reading and observation, made him one of the most intelligent and up-to-date citizens of the town. When his father died, the great farm of 450 acres was sold out at auction, and the son wished to buy it, but, being a minor, was not able to do so. Later he came into possession of the ancestral farm, and brought it to its present high state of perfection. An article appearing in this column last June serves to show the type of sturdy, persistent and intelligent New England farmer Simon Brewster proved himself to be: "A few facts and figures secured at an auction last week, held in the south part of the town, served to prove how completely a local man has solved the farm problem. While the federal government is appropriating a half billion dollars to arrive at a solution of this job, Simon Brewster in a smaller yet no less conclusive way, is answering the question every day. Mr. Brewster, right on the job in the fields today, is one of Griswold's oldest farmers in point of years as well as in time spent in keeping abreast of the many questions and demands of local agricultural interests."

Mr. Brewster, years ago, served the town as selectman. He was one of the corporators of the Jewett City Creamery company and later was interested in the New England Milk Producers' association, and was a vice-president and director of the New London County Agricultural association.

He is survived by a son, Simon, and four daughters, Margery Morgan Brewster, who, with her brother, lives on the farm; Mrs. Asabel Cook of Seattle, Wash., Mrs. Carl Becker of Willow Grove, Pa., and Mrs. Russell Davenport of Holyoke, Mass. He leaves three grandchildren and a half-brother, John Brewster, of Pleasantville, N. Y.

Mrs. Dana Ballou and Miss Margery Jordan entertained two tables at bridge at the former's home Wednesday evening. It was a benefit for the Red Cross inhalator, and $8 was the amount realized. The first prize went to Reginald Potts and the second to Leo Zoomphie. Candy, peanuts and smokes were upon the tables. Scotch short bread, cake and ginger ale were served. It was altogether an enjoyable as well as profitable affair.

THE ROSS TOURISTS HEAR MRS. AIMEE McPHERSON

In a second letter from the Hotel Constance, Pasadena, Cal., dated Feb. 25, Mr. Ross tells of the following interesting experiences:

Sunday we drove through Glendale to Los Angeles, to Angelus temple to hear and see Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson. Just before reaching the temple we got off Glendale boulevard and were directed by a man on the sidewalk pointing out to us the aerial above the temple. In a moment we found that we were reaching our destination. On account of the hundreds of machine parked on both sides of the street, we had to go aout as far beyond the temple as from your house to Mr. L. O. Buckingham's home. We hurried back and were fortunate to get seats a long distance from the platform.

The orchestra was playing a march and soon the choir of a hundred voices came in followed by six deacons who took their seats on the platform in front of a red velvet curtain.

Then the dramatic entrance of Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, clothed in white, leaning on the arm of her son, who was dressed in black. She has beautiful blond hair, coiled low on her neck. The light under the pulpit reflecting into her face, brought out the expression in a wonderful way. She led the singing with graceful gestures. The applause of the audience at the entrance of this dramatic person was enthusiastic.

I think at this point I ought to describe the temple, a large circular auditorium with two balconies, the first balcony reaching far over the auditorium. The seating capacity is 5,300. The dome is very high, painted blue with stars; stained glass windows in very fine design.

As the orchestra ceased playing the march, Mrs. McPherson gave out the hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name"—and here at this place the dramatics began.

Mrs. McPherson took up a tambourine and gently swaying to the tune led the sympathetic choir and the people through the beautiful hymn.

The next hymn was "He Leadeth Me." Here Mrs. McPherson asked all those that had clean handkerchiefs to wear them, (the Chautauqua salute). At the third stanza she asked the people to raise their left hands.

She asked her son to lead in prayer. Throughout the prayer was a murmur of amens. At the end of the prayer each one turned and shook hands with his neighbor as far as he could reach.

A young girl sang "Have You Been Honest With God?" For an encore she sang, "My Jesus, I Love Thee."

Led by Mrs. McPherson the audience sang "Hiding In Thee," at certain places standing out, throwing hands above their heads, following Mrs. McPherson's gestures.

The organ solo was the "Post and Peasant" overture. The encore was very familiar but I have forgotten the title.

The organ and organist were lifted from the floor level like the orchestra in Roxy's theatre in New York. Then the choir sang "Praise Ye The Lord." (There was no printed program and I may not be exactly right, yet I think I am.)

Responsive reading, Malachi III, 1-12. The text was the 8th verse: "Will a man rob God? yet ye rob me. Wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings."

The first words spoken by Mrs. McPherson were "I am going to tell you the names of the men who are the greatest robbers in Los Angeles."

She spoke of bank robbers, hold-up men, bootleggers, high-jackers and second story men.

Mrs. McPherson turned to her son (who was the only person with her on the platform at that time) and took from his pocket a dark colored handkerchief, tied it across her face just under the eyes, grabbed a very nice looking automatic from the desk and pointing it at the choir, said: "Your money or your life." Taking off the handkerchief quickly, she said: "That man is a much better man than the man who would rob God." This was perhaps the most dramatic pose, yet all through the sermon were little gestures that kept the audience at attention and on the alert. She asked: "Who had their Bibles with them?" and instantly hundreds of hands were aloft with Bibles.

The creed of Angelus temple is 4-square and consists of the following tenets as given by Mrs. McPherson after the sermon.

1st—The inspiration of the Bible.
2nd—The Virgin birth.
3rd—The Blood Atonement.
4th—The belief in heaven and hell.

You see the creed is fundamentalist.

The preliminaries lasted a little over an hour. The last sentence of the sermon was "I surrender all."

I must confess I was prejudiced against Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, but am not now! Neither the orchestra nor the choir nor the sermon changed my mind. Yet the statement that the Angelus temple had accomplished the following in the last 21 days brought a different feeling toward Mrs. McPherson. They had distributed 4,119 garments to the poor of Los Angeles; had found work for 1,348 persons; food and shelter for many hundreds and had taken care of many, many sick. Any church that can and will do anything like the above deserves respect and should be commended.

When we left the temple it was like leaving a league ball game. The crowd (a different crowd) was so great and the great number of electric cars going in all directions.—And to think the Canadian "girl with her milk pail" (quoted from her sermon) could do all this! She did not take credit for all this, but said it came from a higher power than the Angelus temple itself.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, March 6—(AP)—Unusual easing in money rates was accompanied by a substantial buying movement in high grade bonds today. So far as seasoned investment issues were concerned, it was the most active market session of the year and the volume of nearly $14,000,000 has been exceeded only once since January 1, that exception was accounted for by heavy trading in a single convertible.

Developments came rapidly in the credit situation. The Bank of England reduced its discount rate to 4 per cent, giving rise to expectations that the New York Federal Reserve bank would cut to 3 1-2, which it failed to do, although it announced that the buying rate on acceptances had been set at 4 1-2 per cent.

Leading dealers made a further reduction—the third in as many days—in acceptances. Ninety day time money dropped to 4 1-4 to 4 1-2 per cent, and quotations of 4 per cent were obtained on the 90 day maturity. In addition, call money, after renewing at 4 per cent, eased off to 3 1-2, the lowest since January, 1928.

Responding to this one-way movement, the important divisions of the bond market developed considerable buoyancy. Seven United States government issues touched new highs for the year or longer and nearly a score of first grade rails did likewise, investment utilities climbed more slowly but made a good average gain. At the close, the composite price of thirty representative bonds stood at 99 compared with the 1929 high of 99.1 and 98.4, the low.

Numerous gilt-edge rails moved up a point or more as large investments funds sought employment in the market. Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville 5s, Burlington 4s, Illinois Central 4 3-4s, Louisville & Nashville 4 1-2s, Pennsylvania 4 3-4s, Reading General 4 1-2s, Southern Pacific refunding 4s and Southern Railway General 6 1-2s advanced from 1 to nearly 2 points, several attaining new highs on the move. Peak prices were also made by St. Louis & San Francisco prior lien 4s, Morris & Essex 5s, New Haven 4 1-2s, Kansas City Southern 5s and First 3s and Rock Island 4 1-2s.

American Telephone debenture 5s of 1965 went to 102, a new high. Brooklyn Manhattan Transit 6s and International Telephone 5s also broke their previous maximums. There was excellent inquiry for Utah Power & Light 5s, Utah Light & Traction 5s, Western Union Gold 5s and Columbia Gas & Electric 5s.

In the industrial group, Anglo-Chile Nitrate 7s closed at the 1930 peak of 93 5-8 for a 1 3-8 point gain. Lorillard debenture 5 1-2s rose 3-4 to top price of 91 1-2. Sinclair Crude Oil 5 1-2s were very active, but moved narrowly. United Drug of Delaware 5s rose a point.

The strength of the rails extended to several secondary carrier obligations, notably Missouri Pacific General 4s which advanced 7-8 on a large volume.

Convertibles were relatively quiet. American Telephone 4 1-2s gained 1-2 net. Chicago & North Western 4 3-4s and Texas Corp 5s were active and firm. International Telephone 4 1-2s advanced 2 and Parmelee Transportation 6s slightly more than a point.

Belgium issues continued to improve. Berlin City Electric 6 1-2s and Milan City 6 1-2s made new 1930 maximums.

LISBON

Rev. W. J. Reynolds preached Sunday morning from the text Mal. 3:16; Then they that feared the Lord spake often one to another; and the Lord hearkened, and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before Him for them that feared the Lord, and that thought upon His name.

A youth recently mounted the network of Brooklyn bridge with the evident object of ending it all.
"Come back," called a big-hearted sailor, "you have everything to live for."
"I ain't," retorted the youth, climbing still higher.
"Aw, come on down and we'll talk it over. Life ain't so worse."
A little more coaxing, and the intending suicide relented. For fifteen minutes life was discussed in all its chameleon aspects. Then they arose —and both jumped off.—Army & Navy Journal.

A freak of the local elections just held all over France is that at Canteleux, near Boulogne. According to law, every village must have at least ten municipal councilors and Canteleux had only nine voters. It got around the difficulty by electing all of its own voters to the council and electing a tenth who owned a plot of land in the village, but who lived in a neighboring hamlet.

An "official" account of the voyage of the Mayflower to the United States, now being prepared in London, contains what is asserted to be an authentic list of the Puritans who sailed on the journey. The book undoubtedly will create considerable discussion in the United States because the names of several rich and influential families, who trace their American ancestors to this famous voyage, will not be found on the list.

The Best Road of All

I like a road that leads away to prospects white and fair,
A road that is an ordered road, like a nun's evening prayer;
But, best of all, I love a road that leads to God knows where.

You come upon it suddenly—you can not seek it out;
It's like a secret still unheared and never noised about;
But when you see it, gone at once is every lurking doubt.

It winds beside some rushing stream when aspens lightly quiver;
It follows many a broken field by many a shining river;
It seems to lead you on and on, forever and forever!

You tramp along its dusty way, beneath its shadowy trees,
And hear beside you chattering birds or happy booming bees
And all around you golden sounds, the green leaves' litanies.

And here's a hedge, and there's a cot; and then—strange, sudden turns;
And dip, a rise, a little glimpse where the red sunset burns;
A bit of sky at eveningtime, the scent of hidden ferns.

A winding road, loitering road, a finger-mark of God
Traced when the Maker of the world leaned over ways untrod.
See! Here He smiled His glowing smile, and lo, the goldenrod!

I like a road that wanders straight; the King's highway is fair,
And lovely are the sheltered lanes that take you here and there;
But, best of all, I love a road that leads to God knows where.

NEW LONDON PATROLMAN SUSPENDED AFTER DOCTORS SMELL HIS BREATH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 6. — This afternoon Patrolman Patrick Sheehan was suspended on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer, the suspension to remain in effect until such time as the officer is given a hearing by City Manager William A. Holt, the alleged charges substantiated by evidence, or the policeman exonerated. The attention of Captain Charles A. Pinney was called to the officer about 3 o'clock when it was declared that he was intoxicated on his beat. Sheehan reports off duty at 3 and when he arrived at headquarters it was apparent that the officer had taken one or more drinks, although he was strictly sober. However, Captain Pinney summoned Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin and the head of the department accompanied Sheehan to the offices of City Physician George P. Cheney and C. John Satti. Examination of Sheehan brought the information that while there was no doubt that the officer had taken a drink or possibly more, he was in no sense of the word under the influence. On the statements of the two physicians, Sheehan was suspended. He has been under charges before for drinking while on duty and on one occasion was disciplined.

A considerable distance in advance of the auto was a Reo truck, owned by Lavoie Brothers, Crown street, Waterford, and driven by Milton J. Tuffts, also of Waterford, which had stopped because of traffic. While the truck was at a standstill, the Ford crashed against the rear end of the heavier vehicle and suffered damage to the front end.

COUNTERFEIT $10 BILL MAY BE TRACED TO SAILOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 6.—The discovery of a fraudulent bill of the denomination of $10 in circulation in this city today indicates that there are more of the spurious bills in the possession of the unknowing ones, although it is a long time since any of the fraudulent paper was circulated here. This forenoon, P. Haddad, proprietor of the store at 171 Main street, went to the National Bank of Commerce and in making his deposit the fraudulent bill was detected. The police were notified and Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh investigated, finding that Haddad obtained the bill from Edward Bonacci, 189 Main street. The latter declared he received the bill Wednesday night from a sailor. The investigation is being continued in an endeavor to ascertain how the money got into New London and who was its first circulator. Bills of this denomination were recently circulated in Norwich and Palmer, Mass. Three men are now awaiting trial for issuing the fraudulent money in the Massachusetts city.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 6—Boleslaw Habarek, 27 Winthrop street, was in the police court this morning, charged with breach of the peach. He was sentenced to three months in jail, but execution of the sentence was suspended. Habarek was arrested late last night. He and his wife have been living apart for some time and when Habarek went to the Winthrop street house late and found his wife's sleeping room locked, he smashed in the door and while the woman was in bed attacked and beat her. The police were notified of the assault upon Mrs. Habarek and the husband was arrested by Patrolmen Dennis Murphy and Anthony Turello. In court today, Mrs. Habarek said that she did not desire that her husband be sent to jail, but she did want him to keep away from her. In view of that fact, Judge Daniel M. Cronin imposed the suspended sentence and Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield was instructed to see that Habarek refrained from annoying his wife.

The 8000-ton steamer is badly damaged and will be towed to New York for repairs. The Luckenbach went ashore on the night of Jan. 10 while en route from New York to Boston and in a dense fog. ROBBER OF MARKETMAN LIKELY TO BE IDENTIFIED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 6.—The police today believe that one of the two men who robbed Jacob Bashour, Jefferson avenue marketman, several weeks ago, is in custody. Today, Bashour identified a picture of Peter Vallee, formerly of 18 Brewer street, as one of the two gunmen who robbed him of about $400. Bashour's clerk, Michael Shasha also identified the picture, which was one of several that were handed the men and both identified the picture of Vallee as one of the robbers. Vallee, who was in New London at the time of the holdup, is now a prisoner at the Springfield, Mass. jail, awaiting trial with two companions for issuing fraudulent bills in Palmer, Mass., Vallee having been under arrest since Feb. 24. Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith and Bashour are planning to go to Springfield tomorrow so that, if possible, Bashour can make positive identification of the man locked up in that city.

The two gunmen went to the store about 10 o'clock on the night of Feb. 1 and at a time Bashour and Shasha were alone, preparing to close the store for the night. One of the robbers pretended to purchase meat and as Bashour emerged from the ice box he was confronted by one of the robbers, who covered the store proprietor with a revolver and ordered him to deliver his money, while the other gunman held up Shasha. Bashour's money was taken, but Shasha's which amounted to but $4, was not taken. The two men were then locked in the ice box where they remained until a woman customer entered. Attracted by the yelling of the men, the customer liberated them. The woman declared that the two men left in an automobile carrying New York state registration, but she did not obtain the numbers. The owner of the automobile, a resident of Groton, was located and he admitted loaning the car to a friend, who claimed to be a resident of White Plains, N. Y., but no trace of the friend, nor the automobile has ever been found. Whether Vallee is the friend will be determined within a day or two, after Detective Smith and Bashour visit Springfield jail.

City Treasurer Herebrt G. Huntley, City Engineer George Watters and Health Officer Benjamin N. Pennell resumed their duties at the municipal building today after having been absent several days due to illness with grip.

FOUR PIECES OF APPARATUS OUT FOR A BRUSH FIRE

A threatening brush fire tonight was the cause of the fire department being called out. The fire, presumably started by boys, was burning rapidly on Bayonet street and an excited person rang in an alarm from Box 161, corner of Bayonet and New streets. Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and four pieces of apparatus responded. The fire was quickly extinguished with chemicals.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

In keeping with its promise to the public of Norwich to bring here the finest entertainment regardless of cost or trouble, the Palace theatre has been able to secure for showing the new and glamorous military romance, "His First Command," starring William Boyd. This picture will start tomorrow and will be continued through Tuesday evening of next week. Rarely has such a spectacle been filmed, and it is significant that the Palace was able to secure such a feature during the Warner Brothers' anniversary month, when the birthday of the advent of talking pictures is being celebrated by the Palace and other Warner theaters throughout the nation.

The story of "His First Command" deals with a millionaire's son who lives a wild life, and who is sent west in the hope that it will reform him. It is hoped also that by sending him west, it will get him away from women. But that hope is doomed to failure, for, believe it or not, they have women, lots of women, and lots of very pretty women in the west. If anybody doubts it let him go west, or better still, let him come to the Palace and take a look at the types portrayed on the screen in "His First Command," especially the little girl, the daughter of a cavalry officer at Fort Riley, Kansas, whom the hero meets before he has been in the west very long.

All the colorful pageantry of the United States cavalry is brought in as a background for this picture. It is redolent of romance, and of old traditions. Out there on the plains one rides again with the ghosts of Custer's warriors, and the dead Commanches who made history in an earlier day. It is inspiring and well told.

Today for the last times the Palace presents its superlative double-feature bill including "The Ship from Shanghai" and "Strictly Modern." Here are two pictures one would travel far to beat.

St. Mary's Players

The public should remember that mail orders for this play are accepted. They should be addressed to the Palace theatre with the writer's name and address enclosed. The exchange ticket should also be sent with the mail order. These orders will be held at the theatre box office until called for. This way of disposing of seats makes it easier for all. Get interested in this play. It is a good one, and everyone should try and see it.

Broadway Theatre

With today's performances at the Broadway, one of the most brilliant double feature programs ever screened locally is brought to a close with the sparkling comedy and bright music of "Street Girl," vying for honors with the grimmer humor and roaring motors in "Burning Up." Tomorrow's program brings something brand new to the Broadway's perfect "talking screen," when the "story the New York dailies dared not print" is disclosed in all its audacity and lawlessness in "The Street of Chance," starring William Powell. The New York papers laid off this story under sinister threats of reprisal from the inner circles of Gangland, but the genius of Paramount has brought to the screen, thinly disguised, the vivid drama and thrilling climaxes of the famous or infamous "Rothstein case," in which the squarest gambler and best-loved sport in Mazda Town was "put on the spot" and mercilessly gunned. Detectives are silent, newspapers, especially the tabloids, dropped the case like a hot potato, under the sinister warnings which filtered through from those "in the know," and all that anyone officially knows is that one more gambler "got his" and "it's just too bad." In "The Street of Chance," Powell, who of course is the ill-fated gambler, has one of the finest opportunities of his career, and seems to actually live the part. Kay Francis is his devoted wife, who begged him to quit the racket. Regis Toomey is his younger brother, to save whom the older man took the one big chance and was "spotted." "The Street of Chance" will furnish a brand new set of thrills and sensations, the story being so different because practically filmed from life itself.

On the same program are shown Laurel & Hardy n ther latest scream fest "A Perfect Day," a Paramount talkartoon, "A Radio Riot", the latest Paramount Sound news and a novelty vocal specialty, "Pining Pioneers," involving a corking male double quartet, clustered around "The Little Brown Jug" of pre-Volstead fame. Radio concerts and overtures, through the courtesy of the Hanover-Curland Co. are a daily feature at the Broadway.

Sachem Chapter and Grotto Minstrels

"The Minstrel Revue" and fashion show is to be presented at Masonic temple Friday evening, March 21, under the joint auspices of Sachem chapter, Order of Eastern Star and Nemrod Grotto. The revue, now in rehearsal, is being directed by Fred G. Prothero and the first part will introduce six end men, a mixed quartet and a mixed chorus of thirty voices supported by Fred Thumm and his orchestra. The six end men are all experienced minstrel men and will provide plenty of fun. The mixed quartet, Miss Amie March, Miss Beatrice Littlefield, Mr. Fred Maples and Mr. John Richardson will be heard in solo and quartet numbers that will be sure to please.

At intermission fifteen beautiful Norwich young ladies will present the very latest modes in fashions presented by courtesy of several prominent local women's shops.

Tickets are selling rapidly for "The Minstrel Revue" and indications are that a capacity house will witness what promises to be the outstanding local talent show of the season.

The joint executive committee representing Sachem chapter and Nemrod Grotto is:

General chairman, Alexander Finlayson; vice chairman, Mrs. Anna Abel, vice chairman, Jos. W. Wellington; secretary, Louis Brown; Mrs. Mabel McDonald, Fred C. Thumm, Henry F. Gee.

WESTERLY

WIFE OF GEO. PARKER WINSHIP ADDRESSES HISTORICAL SO.

The Westerly Historical society, Col Everett E. Whipple, president, held its March meeting Thursday night in the assembly hall of Westerly Public library. The speaker was Mrs. Claire B. Winship, of Dover, Mass., wife of Librarian George P. Winship, of Harvard University library. This was the first meeting of the society since the January session, the February meeting having been omitted because of stormy weather. The speaker was formerly Miss Claire B. Bliven, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Courtland B. Bliven, well known to summer visitors to Westerly beaches and proprietors of the Wigwam hotel, Misquamicut. "An Apostle to the Indians" was the subject of the talk given by Mrs. Winship.

Mrs. Winship traced the activities of John Elliott, the translater of the Indian Bible and declared he was not the only apostle to the Indian. His great aim was the founding of the Indian settlement at Natick, Mass. The speaker made a comparison with the activities of Roger Williams, the great Rhode Island friend of the Indian, to show that both pioneers had much in common. In her search through library books and records she declared that she had come across the name of an Indian trader, Thomas Stanton, concerning whom she wished to know more and who had started to assist Elliott in his making the translation of the Bible into the Indian language, but who had become disqualified through lapsing into oaths, as the records showed. President Whipple informed Mrs. Winship that Thomas Stanton had been born in Westerly almost within sight of her own birthplace in this town. A vote of thanks was extended the speaker.

John C. Loughhead, Miss Clara Crandall, together with the society officers were made a nominating committee to present a slate at the next regular meeting. The pistol was shown, presented to the Historical society by the Westerly Sanitary Corps from the effects of the former T. B. club, purchased by them, which had belonged to Charles H. Keyes, of the famous outlaw Dalton gang of the southwest and brought to Westerly by Thomas Arnold and presented him by the sheriff. A large photograph of the burned Rhode Island hotel, then the Dixon house, was also on display, having been presented the society by Rev. Nathaniel and John M. Groton.

Wooden Poles Removed

Thursday afternoon workmen in the employ of the South County Public Service company completed the job of removing the wooden electric light poles from Dixon square. Overhead wires and cross arms had been taken down and the large derrick at the end of the service motor truck of the light and power company was used to advantage in raising the wooden poles at whose base there had been excavated the loose soil. The poles were loaded on trucks to be towed away. Before work is finished all overhead wiring and wooden poles will be removed from Broad street in Westerly and on West Broad street, between the river and railroad bridges.

Child Struck By Auto

At about 9 a. m. Thursday, on Vincent Carr hill, the High street Westerly end of the Noose Neck Hill road, Claire Taillon, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Taillon, residing at 212 High street, was struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Mary Fiddes, wife of Walter Fiddes. Dr. Michael H. Scanlon was called to attend the little girl and found that she had received a bad bruise over her right eye and a bruise on her right leg. The girl was struck by the auto in front of her own home. Later it was decided that her injuries were not serious. Patrolman Frank E. Knight investigated the accident.

SOUTH AMERICAN BIRD IS A GREAT CURIOSITY

Miss Marion McDonald has a South American bird and its name is Truero. It has several colors, black and yellow and white on the wings; the head is all black, the beak is 4 inches long and has a hook. It sure is a pretty bird. It was given to her by Dave Davidson, her cousin, who has been around the world several times and was in South America when he saw the bird. It looked so good he took it back to the village. Miss McDonald has trained the bird which is named "Whoopee." It took some time, for a South American bird is the hardest in the world to teach anything to, for they are in that country so hot that they feel lazy unless under a tree to lie down and take life easy. She kept at it for months and today has the best trained bird in the fishing village. Whoopee can stand on his head, and whistle for its Saturday bath till his trainer will get the pan ready and say, "Well, do you want a bath?" He will shake his head meaning "Yes." As the cage is open he goes right to the bath tub, gets in and whistles. He loves to roll in the water, throw water over his shoulders like a whale after a shark. He tries to wipe himself dry and gets back to the bird-cage.

He can whistle "Singing in the Rain," having heard it over the radio so many times, also "My Irish Rose." One day, as Miss McDonald was baking sugar doughnuts when a knock come on the door, it was Miss Mary Hammond from Long Island, to pay a visit. She came in and took off her coat and hat. He saw the beautiful bird and reached into the cage to pet Whoopee. Quick as a football player getting the pigskin out of the air he had her finger, biting it and would not let it go. She was trying to shake him off, but could not. Mary cried, "Take him off of my finger!" The trainer said, "Let go! and get back in your cage!" so he did. The bird cut a deep gash in the finger, so that a doctor was called and took a stitch in it. Mary, from Long Island, raised her left hand and said, "Never again will I pet a bird from South America!"

Whoopee will ask for his bread and butter, can do a buck and wing dance, not as good as those on the stage but can use his violin cases pretty good for a bird, will sit up for his breakfast and his trainer will say "count." With the nod of his head he goes as high as 37. Also he tells time on the clock. You ought to hear him laugh when Andy and Amos are on the air.

Miss McDonald will go up to the post office after the morning mail, puts Whoopee on her finger, starts up for the mail and if any one will try to touch her arm the trained bird from the banana country will try to bite the stranger. Tipping her hand upside-down will not shake him off. He enjoys the morning air. Everyone will say "Good morning, Marian!" The trained bird of Cutler avenue will nod, meaning "Good morning." If a dog tries to get Whoopee for his dinner the bird will fight and scare the dog away as if he was Jack Sharkey, the prize fighter.

One morning he thought his day was over. A big German police dog was walking in every backyard for his breakfast and saw the pretty bird of four colors on the finger of his trainer and standing his ground like a game prize fighter. The mean dog tried to jump but Miss McDonald caught the dog under the chin and stretched it out on the cold ground. Whoopee was happy to think he could live a while longer and see the one-piece bathing suit girls from Bushey Point. When the dog came to, the sun was shining in his face and he did not know where he was, if he had got kicked by a mule, for it was some upper cut from the hand of the bird trainer that the dog will never forget.

Charles Ellis came down one day to see the bird and got over near the cage and said, "Does that South American bird bite?" "Well," Marion said, "Does Man o' War roller skate on the dirt track?" But the smallest firemen, Ellis, thought deep down in his overshoes that he would pet Whoopee. Mary Hammond turned her head—she did not want to see the firemen high as a smoke eater's lantern, lose half of his finger. But in some way the trained bird took a liking to him and let Ellis pet him. He took him out of the cage and walk around the room. Charles sure had the laugh on them all. "Well!" the trainer said, "you was lucky not to get bit!" "There is a trick in talking to a bird and I learned that from a South American sailor who rode many waves on the seven seas. He told me if I gave away the trick to any one the next South American bird would bite, so I had to keep the secret under my hat. Only say three words and the bird was all smiles!" It seemed funny, but Whoopee never bit the smoke eater. People have come from all over to see the strange bird that took months to train and claim he is the prettiest bird they have ever seen, from coast to coast. One butter and egg man from St. Paul, Minn., wanted to buy the bird — took out his check book and said "Any amount you want; my lady trainer!" "Well, I am sorry, Mister, but when I was given this bird the papers read money could not buy him. I know it will hurt your feelings, but I will try to get you one in a little while. My best fellow, Earl Hammond, is over there for a visit and will bring you back one." The stranger was happy, thanked her and got in his maroon car and beat it back to St. Paul. In one day 300 came to see the bird and 10 of them wanted to buy Whoopee. He knew that something was in the wind, hung his head low until they all went out. No one knows the age of the bird. It is claimed he will live for years. Whoopee is as good as an alarm clock and will whistle at the hour of 6 every morning, meaning "Get up, and turn the eggs for breakfast!"

MANY LEADING INDUSTRIAL STOCKS ROSE TO RECORD LEVELS YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, March 6—(AP)—With a fresh decline in open market credit rates to levels regarded as clearly indicating a lower federal reserve rediscount, together with a cut in the Bank of England rate, professional traders bid up more than a score of leading industrial shares to record levels for the recovery in today's stock market, only to learn after the close of the market that the reserve directors at their weekly meeting had left the rediscount rate unchanged at 4 per cent.

Call loans, after renewals at 4 per ment, were available at 3 1-2, the lowest since January, 1928, and bankers acceptance rates were cut to 3 1-2 per cent, bid, for the shorter maturities, for the first time since March of the same year. While the federal reserve officials are understood to have been divided on the advisability of a further reduction in the rediscount rate, Wall street felt that with call loans and acceptances 1-2 of one per cent lower, a downward revision seemed assured. There has been considerable agitation for a lower federal reserve rate in the hope that it might hasten the rather tardy cheapening of credit for commercial loans.

As to whether the reserve is merely delaying the reduction in its rate, or has launched upon a policy of releasing credit through open market purchases of bills and securities rather than loaning to member banks, was a problem left for Wall street to puzzle over.

The latter theory gained some support from reports that the reserve was a large buyer of government securities, several of which sold at new high levels for the year. It was recalled that the reserve lowered its buying rate for bankers acceptances, while increasing its rediscount rate last August, when it hoped to curb speculation while at the same time making funds available for legitimate commercial purposes.

Reserve officials are undoubtedly chary of taking any action that might stimulate a new bull orgy on the stock market, or which would let the credit situation get out of its hands, as it did a year ago. Furthermore, the governor of the Philadelphia reserve institution recently explained that there is a feeling in reserve circles that a lower rediscount rate at this time would not prove an important stimulus to business. It has been pointed out that cheap credit to business is helpful only when business sees an opportunity to use such credit profitably. Commercial borrowings of late have been declining rather rapidly.

During recent months, the reserve has kept its rate 1-2 of one per cent below the Bank of England rate to prevent losses of gold from London to New York. With Governor Harrison of the New York bank now in London, Wall street was inclined to the theory that a similar understanding must still exist. It is possible, however, that the low acceptance rates in the New York market, now about on par with London, may prevent a flow of gold in this direction, without cutting the bank rate. Furthermore, sterling exchange did not weaken with the lower rate in London, rather was firmer.

While the stock market made good headway, the index of 90 leading issues rising nearly 2 points to a new 1930 peak, it did not display the marked buoyance that it frequently has in the past on substantial cheapening of credit. The weekly brokerage loan total showed an increase of $94,000,000, the largest weekly gain since September, with the exception of the week at the turn of the year, when unusual conditions prevailed. While loans still hold relatively low, this abrupt gain was interpreted as reflecting a movement away from the investment character of the buying of the past several weeks.

The electric equipments were notably strong. General Electric and Allis Chalmers rose a couple of points to new peaks, and Westinghouse Electric rose more than 5 points to close to its best 1930 level. The domestic and Porto Rican sugar stocks gained 2 or 3 points in response to the senate's approval of a higher sugar tariff. U. S. Steel gained about 4 and American Can 2. Bendix, Goodyear, Engineer's Public Service, Stone and Webster, Missouri Pacific, and Vanadium mounted 2 to 4 points to new 1930 tops. Gains in the utilities were moderate, and on the whole the rails made little headway. Worthington Pump was a buoyant feature, mounting about 12 points, and closing near the top.

Commodities again broke sharply, only to rebound before the end of the day. Wheat futures dropped about 2 cents, then rallied nearly 3 on short covering and farm board support. Cotton dropped $2 a bale to new lows for the season, but reduced its losses to from 25 cents to $1.15 a bale at the close.

Foreign exchanges were featured by a rally of nearly 1-2 cent in the Spanish peseta, which touched 12.12 cents. Sterling cables gained nearly 1-1 cent, ruling at $4.86 7-32.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, March 6—(AP)—Trading on the New York Curb exchange showed a sharp falling off in volume from yesterday's record-breaking session, but the main price tendency was again upward with easier money rates and favorable divided announcements as the principal bullish factors. Sale of a curb membership was arranged today at $185,000, a new high price for the year, and an increase of $10,000 above the previous sale.

Cities Service, which furnished a substantial portion of yesterday's volume, quieted down considerably today, closing fractionally higher at 38 1-2, after fluctuating within a range of 1 point. Electric Bond & Share also recorded only a fractional gain, closing about a point below the day's high level. American & Foreign Power warrants, American Gas & Electric, Engineers Public Service warrants and Hydro-Electric Service closed 1 to 2 1-2 points higher.

Oils made further response to the widespread efforts being made to curtail production. Humble ran up more than 3 points to a new high at 93 1-2, but lost all but about a point of its gain. Gulf closed slightly more than 2 points higher. Standard Oil of Kansas was heavy. Standard of Indiana improved fractionally, the annual report showing earnings of $4.66 a share on 16,850,567 shares in 1929 as against $8.33 on 9,348,668 shares in 1928.

There were a few strong spots in the aviation group, Consolidated Aircraft and National Aviation reaching new top prices for the year. Western Air Express, which was heavy yesterday, rallied 1 1-4 points.

Mead Johnson ran up 3 points to a new 1930 top at 91 on the declaration of an extra dividend of 25 cents. Niles-Bement-Pond showed a moderate gain on the announcement that the stock had been placed on a $2 annual dividend basis Fajardo Sugar soared nearly 30 points on buying influenced by the senate's increase in the sugar tariff, but lost nearly a third of its gain. Newmont Mining ran up more than 6 points to 132 3-4, the best price this year.

Blue Ridge and Shenandoah common stocks again established new highs for the year on small gains. Other investment trust, trading and holding corporation shares showed little change.

Deere & Co. (old stock) broke 16 points, Pie Bakeries preferred dropped 9 3-4 to a new low at 75, and Aluminum Co. of America dropped 6 1-2. A better demand was noted for the radio shares, Arcturus rallying 4 1-2 points to a new top at 22 while Hazeltine advanced 1 3-4. Loews debenture warrants also sold at a new 1930 high.

NEW YORK, March 6—(AP)—The weekly statement of gold movements at the port of New York for the period from Feb. 27, to March 5, shows imports of $305,000 of which $213,000 came from Brazil, and $92,000 from other Latin-American countries. There were no exports, or any change in the amount of gold earmarked for foreign account. Today's statement reported the arrival of $1,007,000 in gold bullion from Bogata, Colombia, and a decrease of $5,000,000 in the amount of gold earmarked for foreign accounts.

D. C. Green, for several years vice president and general manager of the Utah Power & Light Co., with headquarters at Salt Lake City, has been elected a vice president of the Electric Bond & Share Co.

The National Automobile chamber of commerce estimates that the February automobile production in the United States and Canada total around 358,300 cars and trucks, as against 283,477 in January and 497,705 in February, 1929.

Sales of the J. C. Penney Co. for February amounted to $11,196,696, as compared with $9,377,897 for the same month in 1928. On March 1, the Penney chain consisted of 1,396 stores, as against 1,125 stores on March 1, 1929.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, March 6—(AP)—Anticipating that farm board announcements from Washington late today would prove bullish, many traders switched to the buying side of the wheat market today. Early setbacks in wheat prices were thus more than overcome, and quotations beforehand discounted to some degree at least. Chairman Legge's statement after the close that farm board auxiliary organizations would remove from the market whatever quantity of wheat was necessary to prevent any considerable decline in prices. Late upturns of wheat values also were helped by purchases of hard winter wheat here that suggested export business.

Wheat closed unsettled 3-8-1c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1-4-1 1-8c down, oats at a shade decline to 1-4c gain, and provisions showed 5-15c drop.

Giving aid to rallies in wheat values today were assertions from leaders friendly to the buying side of the market that all of the bearish factors of the wheat supply and demand situation now were known, and should be regarded as having been fairly well allowed for. During the first part of the day, however, the market was especially sensitive to bearish advices.

Quotations aboard were lower than expected, and much notice was taken of a sensational statement from a Canadian trade authority that Europe could reduce her overseas wheat requirements 200,000,000 bushels, enough to break any market. He said this could be done by substituting rye and potato flour, a method that would slice off one-tenth of the wheat trans-Atlantic countries use for bread and one-tenth more used for pastry.

Activity on the part of government-sponsored agencies today in buying wheat future deliveries was without much apparent market influence the first part of the day, but became decidedly effective later. This was the case in particular after reports were current that the United States shipping board had prepared six ocean-going steam vessels for freight service from Gulf of Mexico ports and elsewhere. Late rallies carried the market upward 3 3-8c a bushel from the day's bottom level, but top figures were not maintained.

After the close announcement was made that owing to emergency storage conditions here deliveries of grain aboard cars instead of in elevators will constitute a valid tender on contracts throughout the month of March.

Corn declined owing more or less to larger receipts of corn in Chicago. Oats sympathized with corn weakness.

Provisions reflected downturns in the values of hogs.

RIOTOUS COMMUNISTS IN NEW YORK PUT TO FLIGHT

leaders in clashes with the police, but with very little disorder of importance.

"Red Thursday" proved only pale pink in the British Isles. In Dublin, there were some lively incidents as a large number of unemployment attempted to march on Leinster house, where the Dail sits. They were charged by the police who used their batons and arrested eight demonstrators.

In London, a demonstration on Tower Hill, attended by 3,000 persons led to some skirmishing with the police in which five demonstrators were injured. Four men were arrested in Glasgow and five in Manchester.

COMMUNISTS CLEARED FROM BERLIN STREETS

BERLIN, March 6.—(AP) —Mounted policemen, swinging heavy clubs, rode down communist demonstrations in international unemployment day manifestations tonight, and cleared them from the streets.

Police headquarters reported that seven civilians and seven policemen had been injured and 270 arrests made. One communist was killed.

GENERAL REVIEW OF "RED THURSDAY" IN UNITED STATES

By the Associated Press

On historic old Boston Common, in the newer Campus Martius of Detroit, on Pennsylvania avenue outside the high iron fence that surrounds the white house grounds, in New York's Union square, in the hills of Seattle, and in the roaring canyons of Chicago, tens of thousands of Americans gathered on "Red Thursday."

Some of them were in jail today, and some in hospitals, hundreds nursed lacerated scalps, black eyes, bruised noses. And the rest, thousands on thousands, had gone peacefully back to flats and bungalows, enjoying the exhiliration of having seen "a real show."

There were communists among them, communists trying to make more communists by an international unemployment day, with the jobless marching simultaneously in city halls all over America and all over the world. There were men without work, too, shabby, ill fed, despondent, but more than all the rest there were just everyday Americans—those curious ones who will stop traffic any day to watch a man demonstrating a safety razor in a drugstore window.

And so far into the night New York police detectives worked to sort out communists from innocent onlookers among the 100 injured in the prison ward of Bellevue hospital, and in Cleveland, Detroit, and Seattle hundreds of persons who no doubt are not communists at all, nor even out of jobs were recovering from nightstick blows.

With nearly 100 injured and almost as many arrested, including William Z. Foster, presidential candidate of the workers communist party in 1928, New York's demonstration was the biggest. It started when Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen, in an observation post he had set up in Union square, refused to permit the demonstrators to march down Broadway to the city hall.

In Detroit 12 were reported injured and 23 arrested. A vast crowd in Campus Martius and Cadillac square was charged by two thousand police running buses and street cars through the mobs. At least one man was badly injured when pressure of the crowd crashed a plate glass window.

In Washington the police used a tear gas bomb and nightsticks to disperse a smaller crowd outside the white house grounds. The disturbance began when a communist speaker mounted the fence and started his speech. Twelve were arrested.

In Cleveland 3,000 paraded to the city hall, and 15,000 more gathered in Public square, while police with tear gas bombs and sawed-off shotguns waited for something to happen. Finally traffic got all snarled up, so mounted police charged in and broke up the demonstration.

There were arrests in Boston, Toronto, Pittsburgh, where disorders occurred.

In Seattle 1,000 communists and communist sympathizers battled the police while 5,000 curious looked on. One man was injured and nine arrested in Milwaukee.

There were peaceful demonstrations in Chicago, Baltimore, Charlotte, N. C., Oakland, Cal., Houston, Tex., and St. Louis, Mo.

Local Girl Made Parachute Jump

The Flying News, an aviation publication, in a recent edition, carries a story of a local girl, who successfully executed a parachute drop at the Worcester airport. She is Miss Beatrice G. Rau of 7 Julian street, the only girl member of the Norwich Aero club.

Miss Rau took instructions at the Mendon, Mass., airport. At the Worcester airport she went up in the plane with her instructor. Due to the fact that she weighs less than 100 pounds, Miss Rau was not given the regulation exhibition parachute but was fitted with a small caterpillar chute. Adverse weather conditions made it impossible on the day Miss Rau made her jump to reach a high altitude with the result that she dropped from the plane when up a distance of only 1200 feet in the air. After going about half the distance she opened her chute and landed near the airport. Her instructor jumped shortly after Miss Rau.

Miss Rau, a stegnographer in the office of the Uncas Finishing Co., resides at 7 Julian street with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. James Quinn.

HENRY W. KENT RECEIVES REMARKABLE NEW YORK HONOR

During his years of devoted service as curator of Slater Museum, Norwich Free Academy, Henry W. Kent, who still maintains his residence in Norwich, worked so quietly and so modestly that only those associated with him daily realized his ability and attainments. Now the Saturday Review of Literature, New York, sets these forth accurately and definitely, in the following positive manner, which his Norwich friends will endorse with emphasis:

Tribute to Henry W. Kent, Esq.

At the opening of the exhibition of "The Fifty Books of 1929" in the New York Public Library on February 4, the medal of the American Institute of Graphic Arts was presented Henry Watson Kent, Esq., secretary of the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The address of presentation by the president of the Institute, Frederic Melcher, is so fine a tribute to a loved and honored counsellor in the graphic arts that it seems worthy of reprinting.

"The American Institute of Graphic Arts has achieved its purposes through a significant decade of developing the public taste, by giving designers the stimulation of competition, and by finding ways to honor those who have signally served.

"For its first purpose it has used travelling exhibits, for the second provided competent juries, for the third established an Institute Medal to be awarded to those whom it desires to honor, for on their genius depends the progress of American art. This medal is bestowed on the suggestion of a special committee of award and by the vote of the board of directors. It is not connected with an exhibit of a special achievement except as the exhibit may be the occasion to bring members together. It expresses our appreciation of a career of notable influence in the field of graphic arts. No bestowal could be more in harmony with the spirit of the medal than its award tonight to Henry Watson Kent, friend of artists, wise counsellor in the Institute's development, secretary of the Metropolitan Museum of New York, director of the museum's press.

"Mr. Kent has been a touchstone of good taste to a generation of artists, he knows and understands the best of the old and has inspired the best of the new. He added a touch to the printing of an art museum, and it became itself an accompanying art; books of the press have been models for many. He has stood for a broad interpretation of a museum's functions, and its exhibits have reached designers and craftsmen in the midst of trade fairs, its bulletins and handbooks have increased the circle of art's influence.

"Though his interests have included all arts (he has even collected meeting houses) he has had the deepest influence on typography. He was a friend and admirer of DeVinne, helping to spread the popular understanding of that great master's ideals for the craft; he worked closely with Gillis on his impeccable publications for the museum and for the Grolier club. He was prompt with appreciation for the printing of Updike and Rogers, he gave encouragement and opportunity to Cleland and to Rollins, he has been a guide and inspiration to Silve, to Wood, to Fast, and others. His gifts of understanding have made him a critic who can still remain a friend. He has given sound counsel, discerning appreciation, and treasures of rarest friendship.

"In England such a one has recently been publicly honored by the bestowal of knighthood on Emery Walker; in our country equal appreciation is the due of Henry Watson Kent, who, as reads the inscription on this gold medal of the Institute, 'has had a life-long influence on the graphic arts.'"

LIONS IN FAVOR OF TRAFFIC CHANGES

Frederick J. Ortmann, chairman of the board of police commissioners, at the weekly meeting of the Norwich Lions club in the Wauregan hotel, Thursday noon, spoke on the proposed new traffic ordinances. Outlining the proposed plans the police commissioner emphasized the fact that they would be beneficial to the traffic situation in Norwich. Commissioner Ortmann called attention to the fact that the proposed changes would make Shetucket street from Water street to the Shannon corner one way, traffic to proceed in a northerly direction.

According to the changes, parking on the westerly side of Shetucket street, between Water street and the Shannon corner, would be prohibited, but ten minutes parking on the easterly side would be permissable during banking hours, with 40 minutes parking from 3 o'clock to early evening. The six-hour limit would be effective during the night in this territory. Questions relative to the change were answered by Commissioner Ortmann. The members expressed themselves as being in favor of the proposed changes.

The president, Charles W. Cassidy, was in charge of the meeting. Abner Schwartz was song leader and Fred Geer was at the piano. The meeting closed with the Lions roar and the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

PERRONE WINS $6,045 VERDICT IN DAMAGE CASE AGAINST KLINGER CO.

A verdict of $6,045 against the C. F. Klinger Co., and in favor of Guiseppe Perrone of New London was returned in the superior court at New London Thursday by the eleven man jury which heard the case. The suit was the result of an automobile accident at Quaker Hill a year ago last February when the sedan operated by C. F. Klinger and the truck operated by Perrone figured in a collision. In the crash serious damage was done to both machines and Perrone, Klinger and Albert Parliament of this city, who was a passenger in Klinger's car, were injured.

In three other suits arising out of the accident, in which Perrone was the defendant, the jury returned verdicts in his favor.

Perrone, represented by Attorney Arthur M. Brown and Pallotti, Covello & Moylan, brought suit against the Klinger company for $12,000 damages for personal injuries and damage to his truck. He suffered a fractured leg and less serious injuries.

In counter actions, Mr. Klinger brought suit against Perrone for $15,000 for personal injuries and the C. F. Klinger company brought suit against Perrone for $2,500 for damages to the Klinger car. Parliament brought suit for $5,000 against Perrone for personal injuries.

In charging the jury Judge Christopher L. Avery informed it that if negligence was established only on the part of Klinger then Perrone was entitled to damages; that if negligence was established on the part of Perrone then damgaes could be awarded to Klinger, the Klinger company and Parliament; that if negligence was established on the part of both drivers that only Parliament could be awarded damages.

The four suits were heard jointly. After the trial had progressed for two days one of the jurors, Frank Geer of Waterford, was taken ill and had to be excused and the trial went on by agreement.

Arguments were started by the respective attorneys Wednesday afternoon and Judge Avery completed his charge at 10:37 Thursday morning. The jury reached a verdict at 12:45 in the afternoon, after which court took a recess for one hour.

The case of Fred Carlson, administrator of the estate of his son, Frederick Daniel Carlson, of Waterford, against Mrs. John A. H. Wood of Waterford, for $10,000 damages, was started in the afternoon. The suit is a result of the death of Frederick Daniel Carlson, March 13, 1928 as a result of being struck by a truck operated by the defendant.

NORWICH BOY'S HENS SECOND IN CONTEST

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, March 6—Results for the third month of the sixth Connecticut 4-H junior egg laying contest have been announced by Edward S. Walford, assistant poultry specialist at the Connecticut Agricultural college, who is in charge of the contest. The 11,270 birds reported by 263 4-H poultry club members for January laid 138,490 eggs for an average of 12.29 eggs per bird. This is an increase of .11 per cent eggs per bird over January, 1929, Mr. Walford stated, and is the highest January production in the history of the contest. It is .29 per cent eggs per bird over standard production of 12.00 for January, and is 2.14 eggs per bird better than the December record.

Louis Hotchkiss, of Waterbury, was high man for the month with 23.40 eggs per bird. Michael Kracyk, of Norwich was second with 21.77 from his 243 Leghorns. John Bargfrede, of East Hampton, was a close third with 21.76 eggs per bird from his 21 Red pullets.

The to date production in the present contest is 30.41 eggs per bird for the first three months. This is 1.59 eggs per bird under standard production for this period, and is 1.38 per bird lower than at this time last year. This is, however, the second highest to date production in the history of the contest. Rhoda Bartholomew, of Torrington, leads the contest to date with an average of 62.27 eggs per bird from her 15 Red pullets. Louis Hotchkiss, of Waterbury, is second high man with 59.70 to date. Norman Paulhus, of Willimantic, is third to date with 55.72 eggs per bird from his 118 Reds.

Leading junior Connecticut producers for the third month of the contest are: Louis Hotchkiss, of Waterbury, 23.4 eggs per bird; Michael Kracyk, of Norwich, 21.77; John F. Bosworth, resulted Wednesday in Judge Christopher L. Avery signing a writ of habeas corpus whereby Bosworth will be required to produce the child in court and show cause why the mother of the child should not have its custody.

Bosworth took the child from his wife last week and Mrs. Bosworth had him arrested. When the case came up in the Waterford town court Monday it was continued for one week and Bosworth placed under bonds of $5,000.

LEGION ASKED TO AID C. M. T. C. CAMPAIGN

R. O. Fletcher, No. 4, American Legion, is among Legion posts throughout the country requested by James F. F. Barton, national adjutant, to lend their early support to the citizens military training camp procurement campaign which will be underway throughout the United States this month.

"The C. M. T. C. movement, the outgrowth of the internationally recognized Plattsburg camps, is an important phase of national defense advocated by the Legion," said National Adjutant Barton. "The Legion has been instrumental in procuring a large part of the enrollment in the C. M. T. C. in the past.

"President Herbert Hoover has indorsed the C. M. T. C. as affording an exceptional opportunity to the young men of the country for a training which leads to vigorous health, physically, mentally and morally. Ex-President Calvin Coolidge has aptly termed the citizens' camps 'essential schools in citizenship.' Such camps are indorsed widely by intelligent leaders of every political and religious faith throughout the country as a practical means of developing our youth in the wholesome surroundings of outdoor living.

"There are many definite ways that Legion posts may support the C. M. T. C. movement, as indicated by past experience. Virtually all Legion departments appoint a state C. M. T. C. officer who cooperates with the authorities in charge of the movement. County and post C. M. T. C. officers are then appointed by the Legion to effect a closer cooperation. Allotments of candidates are made to the individual Legion posts by the state headquarters. The post proceeds to obtain this allotment of boys who will enjoy the benefit of the camps. Units of the auxiliary have aided the Legion posts materially in supplying names of prospective candidates.

REVIVAL OF EMPLOYMENT AND BUSINESS FORECAST

Reports Convince President Hoover That Depression In Business and Reduction of Employment Resulting From Stock Market Crash Will Have Passed Over Within 60 Days—Contracts Announced In the United States For January and February Were 40 Per Cent. Greater Than Any Like Total Ever Observed In the Senate.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP)—American business and industry is now recovering from the shock administered it by the stock market collapse last fall, President Hoover believes, and within 60 days should be free from the distressing aftermath of unemployment which it brought.

He announced the conclusion today after a study of commerce and labor department reports bearing on the situation, and a review of the results being attained by cooperation of the heads of national enterprises whom he convened in Washington last December to consider possibilities of business stimulus.

Summarizing his conclusions for newspaper correspondents, the president said that unemployment "amounting to distress" had been confined to 12 states, and was not more than seasonal in the other 36 states.

Low points of business and employment had been passed in December and in early January, he added, and had been followed by slow betterment.

With maintenance of wage rates, with lower interest rates, and with enlarged capital betterment expenditures by railroads, utilities, and business generally, he said he looked for the advance of spring to restore normal prosperity.

The president made his statement after conferring with Secretaries Lamont and Davis.

The text of his statement follows:

"The departments of commerce and labor are engaged in the usual monthly survey of business and unemployment and especially of the results obtained from the measures which have been in progress since the last of November, to reduce unemployment and the hardships following the dislocation from the stock exchange crash. The survey is not as yet complete. There are, however, certain conclusions that are evident.

"1. Unemployment amounting to distress is in the main concentrated in 12 states. The authorities in the remaining 36 states indicate only normal seasonal unemployment or that the minor abnormal unemployment is being rapidly absorbed.

"2. The low point of business and unemployment was the latter part of December and early January. Since that time employment has been slowly increasing and the situation is much better today than at that time.

"3. Nation-wide response to the request for increased construction and improvement work by public authorities, railroads, utilities, and industries is having a most material effect. Construction contracts in these categories in January and February were from 40 per cent to 45 per cent higher than ever known in those months. The total construction work for 1930 seems assured to be larger than 1929.

"4. The undertaking to maintain wages has been held.

"5. The amount of unemployment is in proportion to the number of workers, considerably less than one-half (probably only one-third) of that which resulted from the crashes of 1907-08, and 1920-22 at this period of the situation.

"6. Measures taken to ameliorate interest rates have resulted in continuous decrease since December, and money is available at lower rates for business and commercial purposes. One result is an increasing volume of bond issues have been placed for public improvements. Available money for mortgage purposes of home building and agriculture have lagged behind other forms of credit. But a decrease in the mass of policy holders for loans on the insurance companies and the action recently taken by the Federal Reserve system should result in increased supplies of credit, especially for residential building, which in turn has lagged behind other construction.

"7. All the evidences indicate that the worst effects of the crash upon employment will have been passed during the next 60 days with the amelioration of seasonal unemployment, the gaining strength of other forces, and the continued cooperation of the many agencies actively cooperating with the government to restore business and to relieve distress."

In a joint statement amplifying the findings particularly as to employment, Secretaries Lamont and Davis refused to fix specific figures for numbers out of work, but estimated it as between one-third and one-half the number of unemployed during 1921-22. Forces of recovery, the cabinet members said, were found to be steadily gaining strength.

COMMISSION APPROVED BY CATHOLICS OF HAITI

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, March 7.—(AP)—The Catholic church in Haiti, representing more than half the people, today joined the federated opposition groups in their movement for independent legislative elections and the end of American occupation.

This unprecedented decision was announced to President Hoover's investigating commission by Archbishop Conan and Bishop Legouaze when the commissioners paid a visit to the head of the Haitian church. Priests are paid by the government and are in a sense its employes.

The archbishop told the commissioners the bishops had decided they could not avoid the decision.

Asserting he had no personal feeling against President Louis Borno, he declared "the clergy will rejoice with all its heart when the present situation is ended and will joyfully chant a Te Deum of solemn thanksgiving."

He said that the church had "learned with joy of the appointment of the commission."

SESSIONS RESUMED BY NAVAL CONFERENCE

LONDON, March 7.—(AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, buoyant in spirit but with his face showing the strain of bearing the double burden of disarmament negotiations and parliamentary duties, today re-launched the London naval conference.

Under his chairmanship today the five chief delegates—with Aristide Briand heading the French for Premier Tardieu—gathered around the conference table in St. James' palace. They surveyed the work done with problems remaining, then plunged into the tasks of their individual delegations. The work of American-Japanese negotiations moved forward, with Secretary Stimson and Reijiro Wakatsuki getting together for a long conversation at American headquarters. This was the first time they had seriously sought a solution of American-Japanese naval differences.

DR. SCHACHT RESIGNS AS REICHSBANK PRESIDENT

BERLIN, March 7.—(AP)—The resignation today of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht as president of the Reichsbank, was expected to have an influence on the progress of the Young plan and its connected legislation—the Polish liquidation agreement—in parliament.

While at the moment the alignment of parties to both of these issues cannot be foretold, it is widely believed that Dr. Schacht's dramatic resignation may spur the German people to induce all parties at least to give the Young plan and the Polish agreement a final and fearful once over.

TWO NEGRO YOUTHS WERE EXECUTED FOR MURDER

BASTROP, La., March 7.—(AP)—Two Negro youths, Joe Winn and Irston (Bo) Webb, slayers of Bob Lee, aged white man beaten to death and robbed last July at Horseshoe Lake, today divided their pocket coins among prisonmates, uttered a prayer and died on the gallows.

En route to the gallows the sheriff asked which wished to die first. Winn answered "Ready," and was ushered to the scaffold. The rope slipped and 39 minutes passed before he was officially pronounced dead. Webb was hanged nine minutes later.

Pointed To Lalone And Moulthrope In Court

Garage Employe Identified Them As Two [illegible] Three Men Who R[illegible]im.

JACKSONVIL[illegible] March 7.—(AP)—L. Dll Fu[illegible] ship chandler, formerly of [illegible] Va., today described to a [illegible] scene of a gun battle in w[illegible]ective W. D. Smith was fatal[illegible]ed. The state asks the dea[illegible]y for Roland Lalone and Wats[illegible]ulthorpe, escaped Connecticut co[illegible]cts.

The account of the battle followed testimony by W. R. Hunt that five or ten minutes after the shooting here on the night of Jan. 17, Moulthrope came to him and said:

"I just had a little battle. Which is the best way out of town?"

"A traffic light stopped me at the corner of Duval and Liberty streets,' he related. "I heard some shots. I ducked down into the bottom of my coupe.

"In a few seconds I rose up and saw a man in a white sweater running down the street. Some other men—at least two—were running in another direction toward Main street.

"I went over to the side of the street and saw a man lying on the sidewalk. When I came up, he said:

"'Buddie, those racketeers have got me. Tell them to give everything I have to my sister.'

"I would estimate there were about eight shots. First there was one shot, then a pause of about a half a second, and then a roar of shots like a machine gun.

"The wounded man had a gun in one hand and a flashlight in the other," Furman said.

Hunt testified that Moulthrope came to him a few days before the shooting and traded him two diamond rings for a .38 calibre pistol.

The state has sworn Smith was killed with a .38 calibre bullet.

L. E. Brooks identified two rings which were given to police by Hunt, as among articles valued at $600 which were stolen from his home here January 10.

J. F. Pallicer, a garage employe of St. Augustine, Fla., pointed to Lalone and Moulthorpe in the court room as two of three men who beat him on the head with a pistol and then robbed the garage January 14.

The state contends that Leo Landry, who escaped with Lalone and Moulthorpe from the Connecticut prison on January 4, was the man Furman saw in the white sweater. Hunt testified that Moulthorpe had "a man with him," when Moulthorpe came to the apartment house on the night of the battle.

A capacity crowd jammed the courtroom in anticipation of hearing Landry, but the court announced that the evidence today had taken so much time that it was doubtful if Landry would be heard before Monday. A half day session is expected tomorrow.

The spectators, mostly women, arrived at the court two hours before it was scheduled to convene in order to get seats. They retained them during the noon recess by eating basket lunches in the courtroom.

Poisoned Liquor Has Paralytic Effects

About 40 Victims Suffering From Strange Malady In Oklahoma City Hospital.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Mar. 7—(AP)—A strange malady with paralytic characteristics apparently caused originally by the drinking of poisoned liquor, tonight had placed about 40 victims of Oklahoma City hospitals, with probably as many more receiving treatment in their homes.

Dr. W. H. Miles, city physician, who was called upon to cope with the epidemic of collapses, was seeking to determine definitely the causes of the illnesses and whether the disease was communicable.

The greater part of the victims lose the use of their feet, and legs, and most of them told Dr. Miles and Dr. E. Goldfain, a nerve specialist assisting him, that their illness had followed the drinking of alcoholic liquor. Several victims, however, including a chiropodist and a minister, denied they had partaken of liquor.

The chiropodist said he had treated several of the victims when their feet became paralyzed, and attributed his own condition to contagion.

No deaths had been attributed to the disease today, and Dr. Miles said he had been unable to determine whether the disability was permanent.

The health officer's belief that the illness was caused by drinking was strengthened by the fact that most of the victims said they had drunk Jamaica ginger. Several of the victims gave a newspaper man the names of drug stores from which they said they had bought the beverage. Five druggists or drug store employes were among the victims.

Samples of Jamaica ginger were being tested by C. E. Clifford, city chemist, who said he would report to Dr. Miles tomorrow.

SEN. GRUNDY DRAWN INTO THE LOBBY INVESTIGATION

Senate Committee Is Inquiring Into Reports That Tariff Advocates Have Been Using An Office In The Senate Building Assigned to Senator Grundy—Arthur L. Faubel, Secretary of the American Tariff League, Denied That He Had Used the Office.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP)—Inquiring into reports that three tariff advocates were using an office in the senate office building assigned to Senator Grundy, republican, Pennsylvania, the senate lobby committee today heard testimony from Warren F. Doane, of Philadelphia, editor of the Manufacturer, that he had been on Grundy's payroll for six or seven years at $500 a month and used the office for work done at the capitol.

The committee also heard a denial from Arthur L. Faubel, secretary of the American Tariff league, that he had used the office. He said he had been in it only twice.

Faubel testified, however, that he had prepared a "goodly proportion" of a speech delivered in the senate last Saturday by Senator Goff, republican, West Virginia, which attacked the senate coalition of democrats and independent republicans.

John Lerch, New York attorney, the third mentioned in published reports as having used the office, was unable to appear today and will be questioned next week. The committee adjourned until Tuesday when Claudius K. Huston, chairman of the republican national committee and former president of the Tennessee River Improvement association, is scheduled to appear. He will be questioned concerning his activities in behalf of the bid of the American Cynamid company to lease Muscle Shoals.

Doane was asked by Senator Blaine, republican, Wisconsin, if he occupied the office assigned to Senator Grundy.

"Yes," the witness replied. "The senator, I think, would like to have me more constantly."

"You are an employe then of Senator Grundy," Blaine continued.

"That's it," Doane said. "I'm on his staff."

The witness said he had been employed to do research work and that before Grundy became a senator the headquarters were in a downtown office building. When Grundy was appointed to the senate, he added, the office was given up.

Doane said he used a desk and typewriter in Grundy's office and that a Mrs. Rhodes, who had been employed at the downtown headquarters was retained on Grundy's staff after he entered the senate. He said Grundy paid him by personal check.

Questioned about the reports in the senate yesterday, Senator Grundy said that Doane "comes to my office when I want him to come there to consult with me."

SENATOR GRUNDY HAS NO APOLOGIES TO MAKE

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP)—Joining in a general debate centering about his employment of Warren F. Doane of Philadelphia, to aid him in research work on the tariff, Senator Grundy, republican, Pennsylvania, told the senate tonight he had no "apologies whatever to make for the relationship or the manner in which his services are being performed."

The Pennsylvanian, an advocate of high protective duties, whose tariff activities have been investigated by the senate lobby committee, asserted that if there were more men like Doane he could get, he "certainly would want to have those men here."

The debate was started by Senator Blaine, republican, Wisconsin, a member of the lobby committee, who discussed testimony before that committee today by Doane.

Blaine said that Doane was performing the same work for Grundy now that he did before the Pennsylvanian became a member of the senate and that the records and files of Grundy's downtown office had been moved to the senate office building.

In his testimony before the lobby committee today, Doane said he had been employed by Grundy at $500 a month for six or seven years and that he used an office in the senate office building assigned to Grundy for work that he did at the capitol.

Discussing this testimony, Grundy described Doane as "one of the brightest minds in the economic field connected with the tariff that I know of" and asserted that the only reason "he is not in the offices which I occupy in the senate office building is because there is no room there for him to do the clerical work that he had to do."

Questioned about Doane's testimony that he used a desk and typewriter in an office assigned to Grundy, the senator replied:

"I take it he has the use of it when he stops in there to do any work. There are a number of desks there and typewriters and I have no doubt he has the use of any of them."

LARGE RUM BOAT SEIZED AFTER SPECTACULAR BATTLE

LORIAN, Ohio, Mar. 7—(AP)—One of the largest rum boats on the Great Lakes, a 65 foot armored motor cruiser, its cargo of 3,000 cases of whiskey and beer, and its crew of two men were held here tonight after a spectacular battle with coast guards on Lake Erie today.

One of the prisoners was seriously wounded and was taken to a Lorain hospital. He said he was Fred Hentrie, of Detroit. The other gave the name of Joe Hanna. Coast Guards said the rum boat is the Sambo G, of Port Stanley, Ont., and that it had cleared from Erieau or Kingsville, Ont.

The capture was made after a pursuit of several hours in which the guardsmen showered rifle bullets and one pound shells on the fugitive craft. Strips of five eighths inch steel covered the boat in vulnerable parts, however, and the bullets and shells failed to stop it.

There was no shooting from the rum boat but once it took the aggressive and made a full speed dash at the coast guard boat number 106. The Sambo G rammed hard into the 106, hitting it amidships, tearing a large hole just above the water line.

Several hours later near Lorain the guards overhauled the rum boat and boarded it.

Captain J. T. Hagglov, commander of the 106, said he had first met the Sambo G near Cleveland and fired 15 shots across its bow but that the warning was unheeded.

MERIDEN, Mar. 7—(AP)—Calling more than a score of witnesses, Gov. Trumbull's special commission today moved rapidly to investigate the truth of charges that inmates of the Connecticut school for boys have been brutally treated by their supervisors.

The majority of the witnesses were former inmates whose testimony was incorporated in the voluminous report filed by the state department of welfare which precipicated the inquiry.

Some, however, were present inmates, lads ranging in age from 10 to 16 years, who asserted they have been beatn and flogged for what they claimed were minor offenses.

Supt. Edward S. Boyd sat with the three members of the commission, George H. Day of Hartford: Judge Walter M. Pickett and William A. Hendrick, both of New Haven.

Mr. Day said he thought that two more days would be required before their investigation would be completed

FOUR INJURED IN FIRE AT WEST WILLINGTON

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 7—A large barn and contents on the property of Dr. Frank B. Converse in West Willington was destroyed by fire at noon Thursday, causing injuries to four young men and a loss of about $2,000. But little insurance was carried on the building. The fire was discovered after it had gained considerable headway. It had started in grass and brush in the rear of the barn and worked its way to the structure, which was quickly ignited. Four young men in the vicinity ran to the scene and entered the burning barn to carry out valuable pieces of antique furniture stored in the building. They were inside when an explosion of some kind took place in the hay and burning embers were showered about, inflicting painful burns on the hands and faces of the youths who fled out of the building. Dr. Converse, who was away at the time the fire was discovered, returned and treated the youths. In addition to the antique furniture, which was the property of the Converse family, the destroyed contents included a quantity of hay and an old Studebaker automobile. The blaze threw the village into considerable excitement.

Explains China Dried Eggs

A most pertinent fact on the importation of dried eggs from China was brought out by Robert Quait, poultry feed expert of Newton, N. J., in his talk at the annual meeting of the Windham County Poultry, Pigeon and Small Stock association held here Thursday night. Mr. Quait stated that last year there were 44 million dozens of eggs, in dry form, imported into the United States and that 98 per cent of that total came from China. Then he made the alarming revelation that the principal feed of Chinese chickens is mainly human sewage plus a small quantity of garbage. He pointed to the grave danger of communicable diseases, principally cancer, existing in the consumption of the eggs of these Chinese chickens, indicating that the drying process was not necessarily one of purification. Dried eggs from China are used mainly by baking, mayonnaise and macaroni companies. Mr. Quait strongly advocated a broadcast of this condition in the hope of securing a high tariff on Chinese eggs. He said that should a high tariff fail to materialize, an investigation by the health department should serve to put a permanent ban on the importation of these disease-inferted eggs.

VOITURE TO BE ORGANIZED AT MEETING SUNDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 7.—Members of the American Legion from various sections of this part of eastern Connecticut will assemble here, at American Legion hall Sunday afternoon, to attend a reorganization meeting of Voiture 724, 40 and 8, which is that part of the Legion organization that laughs at trouble and strives to make joy reign supreme. Officers from various voitures in New London, Hartford and Tolland counties, are expected to be in attendance. Aside from the business that necessarily will take a considerable part of the time of the meeting, there is to be a program of entertainment. The diversions to be provided will include boxing and wrestling exhibitions. The boxing matches will be between boys of Louis Peloquin's stable, training here. Young Thibeault will meet Young Landry. Young Deforest will be paired with Al Rodman of New York and Dynamite Lou Brouillard will take on his kid brother, who has just entered professional ranks, for a few rounds. Al Beauregard of Taftville and Rene Peloquin of Danielson will stage another go. Joe Styszynski of Wauregan and Joe Gasiorek of Danielson will do the wrestling for the edification of the Legionnaires. The boys taking part in the bouts also will do rope skipping, setting up exercises, shadow boxing and other training stunts.

CHAMBER TO ASSIST DRIVE FOR POSTOFFICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 7.—The local chamber of commerce is to add its influence to the effort intended to hurry along the government in making an appropriation for a federal postoffice building in Danielson. Danielson is among the towns listed to share in the money already authorized for new postoffice building construction.

It so happens that Danielson is not asking for something of which it is not urgently in need. The present quarters of the office in the town hall building are inadequate. The place is usually so jammed with mail matter of one sort or other that the clerks work under a handicap. Further, the office congestion is so great that one clerk does part-time work at the curtain factory of Powdrell & Alexander, making ready parcel post matter, that there is no room to handle in the office. Still further, the government's lease on the present postoffice quarters expires the coming summer.

MRS. WEALTHA WEEKS, 89, LOCAL RESIDENT MANY YEARS, DIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 7. — Mrs. Wealtha Weeks, who was in her 90th year, died last night at the home of her son, Charles Weeks, in the Attawaugan section of the town. Mrs. Weeks had been a resident of this town for many years. She was a native of Charleston, Mass. In addition to the son at whose home she died, Mrs. Weeks leaves a daughter, Mrs. Minnie Munroe, of Fiskdale, Mass.

There was much to be heard, pro and con, today relative to the plan to carry out a general revaluation of the property of the town of Killingly. There are those expressing themselves that they believe it should be done at this time that alleged inconsistencies in fixing valuations might be eliminated. There are others who insist that there is nothing to be gained by having a general revaluation at this time, when business is not so good and with the chance that revaluing, especially as to manufacturing companies' holdings, might create a very considerable amount of discord. Next Wednesday evening the voters will decide whether they want the revaluation made and go on record as willing to pay the bill therefor.

BIDS FOR NEW HIGHWAY MUST BE IN BY MARCH 17

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, March 7.—March 17 is the date set by the state highway department as the time limit for contractors to file bids for the job of building approximately three miles of concrete highway between Wauregan and Danielson. The work is expected to begin in late March or early April, and to be completed during the late summer season. The mileage to be concreted will be partly in the town of Plainfield and partly in the town of Killingly, the northerly end of the section to be improved being somewhere in the vicinity of Fall Brook, something less than a mile south of the southerly boundary of the borough. With much of the construction off the present Wauregan-Danielson state highway route, the work will not seriously hinder traffic during the coming warm weather season. And in addition, there are two good optional routes—via Brooklyn from Danielson to Wauregan, and also over the Green Hollow road.

Besides the pilot there was a lone passenger. They left immediately by automobile for Providence. It was reported that the reason for the hurry in leaving was that the passenger had a radio engagement tonight in Boston. The plane was of a cabin-type with dual control and whirlwind motor. On leaving, the pilot said that it was impossible to find his way through the fog. The plane landed just northeast of the H. F. Barber farm in Almyville. ROAD BLOCKED BY GIRLS WHO PAY FOR THEIR JOKE

Officer Henry Vegiard received a call Thursday evening that a stone barricade about two feet high had been erected across the driveway approaching Moses Pepin's home in Hopeville. Leaving Officer Blake on duty in the borough, he drove to Hopeville. A caller at the home discovered the barricade, as the lights of his machine shone on it, when the machine was leaving the house. He remembered passing four girls on his way, and thereupon, Mr. Sherlock Vegiard proceeded to investigate certain high-heeled shoe prints in that vicinity. Carefully tracing the tell-tale marks, he walked considerable distance and found that they led to a house. To say that the girls were astonished at the sight of the brass buttons does not express it. They considered the whole thing a joke. But not so, the officer. They were obliged to return with him and remove said stones, also pay for his taxi ride. And that was no joke!

OBITUARY

Anthony Belisle

Anthony Belisle, 17, died at Uncas-on-Thames Friday afternoon. He was born in Canada, the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Belisle. The mother and children live in Jewett City on Hill street, the father, who is in ill health, being in Quebec. Brothers and sisters who survive are Mrs. Jane Lemieux of Putnam, Louis of Quebec, Rose, Charles, Marie Louise, Albert, Lawrence, Cecile and Rita, all of Jewett City, and Emma, who has been a patient at Uncas-on-Thames for five years.

The board of advisory engineers now on duty daily at the Quinebaug bridge job, was duly organized Friday, and officers chosen: President, Maxey Seymour; first vice-president, Frank I. Ray; second vice-president, Thomas McBroome; secretary, E. L. French; treasurer, J. E. Phillips; directors, Michael Glynn, E. H. Chapman, Dennis Barnett, F. H. Gilbert and E. H. Hiscox. This organization, in starting out upon the extremely important business of the coming season, is facing three serious handicaps. The treasurer reports the cash box bone dry. Also it was learned Friday evening that the New Haven company will have a force of railroad cops on duty today (Saturday) to keep all persons off the right of way. This ruling will seriously conflict with the efficient operation of the board. Thirdly, with the entire membership on duty, Thursday and Friday, all prepared with expert advice, gleaned from years of actual experience in various lines, a half dozen men raised the big mast of the 115-foot derrick, rigged the 110-foot boom and put the great crane in operation without once asking the assistance of the board. It looked as though the riggers were taking an awful chance, but somehow, this time, they accomplished the job with nothing serious happening. A meeting of the board was immediately called, and it was unanimously voted that something must be done to put a stop to such flagrant violations of the rules and by-laws of the advisory engineers. The vote was double-checked by the secretary.

It is said that the Aztecs of Mexico carried fireflies in baskets at night as torches.

DISCARDING USELESS LAWS

From the experience and experiments of others it is possible to learn much of value. Just now New Jersey is furnishing some food for reflection through the action that is being taken in its legislature. This is the year that Connecticut is without a general assembly and it thus has an opportunity to cast an eye about to see what other states are doing.

It appears that New Jersey has a commission on law revision which has been going over its statutes as required and picking out those which have become obsolete and which ought to be discarded, with the result that two bills have been presented to the legislature calling for the repeal of those laws.

From time to time there is pointed out the farcical situation that is presented by the bringing to light of certain laws which have long since been forgotten and which are quite opposed to present-day practice. Some of them deal with conditions which no longer exist and never will again. Others have been replaced long since by more up-to-date legislation but have never been discarded. There is a change going on from decade to decade which means that as new legislation is being enacted much of the old which is useless should be eliminated.

Unfortunately it is the case in too many instances that attention is not called to these ancient and useless laws until they are brought to attention from out the dusty tomes to circumvent present-day regulations or to embarrass more liberal policies. New Jersey considers that instead of keeping them around to make trouble they should be thrown out and it thus goes in for a special housecleaning in this direction.

While other states have special revisions of their statutes from time to time in order to make them more readily available for use, the idea of weeding out the valueless laws that are cumbering the books has not been generally adopted. There seems to be no good reason why this policy should not be adopted, and numerous as new laws usually are it might be possible to find that by careful pruning it would be possible some years to get rid of as many as might be added.

RHODE ISLAND REFERENDUMS

Referendums will add interest to the coming election in the state of Rhode Island if all the questions suggested are submitted to the people.

Subject to the approval of the governor, it has already been established that there will be a referendum on the retention of the 18th amendment. Rhode Island is going to find out how the people of that state stand in that respect and it ought to be possible to obtain accurate information that will dispel any doubt that may exist and that will serve as a guide to those who speak or act for the state.

Another proposition in which Rhode Island is now interested is absentee voting. If all goes well the necessary change in the state's constitution will be submitted for the decision of the people.

Absentee voting is a privilege which the voters of any state should be anxious to secure. Why shouldn't the voters of Rhode Island, or Connecticut, for that matter, be able to vote even though they do not happen to be at home on election day? It is done in many other states and it is no more than ought to be expected when surrounded by proper safeguards.

Many are the reasons that may take or find a person away from home prior to election day. He may be anxious to cast his vote but distance, business, health, might make it inadvisable to make the trip home just for that purpose. If he can anticipate his absence a sufficient length of time to get an absentee voting ballot it is possible for him to vote at a distance quite as intelligently and safely as if he were at home. Certainly he has a right to vote if at home and there is no good reason why he should not be able to vote by mail.

When the number of voters from other states who are given the benefit of such a privilege are noted, it is inevitable that there should be a demand for similar privileges in states where absentee voting is not as yet permitted. It is a fair proposition and it will be surprising if Rhode Island doesn't give approval.

REDUCTION AND LIMITATION

While the statement by Secretary Stimson to the effect that the United States is willing to reduce its naval armament by 200,000 tons, if similar reductions can be obtained from other countries, will be pleasing to those who have been urging reduction rather than limitation, there is no assurance that such an agreement can be secured.

Even though such an attitude can be regarded as shedding a strong influence, it is known that there have been demands made by other countries at the conference which would completely annihilate any such plan if insisted upon. Whether it will be possible to obtain such an understanding that compromises can be effected is one of the things as yet undetermined but one for which all possible influence is being exerted. Uncle Sam is opening the way.

Cutting down the naval tonnage, including ships built and contemplated, would leave the nations relatively strong for naval defense. With reduction it is to be expected that there would be limitation but failing to get a reduction the conference would by no means be a failure if only limitation should be secured.

It has been made perfectly clear as the result of negotiations which have gone on between nations in recent years that the road to the desired goal is reached by gradual advancement instead of by headlong plunges. It has been demonstrated that the nations want to feel their way. They are opposed to making too radical jumps.

The fact that the United States has indicated what it is willing to do cannot create other than a good impression. It is subject to careful scrutiny and it will be considered from all angles. It is not improbable that it will stimulate thought on the part of others. That the British are disposed to accept such an obligation likewise carries weight and necessitates study.

If reduction of naval armament could be accomplished by leaps and bounds it would have been more clearly manifested at the Washington conference. There it was that France was opposed even to limitation in certain directions. Even now it is asking for a naval tonnage increase that is large, but it may have placed the total so high that it can afford to entertain thoughts in keeping with the Stimson proposition.

PICKING UP AIR MAIL

Inasmuch as it is a certainty that the airplane will figure more prominently in the transportation of mails, it is to be expected that new devices for handling it will be forthcoming. The test that has recently been made near Washington is a logical development. That was made for the purpose of determining whether mail could be dropped and picked up at the same time without bringing the plane to a stop. Proceeding at a speed of 80 miles an hour a contrivance resembling a broad parachute and open at the top accomplished what was expected. It is probably the beginning of what will in time be as successfully developed as the arrangement which exists on the railroads for picking up mail without stopping the train.

Speed is desirable in the sending of mail by airplane. If it is possible to avoid many stops it is going to mean faster time in the delivery and it is going to mean that many communities can get the benefit of the airplane mail service without seriously interrupting the schedule and possibly without having a landing field.

The train that takes on water or picks up mail without stopping is a time saver. The plane that can pick up mail without stopping eliminates the danger that is involved in the taking off and alighting of flying machines and it likewise overcomes the delay involved in stopping. The fact that it has been shown that a similar practice can be followed with planes as is done with trains is not surprising. It is only one of those developments that can be expected with the progress in aviation. It may yet be so that the same sort of an operation can be performed in the handling of express matter up to a certain weight.

ADMIRAL VON TIRPITZ

Once more death has stepped in to remove one of the prominent figures of the World war. Perhaps few were more in the eyes of the world during stages of that conflict than Admiral Alfred von Tirpitz of the German navy. He was a big man in Germany. He had great influence during the war. He had built a great navy for his country and he conducted that ruthless submarine warfare in a manner that gained the censure of the world.

Von Tirpitz was a great navy builder. He had visions of world supremacy, so much so that he threw his influence against war when it was declared until his construction could go on until there was no question of his control. He failed in that ambition and he failed also in his desire to open the war with a big naval demonstration against the British. When he got the word to go in regard to the submarines he let loose in a manner that startled the world. Later he came to realize how that warfare had forced the United States into the war and assured the defeat of Germany. Before the war was over his navy was as badly crushed as his hopes and he never recovered from the effects of the deplorable conflict.

The admiral was an imperialist at the start and he continued it to the end. He was made a deputy in the reichstag but there his efforts were in opposition to the republic and he could not put aside his age-old ambition to build warships. Even the opportunity to swing into the construction of merchant ships did not serve to appease his desires. He never seemed to grasp the fact that but for the manner in which his country had pursued the ambition for world supremacy Germany might never have experienced the crushing or brought such disaster to the world.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Premier Tardieu has proved that he can come back with increased strength.

Some people are finding that it was easier to get the income than it is to pay the tax.

The man on the corner says: With no Sunday, probably soviet Russia sees no need for a Saturday night bath.

If the communists did anything it was to convince the person who thinks for himself that the authorities were right.

Out of the number of unemployed it might be interesting to know how many want to work and how many wouldn't work if they could.

Now that those 43,000 Chicago employers have received their pay, for the first time this year, are they going to continue to work for the city?

Since the Rhode Island legislature has voted for a referendum on the 18th amendment, it rests with the people of that state to declare themselves. They must be wet or dry.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

The recent soviet persecutions have filled the civilized world with horror. It has taught us from precedents that when the Russians indulge in anything of that character it is generally no half-way job. The object of governmental wrath this time seems to have been the church. But before we pour out the vials of our wrath upon the Russians, let us remember what the people now fortunately or unfortunately in power once suffered from the Russian church. Under the former regime of the czars the church was autocratic because the czar was at the head of the church as well as the state. With a ruler of unlimited power at the head of both church and state the poor Russian was between "the devil and the deep sea." Now the czar was as despotic in the church as he was in the state. Now the people in power have not forgotten the wrongs of former days, and as they are human hence the present persecutions.

In regard to such serious matters as the above, we are very apt to say and very truly that it is an important Christian precept to "forgive those who despitefully use us," and that is absolutely correct, but it so happens in Russia—and possibly in some other nations that have a better reputation than Russia—that all political leaders have not developed the prayer meeting capacity of doing good to our enemies, and hence they have a vivid picture of some of the oppressions that were done in the holy name of Christ and they have not forgotten the past! Of course they ought to forgive their enemies," but this is hard for professional politicians to do. They believe in the Golden Rule, but they give the Josh Billings' interpretation to it "Do unto the other feller what the other feller is trying to do to you, but get it in fust."

Senator Heflin who pours out his wrath in about equal proportions against rum and Negroes has recently said that there ought to be a national law against white and colored people worshipping together. Senator Walsh of Massachusetts stood up in the senate and made this masterly reply: "Are we to close the doors of the house of God to the few colored people who have come up into the north and west and are unable to support a church of their own? Must we say to them: "None but whites can pray to God here, none but whites can serve God here?" Is that the conception of religious tolerance that we are to preach in the United States senate?" These words which are only a part of Senator Walsh's great speech made such an impression on that body, that a committee was appointed to determine whether or not Senator Heflin had violated the rules of the senate.

The increasing number of boys and even girls who are making use of the public streets—especially those that are level and smooth—for the pleasure of roller-skating is becoming something of a serious proposition, not as to any harm to the streets, but as a great danger to themselves. It looms up also as a serious proposition to the other side of the equasion; the traveling automobilist. It certainly endangers the very lives of those who indulge in this sport. It is even an economic question, because the growing boy and girl are the greatest asset to the community. It is likewise an important question to the parents of these children. No one but an old grouch would limit the harmless pleasures of the young, but when these pleasures involve great danger, the matter of safety looms up of more importance than the pleasure. The number of automobile accidents that are unavoidable is great enough without needlessly increasing the danger.

The following has been one of the long disputes of the ages which has not yet been satisfactorily settled: Which has the greater influence over character, heredity or environment? The old dispute has been revived again over conditions that clearly exist in Chicago—and perhaps in other cities in a less conspicuous way—that are clearly a disgrace, not only to that city, but to our whole boasted civilization. That they are giving a black eye to that city needs no comment. The world would think more of the mayor if he would let alone the awful King George and do a little more shaking of the hoodlums of his own city. Investigation has shown that heredity and environment are about equally responsible for the deplorable state of affairs. Is it not reasonable to ask if the city's deplorable financial state is not in a measure the outcome of this youthful criminality? When crime makers make the people lose faith in their city the tendency is to grip the pocket book more firmly.

Man has frequently been dignified with the title of "the paragon of animals", and yet there are some who analyse the paragon. Mark, if you please, the following: "We humans are almost the lowest form of animal parasite. There are lots of dumb animals that prey upon other animals, but they are limited in their choice of victims and they have no other means at their command. But we prey upon all animals, and that in spite of the fact that we have brains enough to provide for ourselves. We play no favorites when we start out to kill and steal. We are nest-robbers. We steal the eggs from the chicken and, to make it worse, we use our science to make her lay more eggs so that we can commit grand rather than petty larceny on her product. And after we have stolen hundreds of her eggs, we cut her head off and eat her."

The same brilliant writer gives us another terribly hard punch in the following language: "We encourage the simple-minded cow to contract conjugals relations and then when time has blessed her with a child we kidnap the baby and proceed to steal the milk twice a day. The silk worm spins a cocoon to clothe herself, and we rip her garment from her and make it into one for ourselves. The worst part of all this is that all the time we are putting up with inferior food and inferior clothes. How much of the disease in the world has been a by-product of our nest-robbing and bird-eating, we have yet to learn." Thus speaks the above-mentioned writer in a current magazine article in giving his opinion of the much boasted "paragon of animals." Must it not be honestly admitted that this certain "paragon of animals" still retains some likeness to the former caveman?

We have already entered upon the Lenten period. Ash Wednesday is the beginning of the period. To make these 40 days a season of real religious significance it is not necessary to go into all the external formalities that have grown up around the spiritual idea of Lent. On Ash Wednesday we are reminded that "we are dust and shall return to dust." If we are not impressed with its spiritual meaning the idea will not be impressed upon us by sprinkling ashes upon our heads. The only way to get the real idea of Lent is by lending all time possible to what it stands for. For the time being let us abstain from all things superficial and frivolous. Let us hold special services in our churches that shall glorify the great events that mark the close of our Lord's earthly life! It is refreshing to find all Christian denominations more and more giving attention to the supreme event of this period that has strengthened the moral and spiritual life of the world.

Latest Review and Interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine

An approach to the Monroe doctrine different from that usually taken, and one expected to have a reassuring effect on Latin-American countries, in that it is asserted that such policies as the so-called "Roosevelt corollary" of 1905 do not properly spring from the doctrine, is taken in a state department memorandum, transmitted to the senate foreign relations committee in December, 1928, and which, it is undertood, has been accepted by as authoritative government declaration on the subject.

The memorandum was prepared by J. Reuben Clark, at that time under secretary of state, as an expression of his "personal views," but was compiled at the request of the foreign relations committee, was addressed to Secretary Kellogg and was sent by the latter to the committee. Mr. Clark, a former solicitor of the state department, is an international lawyer and is at present in Mexico City as legal advisor to Ambassador Morrow.

The review and interpretation of the doctrine was made at a time when the Nicaraguan revolution had occupied the attention of the United States, and when the foreign relations committee had considered the advisability of attaching a Monroe doctrine reservation to the Kellogg anti-war treaty. It was long held as a confidential document, but is now being published by the government's printing office as a public document.

Makes Exception to Doctrine.

The reassuring note given by Mr. Clark in his treatise is contained in assertions that arrangements the United States has made in recent years with such Latin-American countries as Cuba, the Dominican republic, Haiti and Nicaragua do not fall within the Monroe Doctrine as it was originally proclaimed, but "may be accounted for as the expression of a national policy which, like the doctrine itself, originates in the necessities of security or self-preservation."

The attitude the United States has taken in such emergencies toward Cuba, the Dominican republic and other Latin-American countries, Mr. Clark points out, has been foreshadowed from time to time in utterances of statesmen for more than half a century, and was outlined by President Roosevelt in 1905 in what is known as the "Roosevelt Corollary" to the Monroe doctrine in connection with the Dominican debt protocol of 1904.

This corollary was to the effect that in case of financial or other difficulties in weak Latin American countries the United States should attempt an adjustment thereof lest European governments should intervene, and intervening should occupy territory—an act which would be contrary to the principles of the Monroe doctrine. Such a procedure was not covered by the terms of the Monroe doctrine itself, Mr. Clark contends, adding:

"It is not believed that this corollary is justified by the terms of the Monroe doctrine, however, much it may be justified by the application of the doctrine of self-preservation." These statements, he asserts, "detract not a little from the scope popularly attached to the Monroe doctrine, and they relieve that doctrine of many of the criticisms which have been aimed against it."

Mr. Clark declares that "so far as Latin America is concerned, the doctrine is now, and always has been, not an instrument of violence and oppression, but an unbought, freely bestowed, and wholly effective guaranty of their freedom, independence and territorial integrity against the imperialistic designs of Europe." The doctrine, he adds in effect, makes the United States a guarantor of the independence of Latin American states.

The Monroe Doctrine, he asserts, has self-preservation for the United States as its underlying principle, while behind it stands the policy of the complete political separation of Europe and the Americas. Nevertheless, he argues, the doctrine is "not an equivalent for self-preservation" and "it should not be invoked in order to cover situations challenging our self-preservation but not within the terms defined by Monroe's declaration."

"These other situations," he advises, "may be handled, and more wisely so, as matters affecting the national security and self-preservation of the United States as a great power."

Doctrine Antedated Monroe.

The essential principles of the doctrine, Mr. Clark declares, "had been understood, announced and invoked as between ourselves and Europe years before the framing of Monroe's declaration was contemplated," and "had long been the common property of the American statesmen of the time, and even of European statesmen." The terms, he adds, were considered by the cabinet with President Monroe and "the drawing of the instrument was the work of the draughtsman."

"The United States," he continues, "declined the overtures of Great Britain in 1823 to make a joint declaration regarding the principles covered by the Monroe doctrine, or to enter into a conventional arrangement regarding them. Instead this government determined to make the declaration of high national policy on its own responsibility and in its own behalf.

"The doctrine is thus purely unilateral. The United States determines when and if the principles of the doctrine are violated and when the violation is threatened. We alone determine what measures, if any, shall be taken to vindicate the principles of the doctrine and we of necessity determine when the principles have been vindicated.

No other power of the world has any relationship or voice in the implementing of the principles which the doctrine contains. It is out doctrine, to be by us invoked and sustained, held in abeyance or abandoned as our high testimonial policy or vital national interests shall seem to us, and to us alone, to demand.

Aimed at European Powers.

"The doctrine states a case of the United States vs. Europe, and not of the United States vs. Latin America. Furthermore, the fact should never be lost to view that in applying this doctrine during the period of one hundred years since it was announced, our government has over and over again driven it in as a shield between Europe and the Americas to protect Latin America from the political and territorial thrusts of Europe; and this was done at times when the American nations were weak and struggling for the establishment of stable, permanent governments; when the political morality of Europe sanctioned, indeed encouraged, the acquisition of territory by force, and when many of the great powers of Europe looked with eager, covetous eyes to the rich, undeveloped areas of the American hemisphere.

"Nor should another equally vital fact be lost sight of, that the United States has only been able to give this protection against designing European powers because of its known willingness and determination, if and whenever necessary, to expend its treasure and sacrifice American life to maintain the principles of the doctrine."

"The doctrine thus declared by Monroe," Mr. Clark says, "when reduced to its lowest terms, covers:

1.—Future colonisation by any European powers of the American continents.

2.—Any attempt by the allied powers to extend their political system to any portion of this hemisphere, or (in its second statement) to any part of either continent.

3.—Any interposition by any European power for the purpose of oppressing or controlling in any other manner the destinies of the Latin-American governments "who have declared their independence and maintained it, and whose independence we have on great consideration and just principles acknowledged."

4.—Non-interference by the United States with the existing colonies or dependence of any European power.

5.—Policy of leaving Spanish American colonies and Spain to themselves in the hope that other powers will pursue the same course.

"Behind the doctrine, though not expressly stated in words by President Monroe is the principle of the complete political separation of Europe and the Americas, or, as Jefferson put it, 'our first and fundamental maxim should be, never to entangle ourselves in the broils of Europe; or, second, never to suffer Europe to intermeddle with cis-Atlantic affairs.'

"Washington in his farewell address (1796) declared we should have 'as little political connection as possible' with Europe; that Europe had a 'set of primary interests' with which we had 'none or a very remote relation,' wherefore Europe 'must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns; why, by interweaving our destiny with that of any part of Europe, entangle our peace and prosperity in the toils of European ambition, rivalship, interest, humor or caprice? It is our true policy to steer clear of permanent alliances with any portion of the foreign world.'

Finds Latin America Protected.

"In the normal case the Latin American state against which aggression was aimed by a European power would be the beneficiary of the doctrine not its victim. This has been the history of its application. The doctrine makes the United States a guarantor, in effect, of the independence of Latin American states, though without the obligations of a guarantor to those states, for the United States itself determines by its sovereign will when, where and concerning what aggressions it will invoke the doctrine, and by what measure, if any, it will apply a sanction. In none of these things has any other state any vote whatever.

"Furthermore, while the Monroe doctrine, as declared, has no relation in its terms to an aggression by any other state than a European state, yet the principle 'self-preservation' which underlies the doctrine, which principle, as we shall see, is as fully operative without the doctrine as with it—would apply to any non-American state in whatever quarter of the globe it lay, or even to an American state, if the aggression of such state against other Latin American states were 'dangerous to our peace and safety,' or were a 'manifestation of an unfriendly disposition toward the United States,' or were 'endangering our peace and happiness'; that is if such an aggression challenged our existence.

Called "Shield" to Americas.

"The doctrine has nothing to do with the relationship between the United States and other American nations, except where other American nations shall became involved with European governments in arrangements which threaten the security of the United States, and even in such cases, the doctrine runs against the European country, not the American nation, and the United States would primarily deal thereunder with the European country and not with the American nation concerned. The doctrine states a case of the United States against Europe, and not the United States against Latin America.

Furthermore, the fact should never be lost to view that in applying this doctrine during the period of one hundred years since it was announced, our government has over and over against driven it in as a shield between Europe and the Americas to protect Latin America from the political and territorial thrusts of Europe; and this was done at times when the American nations were weak and struggling for the establishment of stable permanent governments; when the political morality of Europe sanctioned, indeed, encouraged, the acquisition of territory by force; and when many great powers of Europe looked with eager, covetous eyes to the rich, undeveloped areas of the American hemisphere. Nor should another equally vital fact be lost sight of, that the United States has only been able to give this protection against designing European powers because of its own willingness and determination, if and whenever necessary, to expend its treasure and to sacrifice American life to maintain the principles of the doctrine. So far as Latin America is concerned, the doctrine is now, and always has been, not an instrument of violence and oppression, but an unbought, freely bestowed and wholly effective guaranty of their freedom, independence and territorial integrity against the imperialistic designs of Europe."

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Nobility of Character

The twelfth of February should be a red-letter day to those who feel discouraged. In Lincoln's life we see what what real nobility of character means. We see that in spite of every hinderance he went on and overcome glorious by all setbacks. His life has been an inspiration to many to overcome the hard things in their lives and make them worth while. There is that in each heart which admires the really noble and true. Why do we not strive harder to allow nothing in our lives but the very best and noblest and to make the most of our lives. Is it not apt to be the lives that have the most to overcome that really make good? They are more apt to look to their Heavenly Father for help and guidance. Realizing their need, how much more it means to overcome when there are many obstacles. He was never afraid of work, no amount of effort was too great. His high ideals, sincerety and honesty were always the great thing in his life and met every test. He could be depended on at all times to do the right and to keep his promise. He overflowed with kindness, and thoughtfulness for others. When he felt the task at hand was greater than human skill could accomplish he went to his Heavenly Father for help and often called others to join him in his petition for help. So let each one strive to make the most of their life looking ever to the master for strength and guidance, knowing that He will not fail us.

"An Honest Heart"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "O Lord, Thou has searched me and known me" (Psalm 139:1).

Read: Psalm 139:1-6, 23, 24.

MEDITATION: Our theme these Lenten weeks is "Coming to Terms with Life." To accomplish this, one must adjust one's self to life. This will frequently call for readjustment. To do this intelligently, one must know one's self. One must face one's self honestly. The evil that is in one must be clearly confronted and acknowledged and called by the same name that one would apply to it in others. Unless we know our flaws and weaknesses, we shall not know where life needs mending. We require hours with God that we may see ourselves as His unflattering eye beholds us.

PRAYER: Almighty God, Spirit of purity, of sincerity and of all truth, grant unto us the holy gift of a fearless and honest mind, that we may behold ourselves as we are, truly confessing our sins and failures, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

THE GARDEN

By REX REES

Annuals

I have a dear friend a Scotch gardener who was showing me over his garden and on coming to a plot of many thousands of evergreen seedlings said: "This is my hope garden, and I think that the finest flowers that grow in any garden are the flowers of hope."

When Queen Helena in her old age visited the ruins of Jerusalem a vision of Paradise was given her. As she walked with the angel, Gabriel, they came to a lovely garden wherein were many flowers she had never seen. Finally they came to one more lovely than any she had yet seen: "This," said the angel, "is the flower of hope and is immortal. There is only one flower that exceeds it, and that crowns the throne of God; it is the flower of love." Hope is the common heritage of us all, and we gardeners all need hope to tide us over many disappointments.

So now if you would have a garden in every way up to date, border your beds with sweet alyssum, candytuft, or ageratum. Nothing is so satisfactory as a bed of stocks. You can plant them out of doors late in April and in a few weeks be rewarded with blooms. If you pinch out the center of the plant you will have a much better shaped plant and get many more blooms. You cannot go wrong if you plant a lot of Bismark stock, for you can cut fine clusters of flowers from June till November and they keep a long time in a moderately warm room. Some of the varieties which give great satisfaction are Canary, LaFrance, Sapphire, Scarlet, Sky Blue, Rose, White, and Lavender.

For your more formal beds you will want to grow cannas. There are many very fine varieties. King humbert stands out as a great favorite. For the last ten years it has been a best seller and still holds its place at the head of the list. It is a cross bred flower with beautiful bronze foliage and great heads of scarlet flowers. Another great variety is the President. This immense new flaming scarlet has come into wider use more quickly than any other canna. It leads the red varieties in quality and also in quantity of bloom. The flowers are often more than seven inches across; the petals do not burn in the hot sun nor rot in the rain. Then you want Yellow King Humbert, Scarlet Bedder, and Pink Bedder to round out your garden. You can secure very fine effects by edging your canna beds with salvia. A dozen Presidents placed in a circular bed and bordered by 50 or more salvias make a gorgeous showing from August until frost cuts down the last of the flowers. Bone meal and sheep manure worked into the soil give a good account of themselves as the right fertilizer for cannas and salvia. Sheep manure and bone meal work well together as one is quick, and the other is slow to loose its contents. Nearly all kinds of flowers take kindly to this combination of fertilizers.

Another very useful flower is the straw flower. It blooms profusely, and the more you cut it the more it blooms. The flowers should be cut before they are fully opened and hung upside down. As they dry they open without showing the full center. If short stems are desired they can be wired to any length. However those gathered late in the autumn are the best. They can be had in rose-carmine, salmon, violet, yellow, crimson, and red. When all outside flowers are gone these straw flowers combined with babysbreath, soft green painted ruscus and holly sprays make very attractive bouquets.

Chrysanthemums, yes! Chrysanthemums. Not strictly annual, yet can be grown as an annual and very fine results obtained. Your cuttings can be bought of your florist and planted by the middle of June or earlier if you desire. I have found, after trying a great many varieties, that the following give best results: Early Rose, Oconto, Quaker Maid, (white), and Gold Lode. The pompon varieties which have given best results, are Irene, perfect white of the finest form, equally good as a greenhouse and outdoor mum and Lellah, a fine pink gives great satisfaction as a cut flower. These varieties flower early in October, and if not far enough advanced to flower by the fifth of October take them up and pot them in eight inch pots and carry them in out of the danger of frost; keep them in the shade for a few days, water thoroughly and bring them into the light slowly, and the plants will bloom as if they had never been moved.

If you want to grow exhibition mums, I know of nothing better than Golden Chadwick. When high class blooms are wanted this variety reigns supreme. It is the best of the late yellows and can be always be depended upon to give good results. W. H. Chadwick is a most wonderful white and when grown in a cool place is of a light pinkish cast giving a soft glow to the flower that is very beautiful. Mums should be grown in a rich soil. Well rotted sod to which shredded cow manure and bone meal have been liberally added, makes a good growing soil. You will need to spray the plants regularly with nicotine solution for black aphis and green flies.

If you are thinking of planting sweet peas put them in the ground as soon as possible. Dig a trench about eight inches deep, and put in some cow manure. Mix it well with the soil and plant the seed not too thickly because if planted too thickly they do not bear so well nor so long. A second planting some two weeks later will give a longer blooming period. Fill up the trench as the plants grow, and stake them with brush. It is too expensive to buy the separate varieties so a good mixture is all that is required. However if one is a specialist a mixture will not satisfy and one can go the limit of his pocket or his garden.

It often happens that one's hobby spoils his garden. A well balanced garden is a "thing of beauty and a joy forever."

Endorses Idea

Mr. Editor: I was greatly interested in the announcement of the chamber of commerce to put Norwich on the air and consequently also on the map. Such a broadcast as outlined in The Bulletin of March 6, would be the best thing that Norwich ever attempted. Lack of time forbids me to enlarge on this project, but I sincerely hope that it will be carried out.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 7— When Linthicum of Maryland organized his drive on a house committee for favorable action on his many-year-old bill to have The Star Spangled Banner declared by law the national anthem, he overlooked one bet.

He should have called as witnesses Dr. William M. Mann, director of the national zoo, and Mrs. Mann. They could have given first hand practical reasons in support of the plan.

As the Bystander hears it, Dr. and Mrs. Mann were abroad and, as usual virtually living in the most famous zoos of the world.

That's their way of taking a vacation, like the sailor who got home from a three year cruise and hired a row boat to pass the time.

What was bothering them was plans for a new reptile house here in Washington, so they went on a look-see excursion.

In Germany, where zoos are truly parks, used night and day by many folks and equipped with highly proficient bands to help things along musically, the travelers did their inspecting in the day time, then returned to sit about the zoo gardens at night to take the air and the music and whatever else they may have fancied.

An official of the zoo saw them sitting there and determined upon a surprise complement. He went over and whispered with the band leader a bit.

Stirring Only

A moment later the stirring strains of a melody very familiar to the Manns blared out. It was a fine piece, played with good martial vigor, and they enjoyed it. Dr. Mann tapped time on the table top and then noted that the Germans about him were all standing. He was puzzled. It was an American tune; why all this respect for it? So he shrugged his shoulders and just went on sitting.

Later the park official came to him.

"Is it not customary in America to stand when your national anthem is played?" he asked.

"Oh, yes," said Dr. Mann. "Is that what they were standing about? That was not our national anthem. That was Sousa's Stars and Stripes Forever, not the Star Spangled Banner."

Flustered

Incidentally, Dr. Mann is described as having got himself all flustered over British titles at a function he attended in England at which were present the prince of Wales and a whole flock of dignitaries.

The American scientist was introduced to Lord This's and Sir That's until his head was a jumble. He had doubts about how he should address them. Then he hit on a fine idea, based on the same logic that makes folks always call junior military officers colonel or general. He decided to call 'em all "my lud" to be on the safe side.

It went fine for a while. Then Dr. Mann used his handy device to speak to a waiter, and it was all off.

OPENING OF LENTEN SERVICES AT THE Y. M. C. A.

Intense interest was shown by a large gathering of business men at the opening of the series of Friday noon Lenten talks by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, of New London, who for the seventh season has conducted this Lenten series at the local Y. M. C. A.

President Herbert B. Cary of the association presided at the meeting which was called to order immediately after a luncheon in the "Y" lobby. The hymn, "Sweet Hour of Prayer," was sung with feeling and enthusiasm and this was followed by a fervent prayer by Rev. P. A. Kilmister of the First Baptist church.

The topic of the address was "A Man That Is Called Jesus" and Dr. Danforth spoke in part as follows:

Christ touched men along that line, as well as along lines more broadly human, the great basic needs of our race. There is suggestion along the path of these occupational contracts of the Son of Man with the men he was daily meeting and with whom he had a depth of fellowship which we men of today need as much as they did.

One day Christ met a blind man, and healed him. Of course, everyone was surprised. They asked him how it happened, because it happened on the Sabbath. That would not disturb us, but it disturbed them mightily. The inquiry was pressed upon the man. He answered: "The man that is called Jesus made clay, and anointed mine eyes, and said unto me, 'Go to Siloam, and wash'; so I went away and washed, and I received sight."

Just think, "A man that is called Jesus." That was all he knew about him. But there was one thing he knew about himself, that whereas he was blind, now he could see. He had hardly ever dared to hope for a cure for congenital blindness. Hope is composed of desire and expectation. He had desired sight but what reason could he ever have had to expect it?

Then came the contact. He felt the clay upon his eyes. He heard the direction to go and wash. He did it. He saw. That was all he knew, except that it was done by a man that was called Jesus.

Thus far he had known only the tangible world. Now he was ushered by a touch into the visible world. Through contact with a new man he had found a new world. That is all he knew, but was it not wonderful?

Contact with Jesus liberated that man. Hitherto he had groped his way with a stick, or a string and a dog or the hand of a friend. Now the dark veils had lifted and he could see for himself. He was free. The touch of Christ is always a liberating touch. A man that is called Jesus touched you and me. We went and washed. And now we see. Louis Mell furnished piano music for the service. The topic for next Friday will be "The Carpenter."

HEALTH PROBLEM IS SOLVED FOR MANY

They Eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Daily

Constipation is the most common menace to health today. It is extremely dangerous in itself and is the source of many other complicating ailments. There is no permanent relief in pills and drugs. Many of them are dangerous.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is positively guaranteed to relieve and to prevent both temporary and recurring constipation. If it does not, money will be refunded.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is roughage. And roughage in food helps eliminate the possibility of constipation. Most modern foods do not contain roughage. Two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily is the proper amount. In recurring cases, ALL-BRAN should be eaten with each meal. It is an essential in any reducing diet. In addition, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains iron, the blood builder. It is the original ALL-BRAN, proved effective by millions and recommended by physicians.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has an appetizing flavor. Eat it with milk or cream, in cereals and fruit juices, in soups and in cooked foods. Your grocer has ALL-BRAN in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Farmer Brown's Boy Finds a Prize

Who knows just how to use his eyes
Will seldom lack for a surprise.
—Farmer Brown's Boy.

Farmer Brown's Boy, with Bowser the Hound and Flip the Terrier, was out for a walk. He had gone through the Old Orchard to the edge of the Green Forest and then had turned to follow the edge of the Green Forest, keeping just outside of it. Now, right along the edge of the Green Forest grew bushes of various kinds, some of them quite tall. In places there were bramble tangles. In other places young trees thrust their way up through the bushes. You know it was really the Green Forest trying to work its way out onto the Green Meadows.

The eyes of Farmer Brown's Boy are sharp. Not only are they sharp, but he has learned how to use them. He knows how to see things. He knows what to look for and where to look. So there is not a great deal that he misses. He knew that in those bushes he might find the cocoons of certain big moths. So as he went along he kept a sharp eye out for these cocoons. On a young wild cherry tree he found a number. They looked like rolled dried leaves.

So it was that presently ahead of him he noticed a big gray object in one of the bushes. It seemed to be just a little higher than his head. It was just the color of the old fence rails. He knew right away what it was. He remembered that last summer he had seen it there when he was looking for birds' nests, but that it had been very small then. He had not been over that way—that is, not at that particular place—since last summer, and so he had forgotten all about this thing.

"My goodness!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy. "Those bald-faced hornets certainly did build a big nest. I must have a look at that."

Now, hornets are really wasps, you know, and this nest toward which Farmer Brown's Boy was hurrying was like a great, gray globe made of a sort of gray paper, which the wasps themselves had made. It had been their summer home. It was made of several layers of this paper material. The wasps had made this paper by biting tiny fibers of dead wood from old rails and trees and buildings, and working this in their mouths until it had become this gray paper. Some of these nests are very wonderful. This one that Farmer Brown's Boy had found was a particularly nice one.

"That is one of the biggest and best nests I have ever seen," said Farmer Brown's Boy, talking to Bowser the Hound and Flip. "There must have been a lot of hornets in it last summer. Yes, siree, there must have been a lot of them! But they are not there now. Most of them die when cold weather comes and those that do not die hide away in cracks and crevices and in buildings to spend the winter. Then when spring comes each one starts a new colony. That's what makes it safe to take one of these big, paper castles into the house. This one is a dandy and I'm going to take it home."

Farmer Brown's Boy got out his knife and opened it. Then he cut the branch to which this big, gray nest was fastened. And as he cut it something happened.

The next story: "Farmer Brown's Boy Puts the Nest Back."

GURLEYVILLE

Nicholas Cohbot, who has been working for some time in Pennsylvania, has returned home for the summer.

Several from here attended the funeral of Charles A. Chapman in Willimantic Tuesday. Mr. Chapman lived here a number of years and was highly respected.

Robert Walker, who has been in the Hartford hospital the past two weeks, returned home Wednesday.

Lawrence Geissler is ill with measles; several other children have been exposed to the malady.

BEAUREGARD WINS CLOSE DECISION OVER JOHNNY VACCA IN TORRID BOUT

Al Beauregard, Taftville's Fighting Ace, battered out for himself a legitimate claim to the New England bantamweight title when he won a close decision over Johnny Vacca, present bantamweight titleholder, in the ten round main bout at the Shyma club show last night at Parish hall.

The pugnacious Frenchman from Taftville fought the best fight of his career, covering prettily and boring in continually. The fighting was torrid from start to finish and both boys were pretty tired from the fast pace. Vacca proved one of the cleverest boys that has ever stepped into a Taftville ring and beside being clever is a boy with a lightning left hand that carries a mighty jolt. It was this left that was most effective against Beauregard.

Through his victory over Vacca, the local boy is laying claim to the New England bantamweight title. Beauregard bases his claim on the fact that he came in under the bantamweight limit while Vacca was a pound and a half over the class weight. Beauregard weighed 117 1-2 while Vacca was two pounds heavier. Whether the claim of the Taftville lad will stand as Vacca holds two decisions over Beauregard in previous bouts, is a matter to be debated. With Vacca holding two verdicts over Beauregard and by such close margins another bout would be a big drawing card anywhere in New England. These two boys give a crowd their money's worth—and how.

Vacca started off like a flash, jabbing and hooking his left hand to Beauregard's head and body but Beauregard was well covered and fought back stubbornly. The first second and third rounds were about even with neither boy doing a great deal of damage. Both were wild at times. The fourth round went to Vacca as he worked his left to Beauregard's face and the Taftville boy started to bleed slightly from the nose and mouth from a number of clean short hooks.

The fifth was fairly even with the Boston boy standing toe to toe with Beauregard and slugging. Vacca shot ahead again in the sixth round when he slowed the Taftville boy with his dangerous left. It was this left that Beauregard was on the watch for and he fought his fight with his chin protected most of the time. In the seventh round Beauregard showed a brilliant flash and took the round by margin enough to even the count. He pummeled Vacca hard about the body and sent him back onto the ropes with a sweeping right that caught the Boston boy flush on the jaw. It was the most damaging blow of the bout. Beauregard opened an old cut over Vacca's eye in this round.

In the eighth, Beauregard had the edge but the ninth was even, both boys having but little power left. They were tired and they had a right to be for they had fought at topnotch speed for eight gruelling rounds. Beauregard flashed a brilliant rally in the tenth round to carry the verdict away. The decision was so close that only a point or two separated them at the end. The referee's count was Beauregard, 47; Vacca, 44. Beauregard was the most aggressive and was one game kid, taking plenty of punishment with a smile. Vacca also was pretty well bruised, especially about the body.

Kop Wins On Technical Kayo

Johnny Kop, of Norwich, came into his own last night when he stopped Billy Prince, of Waterbury, in the fifth round of the semi-final bout. Kop started fast but slowed in the second round as Prince was beating him to the punch. The local boy came out for the third, fighting hard and carried the round by a small margin and in the fourth he pounded Prince hard, his blows jolting the colored boy several times. Toward the close of this round Kop slipped over a hard left to the jaw and the Waterbury boy started to weaken. Continuing his pummeling in the fifth Kop dropped Prince for a count of five, and as he came up slapped him again and the colored boy went down again. It was here that Referee McAuliffe waved Prince to his corner. Kop looked good and fought a hard and aggressive fight.

Peloquin Takes Decision

Rene Peloquin, of Danielson, won a decision over Pat James of Providence, in six rounds of clever boxing. James was a clever boxer and had the reach on Peloquin. The bout started with James clearly outpointing Peloquin in this round. The second and third rounds were rather slow but the fourth saw some torrid action with Peloquin doing the leading. The fifth and sixth were repetitions of the fourth with the decision going to Peloquin by a good margin. The fighting of Peloquin was marred by his unsportsmanlike conduct on several occasions. In the fifth, in a clinch, Peloquin hurled James to the floor and in the sixth tried to butt him. Peloquin is usually popular with the fans but there were plenty of boos heard when he overstepped the bounds of clean fighting.

Wells Kayoed

Bobby Wells of Montville, came out of the unknown with a new pair of boxing shoes and he went back to pugilistic and physical oblivion in 1 minute and ten seconds of fighting. Harry Ryder, colored boy from Waterbury, kayoed the Montville lad before the bout had hardly got started. Wells was green and awkward and about all he had that belongs to the ring was his pair of boxing shoes and two gloves which he did not use. Ryder caught the Montville lad on the point of the jaw and he went out like a candle in a gale.

Guoin Scores Another Knockout

Young Guoin of Taftville, scored the second knockout of his pugilistic career when he flattened the Walloping Wop of New York, in the second round of the opener. Fierce and furious fighting marked the opening round with the Taftville lad taking plenty of punishment but coming in for more. The Walloper won the first round by a large margin and the fans began to have their doubts about Guoin lasting through the bout. However, Guoin came out of his corner like a flash at the opening of the second round. He tore into The Walloping lad and forced him to the ropes where he shot rights and left to the jaw, the New York lad wilting under the terrific bombardment.

The card was another one of those good cards that are seen at the Shyma club and a crowd of nearly a 1,000 saw the show. The next card will be run off on March 23th.

GRIFFITHS BEATS FRIEDMAN IN SLUGGING TEN-ROUNDER

BOSTON, March 7.—(AP)—Gerald Ambrose "Tuffy" Griffiths of Chicago barely escaped being knocked out here tonight while he was outpointing gritty Al Friedman, Boston heavyweight, in the Boston Garden ten-round feature bout, a sizzling, slugging set-to. In the seventh Friedman's hard lefts to the body had Tuffy in great distress but the bell sounded before the Boston boy could put over a finishing blow. Griffiths weighed 184 1-2 and Friedman 182.

Buddy Howard of New Haven, who was disqualified for professionalism after winning the National Amateur heavyweight championship, pounded out a six-round decision over Frankie Woods of Taunton, formerly of Norwich, Conn., in a preliminary bout.

EVERY PLAYER SCORE 11 POINTS AS INTERNATS WIN

Last night at Baltic, the "Internationals" beat the Maroons by the score of 55 to 45. Every man on the "Internationals" scored eleven points. The "Internationals" displayed a superb brand of passwork and shooting.

The "International" have played some of the leading teams of eastern Connecticut, winning from Montville Aces, Shyma, Jrs., twice; Maroons, Fishers Island Whirlwinds and New London All Stars. The "Internationals" would like to arrange games with the "Y Emps" for the city intermediate championship. They would also like to hear from the Colchester Shamrocks.

GAMMAS MEET FAST PERICLES FIVE TONIGHT

The Gamma club, champions of the Northern New London County church league, will stack up against some stiff opposition tonight at the Y gym when they play the strong Sons of Pericles of New Haven. The visitors are composed of several high school stars of former years, and other players of experience, and reputation. They are bringing several auto loads of supporters to cheer them to victory.

The local team will have its full strength on the floor and are confident of sending the visitors home with the small end of the score on their side. Nick Economous, captain of the Gamma club, is one of the outstanding basketball players in the church league. It is through his fine offensive work that his team is leading the league at the present time. Ernie Stevens will be in the back court, and will help to hold the visitors to a low score. Stevens was a star last year on the N. F. A. basketball team.

Manager Bill Stavrou has received word from New London that about 50 members of the Ahepa society of that city will be on hand to watch the game. The local society will turn out in full force, and all in all a big crowd is expected.

HARVARD, YALE IN SECOND HOCKEY COMBAT TONIGHT

BOSTON, March 7.—(AP)—Harvard and Yale will play the second game of their hockey series in the Boston Garden tomorrow night before one of the largest crowds ever to attend a college game. A packed house of more than 16,000 is already assured.

Yale, though defeated last week at New Haven, will start the ice conflict as a slight favorite due to the large ice surface at the Garden. In the first game the Crimson players were able to check the Elis very closely on the Yale rink.

Most of Harvard's chances for victory depend on the quality of goal tending turned in by Hardy Ellis in the Crimson net. Coach Joe Stubbs has announced that he would start Bobby Giddens, Barry Wood and Eliot Putnam in his forward line and play Batchelder and Cunningham on defense.

The starting Yale forwards will probably be Frank Luce, Ding Palmer and Dunbar Bostwick with Wilson and Hickok on defense and Curtis in the Blue net.

GODFREY-CARNERA BOUT SEEN FOR PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, March 7—(AP)—In the expectation, he said, that he would be able to complete negotiations for a 10-round fight between Primo Carnera, Italian giant, and George Godfrey, Negro heavyweight of Leiperville, Pa., Peter Tyrell, matchmaker at the Arena, announced tonight that he had leased the Municipal Stadium for the coming open-air season of boxing.

Tyrell said he had offered Carnera's managers a guarantee of $100,000 for the bout provided Primo met with no serious reverses between now and the fight early in June. Should he succeed in bringing Carnera and Godfrey together, Tyrell said he would start negotiations for a bout between the winner and Jack Sharkey.

Frank Weiner, chairman of the state athletic commission, said he had approved the proposed Carnera-Godfred match and that if the winner met Sharkey it would be recognized by the Pennsylvania commission as a world's championship bout.

More than 125,000 persons can be accommodated at the Municipal Stadium.

DAVE DUNN OF NEW BRITAIN NAMED VERMONT GRID COACH

BURLINGTON, Vt., March 7.—(AP)—The appointment of David . Dunn, of New Britain, Conn., as head football coach at the University of Vermont, as successor to Captain W. F. Rattan, grid mentor for the past two years, was announced at the college today.

Dunn played four years of college football, two years each at Fordham and Yale. At the former institution he was captain and fullback. At Yale, he played in the line as well as the backfield post. He devoted eight years to coaching football and trained the New Britain high team in 1929, when it captured the state championship undefeated. He also coached a professional New Britain team for several years.

WESLEYAN TIES WILLIAMS FOR "LITTLE THREE" TITLE

MIDDLETOWN, March 7.—(AP)—Wesleyan tied Williams for the "little three" basketball title tonight by a decisive 37 to 23 victory over the Williams team. Both teams have beaten Amherst twice, while Williams held one victory over the Purple.

Wesleyan took the lead in the middle of the first period and led 20 to 10 at half time. Captain Millspaugh, playing his last game for Wesleyan, shared the scoring honors with Howard and Johnstone, two teammates. The trio made 33 of Wesleyan's 37 points.

IF SHAWKEY CAN DEVELOP A FEW YOUNG HURLERS, YANKS MAY BE FORMIDABLE

By BRIAN BELL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Bob Shawkey, still glorifying as a manager the red shirt he made famous as a pitcher, finds himself surrounded in his Yankee training camp by pitchers as big as or bigger than he is. He is now trying to find if they can pitch as well as he could.

When Bob, the gob, came to St. Petersburg to assume command of the preparatory period, he had three major problems, selection of a third baseman and a left fielder and working out a winning combination of pitchers.

Has Solved Two Problems

He solved two thirds of his tasks, for the time being at least, when he called 21-year-old Ben Chapman, waved a red sleeved arm toward third base and said, "Play it."

The procedure was repeated with 23-year-old Allan Cooke at left field. The only instruction given the youngsters was an order to Chapman to throw overhand.

Appropriately enough Shawkey then turned his attention to the pitchers.

"Yes, they are big enough," he agreed, when it was noted that 18 of the 19 pitchers in camp are six feet, or over, in height.

"Size, of course, isn't everything," added Shawkey, "but it helps. All of these boys can pitch. How well, we will know later. But some of them certainly should help us."

The Yankee pitching staff has not altogether followed the example of the deacon's one horse shay and collapsed all at once but three or four capable recruits can be used to advantage to bolster the veterans. There is no doubt in the mind of any one who has seen even a part of a Yankee practice that the runners up in the last league race can hit.

Yanks Are Hitters Alright

Led by irrepressible Babe Ruth the Yanks can hit, right down the batting order from first place to eighth. If a pitching staff can be assembled to hold the opposition in reasonable limits, Shawkey may have a very pleasant summer in his first year as a manager. Chapman, and Cooke, the recruits from St. Paul who seem about to crash the big league barriers, are big boys who fit right into the Yankee scheme of things, both in size and batting.

The Koenig-Lazzeri combination has been restored to the infield with Mark at short and Tony at second.

Big Lou Gehrig is alone in the assignment for first base duty.

Lyn Lary and Jimmy Reese, who played together in the Pacific Coast league, and were separated when Lary came to the Yanks last year and Reese was left behind, will be available for emergency duty at any infield position, except first base.

Sam Burd, Cedric Durst, who can also play first, and Ken Williams, the veteran slugger, form the outfield reserves backing up Ruth, Combs and Cooke.

Catching Staff Strong

The addition of the experienced Bubbles Hargrave has strengthened the catching department and the hard-hitting Bill Dickey will get some relief from the former Cincinnati star, who also can hit hard and often. Benny Bengough, Arnot Jorgens and William John Karlon complete the catchers but Karlon may be an outfielder before the camp is closed.

Trying to guess right on the pitchers will cause Manager Shawkey to earn his salary.

He has Tom Zachary, Waite Hoyt, George Pipgras, Fred Heimach, Ed Wells, Roy Sherid and Herb Pennock who did a lot of pitching last season. Henry Johnson, Floyd Van Pelt, Lee Craig and Gordon Rhodes pitched more or less but fell victims to sickness, bad arms and injuries. All are back, hoping for better luck.

Two college pitchers, Bob Walsh, Notre Dame, and Fred Asbeck, Michigan, are bright prospects who need experience but the rest of the new men know their way about on a pitcher's mound. Vernon Gomez, the left hander from San Francisco, has been sick but, sick or well, he has a dazzling fast ball. Ivy Andrews, who was a great prospect last year and looks better now; Americus Polli, who won 22 games for St. Paul; Bill Henderson, who was a better pitcher than his International league record indicated; Louis McEvoy, another 22-game winner in a league, the Pacific Coast, and Foster Edwards, former Brave, will be given every opportunity to make places for themselves on the staff.

The openings may be there for some of the pitchers who were good last year may not be able to pick up where they left off.

Herb Pennock, who had trouble with his great left arm, will himself write the verdict in his case.

LORD ABERDARE WINS NATIONAL TENNIS TITLE

NEW YORK, March 7.—(AP)—Lord Aberdare, Scottish nobleman, won the national court tennis championship today by defeating Francis P. Frazier of Boston, in a thrilling final match

Lord Aberdare won by scores of 6-3, 6-1, 7-5, before a capacity gallery of 600 at the Racquet and Tennis club after turning back a great bid by the young American in the third set.

Frazier, who was runner-up for the title last year in Boston and in the semi-finals yesterday eliminated the defending champion, Hewitt Morgan of New York, made a fine fight of it but the Briton knew too much for him.

Particularly in the final set Lord Aberdare's tournament experience and coolness under fire told heavily in his favor as the former University of Pennsylvania track athlete forged into a lead of 3-1 and then 5-4, only to be overhauled before he could carry the issue to extra sets.

Through Lord Aberdare's victory the title will take its first trip abroad since before the days of Jay Gould. Court tennis is Lord Aberdare's best game although he and a compatriot were successful in capturing the national squash racquets doubles title and also did well in the racquets championships.

NEXT MARRIED-SINGLE MEN'S GAME THURSDAY

The second game of the Married and Single Men's basketball series at the Y will be played next Thursday evening. The first tilt last Monday resulted in a clean-cut decision for the Benedicts but their opponents are determined to have things all evened again by the final whistle in the coming game and have scoured eastern Connecticut for the best talent available. Dame Rumor persists that the Sub Base and Coast Guard teams have been invaded for purposes of strengthening for the coming tilt.

The Y Seniors are all primed to stop Wilcox, the Middletown scoring ace, when they play the Middletown Y at Middletown tonight in a state league game. It will be remembered that this player, almost single-handedly defeated the Demarest-men in the game here in January and started them on the downward path.

The Sub Base five clinched the title in the New London City league this week and thereby surely became New London's strongest representative in an inter-city duel with Norwich. The sailors will meet the local Y Seniors in a couple of weeks in the deciding game of a three-game series.

Local fans will have the Gammas-New Haven Pericles game tonight at the Y.

FAST SOCCER GAME SLATED FOR SUNDAY

The fast traveling New London Rangers will furnish the opposition against the league leading J. B. Martin's on Sunday afternoon at the local field. As only one point separates these two teams there is sure to be a fast and interesting game, the Rangers are coming to Taftville with the intentions of setting back the Velvetmen. They are bringing along a well balanced team which will include such soccer stars as Thornhill and Scheaffer, who need no introduction to the fans of this vicinity. The J. B.'s will field the same team that delighted the crowd last Sunday when they turned what looked like a certain defeat into a sensational win by a remarkable second half recovery against Plainfield. The line-up will be as follows:

F. Orcutt, F. Hargreaves, E. Eccleston, E. Erikson, F. Thompson. (Capt.) H. Seidel, J. Houston, H. Decelles, I. Archibald, A. Headon, B. Labenski; subs, I. Alexander, C. Tarbutton, H. Troeger. The kickoff will be at 2:30 p. m., and a large crowd is expected to turn out.

PLAINFIELD PROS TO MEET SENECA INDIANS WEDNESDAY

The Seneca Indians will play a return engagement at the Plainfield Community house next Wednesday evening, meeting the Plainfield Pros which team defeated them by one point a few weeks ago. This is expected to be one of the hardest-fought tilts of the year as both have, since that time, been going at a great clip. In the preliminary the Plainfield Buddies meet the Taftville Shymas.

Bob Walsh Gives Weird Exhibition

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Some wild and woolly pitching by Bob Walsh, son of Ed Walsh, enabled the New York Yankee Yannigans to hand the regulars a trouncing in a practice game halted by high winds after three innings today.

In the first inning, Walsh walked four men, hit two, made two wild pitches and was touched for four hits, so many runs crossing the plate that the experts lost count of them. Bill Henderson pitched the next two innings and a homer by Jimmy Reese was the only damaging blow off him. Foster Edwards and Fred Asbeck limited the regulars to five hits.

Hall Wins Title

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N. J., today won the Florida men's tennis singles title by defeating R. Norris Williams, 2nd, of New York, former captain of the American Davis cup team, 6-4, 8-6, 6-4.

Pool Challenge

The Jewett City "Jolly Five" pocket billiard team is without a game for Monday and would like to play either the 5-man or 3-man teams of Moosup, Plainfield or Wauregan. Answer through Monday's Bulletin.

YESTERDAY IN THE TRAINING CAMPS

Robins.

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Balked in his plans for a double workout today by the weather, Wilbert Robinson spent a rainy afternoon telling the newspaper correspondents just what he thought about Babe Herman's demand for $25,000 a year. The Robins had a routine drill this morning, but the rain put a definite halt on all activities this afternoon.

As for Herman, Robinson had this to say:

"Herman has received his top offer. The $15,000 contract we offered him is an increase of $4,500 over last year and it is $3,000 more than Harvey Hendrick signed for. I like to see the Babe get as much as he can, provided he stays within reasonable bounds. He is getting bad advice now."

Browns.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Pitcher Sam Gray and a hard wind reached the St. Louis Browns' training camp here today. Gray had his first workout while the wind shortened the practice grind for the other Browns. Gray's arrival reduced the absentee list to five.

Cards.

BRADENTON, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Herman Bell will be Manager Gabby Street's mound selection when the Cardinals meet the Athletics in the first of a four game series beginning at Miami tomorrow afternoon. Street made this announcement after today's workout.

It is Street's intention to use three pitchers in the exhibition games. Others likely to see early service are Fred Frankhouse, Jim Lindsey, Al Grabowski and Mace Brown.

Cubs.

AVALON, CATADINA ISLAND, Calif., March 7.—(AP)—Members of the entire squad of the Chicago Cubs, in pre-season training here, snapped through a stiff session of batting practice today preparatory to meeting the Los Angeles team of the Coast league tomorrow. With the young hurlers rounding into shape, Manager Joe McCarthy is devoting considerable time to priming the others into "base hit consciousness."

A bob-tailed game between the Regulars and the Yannigans occupied the late session today.

White Sox.

SAN ANTONIO, March 7.—(AP)—The White Sox hold-out fold, numbering several of their regulars, was decreased by one today with receipt of word that Willie Kamm, third baseman, was leaving the coast for the spring training camp here. Kamm made no mention of salary differences in his telegraphed announcement, but indicated he was ready to pull on the spikes as soon as possible.

Meanwhile, Manager Donie Bush was scrambling his outfield during the practice sessions today experimenting with various combinations.

Athletics.

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Due to a fresh breeze that blew across the ballyard of the Philadelphia Athletics did not get into their brother-against-brother game today. "We will just limber up today," Manager Mack said. "You boys get too excited in these little games, and if you would try to throw the ball around against this wind you might get a sore arm that would stick all year."

Both Mack and Coach Gleason were in high spirits today when they observed the speed and accuracy with which Shortstop Boley shot the ball over to first. Boley, himself, said his arm was better right now than any time last year. Usually he has a sore wing during the early season, but thus far he has not been bothered with it.

Senators.

BILOXI, Miss., March 7.—(AP)—Buddy Myer, who is being counted on strongly for the second base job on the Nationals' roster by Manager Walter Johnson, breezed into camp from Hos Springs today.

Buddy said he felt in better shape than at any time since he came up to the American league in 1926. This was bright news for Johnson as he spent much time last season converting Myer from a third sacker into a keystone guardian.

The Biloxi chamber of commerce put on a banquet for the Capital City ball club tonight.

Pirates.

PASO ROBLES, Calif., March 7.—(AP)—In anticipation of tomorrow's inauguration of practice games, the Pittsburgh Pirates went through two peppery workouts today with the pitchers polishing up on their curves.

Leon Chagnon and Al Bool will form the starting battery for the regulars and Southpaw Erickson and O'Connell for the yannigans tomorrow.

Reds.

ORLANDO, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Repeating yesterday's performances Harry Heilman, Bob Meusel and Tony Cuccinello again sent a barrage of home run drives over the outfield fence today during the Cincinnati Reds' spring training batting practice.

Manager Dan Howley is not nearly as much concerned with his batting attack as he is in getting the pitchers into condition. He put all the moundsmen through an hour's drill today running from the pitcher's box to first base to make putouts on infield drives.

Giants.

SAN ANTONIO, March 7.—(AP)—Routine drill occupied the attention of the New York Giants today as John McGraw awaited two week-end jousts with the Chicago White Sox. McGraw announced that his regular pitchers would work against the Sox at Houston. Walker, Hubbell, Fitzsimmons, Scott, Genewich and Lucas were tentatively chosen to work in the two games. scheduled by the Giants today, seven Eight more exhibition games were with the White Sox. All told the Giants and White Sox will meet 24 times.

Braves Vs. Yanks Today

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—The Boston Braves rookies will be given their first test here tomorrow, when Bill McKechnie sends them against the New York Yankees in the first of the pre-season games. The Braves new boss said today that he intended to start Tracy Hart, a husky young twirler from New Hampshire.

Red Sox

PENSACOLA, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—If first appearances count for anything, the lowly Boston Red Sox have picked up some worthwhile all around ball players in Tom Oliver, Bill Sweeney, Otis Miller and Ernest Holman, the heavy hitting third base candidate from Amarillo, Tex.

Manager Heinie Wagner has been watching these youngsters perform since he introduced his two squad system and he is convinced that one or more of this impressive quartet would have been overlooked under the old plan, under which only regulars or outstanding candidates for regular berths would get a chance to show their stuff.

Indians

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 7.—(AP)—Wes Ferrell, ex-holdout pitcher, arrived at the Cleveland Indians' training camp today, and in five minutes of practice showed as good a pitching arm as any twirler in camp.

He said he had been practicing during the winter on the Ferrell farm in Guilford, N. C.

Wes and Manager Roger Peckinpaugh held a long conversation this morning from which they both emerged smiling. Peckinpaugh made it plain that he was certain the difference of opinion between Ferrell and the club regarding the youngster's worth would not affect his pitching.

A line-up of 15 hurlers gave the manager the best opportunity he has yet had to size them up. He passed favorable comment especially upon Mel Harder and Pete Jablonowski.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

A smashing picture of military life, "His First Command," starring William Boyd and Dorothy Sebastian, opens at the Palace theatre today. Rarely has a picture with so much color and dramatic force been filmed and seldom has a Norwich audience been presented with such an opportunity to witness magnificent action and panorama.

In the story, Terry Culver, scapegrace son of a millionaire manufacturer, is sent by his father to take charge of a branch office in Kansas. The father is also eager to get the boy away from the bright lights of Broadway, also the bright women of the same place. Homer, a Negro chauffeur, is sent along to help keep Terry straight and to see that he keeps away from the women, but the young man boasts manfully that he has learned his lesson and doesn't need any more warnings about the wiles of wild women.

So he goes west. Well, one can guess that a change of locality isn't sufficient to change a young man's character. Terry soon meets the daughter of a cavalry officer at Fort Riley, and despite all his previous good intentions about giving the women a wide path, he is soon involved in a swift, dramatic plot that races to an astonishing climax.

For the first time in the motion pictures, color and sound have been combined successfully with the filming of outdoor scenes. One of the outstanding highlights of "His First Command" is a brigade review shot in color and sound. One witnesses the martial tramp and gallop of two full regiments of cavalry and two mounted bands. It is an inspiring sight for those who love prancing horses, dashing cavalrymen, stirring music, a thrilling spectacle altogether. Another great thrill in the film, aside from its spectacular plot, is a daring military steeplechase, one of the most sensational things of its kind ever photographed. Thirty cavalry officers, the pick of the Second and Thirteenth regiments, took part in these scenes, and the course takes the riders over dangerous canyon territory and a rugged countryside. As the climax of the steeplechase, Boyd rescues a woman from beneath the hoofs of madly galloping horses as they fly across a hazardous water jump. This is but a brief sketch of the hundreds of thrills contained in the film. A gala bill of short features, two vitaphone acts, Disney cartoon, Harry Langdon in the Big Kick, Jungle Drums and other interesting short subjects. Just another worth while bill for the Palace patrons.

Breed Theatre

That sparkling star of "Kiki," "Tiger Rose," "Lulu Belle" and other stage hits, Lenore Ulric, may be seen and heard at the Breed theatre commencing tomorrow night in "South Sea Rose," her second starring Fox Movietone production.

Adapted from the stage play "La Gringa" and directed by Allan Dwan, "South Sea Rose" reveals Miss Ulric in the role of a madcap maiden of the tropics plying her mischief on a crew of seamen and bringing terror upon the smug villagers. Her reckless romancing, her shocking daring and her unrestrained passions give the comedy drama an abundance of stirring action.

Charles Bickford, who scored notably in his talking picture debut in "Dynamite" enacts the chief male role, and the list of important players in support includes Kenneth MacKenna, Tom Patricola, Farrell Macdonald, Elizabeth Patterson, Daphne Pollard, Roscoe Ates, Ilka Chase, Ben Hall, George MacFarlane and Charlotte Walker.

In addition to her dramatic efforts in "South Sea Rose," Miss Ulric also sings and dances.

WESTERLY

APPEAL TAKEN FROM FINE IN DEER KILLING CASE

WESTERLY, R. I., Mar. 7—The greater part of the lengthy session of third district court Friday, Judge Oliver H. Williams on the bench, was taken up with the trial of the case, Joseph H. Potter, Rhode Island deputy bird commissioner and chief of police of West Greenwich, R. I., vs. Harold Bliven of Charlestown, R. I., charged Jan. 26, 1930, with having in his possession a deer contrary to Rhode Island statutes. Through Attorney M. Walter Flynn the accused entered a plea of not guilty. Thomas G. Daniels of Plainfield, Conn., a Connecticut fish and game warden, testified that he went to Chief of Police Potter of West Greenwich, R. I., and together they went to the Rhode Island state police barracks at Hope Valley where Trooper Holliday was first interviewed in the thought that the place they sought to find illegal deer was in the town of Hopkinton. It was later discovered to be in the town of Westerly and all went to the place of Earl Colburn, near the Westerly-Charlestown town line. The report the officers had was that four deer hides had been sold to a Connecticut man named Hyde and the man they sought for the sale was Harold Bliven. His mother, Mrs. Charles Brown, resided in North Stonington and on the Brown farm the deer were reported as being killed and some of the meat brought into Rhode Island.

Going to the Bliven home, Mrs. Harold Main Bliven, (whose father, Lafayette Main, was a Westerly court attendant and carefully checked up on the testimony given), directed the three men to the Colburn home where her husband was, her two children being alone with her at this time, about 8 or 9 p. m. The three law officers then returned with Bliven to his own home. Warden Daniels testified that after a talk he induced Bliven to produce from a pantry two pieces of deer carcass, it being understood that the law violation claimed should be prosecuted in Rhode Island. He stated that Bliven had no license to hunt in Connecticut as it had been suspended for a law violation. He said they were back in Westerly about twenty minutes of twelve that night. The deer meat had been turned over to Chief Potter and was available for presentation in court having been kept in cold storage and released under orders from the attorney general's department. The carcasses were not brought into court. Prosecutor Ferguson claimed illegal transportation from one state to another as he claimed the deed had been illegally obtained, that under the Conn. laws the deer killings had not been reported within 12 hours.

At the close of this state's testimony Mr. Flynn again attempted to have the complaint dismissed and this was denied. For the defense, Mrs. Harold Bliven testified that W— Daniels had said the case could be taken to courts in New Haven or Hartford for trial and claimed the attitude of the officers was that of trying to frighten her husband by reason of which he had produced the deer meat.

Earl Colburn testified that the officers had come into the home as if they owned it. Bliven testified in his own defense, and several times Judge Williams spoke of and the poor impression made upon him by the nature and character of his testimony as brought out in his general denials.

It was 1 p. m. when the arguments were made and Judge Williams declared that from much of what he had heard he was inclined to impose the maximum penalty of $500. However he imposed a fine of $50 and costs. Notice of an appeal was given and Mrs. Harold Bliven became surety in the sum of $100 for her husband.

In this session of the court three automobile drivers were fined $15 each and costs by Judge Williams on charges of operating cars not equipped with proper brakes. They were Stanley Barszcz, Arthur C. Brown and Edwin C. Barber, all of Hopkinton. Each of the defendants pleaded guilty to the complaint brought by Trooper John F. Kennedy.

SEEKS FINGERPRINTS AT WATCH HILL COTTAGE

Friday afternoon Inspector Alpin of the Rhode Island Bureau of Criminal Indentification, successor to Inspector Caffrey, deceased, on his first assignment came to Westerly to confer with Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown. During the past few days the Westerly police have been trying to discover who broke the windows of the cottage of James Jolly at Watch Hill. The Providence finger print expert with Chief Brown went to the Jolly cottage to take any finger prints that might be found about the premises. Mr. Jolly reported about a week ago that 19 large panes of glass had been broken out of his cottage. Several good sized stones which were thrown through the windows were found about the floors in the cottage.

Several youths were detained at Westerly police headquarters Friday morning to be cautioned about removing junk, they having been reported as seen about the ruins of a Watch Hill cottage burned several years ago near the Misquamicut Golf club grounds and which ruins have not been removed.

Thursday evening Robert Brucker auxiliary, No. 6, American United Spanish War Veterans, held a whist at the home of Mrs. Corey on Courtland street. The prizes were won by Mrs. Bessie Wall, Mrs. Josephine Whitlock, Mrs. Oscar Bates, Thomas Brown, Horace Taylor and Oscar Bates. Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served.

In the assembly hall of Westerly high school Thursday evening the third annual Boy Scout camp-o-ree under auspices of the troops of the Quequatuck district, comprising scouts of Westerly, Ashaway and Bradford was held. The purpose of the gathering, as explained by District Commissioner Wilfred B. Utter, was to acquaint the parents and friends of the boys with the work that is being accomplished by the organization. The Earl S. Bavier troop efficiency contest cup was awarded troop 4, John Shibilia, scoutmaster. The members of the newly organized Admiral Dunn Sea Scout band, of 16 pieces under the leadership of Alfred Martin, made their first public appearance.

TAXPAYERS CROWD TOWN HALL AT ANNUAL MEETING

Before 7 o'clock Thursday evening parking place around the town hall in Poquonoc bridge where the annual town meeting was called was at a premium. The seating capacity of the auditorium in the hall was filled and at 8 o'clock all available space was occupied. First Selectman Clark B. Whaley called the meeting to order. Henry L. Bailey, town clerk, read the call. Protests were heard and continued in a manner quite unlike all previous town meetings. Due to the fact that the tax payers of the town are evidently dissatisfied with the present management of town affairs and the fact that Clark B. Whaley has been chairman at previous town meetings he started off with the business. Protests were uttered and Percy Morgan of Mystic was appointed chairman. He accepted and the meeting continued.

Four resolutions were presented and three passed were: Resolution No. 1; Inasmuch as there is according to our last financial statement a balance of $86,229 of uncollected taxes, therefore be it resolved that the tax collector be instructed to take immediate legal action if necessary to collect all back taxes collectable by law; and it is further resolved that the selectmen be directed and empowered to abate such taxes as are uncollectable by law. It is further resolved: that the rate of tax on the assessment just completed be fixed at 18 mills on the dollar. Resolution No. 2; The selectmen are hereby forbidden to issue any orders for the expenditures of any money or moneys for the town for which there is not a specific appropriation. They are further forbidden to draw any orders for any expenditures in excess of any appropriation voted by this town. Resolution No. 3; That it be the sense of this meeting that all members of the board of assessors of the town be requested to resign as said assessors to date from passing of this resolution and the selectmen are hereby directed to pay them no more funds for any further services. These three resolutions were carried and were presented by Percy Morgan. Resolution No. 4; Was proposed by Capt. Fred Buddington of the village that the tax for the levy of 1929 be payable in two installments, one-half of the amount May 1st and the balance August 1. This resolution was tabled. Then the meeting was adjourned. It was attended by between 500 and 600 people of the town of Groton.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Decorative Stone Company, New Haven

The Decorative Stone company located at New Haven, makes "Dextone," a manufactured building stone. Over a period of 25 years it has grown from an infant business to a substantial producer of an extensively used building product. The company's growth parallels the increased uses of Portland cement of which "Dextone" is in part made. It is always made to special order from architect's designs and is used for all cut stone purposes.

The plant occupies 50,000 square feet of floor space, the greater portion of which is on the ground floor. It is fully equipped with modern production and handling machinery.

The office building is a unique piece of modern architectural design which was selected to convey an immediate impression of the character of the business which it houses. The carved frieze, which replaces the conventional cornice, depicts the major eras of architecture beginning with the primitive and extending through the Egyptian, Classic, and Gothic to the present day steel and stone age. Over 7 separate human figures and animals are represented. The doorway is purely modern. The building is constantly used as a demonstration of the various applications of "Dextone," and has proved to be an exceptionally convincing argument in favor of its use.

The business has been under the active management of Louis A. Falco, its president, since its beginning.

The present officers are: L. A. Falco, president and treasurer; M. A. Falco, first vice president and assistant treasurer; J. R. Mackay, second vice president.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
The Empty Barrel

Barrels full, and barrels empty,
On the wharves we used to know,
And we youngsters played among them
In the days of long ago.
Oft we'd holler down a bung-hole,
And we learned when we were boys,
That it was the empty barrel
Always made the loudest noise.

Oft we'd whang an empty hogshead,
As a drummer beats his drum,
And at that stirring call to frolic
Other boys would often come;
And we often raised a racket,
Just like any normal boys,
And we noticed empty barrels
Always made the loudest noise.

We have studied human nature
Fifty years or more, since then,
And it seems that much like barrels
Are those beings we call men.
The barrel that has nothing in it,
Many sounds discordant spreads,
And we somehow can't help thinking
It's the same with empty heads.

MEMORIAL HYMN.

It singeth low in every heart,
We hear it each and all,
A song of those who answer not,
However we may call.
They throng the silence of the breast;
We see them as of yore—
The kind, the true, the brave, the sweet,
Who walk with us no more.

'Tis hard to take the burden up,
When these have laid it down.
They brightened all the joy of life,
They softened every frown;
But, oh, 'tis good to think of them
When we are troubled sore;
Thanks be to God that such have been
Although they are no more.

More homelike seems the vast unknown,
Since they have entered there,
To follow them were not so hard
Wherever they may fare.
They cannot be where God is not,
On any sea or shore;
Whate'er betides thy love abides,
Our God forever more.

THE SIGN OF PISCES

To the Social Corner: Many thanks to Pisces for her answer to my last letter. I hope I will not shock you when I tell you that I am not a member of church or lodge. What did the "middle-aged" sisters think of By Jingo's letter of May first? I hope to see many answers to that one. I am not answering it as I know I should say too much.

Character reading, Feb. 19th to March 21st. Pisces, The Fishes: People born in this sign are usually kind and impulsive. Honest themselves, they expect honesty in others. Will defend their friends whether right or wrong. Have high ideals and their love is great and sure. Very fond of the beautiful in art and nature. Many of this sign become artists, art critics, poets and writers. They have a great desire to help others and are inclined to be timid and modest. Easily influenced to tears. Have deep religious natures, apt to cling closely to a creed, or dogma. They make excellent cashiers, accountants and bookkeepers. In appearance the typical Pisces person is usually pleasing with free face, placid eyes, inclined to be round shouldered. Fretting, worrying, anxiety and impatience are their faults. Constantly expecting accidents, inclined to melancholy. The diseases which these people have are pains in the head, feet and back and weak digestive organs.

Charles W. Elliot wrote: The new religion will not think of God as a large and glorified man, or a king, or a patriarch. It will not deal chiefly with sorrow and death, but with joy and life. It will believe in no malignant powers.

George Washington wrote: Be courteous to all, and let those few be well tried before you give them your confidence. True friendship is a plant of slow growth and must undergo and withstand the shocks of adversity before it is entitled to the appellation.

Both of these men were born in the sign of Pisces between February nineteen to March twenty-first.

JOINS THE CORNER

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Having attended one meeting of Club No. 2, I would like to join the Social Corner. Will take for my penname CHIPPY.

TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF THE SOCIAL CORNER

Once again the Social Corner has to record the passing of another milestone. Twenty years have gone since the introduction of this feature in The Bulletin. During that time there have been many changes. The Corner has grown. Interest in it has spread to all parts of the country as evidenced by the members from Maine to Washington and from New Hampshire to Florida, and in no unmistakable way is the enthusiasm displayed through the six clubs in the eastern end of Connecticut and the weekly letters, which are followed and appreciated by readers as well as members.

During the 20 years, the Corner has discovered many ardent and helpful writers and workers. To them must be attributed in a large degree its success. Their efforts and zeal have been sincere, painstaking and lasting. Highly important leadership has been displayed. Through the exchange of ideas, through the telling of experiences and other incidents much help and pleasure have been given others. There has been that open and happy exchange of views that has been generally profitable. There has been a development of friendships that have been lasting, and good cheer in abundance.

It is inevitable that in such a period there should have been sustained many losses by death. Their work was ever an inspiration to others with the result that what they so well began others have been eager to continue.

There are those who can make the enviable claim of being original members. Needless to say they have been invaluable supporters and keenly concerned in The Corner's welfare. The Bulletin has been glad to make possible this mutual effort and to see it grow, and it is to be sincerely hoped that there will be the same or greater eagerness on the part of all members in the future that there has been in the past to furnish the cooperation that is necessary for continued success.—Social Corner Editor.

SPRING IS ON THE WAY.

Dear Social Corner Friends: Old March is here, and we all know what to expect in the way of blustery sharp winds. We have had a wonderfully nice winter in spite of a few snappy days. But spring is on the way. I saw some daffodils peeping through yesterday.

Stebelia asks who knows how to make cheese. I have two rules for making cheese which I will send in. One is made from buttermilk, the other from whole milk. Both are excellent.

For buttermilk cheese use buttermilk that has been just churned and that has a mild-acid taste, not too sour. Put the milk in a granite kettle r pano and set it on the stove where it in hot. Be careful not to let it boil. When the curd rises and looks firm, drain it by placing a cloth in a colander, gather up the edges, tie and hang up to drain. The best grade of cheese cloth makes the best draining cloth and is easier kept clean than a bag. When the curd is dry, put it in a bowl and work it fine with fork. Add salt to taste and cream. Beat again with the fork and it will be creamy and delicious.

Whole milk cheese is equally fine and the method of making follows: Take two gallons of whole milk, strain and set in a warm place where it will become clabbered as soon as possible. Then place on the stove to separate, keeping it very hot. Cut the curd frequently to separate the whey. Cook for 30 minutes when the curd will be found to be very tough. Place the curd to drain over night in a warm place. There should be a quart of curd and it should be dry. Place the curd in a pan and mix with it 1-3 cup of sweet butter, 1 1-2 teaspoons of soda. After mixing thoroughly wth the hands let it stand for two hours. At the end of this time it should have become an almost transparent mass. Put in a double boiler over a slow heat. When it begins to heat add 2-3 of a quart of sour cream, add two tablespoons of salt and one teaspoon of butter coloring, stirring all the while. You may omit the coloring if you like. It may become a stringy mass but will soon get to looking like melted cheese. Pour it in a well greased mold and set away to cool. Eaten fresh this cheese is delicious and it can also be cured by rolling the cheese in melted paraffin and storing in a cool place.

Black Eyed Susie: Sorry I wasn't there to meet you. Come again.

It's time to feed my chickens. Have a flock of 100 pullets hatched last October. Sold the broilers some time ago. Had fine luck raising them. Best wishes from WILTWYCK. rmedyh

THE BEAUTIFUL FLOWERS

Here I am, Social Corner Members: After standing outside your door for about six years, longing all the while to come into your cozy warm House, I have at last gotten up enough courage to knock timidly. Whether you will deign to open the door and let me in or not, I do not know.

E. L. M.'s note about the pussies in the house interested me for I have often had them open and covered with pollen in the house weeks before they have begun to grow outside. Just now I have some forsythia or golden bell twigs in my window and in a very few days their brilliant yellow blooms will be smiling at the people going past outside. I tried some lilacs once but they were not as satisfactory. I did get a few little pale blooms but one would never think they could come from the same shrub that bears such large fragrant sprays of blossoms in May.

You have guessed it—I am very much interested in flowers. I presume that most of you are too. In all my long life I have known but one woman who was not and I think that her "dislike" was mostly a pose. You'll let me chatter all I please, won't you? For once I get started telling about my beloved flowers I cannot stop. If you do get too bored, just pick up the nearest flower pot and toss it at my head. That may silence me.

These warm days have been awakening the little folks in the early bulb beds. Have you been out to look at them? Their queer little yellow and green heads look rather strange peeping out from their leafy covers. And Jack Frost has been rather rough with some of them and pulled them forcibly out of their warm earth beds. These will need tucking in again if they are to live. Or you may bring them in the house in pots and let them bloom on your window sill. These first blooms always mean a lot more to us than the later ones.

Have you ordered your seeds yet? What new things did you have last year that you liked especially well? I have ordered most of my seeds but they have been from the same old list and I have a hankerin 'to try something different. I'll tell you something I tried last year which I liked very much and that was Chinese forgetmenots. They began to bloom early and one of the last things I picked in my garden was a bouquet of them. They really make splendid bouquets for they have fine long stems with graceful sprays of blooms which last well in water. They are not fragrant; one can't ask for everything in one flower! The seeds germinate well which is another point in their favor. I get tired of fussing with these things which take so everlastingly long to come up, don't you?

You've heard this verse by Saadi so many times no doubt you are tired of it but I still like it so here it is:

If of thy mortal goods thou are bereft,
And from thy slender store two loaves alone
To thee are left,
Sell one, and with the dole
Buy hyacinths to feed thy soul.

I don't want to wear my welcome out so I'll say goodby, hoping that you will ask me to call again.

THE BUMBLEBEE.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES

CHIPPY: Your name has been added to the Social Corner list.

BAY STATE: Many thanks. It was a real treat.

CANTERBURY BELL: Certainly an inviting looking region.

PEDESTRIAN: Letters sent as requested.

THEODA: Many thanks. 'Twould be delightful if possible.

TOUCHED—HAD TO WRITE

Dear Social Corner: Never thought I could possibly write for the Corner, but I have been touched, so I must write a few lines.

Pisces: You have stirred me not a little, for my own dear mother used to sing that song called—And the Captain With the Whiskers Took a Sly Glance at Me. That is all I can remember of it and many other war songs she sang. She was a sweet singer, and nothing pleased father better than to sing with her. He had a mellow bass voice and would sing low, so to hear mother. I loved to sit and listen. I was their only child—and so years pass on into other years and eternity.

Wake Nicodemus, my mother taught me to sing when I was two years old. I could sing it right through, and when I got through I would be all out of breath.

You remember the three or four last lines were to be sung as fast as possible. Most likely that was what made it put me out of breath. I had an uncle who would get me to sing to him often. He would always have a good hearty laugh to see and hear me execute it.

O. Pisces, how you have set my mind roaming through memories!

TURQUOISE, (Club 4).

CORNER FRIENDSHIPS.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: As it's anniversary time I don't want to be left out on that date but will add my bit of praise. While making my home in Norwich I have become interested in the Corner page and became a member of Club No. 2. I have enjoyed the Corner and the friendships I have formed in it and hope the same social feeling and friendship is with the Corner page, the editor and all those who help to make it a success.

I want to thank those who during my sickness the past few months have remembered me. To some unknown I want to say how much I enjoyed the lovely cut flowers left at my home with no card to tell who sent them, also Nelly Bly's phone calls, cards from my friends during holidays and birthday, among them one from the Corner and Calla Lily. These surprises when sick mean a whole lot of sweet thoughts to our minds, something to feed on in thought. I thank you all.

To Chauffeur I extend sympathy, also any other Corner writer who has lost a dear one. To the sick I say to you I wish you all a speedy recovery.

Red Rose: I was so sick I forgot your birthday. I'll close with this poem, unknown author:

It isn't the love they have in their hearts and neglect to forget to reveal
The brightness of loves of husband and wife. It tells the love they feel.
It isn't the music asleep in the strings of a lute that enchants the ear.
It brings to the breast the spirit of rest. It's only the music we hear.
It isn't the silence of hope unexpressed, it's the word of good cheer that we speak.
To triumph through strife for the great things through life, that heartens and strengthens the weak.

Best wishes to all Corner writers and clubs.

LONELY PENN.

DEFENDS MIDDLE-AGED WOMAN.

Dear Sisters of the Corner: I want to say a few words in defense of the middle-aged woman. You are very harsh in some of the things you say about her By Jingo. When one's children leave, there is apt to be a very large gap in the home that is bound to tell on the mother. But how many hundreds of such women are interested in real worthwhile things? Many of them teach Sunday school classes and what more worthwhile thing is there than that? To instill truths in minds that are going to live forever.

A few that come to mind just now are Clara Barton, the founder of the Red Cross, that great organization that helps everyone in need, and Frances Willard, organizer of the W. C. T. U. and all the women in that band. Another middle-aged woman, Miss Martha Berry of Georgia, who, through sympathy taught a few children who lived in the mountains near her home, had so many children come to her that she couldn't find room for them all, but with hard work, rigid determination, she founded the Berry school for mountain boys and girls and in 1925 received the Roosevelt medal for her wonderful work. She started with five tattered children and under her leadership has developel a school where 650 boys and girls are trained.

Every Wednesday afternoon there are a number of children of foreign-born parents who gather in a certain church here in our own town and who are carefully taught by middle-aged women who give of their time and energy to help these children.

Youth has enthusiasm which is very essential and contagious, but middleage has sounder judgment, and that may be the reason why there are so many vetoes to questions you speak of By Jingo. Professor Phelps of Yale has written a book called "Happiness." It is a very small book. The Otis library has it. How I wish I could tell you how beautifully he writes about getting older! As you read it, you feel glad that you have reached your age, and are almost anxious to attain a greater one.

The art of appreciation has grown, as we have grown, we have more sympathy and patience with folks as we grow older; indeed, I'm going to buy "Happiness" for my very own, for if I ever feel sad about advancing years, I'm sure I'll find "Happiness" by looking for it. Sincerely,

CHELSEA.

THE COLD WATER SONG.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: I have copied and am sending in this beautiful little memorial hymn which I believe is the one Stebelia asked for. It is a beautiful little poem and must have come from the writer's own sad heart experiences, and that is what makes it so helpful. If one would sympathize with one who suffers he must first suffer himself.

When I was a little child and lived in one of the old historical towns of "Little Rhody," sister and I used to sing a little temperance song together. I recall the first verse now but have tried many times to call back to mind the second verse. Can some one help me with the second after reading the verse below:

I asked a sweet robin one morning in May
Who sat in the apple tree over the way
What it was he was singing so sweetly about,
"Why I'm sure," he replied, "you find out.
"Why I'm sure,' 'he replied, "you cannot guess wrong.
"Don't you know I am singing a cold water song?"

Chorus:
Cold water; cold water. Don't you know I am singing a cold water song.

Second Verse:
Teetotal, yes that's the first word of my lay—

The changeable weather we are having reminds me of a little jingle of my Dad's, written one cold morning after a summer's day in winter. It may give pleasure to some, so send it in.

I heard a robin yesterday,
Out in the apple tree,
Piping his song so merrily,
As sweet, as sweet could be.
I've listened all this morning.
I haven't heard a note;
I fear our little robin
Has got quinsy in his throat.

ROYANCO.

EASY WAY OF MAKING CHEESE.

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: I love to read the Corner page and attend the meetings whenever I can. What a nice lot of interesting letters we had this last week.

Capricorn: I wonder if you have a book called Mrs. Trees Will. I would like to read it very much.

One of the sisters asks about cheese making. I will send directions to make cheese easy. An experienced farmer's wife says it is as easy for her to make cheese as it is to churn butter. She gets a package of rennet tablets at a drug store. They cost only twenty-five cents. For six to ten gallons of milk dissolve one rennet tablet in lukewarm water. Skim night's milk, add morning's milk and heat it until it is just blood warm. Add the dissolved rennet tablet and stir it thoroughly, set off to curd, then pour off whey.

Cut the curd with a knife to let the whey escape. Let it set a few minutes then press it to get rid of all the whey. Salt as for butter. Next place an opened flour sack in a steamed or straight bucket that has been punched full of holes. Have the cloth smooth, press the curd in firmly, fold corners of cloth across top and over this turn a plate that just fits inside of the bucket and weight well.

The next day take the cheese out of the press, shake the cloth, turn the curd over and repack. Repeat on the third day, turning the curd again. On the fourth day take one curd out of the press, rub with butter and put it in a cool place. Turn it over each day and rub occasionally with butter. The cheese will be ready for use in from four to six weeks.

Yours for the Corner,

AUNTY JANE.

ANNIVERSARY WISHES.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: Another birthday for our Social Corner page has came. May this next year prove even better, if possible, than the past one has been.

A Social Corner Member: I thank you for the pretty calendar I found awaiting me when I arrived here.

L. W. H.: Will you kindly send me your address through the Social Corner editor? I enjoyed reading your letter in the Corner of March 1 very much.

Johnny on the Spot: Congratulations. How much does he weigh?

Aries, Zero, Bricktop, Pen and Ink: We know you will do your share in making our Social Corner page a success. I enjoy reading your letters.

Viola: Am sorry your eye is gaining so slowly. I enjoyed our call at your home very much.

Buffalo: Isn't it about time we heard from you?

Theoda: Wish I could "drop in" and see your flowers. Am afraid your ink has given out or else your pen is rusty. You see mine isn't.

KEZIAH DOOLITTLE.

A FEW CONUNDRUMS.

Dear Social Corner Sister: Isn't it disappointing to have the weather change back to another cold wave? A few conundrums for a change:

Why is the English language called the "mother tongue"?

Because father never had a chance to use it.

What beats a good wife?

A bad husband.

A stout lady hesitated at a park entrance and inquired of a gentleman:

"Can I go through this gate?"

A small boy piped up, "I guess so, madam, a load of hay just went through it."

She thought she would help him to think.

A lady in the case: "Well, your honor, it was like this—Yesterday was the anniversary of our weddin' day an' I only asks him if he still loves me, an' he was so long makin' up his mind, I just had to land him one with the piece of lead pipe to help him make up his mind."

Perhaps some of you who still have lamps would like to know an easy way to trim a circular wick. I found a cork does the trick. Just rub around on the wick a couple of times and carefully turn it up ever so slightly and rub around again and the wick will be cleaned quickly and evenly. I used a cork that was in a cascara bottle. I used another to stop a mouse hole. Another use for corks of good size is to clean steel knives and forks. Dip the cork on the brick dust or other scouring powder. So sisters, don't throw away the corks. You will find use for them. The utilization of cork is a very ancient industry. Before the beginning of the Christian era cork was used for lifepreservers, buoys, stopples and shoe soles just as it is today. Spain and Portugal lead in the production of cork, which is the bark of the cork oak.

If I don't bring this to a close soon, some one will say "That letter is a 'corker.'" Good luck to the Corner.

PRAIRIE CHICKEN.

ENJOYED MEETING.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: Having missed two previous meetings was very glad to be able to attend the March meeting of the Social Corner at the Buckingham Memorial. A pleasant day, wonderful company. They came from north, south, east and west, ninety-eight in all. Greetings, handshaking, glad to see you, and an hour of visiting was in order for a time. After singing Blest Be the Tie That Binds Our Hearts, and blessing asked by Rev. George W. Potter, sat down to a delicious dinner served by Bay State (general manger), Aunty No. 1, hostess and her helpers. Ice cream lollypops for dessert, as it was Anniversary day. An interesting program. Song by all. A whistling song with Black Eyed Susan at the piano. Two pleasing songs by Aries. Readings, roll call. They were asked to respond by saying why they had chosen the pen name they had, or saying present. Sister Slow said she didn't care to be fast so would be Slow. Snowflake was writing when the snow flakes were falling. They were so pretty she wished she was one of them, hence the name. Mr. Potter gave a talk on Ghosts. Asked how many believed in them. Thought he could make us believe there were ghosts. I saw three hands raised in response to his question. Ghosts haunt people, do they not? If some time we have done something we wish we had done in some other way, or spoke an unkind word and we cannot forget it, I think that is a ghost, as it certainly haunts one.

Missed Lone Man and others that have met with us in bygone days.

Think all will agree that we had a very pleasant meeting. Hope Aunty No. 1 was not ill after her very strenuous day. Sympathy for all sorrowing ones, and shut-ins. Best wishes and good luck for all.

BUSY DORINDA

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I am rather late in sending thanks to Social Corner member for the cute little calendar sent me. I keep it in my desk and think it's very kind of some one to remember so many of the writers. Have just been reading one of "Dad" Shaws letters in The Bulletin. I enjoy all of his letters, but this one, "Beneath the Silvery Moon," expressed my thoughts in a much better way than I could. I do think those who never knew the joys of a sleighing party have missed one of the greatest of all winter pleasures.

One of the sisters asked what book contained the song "God Will Take Care of You," it is in "Songs of Hope", a book we use in our Sunday school and C. E. meetings. I have not attended any of the meetings this winter, it seems each time there will be something else for that day and with so many places to go, it's hard to get time for everything.

This week I have a quarter of beef to can. It makes work, but how handy to have on hand when unexpected company comes, also have been enjoying the most delicious steaks which we could not afford to buy at retail prices. I can chicken and all the vegetables and fruit and in that way it helps to cut the high cost of living. I have often wondered about canning milk, so was much interested when the sister wrote that she canned it. I think I shall try it as when our cow is dry we buy one quart a day but so many times you find you want some extra and it's too late to get it and my husband will not use the evaporated milk. He does not like it.

Aunt Sarah: So glad you are better.

Grace: I did enjoy your call so much Sunday, it had been so long since I saw you. Do come again.

Kensey: You will be ahead of me on chickens. My hens don't want to set.

Bumblebee: Wee-wifie and I are still planning on that call, and hope you will soon be able to sit up. It must be hard to keep still so long.

Aunty No. 1: Grace told me about your anniversary party. May you and uncle live to celebrate many more.

My sympathy to all the sick and shut-ins, also to those who have lost dear ones. So many of our writers have left us in the past few months. We miss them.

ANNIVERSARY BRINGS JOY AND SADNESS.

Dear Editor and Corner Friends: The time is approaching again for our celebrating the anniversary of the Social Corner, the 20th anniversary. This anniversary is mingled with both joy and sorrow as we review the incidents of these past years.

We congratulate the management of this enterprise on the achievement and success thus attained, and all the benefits the readers have received from the pens of those who support this page; all the helpfulness and pleasure we have received from the personal contact of Social Corner members. At this time we cannot but feel the loss, and our minds wander to those whose letters appeared on this page and who were associated with us, either directly or indirectly, and who have gone from this earth to their reward. So on this anniversary I add greeting to all old members and new writers, hoping the helpful spirit will always prevail to keep the page full of helpful and interesting letters.

Club No. 1 celebrates the anniversary on March 12 in Chamber of Commerce hall and we hope the other clubs will be represented. Please remember to bring your dishes—plate, knife, fork, spoon and cup; also something for the dinner. We hope for a good day and a good crowd. Biddy is in charge of the program so plan to stay and see what she is going to do for us in that line. The old timers are hoping for a real celebration.

CANNING BAKED BEANS.

Dear Social Cornerites: I think it is time I answered August 1894 in regard to canning baked beans. Yes I do them by the cold pack method and sterilize them two hours for a quart jar or one hour for a pint jar. I fill the jar with water putting in the beans if there is any space left. Mine keep good and think yours will.

I see Jennie had baked beans in the Nebraska Cabin at Buffalo in 1901. I too had dinner in there one day and the room was full of people getting dinner. I was there in September soon after President McKinley died. Saw the star in the floor where he was shot.

Columbia: I hear you have moved into our vicinity. Hope you'll like it. I used to live on the next place on the same side of the road. Your father-in-law (unless I'm mistaken in the person) used to come there very often with my young uncle. They were very friendly and used to play the violins together a great deal.

Bug: Did Mr. Bug deliver my message?

I forgot to ask Lilac Lady Sunday if she had forgotten how to write or had she lost her pen and ink. Perhaps Miss Lilac Lady can write for both you and Azile if you have forgotten how.

What has become of the Hon. Tin Biscuit? Haven't had a glimpse of you in a long time, or have you been in style and had pink-eye, measles, mumps, and this distemper and a few other things going the rounds?

A MOTHER'S DISPOSITION.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Do you know that a mother's disposition governs the whole family? Therefore we must be on our guard all the time, and never be a shrew. Men abhor a shrew.

I think the worst thing in married life is losing one's temper, but I have found out the time to smile is when the other one has lost his or hers.

The woman who conquers her tongue conquers herself, and no greater victory can be had, for if you do not control it, it will grow stronger with use.

Since I was taken sick Feb. 4 (all within three weeks), five friends have died, two being relatives. In the Boston Post Sunday I had an article about one who was alive when written, and just as I received the Sunday paper her body was being taken by my house. The funeral was to be at 1 o'clock in her old home at South Dennis, on Cape Cod. Her kind words that were said to be, were printed in that Sunday paper, and were being read—as she laid dead.

Always speak kindly of everyone.

JANE OF R. I.

DEATH OF PHIL-A-NEED.

Dear Social Corner Members: Greetings on our 20th anniversary. Am glad Aries is planning to attend so many of the meetings this month and will say to her that it has been the custom of Club No. 4 to have an anniversary celebration and I trust this year will not be an exception.

Our sister, Phil-A-Need, for whom cards and letters were requested last week, passed away and was laid to rest in Grove street cemetery on Sunday afternoon. True to her name, by her cheerful disposition and willingness to serve, she had "filled a need," not only in her home and church, but at the school cafeteria and in the fraternal organizations of which she was a member. Following the example of the East Killingly sisters, the Putnam members of Club No. 4 sent a spray of flowers of the golden Social Corner color.

"After while, when the hearts that are broken
Have been touched by the Healer's hand,
And we hear the world 'Come,' softly spoken,
After while we shall undertand."

I think the poem, Auld Lang Syne, is the one wanted by Stebelia and am sending it for her.

My thanks to A Social Corner Member for the dainty little calendar and best wishes to all.

THE OLD TIME FIDDLER

Dear Editor and Friends of the Social Corner: The one who is eligible in this class of players is the one who can take the fiddle and tune it to the proper pitch and play it by the musical ear. There is quite a large circle of old time players living yet. But the names of the old time fiddlers who have crossed the Great Divide should be put on the honor roll. The oustanding feature in their playing was their original personality that went with the music.

"Personality," says Dr. Poling, "is you." Said another minister once, "We are all just alike in one respect. How is that? We are all different." Old time fiddlers we have known were Herman Brainard, Daniel Sisson, Edward Tinkham, Eugene Maynard, Benjamin Carpenter, Franklin Bump and William Whiteman. Mr. Brainard once lived in Bozrah. In my mind's vision I can hear the Mocking with variations as I once heard him play it at an evening's entertainment many years ago. Mr. Sisson formerly lived in Lebanon. He once said, "I can play any tune I can whistle." Above the reels and hornpipes I hear him playing the Arkansas Traveler and Her Bright Smile Haunts Me Still. His original wrist and elbow movement were unique.

Mr. Tinkham of Hanover once told me, "I never took a lesson in my life but I did love to play the fiddle so much before I lost my arm. But I am so thankful to be alive and to enjoy hearing others play the fiddle. The Irish Washerwoman is my favorite."

Mr. Maynard's old home was in Lebanon. He won the silver cup in the old fiddlers' contest in Hartford some years ago. He always played the fiddle at concert pitch. Turkey in the Straw, The Girl I Left Behind Me, and Washing Day, were his favorites.

Mr. Carpenter also lived in Lebanon. I shall always remember him as he took part in ye auld fiddlers contest in Grange hall over a year ago. At the last New London county fair and one of the best fairs ever held, was that of 1928. One attractive feature was the old fiddlers' contest. It made the crowd roar with laughter to see Mr. Bump play his favorite selection in six different ways. Mr. Bump's home was in Old Lyme.

Another old time fiddler was the late William Whitman of Norwich Town. He took part in many fiddlers' contests. He once said, "My favorite piece is the Arkansas Traveler, which was the first piece I learned when I was twelve years old. That was over sixty years ago and I do love to play the old fiddle now." So it is, this afternoon, listening to the old time tune. He is playing, faint and clear falls his soul's voice on my ear as it sways the bow and sings to the strange, enchanted strings:

Just a fiddler? Yes; but O As God's sweetest music may Be this wasted, let us pray That the fiddler, through his tears, Sees the music no one hears."

BEST WISHES

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: The great month for Social Corner members has arrived. I trust all clubs will have a grand and glorious time. To the hostess, I trust you and your helpers will have a wonderful time, there is a pleasure that one gets out of such an occasion that no one can stay away. When all is over and some one comes to you and says, "I thank you for the pleasant time I have enjoyed," one feels repaid for all the planning and hard work that goes with it. I trust that all Social Corner days this month will not be as cold as this one. Only two more weeks of winter weather and as we go marching on into spring I hope it will be a pleasant one.

I now take pleasure of welcoming in all new members.

To those that have lost dear ones I send my sympathy. To the sick good cheer and speedy recovery. Congratulations to the editor and all Social Corner members. From

SISTER READY

WINTER SIGNING OFF

Dear Social Corner Members: There are folks so cheery-hearted they tell us winter is getting ready to quit. "Already they can see signs that spring is knocking at the door and we must be ready to greet it with a smile." Most of us, however, if we could have the making of the calendar would leave blustering old March out entirely, for don't we have the hardest, most bitter winds of all the year in March. I think it was in the year of 1888 that March gave us the fiercest blizzard we have ever known. Talk about winter signing off, I am afraid it is just loosening up its hold to get a better grip. You'll see.

I will sing you a song of the beautiful Spring,
("Gee whizz" how the cold does bite)
Of bluebirds and robins and blossoming flowers,
(This room is so cold I can't write)
The trees are all budding—the grass growing green,
(I must buy some more coal, I suppose)
And balmy sweet zephyrs waft sweet their perfume
(You just ought to see my blue rose)
The sun shines so brightly, the sky, oh how blue
(From sneezing I cannot refrain)
Yes, spring's surely come and winter is past
(Good Gracious, its snowing again).

So surely the third month of the year when we are looking for spring has its disagreeable features. Even the house pets, the cat and dog, realize it and they get around on the sunny side when they want to take a turn out in the yard and run till they get their blood circulating again and if they think any bad words about the situation who ever knows it? But yet we do know that when thaws come in March they are usually real thaws and set the streams to running down the hills, and the rains it brings are warmer rains than those of winter. Then, too, if we listen closely enough there may be days when we shall hear the first spring birds, and when it snows the flakes are larger and fluffier, showing that they come down through warmer currents of air. Down by the creek in sheltered places we may find the pussy willows peeping out and yet there may be colder days than we have thus far seen. Winter does hate to let go—but it is doomed to go and if we just possess our souls in patience we shall soon see its last footprints leading over the hills and far away. March will usher in the spring with a whoop that will help me to forget there ever was such a thing as winter.

And now a voice seems to say, "What about the things you declared with so much assurance a little while ago that you were going to do before spring?" And you cannot think where the time has gone and why you have not finished those rugs you started to make those quilts you were to piece during the winter. I guess you gave too much of your time, writing Social Corner letters, eating those good dinners, attending whist clubs and the various entertainments of the winter season. But never mind now, we will get right at the neglected and forgotten tasks and finish them all up before it is time to do the spring house cleaning an dwe wil know "Gentle Annie" when she arrives all too well.

When we are tired and bilious and feeling stale and queer
And doctors with their tablets about our doors appear
And dope us up with potions and rub us down with lotions
That stir up strange emotions—We'll know that spring is here.
When the housewives' work increases and they tear the house to pieces
To scrub where dust and grease is
We will know that spring is here.
When birds come back and bring us the songs they used to sing us
And bees come up and sting us—We will know that spring is here.
So March we greet you—glad to meet you
Never month we've seen to beat you.
You've a rotten reputation that you cannot yet have earned
Live it down—let naught dismay you,
Live it down I humbly pray you.
Let your name be vindicated when the tide of spring has turned.

Dorothy Bradford: Cheer up, here is hoping you and I will both be able to attend the anniversary meeting of Club 6.

Just A Nut: We missed you at the big dinner of the 25th—better take a day off for our next club meeting. Don't miss all the fun. Sumac will give us a good time.

Bonnie Bell: That was some program! I hope Widder Greene did not make too long a call.

American Girl: I hope to hear a good report from you and H. E. N. soon. Don't miss the next meeting. You know E. L. M. always gives us a fine spread and Sumac will be right on her job.

Aries: Thank you for the kind thought of my birthday also for your appreciation of my Corner letters. Will try and do better in the future but I have such a large corespondence with my home friends out in New York state that they keep me busy writing so have not the time to write Corner letters as I should love to. That reminds me I wish to thank the member who sent me the pretty little calendar of 1930. They are very convenient for the writing desk. Best wishes to all.

PROPOSES MEMBERSHIP DRIVE.

Dear Social Corner Members: How time does fly. Here it is again March, the month of anniversaries. Yes, Aries, Club 6 celebrates its anniversary too. Come down and help us. The meeting will be in Mechanic's hall in Westerly on the third Tuesday.

We often hear of drives for various causes and I think this would be a good time for a drive for new members for the various clubs. Each member to bring some visitor with them; but remember the visitors must bring their own dishes with them; also something for the dinner. Of course bringing the dishes does not apply to the meetings held in Norwich.

I have not attended a meeting of Club 5 since last March and only one with Club 2 since then but do think we should make a special effort to visit the clubs on anniversary day and of course on as many other days as we can. Club 6 is always pleased to see visitors from the other clubs and we are hoping to see many at the March meeting. It is very encouraging to the hostess and to the one who has charge of the program to see a large number present.

Now I am coming for help. Will some one please send in a tried and true recipe for raised cake? I recently tried a recipe. It called for 2 cups of bread sponge, 2 eggs, 1 cup of melted shortening, 2 cups of sugar, 1 teaspoon each of nutmeg, clove, cinnamon, soda and salt, 1 1-2 cups raisins, 1 cup currants, 1-4 lb citron and 1-4 cup nutmeats and 3 1-2 cups of sifted flour. I followed the rule with high hopes of something fine. At six o'clock p. m. it had risen only a tiny bit. I put it in the oven, it came up fairly well then but it was so hard and dry. After it had been kept a few days it was better, but altogether too dry. It seemed to me there was altogether too much flour. The flavor was delicious. We had plenty as it made the equal to three ten-cent loaves of bread. Now can some one tell me how much flour should have been used, or send in a better recipe.

O. D.: I was going to surprise you with something nice but didn't think you would appreciate that.

Windham Blue Bell: So you have been moving again. Well, it's some job but I just love to move. I don't believe in getting married to any one place.

Cosmos: Oh, that dinner and lunch. Wish you had been down last week. The nectarines up at the green house were in full bloom. It looked like one of Nutting's Prints.

American Girl: Looked for a letter but did not get it.

CLUB 6'S ANNIVERSARY MEETING

Dear Editor: At the anniversary meeting of Club No. 6 we all had such an enjoyable time I wanted to tell you about it.

The day was clear, so ninety or more people traveled toward B. M. and the yellow bow was there to greet us. The hostess and her aids looked charming; each wore a yellow rose in her hair. The tables were decorated with yellow crepe paper streamers, yellow napkins, yellow tapers (in crystal holders), which were lighted.

The food began to be laid before us and after rising and singing "Blest be the Tie That Binds," and prayer by Rev. Potter of Norwich Town, we were seated and began in earnest to enjoy the meat pie, salads, scalloped potatoes, baked macaroni, pickles, cheese buns, pies, cake, coffee and ice cream; also a birthday cake made by "Hoot Owl." The program consisted of song solos by Mrs. Rothers, accompanied by "B. E. Susie," Carolina Moon and three encores; the chorus of the last song being whistled in a splendid manner.

A humorous and instructive talk by Rev. Potter entitled "Dead Ghosts." A roll call in which each member told why they selected their pen names. Solo and talk by "Kennebec." Readings and poems by others. Solos by Aries. Recitation by "Gack" called "The Slave Pompey." An invitation from Club No. 6 to visit and help them celebrate at their next meeting was extended to all other clubs and members.

All too soon we were aware we must wend our way homeward. But the bright and happy memory lingers, like a link of gold in our chain of friendship and membership.

ARIES.

JOY IN HOSPITAL WORK.

Dear Social Corner Readers: It's real Marchy today, a blue Monday. I've tried to keep the stoves full of wood, but with little results. The wind blows so hard, drafts have to be kept closed, and I am afraid of chimney fires. Outside there is plenty of cheerfulness. The guineas are holding a concert under my window, hens are cackling and I believe I will have a nice lot of eggs to gather tonight.

At present my recreation is gathering all the pretty colored pictures I can, a few in black and white if they are real funny or cute. I am very much interested in "hospital work." I am especially interested in the children's wards. Did it ever occur to you how the hours and days must drag with those poor little children, lying there with nothing to look at but each other and the blank walls? You can never realize the lonely days and nights those children have to endure. So I thought about it and talked about it and now I have started something that I hope will bring a ray of cheer inside those plain, undecorated walls. Already another friend has agreed with me and her little girl became interested and brought me pictures cut from magazines, pictures of babies, animals, handsome cars, airplanes, the colored pages from flower catalogues and so forth. I will paste some onto light weight card board, something easy for a child to hold with one hand, because the other arm may be broken. Others I will paste into a book made of gingham, eight pages in the book. The small children cannot tear easily.

Perhaps some of the sisters that are unable to go out would enjoy that recreation too. If you would like to make sunshine for those children, some are motherless, you surely would say to yourself "I am many times repaid for the few minutes each day I saved a few pictures, or made a clothespin doll," (or made something else I have not thought of that would occupy a child's mind) if you could see those sad little faces brighten up. I would greatly appreciate this help. Just a few pictures placed in an envelope and sent to the editor is all that is necessary. I am sure he will gladly forward them to me. I hope I may be allowed a little more space. Years ago when I was quite small I was visiting an aunt and her great-aunt lived with her. There were no children in the home but this great-aunt was always making something for children. Making small scrap-books, pasting pictures on strips of cardboard, utilizing small remnants, making them into "undie things" and so forth, so one day I gingerly walked up to her (she was a very unattractive old lady) and I asked her who was going to have those things she had made. She informed me that she belonged to the "Ten-Minute-a-Day Society" and these were going to the children in a hospital. She worked more than ten minutes a day, but she explained that she had nothing else to do so she could devote all day to the worthy cause of making little children happy. So it's the same with me. I am fond of children so will endeavor to at least spend ten minutes a day for their pleasure.

Will extend a hearty Thank You in advance to anyone who wishes to help me. Those who know me will send to me directly, others may send the pictures to our editor.

CAKE RECEIPTS

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: I was so busy last week that it was too late to get my letter in Saturday so I am trying to get this one for this week. As you know I am trying to get one a month in this year.

I. J. B.: Will you tell me through the Corner where Bertha lives now? I hope I will be able to meet you some time at a Corner meeting. Just now I am caring for a sick friend. Would like to be able to attend the No. 4 meeting in Putnam but can not make any plans now.

Nellie Gray: Don't feel so puffed up over the new grandson. You know I am his great aunt. Just, you, tell the Social Corner sister that Johnny on the Spot has a son. If you don't, I have.

Capricorn: Last Saturday after I finished with the clerk I looked around for you and couldn't find you. Where did you disappear to? I wanted to tell you what you asked me. Mrs. Mc. is not as well this week.

I want to tell the Corner of a saving I have found. If any one has a bad cough and raises, use rolls of tissue paper to expectorate in and put in paper bags and burn in furnace, and no one has to handle anything or wash after. Just try it and see for yourself.

Twice Twenty: I went by your house last Saturday and saw Zany by the window but didn't get a look at you.

Pep and Butterfly: How many rugs apiece for you. Wish we could all go to Norwich sometime or to Mrs. Shippee's in S—.

Nonesopretty—Have missed your letters lately. Are you sick? Now for the cake receipe. This one is called:

Daniel Webster cake: 2 cups sugar, 1 cup sour milk, 1 cup raisins or currants, 1-2 cup butter, 1 teaspoon saleratus or soda, 3 eggs, nutmeg. Flour to make a bater as stiff as for cup cakes. Bake in two good sized loaves. Bake for 45 minutes in moderate oven.

Telegraph cake: (Made first when the telegraph was a new invention). 1 cup fine white sugar, 2 eggs, 1 1-2 cups flour, 1-2 teaspoon soda, 4 tablespoons cold water, 1 teaspoon cream of tartar. Beat the eggs, first the yolks, then the whites, then together, then beat with the sugar. Sift together the flour and cream of tartar and add to the eggs. Dissolve the soda in the water. Flavor with lemon. Bake in shallow pan.

Railroad cake: (Commemorating the completion of the Union Pacific). Beat the yolks of 3 eggs with 1 cup of pulverized sugar, add 2 tablespoons melted butter. Gradually stir in cup of sifted flour, finally fold in stiffly beaten whites of 3 eggs and 1 teaspoon lemon. Bake in a long narrow tin well greased and when cold decorate top with chocolate frosting put through a pastry tube making long lines to represent rails, connected with short lines to represent rail-ties.

THE OLD RED SCHOOL.

Dear Social Corner Editor and Readers: While entertaining old-time friends in the summer of 1920, it was our pleasure to accept an auto trip through the country that many years ago was the pleasure spot of our childhood and school days and even in our mature years it held pleasures that are gems in the crown of memory.

Passing through Scotland we noticed the many changes that years had made since we lived there.

The building of the splendid state road made great changes in many ways. Hills were made to disappear; sharp turns were made straight; new and substantial bridges take the place of the old shaky wooden creation; bushes and wooded growth had disappeared, that years ago nearly overarched the rough and narrow roadway. These modern changes didn't prevent our minds from going back to the days of many years ago, when the old things as they were, were more pleasing to us than all the improvements of today, for we saw through different eyes.

Arriving at Westminster, the home of the migratory post office, few familiar land-marks were noticed and they presented sad pictures.

We stop for a short time at this hamlet on the hill to reminisce and rehearse the doings and scenes of earlier days. "Amid thy bowers the fiery hand is seen, and desolation saddens all thy green."

We must hasten along for we are to go via. Canterbury Plains to call on Fred and Addie, old friends and schoolmates at "Gay Head."

While making the call it was discovered that we had a flat tire. While changing the tire our pleasant call was prolonged and a beautiful bouquet of red rambler roses were picked and presented Addie.

The chauffeur honked the horn; good-byes were said and away we went over the road to the "Old Red Schoolhouse," as we knew it. Passing by familiar old homes, not one familiar face did we see. Soon we passed a well preserved and commodious home, once that of the Honorable Chester Lyon; later the home of his son, Charles; his two children, Frank and Lilian were our school-mates as was Hart and Lucy Goff, who lived in their home near the Lyon homestead.

As we ascended the hill it was remarked that "we will soon be at the dear 'Old Red Schoolhouse'." Imagine our surprise as we drove up by the stately old elm tree that was our goal for tag and I spy, to see that the school house that once was red with white trimmings, was painted a dingy white. The romance was completely taken out of us.

A peek into windows, further changes were brought to view. Modern seats and desks were installed: the high arched ceiling was sheathed over and made on a level with the top of the side walls. Other changes were made and we could discern but one familiar object and that was the old box stove (or one like it) that used to stand in the middle of the room was now standing in one corner. Outside the noble old trees that shaded the southerly side of the house were gone; but with all of these changes it didn't prevent our thoughts from going back to school days.

We seat ourselves on the well worn stone doorstep and closed our eyes in revery. Do you know, one can concentrate more intently with eyes closed? Through the mist of years we see first, not our present school mates, but those who come before us, back in the early 1800's. Now we see the wholesome boys and girls, their cheeks glowing with health and happiness. Nature's rouge has given the rosy tint to lips and cheeks of those dear girl schoolmates. We see them coming from the north, east, south and west, with their books in hand, and their dinner baskets swinging on their arms. In the summer many are barefoot; in the winter the boys with red topped boots and the girls with high-laced, substantial shoes.

We now hear the jolly laugh as they play pranks on one another; snow balls whiz past our heads to tip the cap over the eyes of the boy in front of us; the girls on the watch, pull their shawls over their heads least a deluge of snow finds lodgement in the back of the neck.

At the hour of nine, the teacher with bell the size of a quart bowl, comes to the door; a moment's ringing and play is ended; each one takes a seat on the long bench extending the length of the room; boys on one side of the room and girls on the opposite with the smaller scholars on seats in front.

The board pine desks well spattered with ink, show knife carvings, fearfully and wonderfully executed. Monograms of those who from time to time had occupied the seats. Roll call is responded to by nearly forty scholars; that average being kept up as the older ones graduated or passed school age, the younger ones took their places.

A chapter in the Testament is read (not so now) and after singing, the older scholars take up their studies, while the teacher assembles the A. B. C. class; reading from Webster's Elementary Spelling Book." Didn't our chests swell out when we got so far advanced as to spell baker, shady, lady, tidy, without hestitating.

Class in mental arithmetic is heard, then the senior class reciting and doing examples on the black board from Dabolls 'rithmatic. We see them with pointer in hand, explaining cube root, putting the blocks together as they explain the problem. After Dabolls 'rithmetic came Davies series of mathematics, followed by Greenleaf's from which we see the senior class doing problems in algebra, geometry and trigonometry. Afternoon lessons were first, reading from the National Preceptor, then writing (the copies being set by the teacher), followed by lessons from Smith's Geography and Grammar, Goodrich's history of the United States; and English history. Six boys and girls formed a class in astronomy. We see them as they, with a certain mechanical instrument, show the revolution and orbits of the several planets.

From the A B C class to the higher and senior class, were taught by one teacher. The student wasn't stuffed with Greek, Latin, or any other foreign language; but of the common English branches they were well taught, fitting them to go out into a world of usefulness; to fill positions of honor and trust. Sime tillers of the soil, prosperous merchants, traveling salesmen, teachers of renown, and another about to enter the ministry, when his country called, to which he gave his life.

The rod of correction, a birch switch of generous proportion, hangs back of the teachers desk. It is sometimes used to correct a wrong impression, but as a rule, it is a monitor to good behaviour.

A recess of ten or more minutes soon pass, as the boys and girls join in a game of tag. Who is that girl with those beautiful curls flying in the wind? Why, that is Addie Hyde. There is no boy so fleet of foot that she can't outdistance in a run for the goal; neither is she behind them in her studies.

The noon hour arrives, lunch is quickly eaten, and the boys hasten to the ball field that Captain Walter has assigned them for a play ground. "Three old cat," is the game played; baseball was very little practiced in these days.

Here comes Mellen Smith from his home nearby, with his pockets bulging with those delicious Jilly flour apples, that he shares with his favorite boys and girls.

The numerous hay and straw stacks we see back of Captain Walter's barn, are ideal places for hiding in a game of "I spy, and hide and go seek," in which the boys and girls join. Dodging around and, between them, often outwits the seeker; then comes the race for the goal, the old elm tree.

A deep snow has fallen, but it is hard and well pathed down, and in ideal condition for coasting. Sleds of various styles, mostly of home construction are lined up beside the house for an hour's pleasure of coasting when the noon hour is announced. A sharp descent of a third of a mile or more, is soon the scene of an enjoyable winter sport.

To accommodate more, who have no sleds, the girls particularly, Mr. Smith's old high backed sleigh is pressed into service, and loaded with a jolly crowd for a fast coast down the hill. A boy strong of arm and courage takes his place on his sled between the thills to guide the impatient load down the hill. A pilot is sent ahead to warn approaching teams of the coming of the load of human freight. A push is given for a start and away we go down the hill, gaining momentum at every foot. Like the speed of an express train, we cross the level, down another hill, crossing the brook, and part way up the opposite hill. All turn too, and push the sleigh up to the top for another slide.

Through the winter term, certain afternoons are given to recitations, reading essays and test spelling by the school. Lyceums or debating meetings are held winter evenings, once or twice a month; the public are always invited. On such occasions the house is filled to standing room.

On one occasion, when the question of slavery is wrong and should be ery was agitating the public mind, the following question was proposed for debate. "Resolved that the institution of slavery is rong and should be abolished." Two men of exceptional ability were chosen as the principal disputants. The one given the negative side was a man who has often been heard in debate and as a disputant was rarely excelled, Mr. James Hansom of Westminster. For the affirmative, was a man highly educated and of more than usual ability as a debater, Mr. Warren Bingham, of Ford Ned. After an hour or more of spirited debate the question was decided in the affirmative.

A few months after, Fort Sumter was fired upon. President Lincoln called for the enlistment of men; twelve of our school mates enlisted within a year, to fight for the preservation of the union and its flag. They were soon facing rebel bullets. Papers were scanned from day to day to learn who, if any, had been wounded, made prisoners, or answered the last roll call. The battle field, the prison and hospital, each took their toll. The first of the noble and brave twelve to answer the last roll call, was first a school mate, then our teacher, and when about to enter the ministry, he answered his countries call. The next was Herbert Neff. On the bloody battle field of Antietam he made the great sacrifice. Others suffered from disease and were discharged. Charlie Smith, a splendid lad, came home to die. The only one of the twelve living today is Hiram Neff. Enlisting as a private, promoted to a sergeant for meritarious service, after being released from eight months' suffering in a rebel prison. Mr. Neff and his good wife celebrated their 61st wedding anniversary a short time ago.

There are but ten of the school mates living today. Three of one family whose combined ages are 243 years.

Awaking from this reverie, we realize that our school days have long

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

A. S. Barbour was selected foreman of the Lorenzo Blackstone Hose company, No. 1, and William A. Thompson was chosen foreman of the Wauregan Steam Fire Engine company, No. 1, at their annual meetings held fifty years ago this week. Other officers were also chosen. The same week Norwich was again experiencing springlike weather.

Other interesting items taken from the files of The Norwich Morning Bulletin beginning with the week of March 1, 1880, are taken in part as follows:

Monday, March 1, 1880—The local ice dealers have given up the idea of getting a harvest in Norwich this year, and the Worcester Spy says that the Norwich ice dealers are busy cutting ice at Moosehorn and Crystal lakes on the Boston, Barre and Gardner road.

The W. N. T. football team of the Broadway school beat the U. S. B.'s two goals and three touchdowns on the Laurel Hill park Saturday afternoon.

The bursting of a water main of the city water works on Franklin square, Saturday, kept a squad of laborers busy nearly all day.

In many places the price of ice has doubled.

Trailing arbutus parties were numerous yesterday.

Tuesday, March 2, 1880—Mr. Harley A. Bromley of Preston has 66 hens, which he claims, laid 2,184 eggs between Jan. 1 and March 1.

The Messrs. Charles L. Richards, E. P. Slocum and William E. Whaley returned from a fishing expedition into Massachusetts, last Saturday, with a string of 100 pickerel that weighed 94 pounds. They also returned one black bass that tipped the scales at four pounds.

The small carpet beetle that produces the "Buffalo bug" which is so destructive to rugs and all kinds of upholstered furniture, has begun to fly and is busy depositing its eggs. The destruction of these little brown and drag beetles at this time will prevent the ravages of their larvae in the summer months.

The City Brass band will give a second grand concert and social at Breed hall on Easter Monday.

Wednesday, March 3, 1880—The Rt. Rev. Bishop Williams will visit the Episcopal churches of this city on Sunday, April 11, for the purpose of administering the rite of confirmation.

Wauregan Steam Fire Engine Co. No. 1, held its 15th annual reception in Steiners hall last evening. Millers orchestra played and J. P. Miller acted as promptor.

At the annual meeting of the Lorenzo Blackstone hose company, No. 1, held Tuesday evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year; Foreman, A. S. Barbour; first assistant, Charles Rogers; second assistant, Ezra Howard; secretary, John N. Burke; treasurer, Charles A. Williams; and steward, William Denison.

At the annual meeting of Wauregan Steam Fire Engine company, No. 1, held in their house, Monday evening, the following officers were elected for the year ensuing: For foreman, William A. Thompson; first assistant, Walter T. Atchison; second assistant, Charles Tracy; secretary and treasurer, A. T. Boon.

Thursday, March 4, 1880—The annual meeting of the United Workers was held on Tuesday with about 100 women present. Mrs. W. S. Palmer was elected present.

William Fletcher, who has been a clerk in the store of the Falls Manufacturing company for the past 24 years, left their employ on Saturday.

Joseph Connor, while passing up Broadway, last evening, was thrown down by an irregularity in the walk in front of the lot of Dr. J. V. Wilson and had his right leg severely sprained.

Clinton B. Herrick of West Troy, N. Y., a grandson of Robert Herrick, Esq., of this city, graduated at the Albany Medical college last evening.

The Lincoln avenue agriculturalist boasts pie plant two inches or more high; an infallible harbinger of spring.

The lawns on Broadway are being cleaned up, and already they are assuming a lively green.

The song sparrows are the merriest songsters in the hedges just now. The pruner is already at work trimming the trees and vines.

Friday, March 5, 1880—St. Joseph's Young Men's society, organized at St. Patrick's church last Sunday, elected the following officers: President, John P. Murphy; vice president, John Foley; chaplain, Rev. P. P. Shahan; recording secretary, John Berkery; financial secretary, John H. Gallagher; treasurer, Thomas T. Shannon.

A 15 year old son of Michael Higgins had his right arm caught between the hot revolving cylinders used in the drying room of the Norwich Bleaching and Calendering company's mill, the other day, and it was severely jammed and terribly burned to the shoulder.

A beautiful altar, which is to be dedicated to St. Joseph, has just been placed in position at the right of the high altar in St. Patrick's church, Broadway. The blessed Virgin's altar, a bequest of the late Father Mullen, will soon be placed in position.

The thermometer marked in the eighties yesterday. Overcoats were abandoned, birds sang in the fields, workers delved in their shirt sleeves, and the butterflies were on the wing.

Large flocks of cedar birds are daily met with on the wing.

Saturday, March 6, 1880—The first thunder shower of the season occurred at about 4 o'clock Friday morning.

The Indian club are rehearsing and arranging for an entertainment to be given Easter week.

L. H. Chester, wife and son, formerly of this city, now of Buffalo, N. Y., have arranged for a trip to Europe the coming season.

The atmosphere of yesterday was decidedly Mayish.

George L. Selden son of Collector Selden of this city, who has been for two years at the Amoskeag mills, Manchester, N. H., has accepted a position tendered him by Boston parties as manager of a cotton mill at Ticonderoga, N. Y.

THE SOCIAL CORNER

since past, and we are living in the year 1930.

We bid goodbye to the "Old red school house," and associations for a time. The years have silvered our hair; we are living in the late afternoon of life, and not far ahead we see the lengthing shadows of evening. Our vision may be impaired, but time will never efface from our memory the scenes of our earlier days

Memories! How they steal upon us, some happy and gay, some sad, but all memories.

Pisces: You surely doubled your diligence you did yourself proud this time. Shake. QUID NUNC.

A CHEERING WORD

Friends of the Social Corner and Editor:

Are you moaning o'er your lot
For the things you haven't got?
Well, look here, I've got a list
Of the things perhaps you've missed:

Motor car stuck in the mud
With a dull and sickening thud—
Three months' note come due today
Tax bills over due today.

Patent leather shoes too tight
Hurt so can't tell left from right.
Measles, mumps, and oh, the gout;
Stomach slowly giving out.

Vermiform appendix all
Ready for the doctor's call—
And a thousand other knocks
Straight from old Pandora's box.

Think of these a little while
And it may be you can smile.
As you contemplate your lot
And the things you haven't got.
—Anonymous.

Aries: I received a card from you today, thanks! Sorry I did not hear the door bell. I was alone and would have been glad to see you. If you come again, open the door and come in. I do not go out at all.

Pisces: I enjoyed your letter last week. I was one who attended singing school when N. W. Leavitt taught in my home town. Yes, his son Burt wrote about "The Frogs of Windham." I have it in one of my scrap books at home. ANN TENNA.

CLUB NO. 2 CELEBRATES TUESDAY.

Well Corner Folks, on March 11 (Tuesday) Club 2 celebrates the anniversary of our Corner page. We hope that a good number from each club will be present as well as those from our own Club 6, to stay for the afternoon.

Our usual good dinner is provided by each one who contributes towards it, so please don't come empty-handed as the Corner rule is each must bring their portion of food for the table to make it a success.

Red Rose is looking out for table decorations as she does at each meeting. That's her work each month.

Mrs. David Maynard, one of our club members has the sympathy of the members in the loss by death of her husband. We sympathize with Chauffeur in the loss of hers. As a regular attendant we will miss him. When a chair was turned at the table near where Chauffeur sat we knew he would be with us.

Milkshan: A very dear friend of mine asked me if you came from England. She thought so by your pen name as she came from across the waters years ago and is a great-grandma now. I told her I couldn't answer but would try and find out for her.

Libby: I hope you and mother will be on hand Tuesday, March 11. I've just come in from a nice ride to Lebanon and then out by Mawb's home. As usual her car was not about so you know the rest.

Bumble Bee: Sorry you are still in bed and can't buzz around the Corner-day doings. Just heard you were sitting up.

Stebelia: Yes you have me guessing. Tell me who and where and I might drop in for an old time chat but ask me to tax my brain without a clue to work on. Oh, no!

Aunt Rosa: How are you? Any better? We wouldn't be if we got in two more such messes out E. G. Plain way. Good thing we happened along. Gang will soon be home and I can realize what she says about it.

Well, just a word for anniversary page. To me the page has been a pleasure both in reading the letters from each writer I know and those I know only by their pen name. I have tried to add my bit to the Corner from time to time such as it was. So right here I want to thank the Norwich Bulletin for the space they have given us; our linotype men who have to guess at some

Now this famous salt finds a welcome in the bathroom too!

To be sure, Ivory Salt is an old table favorite . . . but that needn't bar it from the bathroom. It's true . . . we modern folk are rediscovering the old-fashioned salt bath.

A salt bath cleanses the skin of all impurities and relieves nerve-tension. It also helps to protect you against common colds because salt bathing makes the skin less sensitive to weather changes.

The Best Cooks use the Best Salt

Salt is so necessary to the digestion that we couldn't live without it. So the choice of salt is important, isn't it?

Most good cooks prefer Ivory Salt. They know that "it takes the best to make the best." Your grocer has Ivory Salt in the convenient orange carton with the easy-pouring spout.

Just add one carton of Ivory Salt to your bath . . . reserving enough to massage the muscles and feet. If you prefer a shower wet the skin and rub Ivory Salt all over the body. Take a salt bath tonight and you'll look and feel much better tomorrow.

"The Magic of Salt" an interesting booklet describing many hygienic and household uses for salt is yours for the asking. Address: Worcester Salt Co., 71 Murray Street, New York, N. Y.

Here's The Way To Judge Bread...

This test-by-toasting quickly reveals true bread quality

Make It With Your Own Toaster

All-round quality and goodness proved by the evenly browned, smooth-textured toast your loaf makes

THE test suggested here will quickly give you a sound way to judge true bread quality right in your own home.

You are the only judge of the winning bread. You alone see and taste it.

"Yes, Madam, Fresh Every Day"

How You Make Test

Place a slice of Wonder Bread in your toaster and toast until it's the even golden brown you prefer. Until it's as crisp as you like it. Check carefully the actual toasting time. Then toast a slice of any other bread the same length of time.

Compare Them

Now compare the rich, golden-brown Wonder toast with the other. Note the evenly browned surface and the lack of scorched edges. And note, too, how much more quickly Wonder Bread toasted!

Then break the Wonder toast. Notice the delicate bread fragrance. Now try the other slice. Taste a bit of each.

In a few minutes you will have proved—that slo-baked bread is best. Not only for toast, but for every purpose.

There is no secret to Wonder Bread success in these tests. It makes better toast, is better to eat, because it is beyond question the finest bread baked today.

This superiority you find in Wonder Bread is in no small part due to its ingredients. Every year we spend $2,000,000 extra for super quality ingredients. A specially milled "short patent" flour is used—made from the very heart of the nutritious wheat berry. Also double the usual quantity of milk, twice pasteurized. And the purest sugar.

Every Loaf Slo-Baked

Then Wonder Bread is slo-baked. By means of this special process the natural flavor of the rich, wholesome ingredients is sealed in, and the freshness prolonged.

In order to fully appreciate what Wonder Bread offers to you, try it yourself for one week. Note how much better it is for all your housekeeping needs. And remember, it costs no more than you're now paying.

Continental Baking Company

Yo Ho! Yo Ho! Yo Ho! for the Happy Wonder Bakers every Tuesday evening at 9:30 in their entertaining radio Wonder Bread Period over WJAR and associated stations of the National Broadcasting Company.

Tune in and hear the famous Happy Wonder Bakers and their orchestra conducted by Frank Black.

The Dear Hunt

—By—
CAROL BIRD

SHE THOUGHT HER MOTHER'S LIFE DEVOID OF ROMANCE UNTIL AUNT PATRICIA RELATED AN INTIMATE STORY OF BYGONE DAYS WHICH WAS DESTINED TO INFLUENCE HER OWN LIFE

CALLIE LORIMER was in a dismal funk. She was a small, flaming figure of wrath, as she sat sunk deep in the cushions of her father's armchair, attired in a red dress and a flush of rage. She smoked innumerable cigarettes and blew smoke rings which floated above her boyish bobbed black hair, drifted higher and broke in gray, wavering ribbons. As she smoked, she stormed, phrasing her rebellion extravagantly and with overemphasis:

"I think it was beastly of mother to make me stay home tonight when she knows I was simply dying to go to Angel Island with Doug Stravarius."

Callie's audience was an elderly aunt, whose distinguishing feature was a queenly head crowned with perfectly marceled iron-gray hair. Patricia Lorber put down her book reluctantly, with a finger between the leaves as a book-mark, indicating that she did not intend to be disturbed for long.

"Your mother didn't want you to go because she disapproves of Douglas Stravarius; you know that well." Aunt Patricia spoke gently but firmly.

"Well, why does she disapprove? Shall I tell you? Because she's death on romance, that's why! Her generation and—forgive me, auntie—your generation never knew the meaning of romance. You were simply buffaloed out of it by your parents. And now mother can't understand it when her daughter falls in love."

Callie's aunt smiled a little mockingly.

"My dear! My dear! How unjust you are. Your mother doesn't like Doug because he's such an erratic creature. He drinks hard, drives recklessly and every once in a while there's a story in the newspapers about an auto crash he's been in. Your mother wants to save you some undesirable publicity. As for loving Douglas Stravarius, why, you scarcely know him, Callie. It's—let me see—how long since—"

"Four weeks," snapped Callie. "But dear Aunt Pat, four weeks today is a much longer time than it was several decades ago. Things happen fast these days."

"As if I didn't know that!" agreed Aunt Pat. "Fast and hard drinking, driving, marriage and divorce. I'm not utterly unobservant, you know. I do walk through this age with my eyes open, darling."

Callie pouted.

"What I object to most is the fact that mother and you, too, Aunt Pat, think that romance is nonexistent today. You seem to believe that because this is a machine age that love has no place in it. That when a young man calls on a girl these days he simply wants to talk stocks and bonds or something. It's because the boys in years gone by were afraid to court a girl. A chap then had to sit in the parlor with his chosen one while her mother or sister sat in the corner knitting and eavesdropping. You've said so yourself, auntie."

Patricia Lorber's merry laugh belied the years her gray hair indicated.

"It wasn't that bad, Callie," she corrected. "And let me remind you that in those days when your mother and I were young—those days you persist in thinking were so unromantic—our young men called for us bringing flowers—not hip flasks."

Callie Lorimer shrugged.

"I know that's a dig at Doug and that dear little silver flask of baccardi he brought me Wednesday night," she said. "But he doesn't always bring liquor."

"Does he ever bring flowers?"

Callie's white young forehead crinkled in thought.

"N-o-o, he doesn't. But what of it? Do you and mother rule him out on that score? Oh, I know what you're both after. You want me to get interested in that spineless Joel Chase. Well, I won't! So there! Just because his mother is a friend of yours and of mother's doesn't mean that I must marry the boy to keep him in the family. I hate him! He's a nitwit. No pep. Why, he didn't even try to learn the black bottom."

Callie's aunt impatiently reopened her book, signified that she intended to continue reading and that the discussion was distasteful to her.

"If you disqualify a man because he's not a dancing cricket, why, there's no use wasting good arguments on you," she said. "Besides, I happen to admire Joel. He's a man—a real man. And I don't intend to have you take out on me your ill humor because your mother didn't want you to go to a roadhouse with a man she doesn't know well and doesn't like or trust at all. Please don't interrupt me again, Callie."

CALLIE LORIMER adored her mother's sister. But tonight, in her dark mood of disappointment, she felt antagonistic toward her. She wanted to argue with her. She longed to say still more taunting things about what she contemptuously termed the "lavender-and-old-lace" age. She got up, swishing angrily her short, pleated red skirt, and snatched her new gold compact with its dangling, clinking assortment of vanity appliances, from the marble coffee table near her aunt's chair. Returning to her own big, comfortable chair, she snuggled up in it and began to elaborately rouge her lips.

Somehow, shaping a vivid Cupid's bow seemed to comfort her. But only momentarily. For she began to visualize Angel Inn as it would appear toward midnight.

A divine orchestra playing snappy numbers. Pretty girls in colorful dance frocks. The faint scent of exotic perfumes mingled with the slightly sad odor of dying flowers. Good-looking men in tuxedos. A silver moon shining through the open doors and windows on the dancers as they swayed and turned and drew together in each other's arms.

Callie sighed. She clinked her vanity trappings together nervously until her aunt glanced up and shook her head at her. Then she sprung out of the chair and went over to the window. She opened it wider, breathed deep of the mild May air.

"It's a heavenly night," she told herself. "That ride to Angel Island in Doug's slick litle car would have been gorgeous! Doug would have put his arm around me, held me close. Doug's the best one-armed driver I ever rode with."

Precisely at this moment a fawn-colored car whizzed past and, as it whizzed, the driver sounded his siren in a long, piercing, mocking scream. Callie shrudderd. Not because of the siren but because in that fleeting moment when the car had passed under the arc light beneath her window she had observed that the driver was Douglas Stravarius. He was driving beautifully with one arm and the girl snuggled up in his other arm was Janice Paulding.

"A little demon, heart-snatcher, if ever there was one," thought Callie, with a frightening stab at her heart. "She'll take him from me, and it's all mother's fault."

Callie stood at the window for several minutes lost in her gloomy thoughts. She pictured Janice Paulding in Douglas' arms, whirling about the smooth floor at Angel Inn—Janice so little and cuddling and arch, Douglas so devilishly facinating with his debonair, slightly mocking manner. What if he did drink a bit? Every one did nowadays. What if he did drive fast? One had to have a little excitement now and then. Life could be pretty drab and monotonous when not dotted here and there with a thrill. Any other girl's mother would have encouraged a friendship between her daughter and such a man as Douglas Stravarius, who was wealthy, young and good-looking. But no—not her mother. Her mother—she felt a slight pang of disloyalty as she thought this—her mother was old-fashioned.

It had been such a long, long time since she was in love that she'd forgotten what it was all about. Had she even ever been in love? Wasn't it more likely that she had married dad because her mother had wanted her to? Girls in those days were pliant, easily handled. Dad, undoubtedly, was the son of some friend of the family and the marriage had been arranged without even consulting the young pair. Well, if mother wanted to stand for that, all right, but she had no right to try to repeat history with her daughter as the victim. Making a lonely spinster out of her while another girl—coy Janice—stole the attractive man she loved.

Callie sobbed aloud.

Patricia Lorber put down her book, got up, walked over to Callie and took her in her arms, while Callie dragged herself from her mental misery long enough to explain fiercely to her aunt:

"It isn't fair! It isn't fair, I tell you, for mother to spoil my romance for me just because she's so prosaic and matter-of-fact—the product of a dull, stupid age."

Patricia Lorber with her arm still around her niece's shoulder led her to a chair beside the one in which she had been reading.

"Callie," she began gently, "do you think you can pull yourself out of that black mood long enough to listen to a story? It's a romantic one. It will divert you."

Callie sniffed and rubbed her little red nose with a wisp of red silk.

"Go ahead, Aunt Pat. I need something to distract me."

Patricia Lorber began:

THIS is a true story, my dear. It concerns three young girls, one 10, one 16 and the other 19. The 16-year-old girl—we'll call her Judy—used to have her dresses made by a certain seamstress. When she went to fit them she often took her friend, Corinne, and Corinne's younger sister, Eleanor, with her. One day when they called at Mrs. Judd's house they found her working over a pile of coarse hunting shirts which had been ordered by a Chicago concern. She was stitching labels on them. The girls offered to help and, in a swift mood of adventure, Judy suggested writing their names and addresses on the back of the tags. Mrs. Judd, a complaisant old soul, paid little attention to their game. Even little Eleanor, the 10-year-old, begged to write her name and address on one of the tags.

"Weeks later, when the girls had almost forgotten their prank, a mysterious letter arrived addressed to Miss Eleanor Marsh. It was from a man who signed himself Everett Carruthers, and he wrote: 'I little suspected when I bought a shirt to wear deer hunting that I would find a "dear" before I even wore it.' And so on. It was a most romantic missive. Of all the tags addressed by the three girls, the one bearing the name of the littlest girl was the only one which reached its mark. Irony! Of course, the story of their adventure leaked out and the mothers were angry and cautioned the girls never to try such a silly game again.

"But, secretly, the two older girls answered the letter signing little Eleanor's name. They had a lot of fun with the correspondence, getting the mail-carrier into their confidence, so that he handed the letters to the girls themselves. But when the mysterious stranger, Everett Carruthers, finally wrote that he was coming to visit Eleanor, the girls got panicky, stopped writing and the affair was over. That is, it was over as far as they were concerned. But little Eleanor, overhearing their whispered confidences about Everett, felt like the victim of a conspiracy.

"In her own youthful, romantic way, she felt that 'the hunting-shirt man,' as she called him, was by rights her friend. She was furious at the older girls' deception and she was happy when she learned that they were writing to him no longer.

"Eight years later, when Eleanor was 18, she went to her first big party. It was in a small suburban town near Chicago. She was the house guest of a school friend. And at that party the first man to whom she was introduced was—Everett Carruthers! He was about fifteen years her senior, but the most attractive man she had ever met. When he heard her name mentioned, he was startled. Then he asked her for the first dance and, after it, led her out on the porch. A silvery moon was shining and, by its light, he drew out a billfold and took from it a creased and much-handled letter. He showed it to her. It was signed: 'Eleanor March.'

" 'Did you ever hear of Everett Carruthers?' he asked her. 'Is your home in Willimingdale?'

"Eleanor nodded:

" 'Everett Carruthers was a sweetheart of my youth,' she told him.

" 'But I don't understand. That was eight years ago. You're only about 18 or 20 now. You must have been a child when this was written.'

"Then Eleanor explained, for she had never forgotten the episode, and had often heard it revived by her older sister and her sister's friend, who used to laugh gayly together over the adventure.

"Two weeks after that party Eleanor married Everett Carruthers and they lived happily ever after. That, my dear little Callie, is what happened in the 'lavender-and-old-lace' age."

During this story Callie had remained perfectly silent, not daring to interrupt her aunt, though she longed to several times. Now she leaned forward, her roughed little lips parted in breathless excitement:

"Tell me, Aunt Pat," she implored. "Tell me the right names of those girls. Who was Everett Carruthers? You said it was a true story. Tell me all—all. Were you—I think—I believe you were one of those girls."

Patricia Lorber laughed teasingly.

"I was," she finally admitted. "I was Corinne."

"And Eleanor? Who was Eleanor?"

"Whom do you think?"

"Your sister! Why you've got only one sister, Aunt Pat. That's—that's—mother! Mother—and Everett Carruthers! Why Eleanor can't be mother! Eleanor married Everett Carruthers and mother married dad."

Again Aunt Pat burst into gay laughter.

"Little Stupid. Didn't I tell you I had given the characters different names? The hunter was Calvin Lorimer."

"My father! Dad! Why, that's right, Aunt Pat. He adores hunting. And he was born out West! I've often heard him tease mother about some mystic episode, though she'd never tell me what it was. So romantic and unconventional—I can't believe it!"

Patricia Lorber picked up her book, glanced through it to find her place.

"Remember that old, raggedy shirt that hangs in your mother's clothes-closet, among all her charming dresses? Well, that's the old hunting shirt on which she sewed the tag bearing her name. It's her treasure. She wouldn't part with it for a million dollars. That's your unromantic, prosaic mother!"

Callie's brow was crinkled in deep thought.

"Aunt Pat, please let me interrupt you again?" she asked. "I forgot to find out about Judy. Who was Judy? Do I know her?"

Aunt Pat nodded.

"You do! She's the mother of that 'spineless' Joel Chase, as you call him. You see, he must inherit his mother's romantic nature. Perhaps that's why he sends you such lovely and quaint bouquets on Valentine's Day and why he courts you in such a courtly way."

"Oh, pooh," said Callie. "Pooh! Courtly, indeed!"

But she wasn't thinking in the least about what she was saying. Her thoughts were miles away and years back—back to the day so long ago when three girls frolicked among hunting shirts, spinning romantic dreams as they stitched on tags. She visioned her mother—the cunning little Eleanor—and the stately Corinne and the gay Judy. Then her mind flitted on to the party eight years later, where Eleanor and Carruthers met for the first time.

What a queer trick fate had played! So that had been her mother's destiny. How was it then that now Eleanor—her mother—was so matter-of-fact, such a squelcher of budding romance? Why, her friendship with Douglas Stravarius wasn't half as unconventional as her mother's love affair with dad had been. Her thoughts rushed back to Douglas Stravarius, to Angel Island and Janice Paulding.

What were they doing now? Dancing? Dining? Strolling in the moonlight? Was Douglas whispering charming things to Janice? Was she exercising all her wiles on him? Callie pictured the little flirtatious elf gazing up at him with lustrous eyes.

THE piercing clamor of the front doorbell took her away from these distressing thoughts, back to the comfortable living room and the presence of her handsome aunt.

"Do—please—answer the bell, Callie," urged her aunt. "Anna takes an interminable time to get downstairs."

Callie opened wide the door to admit Mrs. Thompson Chase and Joel.

"Judy Chase," thought Callie, for never again would she think of those three women as anything but Corinne, Eleanor and Judy, the three young girls of the label adventure.

Mrs. Thompson was highly excited and Joel seemed extremely uneasy. As soon as Mrs. Thompson had been led into the living room, Joel managed to fall behind, to grasp Callie's hand.

"Callie dear," he began, hesitantly. "Callie dear—"

"What is it, Joel?" Callie was a little less curt than she usually was with Joel. Joel wasn't half bad, anyhow. He wouldn't be taken in by the artificial charms of Janice Paulding. He wouldn't.

"Callie dear, be brave, won't you?" Joel was whispering. "Mother—we brought bad news for you. You see—"

CALLIE turned white, reeled, clutched him frantically by a coat lapel.

"Mother!" she managed to gasp. "Dad! Something's happened to them."

Joel put a supporting arm around the waist of the swaying Callie.

"No, no, Callie dearest, dear Callie," he hastened to explain. "Your parents are all right. It's Douglas Stravarius and Janice Paulding."

"They're married!" exclaimed Callie. "You want me to be brave to hear that picayune piece of news?"

"No, Callie, they're not married. They were in an accident—they're hurt. They're in a hospital. Mother and I met a crowd from Angel Island out on the Galloway road. The ambulance had just taken Douglas and Janice to the hospital. A collision with another car. An officer we knew told mother all about it. Douglas was hurt worse than Janice. I hated to bring the sad tidings, but I thought I might help, Callie."

Now they were in the living room, listening to Mrs. Chase—to "Judy"—tell about the accident.

"He'd been drinking, the officer told us," Mrs. Chase was saying. "I was frightened half to death when I heard whose car it was. I've seen Callie out driving with Stravarius several times. And now I just dropped in to convince myself that she was safe, even though I was told that the girl injured with Stravarius was Janice Paulding." Then, turning to Callie, Mrs. Chase grasped her hand, and patted it.

"My, it's good to see you well and smiling," she said. "Promise me that if Stravarius gets well you won't ever drive with him again, my dear."

"I promise, Mrs. Chase," said Callie, meekly, finding it singularly easy to promise that. For, somehow, almost in a flash, her feeling for Douglas Stravarius had changed. Her mother was right! A hard-drinking, reckless-driving, roadhouse-frequenting youth wasn't the most desirable catch for a girl. Particularly a young man who courted one girl and then, when she couldn't see him for just one evening, was so easily comforted that he'd speedily found another. Callie turned to Joel. Her feeling for him had changed, too.

NOW he suddenly looked like a young man of extraordinary stability. He was kindly and thoughtful and not at all bad-looking. He was romantic—he must be romantic with a mother like "Judy."

As Callie accompanied Mrs. Chase and her son to the door, Joel again managed to fall behind his mother and Aunt Pat. He reached swiftly into his pocket and brought out a tissue-wrapped bunch of arbutus. He thrust it a little awkwardly at Callie.

"Here, dear," he whispered. "I got it from a little boy out on the Lawrence road. Just freshly picked. It was so sweet. It reminded me of you." Swiftly he leaned over and kissed Callie's cheek, very gently, very tenderly. The front door slammed after him and, as Callie bent over the fragrant cluster of tiny pink flowers, she thought:

"Aunt Pat was right. Bringing trailing arbutus is so much more romantic than bringing a flask of liquor, a speedy dash to destruction and notoriety. Joel's a dear! I think I may learn to like him quite a lot."

THE CHELSEA SAVINGS BANK

"The Bank of Community Service" NORWICH, CONN. (Organized 1858)

SEVERAL LEADING STOCKS CLOSED SLIGHTLY LOWER ON PROFIT-TAKING

NEW YORK, March 7—(AP)—The bull faction appeared unconcerned today over the failure of the Federal Reserve bank to announce a lower rediscount rate, and succeeded in pushing an assortment of amusement, food and manufacturing issues still higher, but profit-taking appeared in considerable volume late in the day and several leading issues closed slightly lower. The weighted price index of 90 leading shares was unchanged at the end of the day, indicating that numerous advances in smaller issues of stocks were balanced by the sagging of several of the large issues.

The ability of the market to advance further into new high ground yesterday was regarded by several professional traders as indicating that the market is successfully getting out of the trading range in which it has encountered such persistent resistance. The index of 90 stocks at the present level of 137.2 is the highest since the rally which carried it to 131.8 at the end of October, after the first severe crash in which it touched 165.2. The large gain in brokers' loans, however, with indications that the public has been taking a somewhat larger volume of stock at the current high levels, has tended to inspire caution on the part of traders who see the technical position somewhat weakened.

Credit continued in abundant supply, call money again going to 3 1-2 per cent after renewals at 4. The coupon rate of 3 1-4 per cent fixed by the treasury for its March 15 financing, at against 3 1-8 per cent last December, could not be interpreted as indicating expectations of further cheapening of credit in the immediate future. World credit rates seem definitely on the decline, however. The Reichsbank cut its rate from 6 to 5 1-2 per cent today.

Speculators for the rise were not aided by the rather meagre business news coming to hand during the day. The weekly mercantile reviews still showed little indication of the spring quickening of activity which should appear this month. Bradstreet's characterized trade as "fair to quiet," against "fair" the previous week. Dun's said "the course of business from week to week has not been changing in significant or hoped for degree," adding, however, that despite the commodity price unsettlement and other obstacles, "business is manifesting a measure of resistance that demonstrates its inherent strength."

Trading on the stock market continued fairly active, 3,637,764 shares being trade. The turnover in the amusement issues was particularly heavy. Paramount and Radio-Keith each sold up about 3 points to new peak levels for the recovery, and closed about 2 up, net. Loews jumped 6, Warner Brothers sold up 20 points to a new top, and Radio Corp. sold close to its best level for the year.

Bethlehem Steel rose 3 points to duplicate its top figure for the year, and Fallonsbee Bros. and Youngstown gained about 5 each. U. S. Steel, however, closed unchanged. The cement stocks were perked up by the senate's approval of a cement tariff, International Cement moved up more than 6 points to a new peak for the recovery. American International, American Power & Light, Bordens, Canada Dry, Coca Cola, Cutler Hammer, Fairbanks Morse, International Nickel, and Mack Truck were among other shares selling at new record levels for 1930.

Allied Chemical, American Tobacco B, Columbia Gas, Consolidated Gas, New York Central, Missouri Pacific, Westinghouse Electric Worthington, and Simmons were among shares that closed 1 to 3 points lower.

Commodity markets were again under pressure. Cotton lost more than $1.50 a bale, recording still further new low records for the season. Corn lost about a cent. Wheat maintained a better tone, but was inclined to ease, the July position closing off 1-2 cent.

Foreign exchanges eased slightly, evidently reflecting failure of the New York Reserve bank to follow the Bank of England in cutting its rate. Sterling cables ruled at $4.86 1-8, off 3-32.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, March 7—(AP)—Prices on the New York curb market pointed upward again today, although many of the early gains were cut down by the usual week-end profit-taking. Failure of the New York Federal Reserve directors to cut the rediscount rate and the increase of nearly $100,000,000 in broker's loans led many traders to take their profits but a number of pools, having succeeded in attracting a public following for their specialties, continued the marking up process.

Revival of activity and strength in several of the leading investment trust, trading and holding corporation shares was one of the features of the day's trading. Lehman Corporation was marked up 5 3-4 to a new high for the year at 89 3-4 and then eased to 88. Blue Ridge and Shenandoah common stocks, Goldman Sachs, and Tri-Continental preferred also reached new high ground for the year. Ungerleider Financial was heavy.

Selling pressure was particularly severe against some of the recent favorites in the public utility group. American Light & Traction dropped 4 1-2 points, American Gas & Electric 2 3-4, American & Foreign Power warrants 1 3-4, and Electric Bond & Share 7-8. Sierra Pacific common jumped 8 points to 76 and the preferred 3 to 97, both new tops for the year.

Amusement shares were in fairly good demand on reports of expanding earnings. Technicolor and Loews, Inc., warrants and debenture rights moved into new high ground. The last-named showed a net gain of 5 1-2 points. Oils were mixed, Humble moving to a new 1930 peak on a net gain of more than a point, while Gulf Oil fell back 1 5-8 and the Standard Oil issues showed only narrow fractional changes.

Perryman Electric moved up more than 2 points to the year's best price in response to reports of improving conditions in the radio tube industry. Noma Electric and Eisler were heavy. Among the many other issues to reach new high ground were American Chain, Axton Fisher, Charis Corporation, Electric Household Products, Newmont Mining, St. Regis Paper preferred, Tung Sol and Utah Radio. General Baking common sang to a new low for the year on a heavy turnover but the preferred was marked up more than 2 points.

Siemens & Halske broke 66 points to a new low at 407 on one sale. Murphy company fell nearly 24 points to 50 1-8 and then rallied to 55.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, March 7—(AP)—Railroad obligations took undisputed command of the bond market today, moving upward in broad trading that carried many issues, both first grade and secondary, to new highs for the year or longer.

The advance lifted the average for the rail group to 105.9, or just above the previous 1930 top. This figure compares with a composite of 103.3 a year ago when bonds were making their hopeless struggle against rising interest rates. Today, short term time loans were quoted at 4 to 4 1-2 per cent against 7 3-4 per cent at this time in 1929, a striking demonstration of the change in credit conditions.

United States governments acted a trifle tired after their exertions of the last few days and prices eased off to the extent of minor fractions on reduced turnovers. Utilities were very firm and industrials took up some of the slack which normally exists between them and the other two groups of corporation bonds.

The strength of the prime investment rails was pronounced. Santa Fe General 4s rose a full point. New York Central 4s rallied 1 1-2, while St. Louis & San Francisco prior lien 4s, Southern Railway General 4s, Nickel Plate "A" 5 1-2s, Great Northern 5 1-2s, Rock Island General 4s and Chesapeake & Ohio 4 1-2s improved 1-4 to 1-2, all to new 1930 tops. Missouri Pacific General 4s and refunding 5s, as well as the Erie listings, progressed rapidly in the lower-priced section.

The new American Telephone debenture 5s led the utilities, rising to 102 3-8, a new high, on substantial buying. The net gain was 1-2. International Telephone 5s, Columbia Gas & Electric 5s, North American Edison 5 1-2s and 5s, Public Service Electric & Gas 4 1-2s and a few of the other trading favorites showed marked firmness.

Some of the industrials affected by special conditions moved widely. Cuban Sugars met with further liquidation, but cement company bonds responded quickly to the senate's action on the tariff on that product. North American Cement 6 1-2s rallied 7 points to 63, the best price of the year, and International Cement 5s were marked up 3-4. Among the issues of higher grade, Western Electric 5s, Liggett & Myers 5s, and Gulf States Steel 5 1-2s rose about 1-2 each. Standard Oil of New Jersey 5s, heavily bought, went close to their high for the year.

A liberal sprinkling of 1930 record prices appeared in the foreign section, especially among the Latin Americans. Argentine "A" 6s rose more than a point to 99, while Brazil 6 1-2s, 1926-27, climbed to 79, both new highs. Buenos Aires 6s were strong. Belgiums displayed steadiness in the face of minor selling; Milan 6 1-2s and Rome 6 1-2s advanced fractionally to break their previous peaks.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, March 7—(AP)—Invoking of emergency rules which permit railroad track delivery of grain on March contracts had a decidedly unsettling influence today on prices of all cereals. Largely as a result, corn and rye values tumbled down to fresh bottom quotations for the present crop, and forced wheat to lose advances, earlier, wheat and other grain as well had scored upturns owing a good deal to official notice that farm board auxiliaries will buy sufficient wheat to stop any considerable decline in the wheat market.

Wheat closed nervous at the same as yesterday's finish to 1c a bushel lower. Corn closed 5-8 to 2c down; oats varying from 1-4c decline to 1-4c gain, and provisions showing 7c to 12c advance.

Sudden outbreaks of stop loss selling on the part of holders of future delivery contracts in the corn market formed the key to the day's results not only in corn but every other grain. The rush to sell corn futures was dependent in turn upon weakness shown by the cash corn trade, where enlarged receipts and apparent likelihood of difficulties regarding storage space for corn delivered in car lots outside of elevators was a source of anxiety. Adding to the flurry were indications that demand for corn to be shipped out of here lacked volume and that car lot deliveries permissible now in the Chicago market might bring about bigger arrivals of corn from other terminals.

Under such circumstances, the price of both March and May corn contracts and of March and May rye collapsed to below any level heretofore reached this season. No aggressive buying either of corn or rye was in evidence, and the weakness spread quickly to the wheat market. From that point onward, the wheat trade had to act on the defensive, friends of higher prices losing ardor about reports of high winds and other unfavorable crop conditions in domestic wheat territory southwest. Further offsetting the influence of wheat buying credited to government-sponsored agencies was the fact that North American export business today totalling about 800,000 bushels, consisted nearly altogether of wheat grown in Canada.

Liquidating sales of rye holdings came about chiefly from car lot delivery possibilities. Oats displayed relative steadiness, receipts and country movement of oats being light.

Provisions showed themselves responsive to upturns in the value of hogs.

words, and last, but not least, our kind and dear editor, for every kind act he has done for each and every one of us and may God's blessing rest on each and every one of this great big Corner family.

CALLA LILY, Club 2.

BRAIDING RUGS

Dear Editor and Sisters: As the Social Corner page wasn't full last week, I thought I better write my letter and help fill it up.

Clarissa Lyle: I intended to answer you in last week's paper, but I have been too busy taking care of a little three year old cousin who missed her mother, daddy and sister. I had to take the place of them. Her mother is better so she went home Monday. I miss her dreadfully now.

Now for my rug. I am braiding this one. I dyed cotton rags with Diamond dyes. I like the Diamond dyes the best. I find that the color doesn't fade out so quickly as it does with other dyes. I use Epsom salts instead of table salt as it sets the color better. The colors I used was red, pink, green and orange. The center is red, green, and gray, then I worked the pink, green and orange with light and dark blue and black, hit or miss, then two of black, and then the red, green, and gray. This is the third rug I have made. The first one is over in England, the second one is in front of my radio and the one I am making now I am going to sell. I must close now as it is time for the mail man. Wishing all good luck.

ALVERNON.

CLUB 4 LOSES MEMBER

Dear Corner Editor and Members: I am very sorry to say that death has again visited Club 4, this time taking our dear sister Phila Need. As she was in charge of the cafateria at the Putnam high school it was not possible for her to attend many meetings. But her heart was always there and she went whenever she could and helped to make the day a pleasant one for all. We sympathize with her husband and loved ones. Our sympathy also goes out to Chauffeur in her hours of sorrow. And to all others who are sick and in trouble.

Viola: Very sorry to hear of your affliction. Hope to see you at our March meeting.

Here is a "thank you" for the dainty calendar we received from a Social Corner member. And we would suggest that all writers mark the date on which they send in a letter for the Corner page. Keep these dates and at the end of the year count them. Guess there would be some surprises for some of us. Bet Zany and Azile would be with the biggest crowd and Lilac Lady not far behind. Think Ann Tenna would stand at the head of the class. Keep them coming Ann Tenna for every one is very interesting. How about you Tate? Do you take the Needlecraft? In the March number what did I find but the directions for that bedspread I liked so well. The Needlecraft is very popular with me.

It is a month since we had our meeting in Danielson but I am still thinking of the good time we had and how nice it was of members of other clubs to visit us that cold day.

Bay State: I would like very much to be in Norwich today, but must wait for warmer weather.

In bringing my letter to a close, will tell of a few uses for lemons besides in the cooking line. Every toilet table should be liberally supplied with them for their uses are varied and valuable. A teaspoonful of lemon juice in a cup of black coffee will drive away the headache. But if, in using, the juice of half a lemon be squeezed into a cupful of very hot water and drank with no sugar, there will be no headache to drive away. A slice of lemon rubbed on the temples and back of the neck will also cure the headache. A little rubbed on the skin at night will whiten and soften its texture. A paste made of magnesia and lemon juice will bleach the face and neck. A fine manicure acid is made of a teaspoonful of the juice in a cupful of warm water. Lemon juice in water will loosen the tartar that accumulates on the teeth and make the breath sweet. A slice of lemon rubbed over tan shoes and wiped off with a soft cloth will remove black stains.

TWICE TWENTY.

GOOD ADVICE

Dear Social Corner Members: Another year has rolled around bringing us to another anniversary. It don't seem possible that it's 20 years since the Corner page first started. There must be 3000 or there-about names enrolled. Two hundred or more passed on to their reward.

Many changes made in family ties, sorrow in some, and happiness in others, that is the way of this world. We are here today and gone on tomorrow. But if we can live such lives that after we are gone it can be said of us: "She has gone but her good influence lives still." There is but one way to live a good life and that is to take our Lord and Saviour for our leader and guide, then when he calls, we can say, "I am ready."

What a gathering that will be of Social Corner members. Then we wont care what club we did belong to. It will all be one then. I had better stop before I get to saying too much.

May we all live to see another anniversary. Sympathy to all bereaved ones, speedy recovery to all sick, best wishes to all.

Remember, Club 2 meets Tuesday, the 11th, and the successful dinner, depends on each one of us doing our share.

AUNTY, (Club 1).

EXTRACTS FROM "BEYOND BEAUTY"

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: I am reading for the second time an article entitled "Beyond Beauty," and having read for many years the letters of nature-lovers in the Corner, I give a few extracts from this writer so that others may read of this new way of looking at things.

The writer speaks first of "human emotions of exceptional depth and power", which genius has not yet put plainly into prose, poetry or paintings to any extent.

He speaks of the "picturesque" beauties which for so long a time have been separated and set before our eyes in word or color paintings. While we still love this beauty and hold it in mind always as something dear "we wish increasingly to look through it to something felt as deeper and more significant lying beyond."

Hints of this beauty appear in the work of painters of the Barbizon school and in the writings of Maurice de Guerin, Jefferies, W. H. Hudson, Thoreau, Burroughs and Hardy. I am somewhat familiar with the three latter writers.

I cannot contribute any trundle-bed memories to the most interesting letters we have had, but early memories of where I first met Thoreau's name may bring to others pleasant pictures of days in attics or store rooms which took the place of attics in my childhood.

My family, before my appearance, were fortunate in being subscribers to Atlantic Monthly in its earliest years, and a large pile of these magazines wearing the same deep yellow jacket that the present-day issues wear gave me reading for stormy days. Here I learned of Henry Thoreau who loved the woods and outdoor things and did not love houses and indoor life.

I think my memory is correct in ascribing to him a house in the woods so constructed that he could sit or lie in the middle of its one room and reach everything he needed or wanted without getting up, thus saving time and energy, I suppose, for the woods and fields he loved.

In these magazines were contributions from Longfellow, Hawthorne and Oliver Wendall Holmes.

While I am on the subject, I wonder if any other writer remembers great boxes of old Harper's Bazaars in form as different from its present-day form as the long skirts and wasp waists shown on its pages are from the knee-length skirts and loose blouses of today.

In these old Bazaars, I read snatches of Thomas Hardy's stories whom the writer I quote mentions.

Sizeable stacks of Harper's Monthly, Century and St. Nicholas of more recent date and more nearly resembling present-day issues than the Bazaar gave abundant reading for rainy weather or wintry days.

All must agree that the custom of passing on to others all magazines as soon as read is a good one, but children who love to read will miss the joy of having what seems an endless supply of good reading awaiting a rainy day.

To return to our writer, we are told that the writers and painters mentioned have seen in nature something beyond picturesque beauty, "something more powerful and compelling."

"This modern sense of nature is extremely difficult to define because it is extremely tenuous and elusive;" yet, "the art of expression must always sally forth into the unexplored."

"What is it then that makes a ploughed field in November often more moving to the imagination than a garden in the prime of June? There are moods in which rough young acorns sprouting on an oak twig are more eloquent with hidden meanings than the rose in all her pride. They speak to a deeper need, to something lying, as it were, farther down in our ancestral memories. Why is this?"

After telling of other experiences in wood and field which differ from mere appreciation of the picturesque beauty so often put before our eyes in pen and color pictures, we are told that these experiences "thrill and comfort us chiefly because they give assurance of companionship." Our painters no longer stand off from the landscape and show it as picturesque because they feel themselves in some degree one with it, feel that it is in some degree one with themselves.

"Ah, dear nature," exclaims Thoreau in his journals, "the mere remembrance, after a short forgetfulness, of the pine woods! I come to it as a hungry man to a crust of bread." I think many lovers of nature must have had almost this exact feeling although it may have been unexpressed.

Our writer says "that precise accent, that tone of feeling is something recent in the world something as yet very imperfectly expressed." I disagree a little here as I believe since man first walked the earth, many have had these same feeling although even in their own minds, they may not have been put into definite words.

I agree that the "sense of companionship lies at the source of this modern attitude towards nature," and this makes several matters clear.

"We do not ask that our companions be beautiful in the picturesque way, and when they are so, we look beyond their beauty to something deeper. We say we love them merely because they are themselves, and so it is with our companions of the field and woods. Beauty they may have, and this catches the eye of shallow gazers. Those who look more deeply may indeed glory in it but such beauty is not what holds them rapt through the years.

"Certainly, there is yet much to be done in the pointing out of the earth's outward charm, for even after our millenium of effort in this way, not more than one person in a hundred has learned to see the beauty that shines in every bough, every grass blade, every drop of dew spangling a spider's web.

"But for a few persons and these the way-breakers of the future, such beauty is felt to be, not negligible, indeed, but hardly more than a vestibule of approach. The rainbow, the sunset cloud, snow-covered Alps rosy in the dawn, apple orchards in blossom—such lovely things they regard as little more than embellishments of the palace gate. In the palace itself, they are at home."

Any who care to read the whole of this article will find it in the issue of the Christian Science Monitor for Sept. 28th, 1929.

As my letter is already too long, I will close with all good wishes for the Social Corner, its editor and all writers, new and old.

PEDESTRIAN.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Healthful Uses for Salt

The value of table salt for bathing purposes is becoming widely known, and today, because of its curative qualities, and its antiseptic tonic effect, table salt is more and more a part of the bath in thousands of homes.

In country clubs and athletic clubs table salt is regularly used for bathing purposes. Athletes, before and after a contest take salt baths under a shower. They wet the body and rub the salt vigorously over the skin.

The ancients knew the value of salt baths, and the housewife of today should take advantage of the knowledge. It soothes the fatigued muscles that have been straining at a tension all day in the home. Every housewife knows that sensation. It renews skin activity, invigorates and refreshes, and best of all it allows the nerves to relax. The housewife steps from her bath feeling many years younger and more peaceful.

Health authorities recommend salt bathing, using a box of salt to a tub of water. It is equally good for children, warding off many of their little ills.

Most everyone has been bathing in the ocean and knows the invigorating effect of salt water. That is the proof of the efficacy of a salt water bath. Then the antiseptic quality is by no means trivial. Such irritating but actual things as skin eruption are discouraged by salt water.

Every bathroom should have a box of salt at all times. You will find many uses for it. Dentists advise brushing the teeth daily with salt. Salt eye washes help to clear away eye infections and strengthen the muscles of the eye. Nothing surpasses salt for a gargle.

Broadway Theatre

"The code" of the underworld contains two inviolable rules—it tolerates neither a "squealer" nor a "double-crosser." In the notorious Rothstein case in New York in which Arnold Rothstein, noted as a square-shooter, was ruthlessly "put on the spot" by the sinister "finger" of Gangland, the police, the detectives, the newspapers are frankly against a wall and no solution or conviction has ever been reached, solely because of that unbreakable "code." Rothstein, game to the last, died tight-lipped, true to the code, and all the moral force in the world has never been able to break down that wall of silence and find the murderer. In "Street of Chance," Paramount's newest all-talking picture which opens at the Broadway today, the Rothstein case is "busted wide open," and no more powerful or sinisterly dramatic story has ever reached the screen. William Powell, thinly disguising his prototype under the alias of "Natural" Davis, tells simply but with tremendous dramatic force, the dynamic life of the noted gambler, and displays the wonderful magnetic power of the man, which attracted and dominated other men—yes, and women—drawing them irresistibly to his side. Kay Francis is the attractive and loyal wife of the doomed man and Regis Toomey is the "kid brother," unwittingly the cause of the gambler's death. The other roles, notably that of Dorgan, Rothstein's lieutenant and rival, are in equally capable hands, and furnish a compelling and sensational story. Other attractive subjects on the same program are a screaming Laurel-Hardy comedy, "Perfect Day," a clever talk-artoon, "A Radio Riot," the latest Paramount sound news, and Will King, famous Hebrew comic with Billy Bevan and a flock of pretty girls in "Weak but Willing," a featured comedy.

Woman's City Club

The following meetings have been arranged for next week by the Woman's City club: The Parliamentary Law class meets Monday at 4 p. m. On Tuesday evening at 8.00 p. m. in the Wauregan ballroom, Gale Noyes of the English department of Harvard will lecture before the club on Thomas Hardy. Norwich is Mr. Noyes home town and his appearance here, at that time, will be greeted with especial interest. The Literature Round table continues the fascinating study of "Literary Norwich," on Thursday, at 4 p. m. As part of this attractive program, Miss Margaret Fuller, Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman and Mrs. Winifred Welles Shearer, of New York, have consented to read selections from their books. It being impossible to crowd into three meetings, the amount of interesting material available, on this subject, a fourth meeting is planned for Thursday, April 10th.

Moving Picture at Y. M. C. A. Sunday

One of the most interesting stories ever screened is the story titled "David Copperfield." This will be portrayed in seven reels at the Y. M. C. A. big gymnasium on the coming Sunday afternoon. The wonderful vision of the author and his unequalled ability to create the various characters in the story always attracts the interest of the people.

Not only are the characters interpreted with skill and charm, but the lovely English scenery and atmosphere adds greatly to the pleasure of the picture.

To this meeting the adult public is specially invited and boys and girls eleven to sixteen may come if they are accompanied by their parents.

A free will offering will be taken at the service.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear sister, Matilde Stapfer, Who entered into eternal rest two years ago, March 8, 1928

We miss your smiles, your cheery ways,
You smiled through the tears of pain,
You were loved by every one you knew,
And too good to be let remain.
Two years roll by, the seasons go,
But your memory lingers on,
For it seems to us but yesterday,
You left for the realm beyond.
Wonderful sister, loving and kind,
What a loving memory you left behind.
Beautiful character to the end of your days,
Two years have passed
And the years will go fast,
But memories and love for you
Will forever last.

HER FAMILY.

IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of Our Dear One Hattie Emily Mills Pike Who Passed to Her Reward on March 9, 1922

We may not know the glory and gladness
That on the spirit shine,
That bore on earth its agony and sadness
With patience so divine.

We only know the weariness is ended,
That she from pain is free,
That the pure soul, has to its God ascended,
In joy and liberty.

'Tis ours to prize the nature we inherit,
Which she has glorified,
Nor doubt the power of the immortal spirit
Since she has lived and died.

HER FAMILY.

CESARINA, NEW LONDON SILK WEAVER, SOLD MILL FILLERS TO NORWICH MAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 7.— (AP) — Giordani Cesarina, 36, residing at 27 Summer street, and employed as a weaver at the Bloom Silk mill, Garfield avenue, was arrested tonight, charged with theft. He is being held in bail of $100, which was furnished, for appearance in the police court tomorrow. For some time the company has been losing by theft many "fillers" and to trace the thief, employes of the plant were unsuccessful. Within a few days suspicion pointed to Cesarina as the thief and the police were communicated with. Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh was assigned to the case and he went to the mill a short time before the suspension of operations. When Cesarina was about to leave the mill, he was detained. After being questioned a brief time, Cesarina's lunch box was examined and it was found to be filled with fillers such as have been stolen from time to time. It is understood that the fillers were accumulated by Cesarina until a large number of them was obtained and that they were then sold to a Norwich man.

Drove Recklessly

John Zebrowski, 59 Bayonet street, was arrested on North Bank street late today by Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin, charged with reckless driving. He will be in court Saturday.

Patrolman Clarence Wells is ill at his home on Tilley street.

WATCHMAN SAM. BARNES SOON TO LEAVE HOSPITAL

Samuel Barnes, of Lincoln avenue and employed on State, Bank and Main streets as night watchman and who was operated upon several weeks ago at Lawrence Memorial hospital for gland trouble, will be discharged within a few days. The patient's condition has improved to such an extent that he can be taken to his home almost any day. During Barnes' absence from duty his work is being done by Frank Borgess, of Waterford.

In a further effort to locate the degenerate who has committed indecent assaults of late, the police tonight took additional precaution to bring about the identity and arrest of the offender. Through the early evening hours, Patrolman William Riordan was assigned to plain clothes duty in the vicinity of the Gray girl's home. Tonight, also, several members of Pequot Hose company, which is opposite the Gray girl's residence made repeated tours of streets in that vicinity in the hope of detecting the degenerate.

GROTON TOWN TAX FIXED AT 18 MILLS, INSTEAD OF 26

When the Groton town meeting got down to business last night a resolution was adopted directing Tax Collector Irving H. Poppex to collect the taxes in arrears to the amount of about $86,000. If that can be accomplished it was figured that the tax rate can be reduced from 26 mills, the levy the past year, to 18 mills. So the latter figure was decided upon as the levy for the ensuing year. The grand list of the town is $13,270,000, which will permit taxes of $238,000 being raised. Charles Willard, former lessee of the Groton ferry, wanted the rate of tax fixed at 21 mills, but the meeting frowned upon the suggestion.

WIDOW OF CHIEF JUSTICE GIVES GEORGETOWN MEDAL

An Ocean avenue summer cottager for years, Mrs. Edward Douglas White, widow of the former chief justice of the United States, has founded, at Georgetown Catholic university, Washington, in memory of her husband a medal for annual competition between two rival debating societies. One of the societies, the White, was named after the chief justice in 1912, and the following year the rival group, the Gaston, was formed and named in honor of William Gaston of North Carolina, the university's first student. The medal will be awarded this year for the first time.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Vermilya, 715 Ocean avenue, have concluded a visit of several days at the Hotel Markham, Gulfport, Miss.

Mrs. Ellen B. Miller, P. O. Box 15, Gales Ferry, was in the police court this morning charged with reckless driving. The charge was nolled.

SAILORS PLAGUE FERN, WHO HAS TO APPEAR

Frank E. McCreary and Thomas W. Kennedy, sailors stationed at the submarine base, were charged with intoxication and breach of the peace as a result of a row they created at Ye London grill, early this morning. McCreary was fined $10 and costs, but Kennedy was found not guilty. There have been several fights at the restaurant within a few months and a few days ago when the proprietor, Max Fern, caused the arrest of the combatants, he failed to appear as a witness against the accused with the result that he was compelled to be in court. At that time, Judge Daniel M. Cronin informed Fern that the latter would be compelled to be a witness in the future against anyone whose arrest he caused, so Fern was in court today. McCreary and Kennedy went to the restaurant about 1 o'clock and the former's conduct was so aggressive and abusive to patrons there that Fern made complaint to the police. The bluejackets were arrested by Sergeant Samuel Hick and Patrolman Frank Linehan.

Stephen Delaporta, 9 Orchard street, charged with reckless driving, had his case continued until Saturday. Delaporta was arrested Thursday by Patrolman Carlos Stone.

A Preston farm hand was charged with intoxication but, as the accused had not been in court for a number of months, he was given suspension of judgment.

WAYWARD GIRL RETURNED TO BOSTON INSTITUTION

Leola Ongley, 20, of 39 Chapman street, Greenfield, Mass., was arrested late last night on a technical charge of lascivious carriage. In the police court this morning, the case was continued until tomorrow, but the charge will be nolled as the girl was taken to Boston this afternoon by a patrolwoman of the state house, where the girl is wanted on a charge of violation of parole. The police had knowledge that the Ongley girl was sought by the Massachusetts officials and when she was found on the street by Sergeant John Courtney and Patrolman Frank Linehan she was arrested. When her effects were searched at police headquarters the girl possessed an unloaded .22-calibre revolver.

CATHOLIC GIRL SCOUTS HAVE ACTIVE FIRST YEAR

When the first anniversary of Troop 10, New London Girl Scouts, was observed with fitting ceremony at a recent meeting at the headquarters of the Diocesan Bureau of Social Service in New London, Mrs. Homer K. Underwood, commissioner, and Rev. Timothy M. Crowley, D.D., were the speakers. Father Crowley commended the scouts on their fine work and expressed his wish for the continued success of the troop. Guests of honor at the meeting besides the speakers were Mrs. William Savard, Mrs. Thomas Murray, Mrs. M. J. Sabagh and Dr. Armida Pisciotta of Connecticut college. Miss Delia Moroney, leader, presided at the meeting. The reports of the secretary and treasurer were read. Anna Eshenfelder, treasurer, reported a balance of $37.01. Agatha McGuire, secretary, reported that the troop at present is made up of six patrols and four associate scouts, making a total of 54 scouts in the troop. She reviewed the many activities the past year, showing that the troop had been progressive and engaged in a wide range of interests. She stated that 14 scouts of the troop are now eligible for the gold star and ten for silver star awards. The troop plans to send Eleanor Kennedy, second lieutenant, to training camp this summer.

COP ONLY TOOK A BRACER, BUT THAT GOT HIM IN BAD

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 7—City Manager William A. Holt today announced that Patrolman Patrick Sheehan, who was temporarily suspended from duty late yesterday afternoon by Captain Charles A. Pinney on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer, would be given a hearing Monday morning next at 10 o'clock at the office of the city manager, municipal building. Included among the witnesses will be Captain Pinney and Sergeant Patrick Murphy. Patrolman Sheehan requested permission Thursday morning to be off duty that he might attend the funeral of a relative. The request was granted, but the officer was instructed to report for duty immediately following the funeral. This he did not do. About 3 o'clock, Captain Pinney was informed that Patrolman Sheehan was intoxicated on North Bank street. Capt. Pinney and Sergeant Murphy went to the vicinity of North Bank street and Douglass street, where Sheehan was found. His condition indicated that he had been drinking and he was ordered to report at police headquarters. A short time later Sheehan was examined by City Physician George P. Cheney and Dr. C. John Satti. Both physicians stated that there was no doubt but that Sheehan had partaken of one or more drinks, but that the officer was not under the influence.

WILLIMANTIC MEN PROVE THEY WERE LOOKING FOR WORK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 7—William Richard, 17, and William Wolfenden, 22, and married, both of Willimantic, the latter being a former resident of New London, were arrested early today charged with being suspicious persons. In the police court this forenoon, the cases were continued until tomorrow. Richard, a mill-worker and Wolfenden, a truck driver, were found roaming about State street at 3 o'clock by Patrolmen Dennis Murphy and Frank Linehan. Being without funds or a place to sleep, the youths were locked up. This morning, after the adjournment of court, Richards and Wolfenden were questioned and the story that they came to New London for the purpose of seeking employment proved correct. In the case of Wolfenden, his former employers here were questioned and all corroborated his statements relative.

O'NEILL RELEASED FOR LACK OF EVIDENCE

Michael O'Neill, 32, a laborer, residing at 109 Golden street, who was arrested last night charged technically with attempted rape, was not tried in the police court this morning. As was anticipated, the police did not possess sufficient evidence to warrant the case going to trial, for it was apparent that the evidence at hand was insufficient to obtain a conviction especially when the seriousness of the charge was considered. Because of that fact, Acting Prosecuting Attorney John Quinn ordered the discharge of O'Neill.

For two weeks the police have been bending every effort toward the apprehension of a man who has been committing indecent assault upon boys. A description of the brute was given all officers and a close watch has been maintained for him. Last night when the police received information that an attempt at rape had been made on Martha Gray, 8, of 243 Howard street, four officers were assigned to investigate for it was believed that the man had diverted his attentions from boys to girls. A search of the vicinity of where the girl was attacked, off Trumbull street, was made and when Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith and Automobile Patrol Officer George Cockell found O'Neill a block away from where the girl was approached, he was questioned. Failing to give a satisfactory account of his loitering at the corner of Howard and Walbach streets, O'Neill was arrested. He was taken to the residence of the girl where she identified him as her assailant, only to deny a short time later that he was her attacker. When questioned a third time the girl declared that O'Neill was the man who assaulted her. With court officials satisfied that the girl was not positive in identifying O'Neill, he was released from custody. That the girl was attacked, however, there is no doubt, for she was examined by a physician and that fact was determined. The girl was accosted by a stranger in front of her home and requested to do an errand. The girl consented and she was led to an isolated section, off Trumbull street, and there attacked.

NEW YORK RABBI SPEAKER AT COMMUNITY SYNAGOGUE

Rabbi L. M. Becker of the Jewish Theological seminary of New York gave a stirring sermon Friday evening at Norwich Community synagogue at the B'nai B'rith rooms on Shetucket street, before a large congregation. There has always existed a feeling of unfriendliness and hostility to the Jews, said the preacher. In the past this took the form of physical persecution, as for example, through the periods of history which witnessed the crusades. The result of such physical persecution has been to bend and deform the body of the Jew, but mentally he remained, not only unimpaired, but even strengthened.

With the emancipation came religious, political and social freedom continued the rabbi, so that in civilized countries, use of force was eliminated, though hostility still existed, finding its expressions in mental persecution, known as anti-semitism. Jews have been affected differently by such anti-semitism, making some of them self-conscious, sensitive, embarrassed and giving them to some extent a sense of inferiority.

Let us be careful not to be influenced by the disintegrating forces of anti-semitism, but to follow the paths of truth and righteousness, proud of our racial history, proud to have been able to overcome the physical forces which have bent our backs, but strengthened our hopes and faith, said the visiting rabbi.

Rabbi Becker commended the congregation for its fine spirit and for the progress it has made in the short time of its existence, remarking that, to him, it is unexpected and greater than the growth of other congregations with which he has had experience.

Household Art

"Mine be a cot," for the hours of play,
Of the kind that is built by Miss Greenaway;
Where the walls are low, and the roofs are red,
And the birds are gay in the blue o'erhead;
And the dear little figures, in frocks and frills,
Go roaming about at their own sweet wills,
And "play with the pups," and "reprove the calves,"
And do nought in the world (but work) halves,
From "Hunt the Slipper" and "Riddle-me-ree,"
To watching the cat in the apple-tree.

O Art of the Household! Men may prate
Of their ways "intense" and Italianate,—
They may soar on their wings of sense, and float
To the au dela and the dim remote,—
Till the last sun sink in the last-lit West,
'Tis the Art at the Door will please the best;
To the end of time it will be still the same,
For the earth first laughed when the children came.

Evening In A Sugar Orchard

From where I lingered in a lull in March
Outside the sugar-house one night for choice,
I called the fireman with a careful voice
And bade him leave the pan and stoke the arch:
"O fireman, give the fire another stroke,
And send more sparks up chimney with the smoke."
I thought a few might tangle, as they did,
Among bare maple boughs, and in the rare
Hill atmosphere not cease to glow,
And so be added to the moon up there.
The moon, though silent, was moon enough to show
On every tree a bucket with a lid,
And on black ground a bear-skin rug of snow.
The sparks made no attempt to be the moon.
They were content to figure in the trees
As Leo, Orion, and Pleiades.
And that is what the boughs were full of soon.

The plot where Mr. Taft's body will rest was selected today by Mrs. Taft and her three children. It is on the side of a wooded hill looking over the Potomac river and toward the capital in which he worked so long and well. It is situated not a mile to the northwest of the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. A magnificent monument is contemplated.

Colonel Hodges accompanied the Taft brothers to the cemetery in a white house automobile. Mrs. Taft and Helen Taft Manning, both heavily veiled, were driven in their own car. It was the only time during the day they left their home.

Flags At Half-Mast.

America's mourning was symbolized by the flag fluttering at half-staff from atop the white house similarly throughout the states and territories of the nation, and on vessels of war and peace in home and foreign ports, did the flags express the public's sorrow as proclaimed by President Hoover.

The sympathy of the world was brought to Mrs. Taft and her relatives at the home wherein her husband rested in death. Throughout the day friends and officials visited. All the while, too, messengers arrived with condolences, some in short sad sentences of regret and others in eulogy of the late jurist's talents and achievements.

The president and Mrs. Hoover had called at the home shortly after death took Mr. Taft at 5.15 p. m. yesterday. Vice President Curtis returned to the city from Indianapolis as soon as he heard, and today conveyed his respects to the widow. His sister, Mrs. Dolly Curtis Gann, was among the visitors, as was Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, the widow of America's war time president who succeeded Mr Taft in the white house.

The widow of Theodore Roosevelt, who preceded the late jurist as president, telegraphed her "sincere sympathy" from Oyster Bay, New York.

Messages Of Regret.

The regrets of the Canadian government were expressed by Minister Massey in person and in telegrams from Prime Minister MacKenzie King and Lord Willingdon, governor general. Italian sorrow was conveyed by Ambassador De Martino.

Secretary Mellon, Speaker Longworth, Senator Fess of Ohio, Senator Goff of West Virginia, and Representative Dyer of Missouri, were among the numerous visitors.

Secretary and Mrs. Stimson in London, cabled their "deepest sympathy and love" to Mrs. Taft. Messages also arrived from Governor Myers Y. Cooper, of Ohio; Governor John G. Richards of South Carolina; Elihu Root and Adolph S. Ochs of New York; Senator McKellar of Tennessee; John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton university; General and Mrs. Frank McCoy and Mrs. Ernestine Schumann-Heink.

Assembled in worship, the congregation of the Free Synagogue in New York expressed its sorrow in a message signed by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and Sidney E. Goldstein.

Special arrangements have been made to enable Chief Justice Hughes and Justices McReynolds, Butler and Stone to be back in Washington on Tuesday, after attending the funeral of Justice Edward T. Sanford at Knoxville, Tenn., tomorrow. The supreme court delegation had arranged to accompany Mrs. Sanford on the funeral train carrying the body south tonight. It will remain in Knoxville only long enough to attend the burial services.

The entire court membership will attend Mr. Taft's funeral, along with representatives from the government departments and foreign nations.

Senator Watson of Indiana and Representative Tilson of Connecticut, were prepared tonight to introduce resolutions for congress to adjourn out of respect to the former president, whether the senate would do so tomorrow was uncertain, however.

Military Honors.

A part of the military honors which are to be paid the late jurist wil consist of firing salutes at all army posts in the United States and foreign stations tomorrow and during the time the body is being taken from the church to the cemetery.

At reveille tomorrow every army post will fire 13 guns. From then until sundown a gun will be fired every half hour and immediately after retreat a 48 gun salute will be fired.

During the funeral Tuesday the army posts will fire 21 gun salutes.

In accordance with the 30 day period of mourning proclaimed by President Hoover, hostesses throughout the capital have cancelled invitations sent out for various dates within that period. The entire social life of the city will be at a standstill.

For three hours the public will be permitted to file by Mr. Taft's casket under the great dome of the capitol rotunda. A guard of honor of 40 picked men from the army, navy and marine corps, will be on constant duty.

Every military unit near Washington will take part in the funeral procession escorting the body, borne on a gun carriage, from the capitol to All Souls' church.

Simple Funeral Services.

Very simple ceremonies lasting only 30 minutes will be conducted by Mr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, the family pastor, and at 2.30 the party will start for Arlington cemetery. The Unitarian service will consist primarily of a reading of verses and no eulogy will be included.

From the church to the cemetery, the body will be taken in a motor hearse followed by President and Mrs. Hoover, members of the Taft family and the entire funeral party. At the Fort Myer entrance to the cemetery the procession will be rejoined by the large military escort, which will take part in the final honors at the grave.

The burial plot is 50 feet square and surrounded by great oaks. It is near the grave where Robert Todd Lincoln, son of the Civil war president, is buried. From it spreads a vista of Washington with the Potomac river and the gleaming white marble of the Lincoln Memorial in the foreground. Directly before the grave will soon be a memorial plaza marking the Virginia end of the Arlington Memorial bridge now nearing completion.

CONGREGATION MOURNS THE PASSING OF TAFT

WASHINGTON, March 9—(AP)—The pew from which William Howard Taft worshipped for many years at All Souls' Unitarian church remained unoccupied this sunlit Sunday as a solemn reminder that the most distinguished member of the congregation has passed on.

Otherwise, the simple morning service was crowded. Many bowed their heads on passing the empty pew.

Mr. Taft had been a constant attendant at the church from the time he joined it while secretary of war 24 years ago until he was stricken fatally several weeks ago. In recent years he was accustomed to sit in the front seat on the left.

It was always understood that this pew was to be left for him and today, while he lay dead in his Wyoming avenue home, the custom of years remained unbroken. Those who could not find seats in the auditorium mounted to the gallery.

Voicing the sorrow of the congregation at the pasing of the former president and chief justice, Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, the pastor, said it "was an inspiration to know that we had in our midst a man who exemplified to the fullest extent the difference between counterfeit and real religion."

"His religion was the real coin that is accepted at its face value in every land," he said. "A noble spirit has been called from our midst into the invisible and our hearts are touched with sorrow at his passing."

Dr. Pierce who has been Mr. Taft's pastor since 1906, will conduct the funeral service in the church Tuesday.

In his prayer today, the pastor invoked divine aid for the members of the family in their bereavement.

"Touch their wounds with healing and give them strength to bear their sorrow," he said. "May the angels of peace descend on the silent home and saddened hearts."

After the service, Dr. Pierce in an informal statement described Mr. Taft as "a rare specimen of religion at its best, combining with remarkable breadth of view a profound sense of devotion."

He died a short time later. Anemic poisoning was given as the cause of his death.

Justice Sanford was in his 65th year. He was appointed to the supreme court in 1923 by President Harding.

France In Mourning For Flood Victims

Death Toll Nearer 300 T[illegible] 400—More Than 3,000 Houses Were Destroyed.

MONTAUBAN, France, March 9—(AP) —The tragic triangle marked by Agen, Moissac, and Montauban today presented a scene of devastation which branded the flood which swept the district last Monday night and Tuesday morning as one of the worst in the history of France. Thirty-five more bodies were found under the ruins of Moissac today.

This brings the total of known dead at Moissac to 125, and there are forebodings that many are still lying under the wreckage of the three ancient and prosperous towns. More than 200 bodies have now been recovered. In ad- It was largely a day of generous been found at Mountauban, 9 at Agen, and the rest in a scattering of small towns and villages along the banks of the Gatonne and Tarn rivers.

Five days after the flood, reconstruction workers have begun to get a line on the extent of the deaths and damages. It is now estimated that the deaths will be nearer 400 than 300. The estimates have been steadily rising.

The material damages are enormous. At Reyinies, a village near Mountauban, not a single house out of a total of 140 is left standing. Some parts of the village are still six feet under water, and searching parties have not even been able to get to work. The loss of life here will probably be heavy, but is not yet definitely known.

More than 3,000 houses were gutted and destroyed in the cities and villages within the triangle. Within a district of 300 square miles the crops were destroyed and flocks and herds wiped out.

DAY OF MOURNING IN FRANCE FOR FLOOD VICTIMS

PARIS, March 9—(AP)—France today observed a day of "national mourning" for the victims of the ruinous flood in the southwest.

I twas largely a day of generous giving to the sufferers and the homeless. From every corner of the country came contributions to the big relief fund being organized by the Bank of France. Sums are running into the tens and hundreds of thousands of francs were donated by various societies and persons.

The Auteuil Racing association levied 100,000 francs on its day's receipts. The Comedies Francaise handed over 10,000 francs, and all the other theaters followed suit.

Flags hung at half mast throughout France. President Gaston Doumergue and Premier Andre Tardieu took occasion to assure the sufferers that not only the sympathies but the abundant aid of France should be theirs.

M. Tardieu, after a gloomy tour of the ruined country with the president, told the press that the flood damages would be repaired on the same principle as the war damages. The state will reconstruct houses and aid in reconstituting flocks, fiedls, and vineyards. Meanwhile the generosity of the French people will amply care for the material needs of the victims.

NAVAL CONFERENCE IS ENTERING CRITICAL STAGE

LONDON, March 9.—(AP)— The five power naval conference, after weary days of marking time, tomorrow enters what promises to be the most critical of a number of critical weeks in the uncertain course of its negotiations.

Uncertainty previaled tonight in conference circles, not because the conference was expected to fail, but because every one is wondering whether the high hopes held out for drastic reduction of the fleets of the world at the opening of the negotiations can be realized in view of the complicated and unexpected problems that have arisen.

The French attempt to secure a pact embodying political guarantees of security, in exchange for reductions in her fleet tonnage demand of 724,000 tons, for the time overshadows all other issues. It will be the bone of contention during the week.

PARTIAL PARALYSIS FROM DRINKING JAMAICA GINGER

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., March 9. —(AP)—The cause of a paralysis-like malady which has stricken hundreds of residents of Oklahoma City tonight remained a mystery, but physicians and chemists viewed the situation with optimism as the condition of some patients under observation improved.

Dr. Walter H. Miles, city health director, reiterated his belief that the strange disease could be attributed directly to the drinking of Jamaica ginger, and expressed the belief that danger, for the present at least, had passed.

"I am convinced," he said, "that all of the cases were caused by one bad shipment of Jamaica ginger."

Arre[illegible] Members [illegible]ing Of Kidnapers

Fifteen Men Were Captured In Chicago—Resorted to Torture to Extort Ransoms.

CHICAGO, March 9.—(AP)—Capture of 15 men, said by police to be members of a ring which has extorted thousands of dollars from Cook county victims through kidnaping and torture, was revealed by the state's attorney's office today.

One of the men was seized as he walked into a Michigan boulevard gown shop, allegedly to collect $25,000 ransom from Theodore Kopelman, an official of the Chicago National Life Insurance company. Five others were caught as they waited outside in a car.

Kopelman had reported to Patrick Roche, chief investigator for State's Attorney John A. Swanson, that he had been kidnaped early in the morning of February 26, as he drove toward his home and had been taken to a west side house where he was kept for a day and a half. Then, he related, he was removed to a cottage at Delmar lake, near Antioch, where the kidnapers demanded $25,000 ransom and heated irons in his presence while they discussed means of torturing him if he did not comply. He finally agreed, he said and negotiated for payment of $4,000 with a promise to pay the balance later.

Kopelman took the matter up with Roche and the latter persuaded him to make an appointment with the men to meet him at the gown shop of his sister, Gertrude Kopelman. Detectives were stationed across the boulevard from the shop and behind dresses in the store.

At the appointed hour, Sam Pellar, notorious gangster, entered and was faced by the muzzles of shotguns. Other officers seized the men in the cab and nine more were taken at their apartments in various parts of the city.

FEDERAL GOVT. SURPLUS CONTINUES TO DWINDLE

If Congress Votes $100,000,000 Additional For the Farm Board, As Requested By President Hoover, the Surplus Will Be Reduced to $45,000,000—Treasury Officials Are Watching to See If the Stock Market Crash Will Adversely Affect Tax Receipts.

WASHINGTON, March 8.— (AP) — With a dwindling surplus in government revenue indicated for the end of the present fiscal year, treasury officials are watching closely the first quarters tax on 1929 measures to determine whether receipts in President Hoover's first full fiscal year will be adversely affected by the stock market collapse of last fall.

The surplus of $225,000,000 indicated when the executive submitted his first budget to congress last December already has been reduced. If congress grants the president's request made Saturday for $100,000,000 additional for the farm board, the surplus will be further reduced to $45,000,000.

This margin between a deficit and a surplus is so small that even with income tax payments as great as received last year it would be wiped out, and the larger receipts expected before the collapse would be required to balance the budget.

The indicated surplus of $225,000,000 first was reduced $80,000,000 by the one per cent tax reduction granted in normal tax on 1929 incomes by congress. The total cut was $160,000,000 but half of it will be in the 1931 fiscal year.

If the March and June payments only equal last year's the total for the twelve months will amount to $2,310,000,000 or $164,000,000 less than the $2,480,000,000 that the treasury estimated it would receive from that source. If this drop in the collections should materialize, it would, together with the loss of $80,000,000 through the tax reduction and the $100,000,000 additional for the farm board, wipe out the surplus and leave a deficit of approximately $120,000,000.

Treasury officials have declined to predict the total of the March income tax payments but they hope they will be large enough to prevent a deficit. If the collections are greater than last year, they will take it as an indication that the June payments also will be larger than those of last June and that the threat to a balanced budget will have been removed.

The treasury has estimated expenditures this year at $4,023,000,000 and receipts $4,249,000,000. For the first eight months to March 4, expenditures were $2,606,000,000, and receipts only $2,388,000,000, leaving a present deficit of $217,000,000 which will be wiped out by the income tax receipts this month.

Treasury officials also have another worry from the standpoint of revenue. Customs receipts have declined $16,000,000 in the first eight months of the fiscal year as compared with the previous year and on March 4 totaled $400,652,000.

Miscellaneous tax receipts, however, have shown an increase of $19,000,000 totaling $422,000,000.

While the income taxes for the first quarter must be paid by midnight next Saturday, it will be toward the end of the month before they are tabulated sufficiently to give an indication of what the total will be.

SENATE WILL RENEW BATTLE ON TARIFF BILL THIS WEEK

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(AP)— Faced by an ever-changing majority, the senate will resume work on the tariff bill this week with virtually all the important industrial rates hanging in the balance.

The old coalition of democrats and republican independents, which won almost every important contest in the last six months of debate only to run up against a new majority in the last week on sugar and cement, will be found maneuvering to regain three losses and to prevent further inroads on the bill they have rewritten.

The revived republican old guard devoted the week end to a drive to retain the sugar increase and the duty on cement, now a free list commodity, both of which are to be put to a further vote on demand of the old coalition.

FOUR PERSONS INJURED BY EXPOSION OF GAS

CHICAGO, March 9.—(AP)—Four persons were seriously injured tonight in an explosion of gas which wrecked a grocery store on the North Side. A clerk, blown through a display window, suffered injuries which may prove fatal.

Fire department officials said defective wiring had ignited a pocket of gas in the basement of the store and estimated the loss at $50,000.

The explosion wrecked the store building, did extensive damage to a building in the rear and shattered windows for a block around. A minor fire followed the explosion, but it was quickly extinguished by firemen.

PROVISIONAL GOVT. FOR HAITI IS APPROVED BY HOOVER

HINCHE, Haiti, March 9.— (AP) — President Hoover's investigating committee, stopping here for the first night on their trip through inland Haiti, tonight announced that the president had approved their plan for a provisional government in Haiti.

The plan has also been personally approved by President Louis Borno.

Though the commission's formal statement does not mention the fact, it is known that the plan includes the ultimate replacement of the American military high commissioner, Brigadier General John H. Russell by a civilian minister of the diplomatic service after negotiations for a new treaty to replace the present one have been completed.

President Hoover's approval of the plan was received here this afternoon, and it is believed that his assent has solved the Haitian problem. The commissioners said that they hoped to see Haiti back on a constitutional basis of peace again within a period of three months.

It is now considered certain that negotiations to end the American occupation of the island will begin within a short time.

Leaders of the groups opposing President Borno declared they believed the people would be well satisfied.

Under the plan, President Borno will serve out his term, which ends May 15. On that day his council of state will elect as provisional president the man chosen by the delegates of the various groups assembled at the capital.

The provisional president will then take office, and the council of state will cease to function, unless the president wants to choose his own council.

FATALLY WOUNDED IN FIGHT WITH GANGSTERS

AKRON, Ohio, March 9.—(AP)—Patrolman Harlan F. Manes, 33, whose injuries in a fight with gangsters yesterday preceded the capture of two gangsters and a nest armament, died today while Chief of Detectives McDonnell sought to identify the two captives.

McDonnell was working on the theory that the gangsters had come here to "put somebody on the spot."

One of the men, who was wounded by the patrolman and who gave his name as Frank Schultz, 35, of Chicago, and St. Louis, was believed to be a member of "Egan's Rats," a gang organized in St. Louis by Fred Burke, who is sought over the nation as a participant in the Chicago St. Valentine's day massacre. The other gangster gave his name as Bob Randell, alias Bert Walker, 28, of St. Louis.

In his investigation, McDonnell sent photographs and finger prints to St. Louis police to make identification positive.

FEAR RAINFALL MAY CAUSE CLIFFS TO TOPPLE

FUNCHAL, Madeira, March 9.—(AP)— Fearing that the sodden cliffs encircling Madeira may topple over over as a result of the heavy rainfall during the past 48 hours, all residents near the foot of the precipices have been evacuated.

The storm which broke over the island Friday night, continued unabated today, causing much suffering from exposure and want among the poorer classes. The gale blew with such violence that all seacraft were compelled to leave the beaches for sheltered spots. One hundred and eighty tourists from the liner Alurentic were unable to get aboard the vessel, and spent another night ashore.

TAXPAYERS MARSHALING FORCE FOR TONIGHT'S TOWN MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, March 9.—The taxpayers of Windham, bent on ascertaining the whys and wherefores of various appropriations and expenditures by the town government, continued today to marshal formidable forces for the special town meeting Monday night. There is promise that there will be something doing at this special meeting other than its specific purpose of levying a tax rate on the 1929 grand list.

The taxpayers, to the number of about 400, have formally organized into a Taxpayers' Protective association with the following permanent officers: Dr. George E. Wilcox, president; former First Selectman James M. Smith, vice president; Michael L. Falvey, secretary and Eucion J. Dion, treasurer.

In his speech of acceptance of the presidency of the association, Dr. Wilcox, who as an assessor, took a major part in the town revaluation in 1912, expressed the objectives of the organization as follows: "We all believe in good government and as good citizens and taxpayers we want to pay our just bills, but we do not want to pay those that have been unwisely contracted or for projects not needed. We must not copy things that rich cities and towns have because we cannot afford them and henceforth those that we elect to the offices of our city and town government should have the interest of the town and city at heart and keep expenses down. We are the people that pay the bills. We want to be square. We must stand back of the organization and its aims. This organization can do a wonderful lot of good and we should have had it years ago. We will have to see to it the future that money derived from taxation is spent only with a view of economy."

Several of the speakers at the organization meeting criticized the work of the Cleminshaw Municipal Service company of Hartford, in the methods used for front foot land values on certain streets. It was stated that many properties were assessed beyond what they ever could bring in the open market. Attention was also called to an apparent discrepancy in which certain residential properties were doubled in value while the average increase for the entire town was 30 per cent.

The budget for the year 1929-'30 amounts to $402,700, an increase of about $65,000 over the previous year. The indication is that the same tax rate of 14 mills that prevailed last year will have to be levied again this year despite the fact that the revaluation has brought an increase of more than $6,000,000 in the grand list. This has led to an opinion that the budget should be "overhauled."

Since the revaluation of 1911 which was done by the regular town assessors holding office that year, the tax rate figures yearly has been as follows: 1911, five mills; 1916, seven mills; 1921, 11 mills; 1926, 14 1-2 mills; 1929, 14 mills.

Selectman Buck's Statement.

In a statement issued Saturday First Selectman William A. Buck sets forth the items which brought about an increase of about $65,000 in the town budget this year. Selectman Buck points out that in the year ending 1928, the selectmen failed to include in their budget the county tax which was $23,-333.57, also a budget for interest on the floating indebtedness or town notes which amounted to about $25,000. The increases listed follow: Interest on floating indebtedness, $25,000; increase for state and county taxes, $11,000; increase for retirement of bonds, $10,000; increase for schools, $9,000; increase for highways, $5,500; increase for assessing and collecting taxes, $10,000; increase for selectmen's office, $700; increase for bridges, $2,000. Appropriations made in addition to the regular budget include: $18,000 revaluation; $8,000 Marden Field; $13,000 state aid road; $6,500 North Windham school; $13,000, high school. The floating indebtedness of the town now exceeds $500,000. A number of these notes amounting to about $200,000, have been running for from 4 to 10 years at 4 per cent. The balance is from 5 3-4 to 5 per cent. The annual increase in the indebtedness is laid to the failure of the selectmen in past years to submit a budget which would cover current expenses and fixed charges; also not making a tax levy that would cover even an inadequate budget and provide a fund for special appropriations. First Selectman Buck recommends that the floating indebtedness be bonded, the bonds to be sold now on a basis of 4 1-2 per cent, meaning a saving of several thousand dollars each year. The estimated revenue of the town from sources other than taxation is placed at $100,000.

Interest is rapidly gaining momentum here in the proposal to stage a community reunion here during commencement week next June from the 14th to the 20th inclusive. Allen B. Lincoln, who was responsible for the great reunion in 1915, said in an interview today that a community reunion was based on two familiar sayings: "That there are no friends like the old friends and that there is no town like the old home town." In pointing to another influence worth mentioning, Mr. Lincoln said: "Prior to the similar celebration in 1915, we sent out over 2000 questionnaires to former residents and pupils and among the questions was one asking what was going on in school days that is most valued today. There were 400 replies giving the one word, 'friendship.'"

The plan as outlined by Mr. Lincoln is to follow along the lines of the 1915 event by sending out a call to everyone who ever lived here or whose ancestors lived here or who attended school or had business or church relations in the city, to return and join those of their own time and others in a genuine home-coming and reunion. It is proposed to rally around the four essential institutions of community life. These are: The home, where life begins; the church, where life is consecrated; the school, where life is trained, and the civil government, where life is ordered and guarded.

"We may say to those who are coming," continued Mr. Lincoln, "bring back some helpful messages from your life's experiences and we hope that you also may find some new inspiration from old scenes and old memories. Tell us what you have found out in the world as compared to the early influences of home, church, school and local civic pride. Amid all the petty talk of 'Babbitism' and 'mid-Victorian' simplicity in these so-called modern, but really reactionary days, what better inspiration have you found elsewhere in the world of whatever race or creed than sincere devotion to noble ideals?"

The tentative program, modelled after that of 1915, includes the following features: Saturday, June 14, Observance of Flag day, in conjunction with a public celebration of the day by the Elks.

Sunday, June 15: Special services in the churches during the day and Sunday evening, a public mass meeting, probably in the state armory. The theme of this gathering will be The Home and The Church. There will be representative speakers, musical numbers, big chorus, Negro spirituals, with representatives of all the churches as special guests.

Monday, June 16: Registration day. Group plan, probably registering at the chamber of commerce with information as to where the headquarters of the group are located. Groups will consist of contemporaries.

Tuesday and Wednesday, June 17 and 18: Group reunions, home and school; open churches, family groups, fraternities. Automobiles will be available to visit old time scenes. There will probably be games in the afternoon and in the evening a public reception at the Elks' home and grounds.

Thursday, June 19: The big day. Civic demonstration, parade or pageant. Address by some noted speaker (President Taft spoke at the 1915 reunion). Special themes, Education and Government.

Friday, June 20: School reunions, rallying around former teachers. Headquarters at the high school building in the afternoon. In the evening a school banquet in the Nathan Hale hotel. The "Old Natchaugers" will hand The Torch of the High School Spirit to "The Beede-ites," and bid them carry on. Then farewell until 1940.

These suggestions as to the general plan will be presented at the meeting of representative committees to be held in the chamber of commerce rooms next Tuesday evening. Justice George E. Hinman will be chairman of this meeting during which names will be submitted for the general and special committees.

DANIELSON

POLICE INVESTIGATE ORIGIN OF FIRE IN AUTOMOBILE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, March 9.—Some few days ago the fire department was called out one evening to subdue a fire that was burning up an automobile that was standing in a yard near the Pellett property on North Main street. Now the fire is a matter under investigation by state officers. It appears that several children were playing about near the car just before the machine started to burn, and it is possible that they may know something how the fire started. The car was one that Ray Pellett purchased some time since in the course of his regular dealings in used cars. The former owner had the car covered by fire insurance, which expired three days after the car was damaged by fire. Mr. Pellett is understood not to have had any fire insurance on the machine.

Boy Run Over By Car.

Scooting down the concrete walk leading from the main entrance to the Westfield Congregational church, Alfred Dragon, a boy resident on Railroad street and son of Mrs. George Dragon, apparently lost control of his roller skates Saturday afternoon, shot across the sidewalk and out into the street, to be run over by an automobile driven by Winfield Colwell, resident here. The right front wheel of the machine, which was being driven northward along Main street, passed over the boy's left leg, and when Mr. Colwell, who was driving slowly, stopped the car, the boy was found under the running board. After being given treatment by Dr. F. P. Todd, the boy was removed to his home. He sustained no broken bones and, apparently, no other major injury. The accident was investigated by Chief John McFarland.

PUTNAM

RACETTE ARRESTED FOR VIOLATING TAXI LICENSE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, March 9.—Peter Racette of Bridge street, who conducts an automobile livery service was arrested today by State Officer George Martin of the Danielson barracks on a charge of illegally operating a taxi service. Racette, who is operating a chain of cabs registered with "O" markers was under suspicion of the state police of carrying on a taxi business which he is not permitted to do under the circumstances of his license.

In order to prove their contentions, the state police assigned Officer Martin to the case. Coming to Putnam he engaged Racette's service and took a drive. Satisfied that the man was violating the law governing taxi operation, Officer Martin ordered his driver to stop, paid the fare and informed Racette that he was under arrest. Officer Martin was dressed in plain clothes and his being a policeman was not in the least suspected by the cab driver who fell an easy victim of the scheme to ensnare him. He will be arraigned in the city court Tuesday morning to answer for charges.

PUTNAM, March 9.—Judge Louis O. Rieutord of Southbridge, in the first district court at Webster Saturday morning after a hearing, found sufficient evidence to warrant the holding of Leon A. Trudeau, 26, of 20 Pearl street, Webster, for appearance before the grand jury of Worcester county in May, on a charge of murdering his wife, Cecilia (Manski) Trudeau. Although successful in having Trudeau bound over, the state failed in its effort to incriminiate Miss Lena Wieczek, 17 year old Worcester girl, and accordingly charges of being an accessory after the fact were dismissed. However, Judge Rieutord ordered that she be held as a material witness. Her release was effected after she posted bonds of $1000.

The lower court hearing Saturday constituted the preliminary round of one of the most sensational criminal cases in the history of Southern Worcester county. From early morning until after the prisoners were escorted to automobiles outside the court house, throngs jammed the streets in hopes of obtaining a glimpse of the two principals of the murder case.

The state opened the case at nine o'clock in the morning when a general outline of the investigation was presented by District Attorney Edwin G. Norman of Worcester. Several witnesses were introduced by the state and at noon the panel still contained several more names of persons who had experiences to relate to the court in connection with the state's part of the case. A recess was taken at one o'clock and at 2.45 Judge Rieutord returned his decision, binding Trudeau over to the grand jury and freeing Miss Wieczek.

Attorney Norman on learning the outcome of the case made a vain effort to convince the court tha the 17 year old sweetheart of the alleged murderer had been in company with Trudeau from 10 o'clock on the night of the murder until the following day and because of her intimacy with the defendant must have known what had transpired. He also cited many of her own admissions made while in the police grill on the day of her arrest.

Trudeau will be presented to the grand jury in May and if an indictment is returned against him will probably go to trial in June in superior court in Worcester.

From all appearances the state of Connecticut has given up hope of converting the murder into a Connecticut case, appearing to be satisfied with the proceedings being taken by the neighboring state of Massachusetts. During the past week police discontinued efforts to substantiate the theory that Mrs. Trudeau was murdered on the deserted Wieczek farm in Willsonville, Conn.

A neighbor's night program will be held Monday evening at the meeting of Putnam grange to be held in Odd Fellows' hall on Pomfret street. Local grangers will be hosts to visitors from the Killingly and Senexet granges.

The fact that 16 cans of brown trout, a rare species of inland water fish have been emptied in the waters of Mashomoquet brook in Pomfret and Five Mile river brook in Thompson should be incentive for northeastern Connecticut anglers to fish these streams at the opening of the season in April. Brown trout have not been plentiful in this section in many years. The two streams were stocked a season ago by members of the Northeastern Connecticut Fish and Game club of this city. It will be remembered that a premium of $1 per pound is offered to the fisherman catching brown trout in Windham county waters in season.

Mayor Charles A. Richard left his sick room at his home on Main street today for the first time in nearly a month. For about an hour's time the city's chief executive enjoyed the mid-day sunshine and was allowed to stroll along lower Main street. JEWETT CITY

MRS. EDWARD F. BURLESON DIES AT HER HOME IN LISBON

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, March 9.—Mrs. Roberta Hallam Burleson died at her home in Sylvandale, Lisbon, Saturday afternoon, after an extended period of ill health. Mrs. Burleson was the daughter of Rev. Isaac Williams Hallam and Nancy Hallam, and was born in Lynn, Mass. She married Edward Fanning Burleson Oct. 31, 1876, in St. Mark's Episcopal church, New Canaan, Conn. Her home has been in Jewett City and Lisbon for years. She was a member of Anne Brewster Fanning chapter, D. A. R., and had served as its regent. Mrs. Burleson's chief interest was in her home and family, and she received the most devoted attention from them all her life, especially since her illness. She is survived by her husband; three daughters, May Hallam Burleson of East Orange, N. J., Jean Courtney Burleson of Lisbon, Mrs. Richard H. Meyer of New Britain; a son, Charles Allen Burleson, and grandson, Charles Allen, Jr., of Erie, Pa., and a sister, Miss Anne Courtney Hallam, of New Canaan.

APPROPRIATION MODERATE FOR BENEFITS RESULTING

This (Monday) afternoon the town is to be called upon to appropriate $3,000 for the purpose of equipping the new Quinebaug viaduct with cement standards, lighting fixtures and wire conduits, which cannot be provided after the roadway and foot walk are once completed. F. H. Gilbert, himself a contractor, in a recent talk with Commissioner McDonald, learned that it was possible that people of Jewett City hardly realized at this early stage of the construction what a beautiful structure the Quinebaug viaduct is to be. The lighting system will be an outstanding feature. Contractor M. A. Gammino of Providence declares that his company is prepared to omit no effort or equipment to make this great bridge a model of excellence, beauty, and strength. The merchants and property owners of the borough are a unit for favorable action in the meeting today. Warden E. J. Jodoin said Sunday that after the fixtures were erected, the borough of Jewett City undoubtedly would take care of the illuminating part, along with its regular lighting system. E. S. Hiscox, superintendent of the borough light and power plant, is ready to furnish the electric light commission facts relative to an independent circuit and transformer system which will apply to the bridge alone. First Selectman Daniel F. Finn is of the opinion that the appropriation will be a wise expenditure and a permanent benefit.

FUNERALS

Simon Brewster

Largely attended funeral services for Simon Brewster were held Sunday afternoon at the homestead where he was born, 80 years ago. In the assemblage were relatives and neighbors, with many friends from the farming districts of the town and from the borough of Jewett City. The services were conducted by Rev. Harold Arnold, pastor of the First Congregational church, Griswold. Following the reading of passages of scripture, the pastor told of the long, busy life, which after four score years had been brought to the final chapter, under the same roof where it began. In closing, the pastor read impressively Tennyson's Crossing the Bar. Among those present were a number who had known Mr. Breswster for more than half a century. They spoke of many changes, but in the main the homestead surroundings were altered in but few particulars, with everywhere to be noted evidences of the untiring energy and steady thrift of Griswold's master farmer. Floral remembrances of rare beauty filled one side of the large room. The bearers were Willis C. Terry, Elmer Miller, Frank Burton, Arthur Frink, Theophile Pepin and Joseph Roode. Burial was in Pachaug cemetery. Relatives and friends were present from Holyoke, Mass., Philadelphia, Pleasantville, N. Y., Westerly, Mamaroneck, Central Village, Providence, Taunton, Bridgeport, Norwich and Preston.

George G. Grant of Taftville was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Needless Pain!

People are often too patient with pain. Suffering when there is no need to suffer. Shopping with a head that throbs. Working though they ache all over.

And Bayer Aspirin would bring immediate relief!

The best time to take Bayer Aspirin is the moment you first feel the pain. Why postpone relief until the pain has reached its height? Why hesitate to take anything so harmless?

Read the proven directions for checking colds, easing a sore throat; relieving headaches and the pains of neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatism, etc.

You can always count on its quick comfort. But if pain is of frequent recurrence see a doctor as to its cause.

Used Father John's Medicine For Twenty Years For Colds and When We Were Run Down

"We have been using Father John's Medicine now for over twenty years; before that my own mother gave it to me when I was a little girl," writes Mrs. Leo A. Gilbert, 636 Rimmon street, Manchester, N. H.

"Whenever we were run down or had a cold we always used our remedy and now I am the mother of seven children and I keep it at hand all the time because I think there is no better or safer remedy."

THREE GIRLS FOLLOW DAD'S STEPS; ALL PREPARE FOR MEDICAL CAREER

All three daughters of Dr. W. F. Marting (above), Ironton, O., physician plan to join his hospital. Anna (below), has finished school, while Miriam (left) and Esther (right) have yet to complete preparatory studies.

IRONTON, Ohio, March 9—(AP)—In the family of Dr. William F. Marting it is "like father, like daughter."

His three girls are following his footsteps in the practice of medicine.

The eldest, Anna, 27, is practicing here, independent of her father. Miriam, 24, is an interne in Cincinnati, and Esther, 21, is completing her work at the college of medicine, University of Cincinnati.

Mrs. Marting is a registered nurse and assists her husband in his hospital here.

When the three girls have completed their apprenticeship, they will join their father. He then hopes to realize an ambition to have a clinic operated by himself and the three daughters.

The girls were reared in a two-story frame dwelling adjoining the hospital. They grew up wanting to be "like daddy."

Anna went to college in 1921 and seven years later led the medical class at the University of Cincinnati, receiving the famous Stella Feiss Hoffheimer memorial. She also received the highest grade of 208 taking the Ohio medical examination that year.

Miriam will complete her interneship this year. Esther has two more years in college and one as an interne before she can return to complete the quartet of doctors.

The father, also is a police justice, conducting a court at night. He is president of the Central Tri-State Medical association and of the Chesapeake and Ohio surgeons' association.

Gayness Of Mrs. Hoover Revealed At Club Breakfast In Her Honor

WASHINGTON, March 9—(AP)—A new phase of the personality of Mrs. Herbert Hoover was revealed at the Congressional club breakfast in her honor.

It was a gay and informal affair and Mrs. Hoover promptly adapted herself to it. In contrast with the formality demanded of her at official state functions, her smile and manner took on the glow of her surroundings.

She listened attentively to a program given by Rudy Vallee's orchestra and applauded at its conclusion. She delighted sleekhaired Jules De Vorzon, first violinist, by complying with his request for her autograph in his album.

She caused Vallee to flush with pleasure by posing with him and Mrs. Porter Dale, president of the club, before a battery of cameras.

"Boys, you know I don't like closeups," she said, "but if you want to take me just chatting informally, go ahead."

Prior to the time Rudy stepped before the microphone the stately "hall of the Americas" in the Pan-American union building was a place of humming voices, gay raiment and spring flowers.

With the first music the place became like a huge bouquet from which the bees have departed. The color was there, but the buzzing had ceased.

Mrs. Hoover arrived promptly at noon and chatted throughout the breakfast with Mrs. Dale and Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur, wife of the secretary of the interior, who were seated on either side of her. She wore a green and black flowered chiffon velvet and small black hat.

NATIONAL BUSINESS WOMEN HAVE SPECIAL WEEK

The spotlight of publicity will focus upon the achievements of business women in 1,100 communities during the week of March 10 to 16, which will be observed throughout the country as National Business Women's week.

The purpose of Business Women's week is to bring before the public the achievements of pioneer business women, and to point out the increasingly important contribution which women are making to the commercial and professional life of the day.

CHILD'S HOME TRAINING KEY TO SCHOOL ATTITUDE

WASHINGTON, March 9—(AP)—Homes are often responsible for the aversion which some children feel toward school and its demands, in the opinion of Mrs. A. H. Reeve of Philadelphia, president of the International Federation of Home and School.

"Children are threatened at home with visits to the doctor and dentist if they don't behave," says Mrs. Reeve. "A fear of physical examinations in the school thus grows in them.

"Many children, too, are forced into vocational work for which they are not fitted because the parents have a fond vision of the child as a professional type of some kind when he grows up."

Mrs. Reeve is a member of President Hoover's school child committee working with the white house conference on child health and protection.

Decorate for President.

WASHINGTON, March 9—(AP)—Decorations sent from California especially for the occasion were used at a dinner given in honor of the President and Mrs. Hoover by Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur.

BETTER AMERICAN DISHES GOAL OF OHIO'S RESEARCH

COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 9—(AP)—The American dish is to be improved.

Realizing that dishes are as much a part of art as sculpturing, the division of ceramic art at Ohio State university is studying methods of improving them. The purpose is for better design and decoration of whiteware or tableware made in this nation so that the use of foreign dishes will be reduced.

The university has granted $8,000 for research in ceramic designing.

REDUCE POLKA DOTS TO PIN HEAD SIZE

PARIS, March 9—(AP)—This spring's fashionable polka dot is reduced to pinhead size.

Dotted and spotted hard finish woolens in black and navy blue are used for many coat dresses and dress and short jacket ensembles.

Blue and white, black and white and combinations of dark colors and lemon dots are preferred.

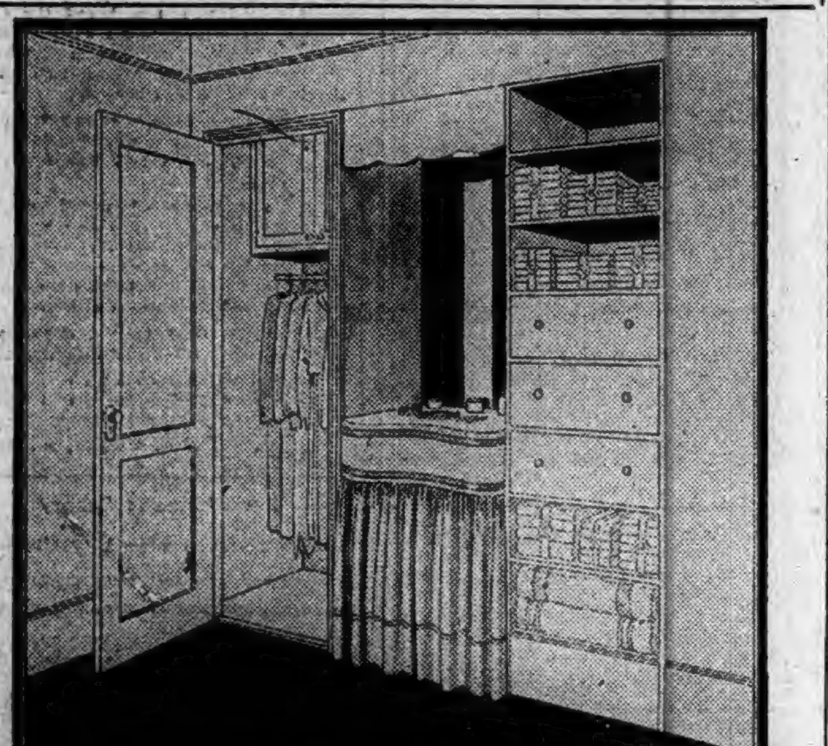
TEACHERS SEEK CENSOR TO TRIM YANKEE SLANG

MELBOURNE, Australia, March 9 (AP)—The annual conference of school teachers decided to request the federal and state governments to impose a stricter censorship of American talking pictures.

"Some of the American slang we hear in the talkies actually amounts to obscenity," said Miss M. Flynn in a violent denunciation of American talking pictures at the conference.

Other delegates said that they were convinced that the talkies were exercising a harmful influence on the speech of Australian school children.

DARK ROOM IS UTILIZED AS DRESSING NICHE



Every inch of waste space is used here

(By Elsie Drew Kennedy)

Old-fashioned houses are all very nice to look at, but when it comes to living in them—that is something else.

We are so used to plenty of light, air and modern devices that we take these things for granted. When we grow romantic and dream of old-fashioned houses, we are likely to overlook the fact that there used to be a government tax on windows, and the thrifty house-holder did with as little light and air as possible.

Hence, we moderns, trying to recapture a little of the romance of a more leisurely age, find ourselves faced with the problem of "dark rooms" when we start doing over old houses.

This "dark room" business is more of a problem to the woman who lives in a city apartment than to the woman who lives in a smaller town or in the country. If you have taken over an old house in the country, you merely pull out a few walls and add windows.

But in the city, those old brownstone houses must remain in unmitigated gloom. The "done over" apartments they contain can be done over only insofar as adding modern bathrooms and refrigerators.

One can't pull down the side of a brownstone house to add windows. And yet these same apartments often have more "atmosphere" than any of the new buildings that advertise in large letters: "light and air."

The brownstone apartment almost always has at least one "dark room." It is usually between the front and back rooms, and sometimes has been split in two by the enterprising landlord, one-half holding the bath and the other left free for a passage way. Sometimes it is just so much waste space between rooms.

In either case, it is here that by a few simple tricks of carpentry you may rig up an extra storage place for linen, an extra closet, and perhaps a dressing table for the man of the house to leave his military brushes, his clothes brush and the other appurtenances of his toilet where they won't interfere with the more feminine fripperies on the boudoir table.

The arrangement sketched here is built into the wall of a "dark room." The closet holds heavy coats, costumes not used every day, or rainy day apparel. It is a welcome overflow cache to lighten the load on a bedroom closet.

Shelves from baseboard to ceiling provide ample space for household linen, and several drawers protect the finer linen from dust. The space between may hold a mirror and petticoated dressing table for the masculine half of the family or for an occasional guest.

A bright light is hidden behind the scalloped valance, which may be made of painted beaver board or the material of the petticoat.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

A good drink for the small child is a cup of hot milk, with a teaspoonful of honey added.

When cooking string beans add a pinch of soda and they will be very tender and bright green.

Minced parsley, with a few drops of lemon juice added, makes a nice filling for a light sandwich.

To open hard-shell clams easily, pour boiling water over them and let them stand for two or three minutes.

To renew faded or slightly worn window shades, spread out flat and apply a coat of ordinary house paint.

Hot peach juice, to which a few drops of lemon juice have been added, makes a quickly prepared sauce to serve with cottage pudding.

New waffle irons should be washed with soap-suds and rinsed carefully. If this is not done the first waffles made are likely to be discolored.

Baked ham basted while cooking with a half cup of vinegar to which two tablespoons of grape juice has been added is much improved in flavor.

To make a rich brown gloss on pies beat up an egg well with a tiny bit of sugar. Add a little milk, beat well, and go over the pies with a pastry brush when ready for the oven.

When butter is too hard to spread easily, place heated bowl upside down over the butter dish for a few minutes. Heat the bowl by putting boiling water in it. This will thoroughly soften the butter without melting it.

A hanging vine can be made from a sweet potato. Put the potato in a hanging basket of pure sand or sand-loam, and water occasionally. The dark green leaves resemble a variety of ivy.

To remove shaded spots or dark and light patches that sometimes appear on plain rugs, place the spotted part of the rug over a pan of boiling water. The steam rising through the rug will straighten the nap, thus removing the shaded spots.

KEEP THESE IN MIND.

Dipping in hot water will remove melted wax from candlesticks.

Alchol will remove tar stains from cloth without making a mark.

Sprinkle talcum powder in new shoes and your feet will not burn.

Use a fine knitting needle to test baking or boiling fruits and vegetables.

Thinly sliced mild cheese and applesauce make a good sandwich filling.

PICKLED PEACHES.

Nothing is finer to garnish fried chicken, lamb chops or breaded veal cutlet than pickled peaches.

CLEAN LEMONS.

Before grating lemons be sure to wash them thoroughly. Often what appears as a black stain is a collection of minute insect eggs.

CHEESE TARTS.

With leftover bits of pie crust, cut thin, small, round little tarts and fill with cream cheese and jelly when they are baked.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Toothbrushes should be frequently dipped in boiling water to disinfect them.

An excellent hair tonic can be made by mixing one ounce of the best castor oil, two ounces of French brandy, and two ounces of Bay Rum.

Biting the lips coarsens and thickens them. It is a disfiguring habit which you want to overcome. It will take will power and plenty of it, but it can be done.

To prevent callouses on the hands, caused by sweeping, cover the upper half of the broom handle with any soft material. Sew firmly, tack the lower end of the material to the broom, and the covering will not come off.

DRY SKIN.

To overcome the dryness of the skin on your hands mix corn meal with castile soap and warm water, and wash the hands with this mixture. Then rub in a little olive oil. You may also massage the hands with a good cold cream several times during the day.

ROUGH SKIN.

For rough skin on the arms apply a bland oil with sufficient frequency to keep the skin soft and pliable. For chapped hands a mixture of equal parts of camphor and glycerin, massaged into them several times a day, is most effective.

FLOWER TOUCH.

If you have little money for home decorations, buy single flower vases at the 5 and 10-cent stores and purchase just a few daffodils, roses or carnations. Place vases at either side of the table and the effect will be pleasing.

GOLD FISH.

You can buy a bunch of green for your goldfish for a dime. It comes with roots so will grow in the bowl. They love to play around it and nibble often.

ATTRACTIVE RUGS.

Old silk stockings crocheted with strips of cotton or woolen materials in bright colors make attractive rugs. Cut strips an inch wide, cutting crosswise, not lengthwise, to prevent raveling and crochet with a wooden hook.

FURNITURE SCRATCHES.

The best way to treat scratches on furniture is to apply a tixture of beeswax and turpentine, the former melted in the turpentine until it is as thick as strup. Pour a little onto a piece of woolen cloth and rub it well into the scratched part. Then polish quickly with dry flannel and the marks will almost disappear.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

The pajama with a fitted cape in place of a coat is a novelty.

The cowl neckline is frequently seen in spring dress collections.

Woven pearl collars, bracelets and bands are among the new jewelry novelties.

One of the interesting spring color schemes is navy combined with lemon yellow.

Bows placed on shoulder, wrist and sometimes hips are again a fashion feature.

Pale gray combined with either pale blue or pink is a delicate color scheme worth watching.

Fabric hats, still including tweed, remain an important millinery note. Spring hats are usually brimmed.

Blouses in tiny printed motifs are engaging the attention of the smartly dressed. These are worn with either a jacket, or a cape ensemble.

LATEST COLORS STRESS CHIC.

The smartest daytime shades for those who have to use color for slimming are black with white or pink, bottle green, Patou's purple dahlia—the dark one—dark brown with any becoming light shade for trimming, navy blue, and dark red.

The thin sisters should choose softer, lighter colors, and there are many new grays, bright reds, coppery greens, light dahlia, bright or pastel blue, beige, and brown, with capucine, green, white, yellow, or red. Venuses may choose colors for complexion only. Amyethyst is a very new shade that looks like a winner.

LATEST NOVELTY IN LINGERIE.

A novelty in nightgowns made of milky rose satin, has as its only ornament a large patch pocket of pleated crepe de chine in rose, blue and green to match the narrow ribbon belt of the same colors. A pale green chiffon handkerchief goes with the pocket.

PARIS DESIGNS NEW SPRING HAT

The newest hat is worn on one side of the head only, which leaves the other side either beautifully coiffured or not as the case may be. Jaunty as the little hat appears on a jaunty head, nothing is more dreadful on a head not perfectly coiffured.

RUBY GEORGETTE.

A printed georgette negligee, with frilled flounces, front closing and wide cuffs, has all its edges of ruby colored georgette.

LAUNDRY HINTS

To clean satin slippers, rub them with a cloth dipped in a little alcohol to which a few drops of lemon juice have been added.

Socks and stockings will dry far more quickly if the hand is run through them all the way to the toe to thoroughly separate them after washing.

Chocolates and cocoa stains will come out of linen if soaked in a strong solution of borax and water for about a day.

Egg stains will come out of linen if soaked in cold water before laundering. They can be removed from silk materials by rubbing with table salt.

To clean a light felt hat, make a paste of powdered magnesia and water and brush it well into the felt. When thoroughly dried, remove with a stiff, clean brush.

TO LAUNDER HOSIERY

An important factor in laundering hosiery is to first of all be sure that all runs and holes are properly darned, as they are apt to enlarge in washing. Next turn them inside out, being sure that you have removed your rings. Laundering articles on the wrong side helps them to retain that original sheen. Put the stockings into lukewarm suds, squeeze lightly, rinse thoroughly and roll into towel. Remove and pull foot lengthwise into original shape and be sure that all wrinkles have been patted out.

MAKES IRON GLIDE

A bar of soap run around the dish of starch while it is hot, or a little paraffin, scraped into the hot starch, will prevent the iron sticking to starched clothes.

SOILED CUFFS

Boys' shirts should have their cuff and collars soaped well and scrubbed with a brush before they are put into the washing machine.

SAVING SOAP

When the soap at the kitchen sink gets worn thin, attach it to a new cake with a rubber band, then use as one cake. Usually after serving at dish washing for a day, the old and new cakes are firmly adhered and the band may be removed. This method eliminates the trouble of using up broken bits of soap.

SHELLACING PAPER

Bathroom paper can be made doubly attractive and long-lived by shellacing it when new. Use clear shellac and let dry thoroughly before you steam it up with hot water.

One of the seven wonders of Florida is the Royal Palm park, in Dade county, developed by the State Federation of Women's clubs.

Among the day laborers in Japan, coolies who do the heavy work of excavation, carrying and the like, nearly a fourth are women, 427,000 out of a total of 1,900,000.

Girls in Tunis, Algeria, are obliged to veil their faces at the age of 12, and women are locked in by their husbands when they leave for the day's work.

Mrs. Anna Laskey, a gray-haired mother who served three terms in the Oklahoma house of representatives, is a member of the freshman class at the University of Oklahoma.

RECIPES

Raspberry Fluff—A quick and delicate dessert is made by beating whites of eggs and fresh raspeberries together. Keep a few whole berries out to top the dish with. Sweeten the last thing.

Raisin Ginger Cake: Cream one cup of sugar with half a cup of shortening and add two well beaten eggs and one cup of dark molasses. Sift two and one-half cups of flour with two teaspoons of baking powder, one teaspoon each of cinnamon and ginger, two teaspoons of cocoa, adding alternately with three-fourths cup of sweet milk. Beat thoroughly, then add one cup of seedless rasins, and one-fourth cup of coconut, which have been dredged in flour. Bake in a moderate oven for 45 minutes. Serve with the following sauce:

Boil for a minute half a cup of sugar with half a cup of water, one tablespoon of flour, one-fourth cup of fruit juice and one tablespoon of sirup or maple flavoring. Serve this sauce on the cake.

Capital's Season At Peak For Wives Of Diplomats

Madam Paul Claudel (left), wife of the French ambassador, Madam Santiago Bedoya (right), wife of the first secretary in the Peruvian legation and Madam Wu, wife of the Chinese ambassador, are interesting women of the diplomatic corps, now in Washington's social limelight.

WASHINGTON, March 9—(AP)—Wives of diplomats are in the limelight now because of President and Mrs. Hoover's first dinner to the diplomats and the reception to them, probably in the near future.

Departure of Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador, and his wife, Lady Isabelle Howard, has been the occasion also for many diplomatic functions in which foreign wives of heads of various governments have played a conspicuous part.

Smart gowns from Paris, Vienna and Buenos Aires, full dress uniforms of the world's armies, will be reflected in the mirror-like floor of the famous east room of the white house when the diplomatic reception is given. The scarlet-coated marine band always plays, adding a fine note of color.

Two interesting women of the diplomatic group are Madame Paul Claudel, wife of the French ambassador, and Madame Chao-Chu-Wu, wife of the Chinese minister. Both have traveled much, and speak several different languages.

Before her marriage to the distinguished post-diplomat Madame Cauldel was Mlle. Reine Sainte-Marie-Perrin of Lyon. The Claudels have five children. They came direct to Washington from Tokyo.

Madame Wu spent last summer in China. The eight Wu children are being carefully educated under private instructors. There are three sons and five daughters, the eldest Miss Yin Chong, aged 19.

Madame Santiago Bedoya, wife of the first secretary of the Peruvian legation, is one of the noted beauties of the diplomatic set.

SLEEVES SEEM SPRY THIS SPRING IN PARIS

PARIS, March 9—(AP)—Unhappy is the gal who uses a tape measure to fix the bottom of her skirt and forgets the importance of sleeve lengths.

Sleeves also have their ups and downs in the spring scheme. There is more up than down to morning and noontime sleeves. The down occurs, in general, or formal afternoon dresses.

Sport dresses are sleeveless, in general, or have a cap sleeve which ends midway of shoulder and elbow.

Informal daytime dresses of wool, silk or cotton, make a point of cape collars which replace cap sleeves or have rudimentary bell sleeves, which are flared to give the cape collar line.

Half sleeves, which wrap and tie above the elbow are, semi-formal afternoon style. Formal afternoon dresses go to one extreme or the other. Either they are sleeveless or have long sleeves, frequently elaborate.

Tailored sleeves in their newest and smartest form, come two inches short of reaching the top of the hand.

Many of the new short jackets which accompany the spring enemble, have half or three quarter sleeves.

Simulated half-sleeves or oversleeves atop full length sleeves are a feature of many cloth suits and coats of silk or wool.

FIDO STEPS OUT IN VIVID COLORS

LONDON, March 9—(AP)—Bright color forms the keynote of spring fashions for Fido in London.

The new canine jackets seen at London's latest dog show were of decidedly brilliant hue, complete with pockets wherein reposed tiny handkerchiefs bearing the pups' initials.

Bows will not be worn this season, except by the very youngest flapper puppies.

The military note was particularly dominant for the terriers, most of them sporting scarlet and blue jackets with gold braid.

Business Women to Europe

NEW YORK, March 9—(AP)—Twenty-eight women have enrolled for the good will tour to Europe of the national federation of business and professional women this summer. Many more are expected to attend the first international meeting in Geneva.

Women Try for Police Jobs

BERLIN, March 9—(AP)—Eight candidates pass the first civil service examination held in Berlin for women police detectives.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Tempting Him

When our children steal it is we who are guilty.

We leave loose change about and we are shocked when we find that Johnny has been appropriating it to buy candy.

We have never explained that the money was not, like food and furniture, community property.

We dispose of his toys to a brother or a playmate and are surprised when he makes free with the contents of our bureau drawers. We let him learn that all sorts of delightful things are to be had for money and then we give him no money of his own to spend.

When he comes home from play with a strange toy we perhaps make no real effort to find out where it came from or to restore it to its owner. We let him keep for his own use the plaything to which he has, to say the least, a doubtful right. If he finds money we let him keep it.

Honesty with respect to property is not a natural trait but one which must be painstakingly taught and gradually learned. Respect your child's property. Let him dispose of his own toys. Do not force him to give or to share.

Don't "borrow" one child's clothes to put on another. Don't leave loose change about the house. Don't send him to your purse for money when he asks for it. Never open his purse or search his private belongings.

As soon as he is old enough to want to spend give him a regular, fixed allowance, even if it is only a few cents a week. See to it that he has plenty of attractive playthings so there will be no temptation to appropriate the toys of other children.

If he finds money let him put it in a box for charity.

COOK WITH 'NEEDLE' PARIS EXPERT URGES

PARIS, March 9—(AP)—Flavoring and fattening meats by injections should be common kitchen practice instead of a laboratory stunt, says Dr. A. Gauducheau, head of the Technical School of Foods.

His method is to macerate in oil or melted butter some pounded garlic or onion, salt and aromatic herbs. This oil, strained, but saturated with solid matter, is injected and absorbed by every fiber of the meat.

WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT

In the death of William H. Taft this country has lost one of its great men, great in the sense of accomplishments and great in the regard that was felt for him by his countrymen. The former president and chief justice was for the greater part of his life in public office, successively rising from the humble office of revenue collector in Ohio to the highest office within the gift of the people and even beyond that into the most important judicial position in this country and possibly the world. What to do with our expresidents was most admirably answered when he was made chief justice of the United States.

Mr. Taft's office holding can be attributed to his ability and his desire to do the right thing. When he took a circuit judgeship friends tried to dissuade him on the plea that he could make more money in private practice, but he countered with the statement that there are bigger things in this world than money. Whether it was an elective or an appointive office, and he held many of both, there was always the satisfaction on the part of those who elected him or those who appointed him that a sound choice had been made. He wasn't a politician in the combative sense. He never hankered after political banter and fights. His was a peaceful makeup which didn't always operate to his political advantage but it displayed his fair, reasoned and judicial temperament and it was quite natural that he should be looked upon as the needed leader for the highest court in the land. Although he had turned down appointments to the supreme court twice before, because he considered he had not completed the work in which he was then engaged, the offer of the chief justiceship did not find him with any such handicap. There he was a great leader who devoted his time and attention to establishing higher standards and eliminating much of the red tape and delay with which supreme court matters had become entangled. He impressed the country with the sincerity of his efforts and accomplishments.

It was a fact that no matter where he was placed as a public servant during his lifetime he was a success. He carried to each office a conscientious determination to do his best and there was no side-stepping. His was a brilliant political and judicial career, he also contributed greatly to the political success of others, notably President McKinley, through his service as commissioner and governor-general in the Philippines, and President Roosevelt, in whose administration he was a cabinet member and provisional governor of Cuba. The one great setback in his career came through the unfortunate split in the republican party caused by Mr. Roosevelt, but President Taft accepted it so good naturedly as to better display that trait of his character. The treatment was enough to sour any man, but not Mr. Taft.

It was a great and constructive service that Mr. Taft rendered during his career and he has won a high and lasting place in American history. He was universally liked and his popularity was by no means restricted to party lines. He was liked because of the man he was and he was admired for his accomplishments.

Norwich retains a fond regard for the former president, who came here as guest of honor during the celebration of the 250th anniversary of the founding of Norwich and not only graced the demonstration by his appearance in the parade but also with an address in the theater. Then that same sparkling, jovial good nature which was so conspicuous through his lifetime was repeatedly manifested.

Nationwide will be the recognition of the great loss the country has suffered in his death and throughout the world there are many nations which were honored by his visits which will deplore his passing.

OVERRUN WITH CATS

Far out on Cape Cod at Provincetown, among the other pests that are bothering the natives is that of cats, wild cats. From all accounts the residents are about ready to call on someone with the charm of the Pied Piper of Hamelin to get rid of the nuisance if those tramping the dunes with guns are not successful.

If those who have given their opinions are correct, the situation is due to the fact that those who spend the summers in Provincetown and vicinity have been totally inconsiderate of their household pets. They have seen fit to take their cats with them for the summer and when it came time to go home they have proceeded to abandon them. The result is that the cats have been forced to forage for a living and in that fight they have become ferocious. The longer they have to shift for themselves, the wilder they get. It is natural that they sould make their way to dwellings in search of anything they can find, but even the most tender-hearted of housewives cannot be expected to care for the hundreds that demand support. And the sand dunes haven't been stocked with as much of the right kind of game as a thousand or so cats might thrive on.

The situation at Provincetown, if not exaggerated, is not so different, except on a larger scale, from that which is experienced in many shore resorts after the summer cottagers go home. It is similar, in fact, to the experience in certain city neighborhoods where cats and dogs are left to gain their living the best way they can while the family is away for the summer. It illustrates in the best possible manner the situation to which humane societies call attention each year.

Provincetown has good reason to resent such a development in its midst. The possibility of cat hunts does not offset the recognized distress caused by this negligence on the part of the one-time owners of the animals. No matter what the success of the cats in taking care of themselves and going back quickly to a wild state, the practice may soon lead to Provincetown licensing all those who bring cats into that community or vicinity and making it so heavy as to discourage such cases of negligence and cruelty.

BETTER BUSINESS AHEAD

When there are those who have been trying to make such a handle of unemployment and to stir up discord and trouble, it is an assuring statement which comes from President Hoover when he indicates his belief that within the next 60 days the worst effects of unemployment will have worn off and business will again be resuming its normal trend. That is based upon department reports and jibes with opinions which have been freely expressed by those in close touch with business activity.

However disappointing any such indication may be to those who have hoped that the depression could be used for adverse political activity, it will, nevertheless, be welcomed by those who have been anticipating and waiting for the recovery, evidences of which are to be discerned from time to time in industrial centers.

Those who give the unemployment situation a thought understand of course that it was not the result of administration policies, although some reluctance to get back to normal after the stock market crash may have been due to the uncertainty in regard to tariff action. They know, also, that valuable help was given by the immediate appeal which the president made for the carrying out of construction plans whenever possible instead of holding them up for developments. That appeal has had the effect of overcoming considerable stagnation and, with the indicated ending of the unemployment, it will mean the termination of a period of depression in record-breaking time. That accomplishment will have its own merits.

It is perfectly evident to the president when he makes his statement that it is going to be subject to proof in a short time. It is certain, therefore, that he is not going to be caught indulging in mere talk when he can be so quickly checked up. We have, in fact, reached a time of the year when much outside work, which could not otherwise have been attempted, is going to be started, and with the increasing confidence inspired by improvement the general resumption of activity in all directions is no more than can be expected. The old statement that "there's nothing fundamentally wrong, so go ahead," still holds good.

PAROLED BUT RESTRAINED

It lies within the power of the right authorities to modify terms of imprisonment if there is found to be justifiable cause. Acting upon an appeal for admission to parole presented in behalf of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the attorney general has reached the conclusion that he has served a sufficient time to warrant his release from Leavenworth and under certain restrictions he will henceforth enjoy his liberty.

Dr. Cook is a man old enough to have known better than to get into any such difficulties with the law as he experienced. He was charged with the use of the mail to defraud, convicted and sentenced to 14 years in federal prison. He has served nearly five years and it is believed that he has been sufficiently penalized to prevent him from resuming any such activity in the future. That being so, it is as well that he should be where he can demonstrate his reformation.

If a burned child dreads the fire there will be double cause for Dr. Cook following the straight and narrow path in the future. He has been engaged in two affairs which have served to damage any faith which the public might put in him. He received a blackened reputation when he came back and claimed that he had discovered the North pole, only to have it shown that his documents were spurious. That was bad enough, but to seek to trespass upon public confidence by resorting to swindling operations was sufficient to cool the enthusiasm of even those who had expressed confidence in his polar claims after they had been rejected.

Dr. Cook will be subject to constant check under his parole. Among other things, he has been forbidden to do any public writing for a period of five years. That may be a bitter disappointment to one who was so clever with his pen but it is one of the restrictions that go with his punishment. It will remind him that while he is at liberty he is still under restraint and the public is getting protection.

THE WORLD AT FIFTEEN

Ernestine wore a frown of severity and appeared to be deeply disturbed.

"Parents!" she got out in accents of Bernhardt scorn. "Of all contradictory, unreasonable human beings parents are positively the worst. There seems to be something about the state which changes a perfectly sensible person into a wabbly individual who doesn't know where he is at all.

"Take mine, for instance—they are always and eternally telling me that I cannot be allowed to rely on my own judgment because I haven't had the experience to enable me to decide what is best to do—and then the minute I go out and try to get experience it is exactly as though I had set off a bomb right in our front entrance. From the way they act you'd think I spent all my time inventing the wrong things to do and they are absolutely dumb when I offer to explain to them. I don't think they put their minds to it or something because they never seem at all able to comprehend perfectly good reasons.

"One or the other always murmurs 'alibi' every time I begin to tell them why I didn't get home when I said I would or didn't do what I promised I'd do, and it is sort of discouraging. There was the other night—when it was so hot, you know, Caryll and Bett came along in Caryll's family car and said they were just riding around to keep cool and for me to come along.

"I had to promise to be back by 10 o'clock, just like an infant, and after we had gone up and down all the streets in the village till we were sick of them it was only ten minutes to 9, and we were talking anyhow, and before we knew it Caryll found she had headed out into the country. The road is narrow and has a ditch, and no parent in his senses would have expected us to turn around, and maybe upset, now, would he?

"So naturally we just went on and it was a gorgeous night and before we knew it we hit the Joliet crossroads where they're fixing things and bing! Down in the wet clay we went, up to the hubs—that was us. Caryll almost cried. She said if she didn't always have the worst luck!

"The family bus had just been washed, and the only way her father had been induced to let her take it was by pointing out to him that the village streets were like your kitchen floor and even the wheels wouldn't get dusty. Her father is one of the excitable kind, immune to common sense and Caryll had just worked up to the point where she thought it wise to ask him for a roadster of her own and now all that toil had gone for nothing.

"Our wheels just gurgled and sunk lower and then people began coming up to help us, so we got out. A regular series of men tried to run the car out. Most of them yelled 'stand back' but nothing much happened except almost stripping the gears. The handsomest young man we ever saw stood and talked to us to keep us from getting nervous. Caryll kept repeating the exact words her parents would say to her if we ever got home and I could imagine the old-home-week reception committee that would greet me.

"Bett always cries anyhow when she gets in a jam. She's small and she's discovered her best line is to be helpless and I must say she works hard at the job. By the time sixteen men had climbed in and out of the car they had taken in quite a lot of the wet clay as I found when I ruined my peach silk crepe by sitting on a lot of it. Then they got a chain somewhere and two cars hauled us out and all the men quarreled about who had brains to suggest doing it and we had just 50 cents between us.

"We couldn't offer to pay for a thing. The handsome young man offered to drive home with us only Caryll said no, we hadn't been introduced. I must say she's a person who can't arise to an emergency because all sorts of dangers might have met us on the way back and he could have been of great help.

"We were absolutely exhausted and after we got started we decided to go around by another road where there was a barbecue stand and have some hot sandwiches. I have always been told that when you are exhausted you should eat something hot. We took a wrong turning and altogether it was 12.30 when the girls dropped me at my house, which was brilliantly lighted. It is always bad news when a house is lit up like that in the middle of the night and really, I was surprised at dad.

"You'd think they'd use reason, but I've decided they're afraid of losing control of you if they don't stir things up every once in awhile. The barbecue sandwich seemed to be the last straw in their opinion—and I guess it was just as well the good-looking young man didn't bring us home after all. Father—well, he didn't act at all as though he would have been glad to see him. That was when he made the crack about my lack of experience.

"Well, I'm sure I do all I can to acquire it—much thanks do I get from my family!"—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 9—Generations ago, when the father of his country planned for a federal city beside the Potomac, unquestionably his vision included a fitting symbol in stone to the religious convictions that were strong upon him.

There is no lack of evidence in and about Washington of that uprooted faith.

The Washington pew in ancient Christ church in Alexandria, the simpler, homelier surroundings of his parish church close by Mount Vernon, unchanged through the years on its windswept Virginia hill top, still tell of it.

There is not much that is legendary about Washington. He was too coolly practical for that, too given to setting down each day's business with methodical neatness.

Yet a century and a half was to pass before his dream of a vast cathedral in the federal city approached realization. And another great war captain of America, a man who had led in battle on foreign soil an American army of such size and power as Washington never could have foreseen, was to set his hand to the completion in stone and steel of the structure the first great general saw as a vision.

Still A Crusader

John Pershing may have dreamed at times since his armies came marching victoriously home from France that high political destiny might be his. Who could blame him? America has before so called to leadership in pursuits of peace the leaders she trusted most in war. Two who before him have held his extraordinary rank of general of the armies have also been president, Washington and Grant.

But political disappointment, if so he felt it, has not imbitered Pershing. He is still a crusader at heart; a preacher of high duty, of faith in God and the destiny of America. And as such he has undertaken as his own fitting contribution leadership of the movement to bring to completion by the 200th anniversary of Washington's birth the vast pile of Washington cathedral which already looms like a citidal of faith on the hilly ramparts that ring Washington bout.

Monument

"Washington cathedral will represent the ideals of our democracy," this life long soldier, who so short time ago stood, grim and unswerving of purpose, at the very center of all the carnage and conflict of wills "over there," said in a filmed message to all Americans of his faith.

"Every loyal American cust realize that good government springs from a high sense of moral obligation, and that the degree of morality among the people is dependent upon the extent of their religious convictions.

"The cathedral will stand as an enduring evidence of what the spirit of Christ means to our civilization. The cross that crowns it will proclaim the message of Christianity to all America."

Could the vision of him who still is first in war and in peace, and in the hearts of his countrymen have a more fitting spokesman?

"Meeting Life's Demands"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "What doth the Lord require of thee but—" (Micah 6:8).

Read: Micah 6:6-8.

MEDITATION: Every person must complete this sentence for himself. The index of one's moral nature is the way in which he does so. This is life's final examination in spiritual insight. With the decay of outward authority many have jumped to the conclusion that there is no authority. Right and wrong is a matter of "As you like it." There is nothing required. But those who have adopted this view do not seem to be a very happy lot. Moral requirements are the laws by which one lays his course. It is not always easy to answer Micah's question, but no one can come to terms with life unless he asks it and keeps on asking it.

PRAYER: Teach us Thy laws, O Lord. Inform us of Thy ways. Make the path of duty clear to us and give us the heart to pursue it. Out of the difficulties of the day, may we feel the joy of having done that which Thou hast required of us. In the strength of Christ our Lord we ask it. Amen.

No. 31

Several salient facts are to be remembered by the taxpayer in claiming deductions for taxes. Taxes on personal property or real estate, whether business or residential, are deductible. So-called taxes which are assessed against local benefits, such as streets, sidewalks, drainage, and other like improvements, which tend to increase the value of the property assessed, are not deductible, since they are considered as constituting the cost of a permanent improvement.

The Federal income tax may not be deducted. However, income taxes paid upon the incomes of individuals to states may be deducted by an individual on his Federal income-tax return.

The deduction of estate and inheritance taxes is confined to the estate. Retroactive provisions pertaining to deductions of estate and inheritance taxes are found in the revenue act.

Postage is not a tax. Automobile license fees are ordinarily deductible. Customs duties paid by a person on articles for his own use are deductible. Import or tariff duties paid in the operation of a business are deductible as taxes, provided they are not added to or made a part of the expenses of the business or the cost of the merchandise with respect to which they are paid.

Admission taxes are deductible, but the taxpayer must show that account has been kept of the amount paid. Guesswork will not be accepted.

YOUR HEALTH

Physic Or Surgeon?

By George David Stewart, M. D., New York
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

When you have a pain in your tum-tum don't take a cathartic. There is perhaps no more certain way of making urgent, perhaps even bringing to operation, an attack of appendicitis that might otherwise have remained mild. There is widely spread among the laity a tendency to diagnose all abdominal pain as due to a stomach "upset," with very vague conceptions as to what this may mean. There is also a strong inclination to rush for a cathartic.

Appendicitis is a common surgical disease in America; people have heard much about it; it is a customary topic of conversation at social functions, dances, dinners and organ recitals. Many know that the appendix is located in the lower right hand corner of the abdomen. It the pain always began in this corner, a fair proportion of the population would suspect appendicitis. Unfortunately, in many cases, in the early hours of an attack the pain is general or perhaps most intense about the center of the abdomen; only later does it locate in the right side, declaring itself as a case of appendicitis. But by that time the cathartic has been taken; the damage has been done.

When once inflamation has occurred in the appendix the thing to do is to keep the intestine, that writhing, twisting basket of eels, and the abdomen at rest. This is done at first by the application of ice, or sometimes by heat.

A cathartic has just exactly the opposite effect. The tumbling, squirming coils of intestine increase their turnings and twistings, and spread any infection over more or less of the entire abdominal content, converting what might have been a simple case into one of the most serious conditions the surgeon has to encounter. Of if there should be a localized abscess around the appendix not serious as a rule, a cathartic, by setting up intestinal motion, may rupture the abscess, thus allowing the pus to spread over the intestinal folds. Luckily in many cases early in the history of the attack nausea and vomiting prevent the patient from taking a cathartic and thus safeguard him.

What then is the correct thing to do if attacked by a pain in the stomach? The answer is simple: Send for the family doctor and let him decide between the surgeon and a physic. For those who have no family doctor, the advice is herewith offered that one should be selected without delay. There is no one, however healthy and sound, who may not fall victim to an accident or awaken in the night to find himself suffering from the onset of an acute disease. How much better at such a time to send for the trusted family doctor, one who is a friend, who has already been tried and proven, than to be compelled to hunt up a stranger, perhaps without any opportunity of preference. The individual who does not boast a trusted family doctor is poor indeed. But whether you have one or not, when attacked by a stomach ache, don't take a cathartic. Fetch a doctor.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Farmer Brown's Boy Puts the Nest Back

To me it daily is more clear
That e'en the folks we love are queer.
—Flip the Terrier.

"My master is certainly queer," thought Flip the Terrier as he sat with head cocked to one side, watching Farmer Brown's Boy.

Bowser the Hound didn't agree. You see, he had lived so much longer with Farmer Brown's Boy and had seen him do so many unexpected things, that nothing he might do would seem queer to Bowser. Flip couldn't understand what it was all about. He had seen Farmer Brown's Boy take his knife from his pocket, open it and cut a branch off a bush on the edge of the Green Forest. Fastened to this branch was a great, gray globe. Flip didn't know what this was, but Bowser did. Bowser knew that it was a hornet's nest, or, to be more correct, a wasp's nest. Bowser had backed off a little when Farmer Brown's Boy began to cut that branch.

As Farmer Brown's Boy laid that nest down on the ground in order to put away his knife, a little mouse with a long tail and white feet suddenly appeared and then disappeared in the grass. Where he came from Flip didn't see. He couldn't understand why his master suddenly stopped him. He quivered all over with excitement. He sure wanted to try to find and catch that mouse.

"Down, Flip, down!" commanded Farmer Brown's Boy. "That was Whitefoot the Wood Mouse and we've made him trouble enough already. He must have come out of this hornet's nest. We'll look it over and see."

So Farmer Brown's Boy picked up the nest and began to look it over. "Aha!" said he. "Here is a round hole just big enough for a slim, trim little mouse like Whitefoot."

Farmer Brown's Boy poked a finger in that hole. He discovered at once that there was a nice nest of soft grasses and other soft material inside. He scratched his head thoughtfully. "It is too bad," said he, talking to Flip and Bowser. "If I had known that Whitefoot was living in this nest I wouldn't have touched it. A Mouse who was smart enough to choose such a place for a home ought not to lose that home. I wonder what we can do about it."

When at length he had finished that nest was solidly in place

He began to fish in his pocket. Presently he produced some stout string. Farmer Brown's Boy long ago learned that it is very wise to have a piece of stout string in one's pocket, especially when going afield. Then he picked up the branch with the big nest and began to lash it back on the bush from which he had cut it. Yes, sir, that is just what he did. When at length he had finished, that nest was solidly in place.

"There!" said Farmer Brown's Boy, as he stood back and looked at it. "That may not look as well as before it was cut, but it will hold; that is the main thing. I hope we haven't frightened Whitefoot so that he will not return. Poor little chap! He must have had a terrible fright when I cut that branch. Now we'll go off and give him a chance to return."

And this is why Flip thought his master was queer. He couldn't understand why Farmer Brown's Boy had first cut that branch and then tied it back.

"Brought Back My Strength"

"My little daughter was born on a homestead in northern Alberta. I had four other children and I worked so hard that I suffered a nervous breakdown. The doctor's tonic did not seem to help me and when a friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I began to take that instead. I kept on until I felt well again. It brought back my strength. Today I can do anything, thanks to the Vegetable Compound." —Mrs. William Parent, 1415 W. 62nd Street, Seattle, Washington.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

Fuller Brush Company, Hartford

Back in 1906 in a little cellar in Somerville, Mass., a young man of 18 could be seen working afternoons and far into the night over a wheezy gaslight, fashioning brushes with the aid of a small hand-twisting machine. With a large pair of shears he would carefully trim the brushes and the next morning, bright and early, would go from door to door taking orders for his products.

Those were busy days for Alfred Fuller. Sixteen hours a day of hard and trying work was the job he laid out for himself, and before long he journeyed to Hartford from Somerville, rented space in a small shanty and continued his brush business on a slightly larger scale. Shortly after he became established in Hartford, he found he needed help so he hired a man to make brushes for him in order that he could devote his full time to selling them. That man still works for him.

From 1910 to 1915 was a new era in Fuller history. The company ceased to be a one-man organization and was incorporated with Fuller at its head. Steady progress marked this five-year period.

Next came the first Fuller branch office which was opened at Boston in 1915. This was the beginning of the present Fuller branch office system which has been of such great value in building up the company. In 1915 The Fuller Brush company had about 250 salesmen scattered over the United States and the total business during that year was about $290,000. Today the Fuller field organization consists of more than 5,000 salesmen working under more than 200 branch offices in all the principal cities of the United States, Canada, British Isles and the West Indies, and also in New Zealand, South Africa, Australia and South America.

The Fuller Brush plant is now the largest in the world devoted to the manufacture and distribution of household and personal brushes.

The present officers are: President, Alfred C. Fuller; vice president, Harry A. Allen; second vice president, George Millard; secretary, Frank Adams; treasurer, Earl R. Cotton.

HAVE you, too, heard the Cannery racket—the little tin-clad "Sound" operas and jazz numbers, so genially welcomed here by the delicatessen set?

To some theatre interests this is a heart-warming clamor. It means economy for them, hence greater profits.

To persons of sound musical taste, it is ludicrous and impudent—an affront to the intelligence and taste of the theatre-going public. They see in the talkies no excuse for resort to Canned Music.

If you, dear reader, are one of those who recognize that machine-made sound cannot take the place of living orchestras and organists in the theatre, TREAT YOURSELF TO A SIGH OF RELIEF. SIGN THE COUPON BELOW. Then mail it!

Proud Mother!

Dorothy Goss, 8, of 243 West 88th St., New York City, has posed for many artists. She's the picture of health. No wonder her mother says: "I'm proud as can be of my little girl. She's always bright, active, robust.

"I give California Fig Syrup a lot of credit for her wonderful condition. I have used it with her for every little upset or cold. It always has her back to normal in a few hours."

When a child shows, by bad breath, coated tongue, biliousness or feverishness, that the little bowels are clogged, you know the system needs a prompt cleansing.

California Fig Syrup does the work quickly and gently. In addition, it helps tone and strengthen weak bowels and stomach. So it gives lasting help.

The word California marks the genuine; the pure vegetable product loved by children and pronounced safe and effective by doctors.

UPSET NOT SERIOUS IF BOWELS GET THIS HELP

When you're out-of-sorts, headachy, dizzy, bilious, with coated tongue, bad breath, no appetite or energy—don't worry. It's probably constipation.

Take a candy Cascaret tonight and see how quickly your trouble clears up. No more headache; no gas on stomach or bowels. Appetite improves; digestion is encouraged. Take another tomorrow night and the next night. Get every bit of the souring waste out of your system. Then see how bowel action is regular and complete.

Cascarets are made from cascara, which doctors agree actually strengthens bowel muscles. Ten cents at all drug stores.

INCREASE SHOWN IN EGG-LAYING CONTEST

The hens in the Storrs laying trials completed the 18th lap with a tally of 5,025 eggs or a yield of 72.8 per cent. With some possible minor variations this upward trend is expected to continue.

The week's gain over the preceding week was 18 eggs but when compared with the production of the corresponding week a year ago there is a difference of 653 eggs in favor of the current contest. For the entire period from Nov. 1 to date each hen has averaged just over 79 eggs each. The full quota of 85 eggs per bird at the end of March is [illegible] in sight.

As a class the Reds are making it hot for all the rest. George B. Treadwell's pen from Spencer, Mass., scored an easy first for the week with a score of 65 eggs. For second place, however, Rocks, Reds and Leghorns split 50-50. Pratt Experimental Farm from Morton, Pa., Edward N. Larrabee of Peterboro, N. H., and Tolvonen Leghorn Farm of Gardner, Pa., all tied with 63 eggs each.

For third position, Donald I. Goodenough of Torrington, Conn., and F. H. Sampson of Springfield, Mass., both breeders of Reds, tied with 62 eggs each. In the fourth place one pen of Barred Rocks from Maine, two pens of Reds from Connecticut and Massachusetts and two pens of Leghorns from Rhode Island and New York, all tied with 61 eggs each.

One of the above contestants, named [illegible] Leighton Orchards at Kingston, R. I., recently explained to the management of the contest its system of sanitation. After some experimenting all chicks are now brooded on shelves and all chicks are [illegible] with hot water heat. Capacity has been increased to the point where 7,000 chicks from one to 12 weeks of age can be brooded in this way.

The farm apparently subscribes to the theory that cleanliness is more of an asset than godliness. Feed dishes, water vessels, and likewise the removable wire floors are all put into a tank and boiled in the process of cleaning. According to the owner, the chief advantage of this system of brooding is a reduction of the coccidiosis hazard.

HEBREW RESIDENTS RAISE $14,000 TOWARDS COMMUNITY HOUSE FUND

About 200 Jewish men and women of Norwich gathered Sunday evening at the Community house for the opening drive to raise $30,000, the purchase price to be paid for the Community house for a synagogue to be known as the Community of Norwich. The rooms were decorated with American flags and red, white and blue festoons, with the Star of David. The tables were tastefully decorated with flowers and lighted candles. The menu was as follows:

Grape Fruit
Olives Celery Pickles
Noodle Soup with Croutons
Roast Spring Chicken
Green Peas and Carrots and Knischos
Tea Home Made Cakes
Soft Drinks

The special guests of the evening were Mayor Lee Roy Robbins, Dr. Elias Margolis, Rabbi Ira Eisenstein and Rabbi L. M. Becker of the United Synagogues of America.

The atmosphere during the dinner was one of great enthusiasm. Abner Schwartz, president of the Community synagogue was the toastmaster. Alex M. Pasnik was the song leader and led the audience in community singing and Jewish national songs. Nicholas J. Spellman very ably assisted at the piano.

Alex Pasnik led the gathering in the singing of Hebrew table songs, written in English characters, in which Mayor Robbins joined, to the delight of all present. Pres. Schwartz opened the meeting with the singing of America followed by Hatikvah and Rabbi Ira Eisenstein offered the blessing.

Tribute to Ex-President Taft

At the conclusion of the dinner and before the beginning of the ceremonies of the evening, President Schwartz called upon the audience to rise in respect to the memory of the late William Howard Taft, chief justice of the supreme court and former president of the United States, who died Saturday afternoon. The audience rose and stood for a period of silence as a mark of respect to the late president.

Rabbi Becker then led the audience in a brief prayer and was assisted by Dr. Margolis and Rabbi Eisenstein, with the entire gathering responding. Mayor Robbins was called upon by the president for a few words of encouragement for the opening of the drive. At the introduction of the mayor, the audience arose and gave him an enthusiastic ovation. Mayor Robbins with very appropriate words, thanked the president and the audience for the warm reception accorded him and made complimentary remarks about the very fine gathering. The mayor spoke of the changes that have taken place in the city and said that this night was the landmark for celebration for the achievement of the Jewish people of Norwich. The mayor also referred to the time when the first synagogue was built on West Main street, in the days of the horse cars. The mayor also said that since the building of the first synagogue in Norwich about 40 years ago, the Jewish people have made great progress and that they must continue to take hold and continue the work of the new synagogue. The mayor congratulated the members on their splendid beginning and wished them success. The words of the chief executive of Norwich were received with tremendous applause.

Rabbi Eisenstein Introduced

In thanking Mayor Robbins, Abner Schwartz promised that the Jewish people in appreciation for the fine fellowship and the opportunities which they enjoy in Norwich, would make good citizens and would live up to the ideals of "Norwich First." Rabbi Ira Eisenstein, who was the first rabbi to further the idea of the Community synagogue in Norwich was the next speaker. Rabbi Eisenstein said that by his contact with the Jewish people of Norwich in the last few months he has almost become one of the Norwich people, and now by congratulating the Jewish community upon the purchase of the Community house, he felt as if he were congratulating himself. The rabbi spoke of the spiritual response which he has received from the Jewish leaders of Norwich and of the enthusiasm manifested at the last high holiday services, which were conducted with dignity and great benefit and appreciation to the younger generation. The rabbi also said that although the cultural work was a plan in the beginning of a drive, in reality it was rather a continuation of the work started six months ago. The speaker closed by saying that Norwich has proven that a few men of vision, with sincerity and enthusiasm can accomplish wonderful results.

Rabbi L. M. Becker was the next speaker. He gave a simile of his boyhood days in Canada, where from a little snow ball they built a large snow man which was erected by the cooperation of many hands; and so in Norwich the fruits of cooperation among many hands is the building which will house the Community synagogue.

Max Hanover spoke about the cooperation of the Jewish people in Norwich civic work and expressed the hope that with the Community house as a Jewish center they would be able to make additional contributions for the welfare of Norwich and to good citizenship.

The Key-Note Address

Dr. Margolis of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., was the key-note speaker of the evening. He said that wherever he goes he finds gloom on account of the landmark in Jewish history—"The Wall street crash," but that he was pleased to find the Jewish people of Norwich in such a happy mood and without gloom. Becoming serious the speaker said that the Norwich community feels happy because they have an ideal and that they do not live only for the purpose of amassing wealth and have reason to be excited for the achievement that is to be culminated in this drive.

The accomplishments of Norwich, he said, have caused the Jewish leaders in New York to be intensely interested because of the idealism prevalent in Norwich. Dr. Margolis insisted that the new synagogue congregation must never forget that although actuated by modern trend, they still are an orthodox synagogue. The speaker praised very highly the example which the Jewish people of Norwich are setting before the communities adjacent.

Dr. Margolis spoke of the needs of the Jewish youth in spiritual tenets and explained how the young folks may be attracted to the synagogue where they will be taught their duties and obligations to their fellow men.

The speaker closed with a plea that the Jewish people of Norwich solve the financial problems of the synagogue during the drive.

Dr. Margolis' remarks were heartily applauded.

CHRIST'S APPEAL IRRESISTIBLE SAYS LENTEN PREACHER

"Those who do not follow Christ are doomed to dismal failure," said Rev. Bryan Murphy of the Passionist Monastery at Union City, N. J., in an inspiring sermon Sunday evening at the opening of the Lenten vesper services at St. Patrick's church, before a large congregation.

After noting the transformation that was wrought by the crucifixion of Christ, the preacher asked the congregation if they had ever considered it. Practically over night, the whole civilized and uncivilized world was transformed from slavery into enlightenment, freedom and purity, he said. Truly is the cross of Christ the power and wisdom of God. What an appeal the cross of Christ has for the eye.

Before the crucifixion of Christ men were followers of idols, worshipping stones and wood. Their minds and hearts were sunk in impurity. They knew not where to turn. In the crucifixion of Christ all this changed. Christ taught His important lessons from the cross; the cross of Christ is His pulpit. Christ taught the men the real significance and import of life. He showed the meaning of life. He taught the difference between a life of luxury and a life of suffering. He showed men that by suffering they could gain merit. He showed why we came into the world and what we must do while here. He pointed out the difference of living the life of senses and the life of God.

Christ's appeal was real, dynamic and irresistible, even up to today His appeal has met with generous response from the hearts of men and women. Christ, the Son of God, came here to save men's souls and teach the way to heaven and gain the love of men and women. Any man who rejects or resists the cross, is unhappy. That man's nature is craving for something that he will never receive, unless he takes up the cross and follows Christ.

Those who do not follow Christ are doomed to failure, dismal failure. The appeal of Christ, if resisted, leads to unhappiness. Be more zealous and better followers of Christ.

The preacher urged his listeners to hearken more diligently to the appeal of Christ during Lent.

Rosewig's Vespers in G were given at the service, the soloists being Miss Blanche LaPre, Walter LaFontaine, William Shannon and Mrs. Bernard J. Coyle, Henry J. LaFontaine, organist. The music was as follows: Beatus Vir, soloists, Miss LaPre, Messrs. LaFontaine and Shannon; laudate dominum, Mrs. Coyle; magnificat, chanter and male chorus.

Following the sermon, at the offertory, Ave Maria (Kahn) was rendered, Miss Sadie Driscoll, soloist, concluding with the Gregorian Benediction.

SURVIVOR OF MONITOR TELLS OF ENCOUNTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 9.—Seated comfortably in the living room of his little home, situated on the east side of Oak Hill, Thomas L. Taylor, veteran of the Union navy during the Civil war and believed to be the only survivor of the crew of the famous Union ironclad "Monitor," between the puffs of a favorite corncob pipe graphically painted a word picture of the famous naval contest between his ship and the Confederate ram, "Merrimac," which occurred 68 years ago today at Hampton Roads, Va.

The elderly colored citizen, who was a powder monkey on the Monitor, is, as far as he knows, the last survivor of nearly a hundred participants on the Union side. Each year on the 9th of March Mr. Taylor is called upon to relate his experiences aboard the "Yankee cheese box on a raft" during its encounter with the Confederate iron-covered ship. He repeated the tale again today, punctuating his account of the battle with gestures indicative of the way he passed explosives from the hold of the vessel to the gunners in the revolving turret above.

Tommy was born a slave on a large cotton plantation in Currituck county, North Carolina. When the first Confederate offensive was launched on Fort Sumter, Tommy was but 14 years of age. The war inspired him to make a stroke for freedom and, in company with another slave, they rode on stolen horses to Hampton Roads, reaching there late in March, 1862. Tommy was successful in gaining the attention of a Union officer of the Monitor. His reward for his services to the officer was an assignment as a messenger boy and sleeping quarters aboard the strange craft.

On March 8 the "Cheesebox" set out on its famous cruise to meet the iron-bound enemy ship. What followed is well known history. Mr. Taylor told today of the intense heat in the hold of the ship, and of the innumerable wounds of members of the crew, who worked incessantly throughout the day. How the battle was progressing, the crew knew little. They fought on desperately until the moment of the final crash when the Merrimac made a vain attempt to disable the Monitor by ramming it. The terrific crash caused Mr. Taylor to feel that his brief release from slavery was climaxed, for he, with several other members of the crew, sustained severe wounds from the effects of the shock. The battle ended in a decisive victory for the Union, after which Tommy was taken to a hospital at Fortress Monroe.

Discharged from the hospital, Tommy enlisted in the navy and served on picket duty and later served on another monitor, fashioned after the original. He was mustered out of service in July, 1865, but the lure of the sea caused him to return as a sailor on a merchantman, and he spent much of his time in trips to the West Indies. Coming north a free man, Mr. Taylor lived in various cities in New England. He came to Putnam about 46 years ago and has lived here since. His late years of life are made comfortable by a generous pension received from the government.

Despite his advanced years, Mr. Taylor is active. He has many friends in the city, all of whom know and greet him as "Tommy."

"And so, it's the same old story," concluded Mr. Taylor, "but it grows dearer each year."

COWBOY PREACHER HEARD AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The congregation of more than 125 at the First Congregational church Sunday morning, heard a most inspiring sermon by Rev. Alfred Ray Atwood, M. A. S. T. M. (the cowboy preacher) of Weiser, Idaho, who brought a thrilling message from the west. Dr. Atwood, who is assistant president of the Intermountain Institute, outlined in many ways The Life and Land of the Cowboy, holding the close attention of his listeners. The pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, presided, reading for the scripture lesson, which emphasized Faith, the eleventh chapter of Hebrews. When introducing the speaker Rev. Mr. Bailey said, "This is an unusual treat to have the West brought back to the East, by one who has had a splendid career, Dr. Atwood."

Dr. Atwood, sometimes referred to as "The Second Dr. Puddefoot," took as his theme, "An Adventure In Faith On Our Western Frontier." After commending the Old First Church for its wonderful history dating back to the days of the Indians, he stated that it gave him pleasure to extend greetings from the governor of Idaho. The president of Intermountain Institute, Rev. E. A. Paddock, A. B., B. D. (88) and his assistant, Dr. Atwood are on an eastern speaking tour, to tell to this nation the story of their school. Dr. Atwood paid tributes to President Paddock, of the founder of the Intermountain Institute, who was sent to the frontier as a missionary, he having started a number of Congregational churches, being the one to organize the first Congregational church at Weiser, after holding a series of meetings. When Dr. F. E. Clark, founder of Christian Endeavor called upon President Paddock, "Father Endeavor" Clark as he was known, was the first one to write a check for the benefit of the Intermountain Institute. This school was started that the poorest of boys and girls of the mountains could secure a high school education and training, after their willingness to work on a ranch five or six hours each day. Mostly New Englanders are settled there. Dr. Atwood said: The country has made the cowboy what he is, the son of New England who went West a generation ago. One young man shortly after his arrival in this part of the country, was elected a deacon of the church. He was so elated over this, that he declared as long as that honor was bestowed upon him, he would attend church twice a year, choosing the January and March communion Sundays. This particular man in question lived so far away from the church, it took the better part of three days in walking to the service; and some people live so far distant, they have never heard a religious service. In some places in the mountain regions there are no ministers, doctors, undertakers or cemetery. When a person dies, he or she is buried on land where they lived and labored, usually before nightfall. The school Dr. Atwood represents teaches the Bible everyday, also specializes in three subjects called "The Three H's", Head, Hand and Heart. Every girl has to take domestic science and every boy manuel training, while also some study typewriting and stenography.

Idaho is as large as all New England, with churches and schools so many miles apart in some regions, it is marvelous the many who receive excellent education, also the multitudes professing faith in Christ upon being brought in contact with the leaders. In closing after reciting a few lines of The Cowboys' Prayer, Dr. Atwood added, "We on the frontier just ask that you think of us as your representatives." Coming from Danielson and Willimantic where he spoke last week, upon leaving Norwich Dr. Atwood is to continue his speaking tour the coming week in Lebanon, Manchester and other towns, expecting to be in Fair Haven Sunday next. Dr. Atwood told several cowboy stories at the session of the Congregational Sunday school. He was the guest while in Norwich Town of Rev. Mr. Bailey at the parsonage.

Drama Sermon, "Seventh Heaven"

The story of the moving picture, "Seventh Heaven" was the basis of the drama sermon given by Rev. George Warren Potter at the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday evening. There are four levels in the great picture and Rev. Mr. Potter spoke briefly of each. The level of the Paris sewers; the level of the Paris streets; the level of th "Seventh Heaven" which was the tenement at the top of seven flights of winding stairs where Chico, the hero of the story, lived; and the level of the stars. The soloist of the service, Charles Helmboldt of Lisbon, a young violinist possessing much skill, played two selections, "Largo," New World Symphony by Dvorak and "Simple Avon," charming his hearers. Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich was as accompanist. The pastor spoke in the morning on the theme, "Judge Not" taking as his text St. Matthew 7:1. The Junior Vested choir, directed by their leader, Mrs. Aldrich, sang an anthem, "More Love to Thee."

Sheltering Arms Service

Sunday afternoon at the Sheltering Arms the pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, Rev. G. W. Potter had charge of the service. He spoke on the theme "Two Birthdays." Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich, organist of the church, played several beautiful selections during the service and a part of the Junior Choir sang "More Love to Thee" and "Glad Bells Are Ringing." After the service the girls visited some of the members of the household who are confined to their rooms.

This (Monday) evening at 7:30 the quarterly conference of the Methodist church will be conducted in the vestry in charge of the district superintendent, Rev. Myron E. Genter.

The Late Former President William Howard Taft While Visiting Norwich

The death at Washington, D. C., Saturday, of William Howard Taft, former president of the United States and former chief justice of the United States supreme court, recalls to many Norwich people the former president's visit to Norwich in July, 1909. It was on the occasion of the 250th anniversary of the settling of Norwich that Mr. Taft, then president of the United States, visited Norwich. The presidential party arrived in Norwich the morning of Monday, July 5, 1909, and remained here the entire day, leaving that night for the tercentenary celebration at Lake Champlain. The late president was the chief figure in the celebration and delivered a stirring address to the people of Norwich following the celebration parade. While in Norwich, the late president dined with the late Winslow T. Williams and planted a seedling from the historic charter oak at Hartford, on the Williams' estate at Yantic.

The above picture of the late president, riding with his aide, Major Butts, and Winslow T. Williams, in one of Reynold's hacks, was taken by Mrs. George V. Shedd, of Preston. Mrs. Shedd took the picture as the celebration parade was forming on Main street. As Mrs. Shedd took the picture, she glanced towards the carriage and noticed that the late president was looking at her. "Did you get him?" he inquired.

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP)—Madison Square Garden has scheduled two shows this week to regain for New York the fistic leadership of the nation.

Tomorrow night, the Garden presents a ten rounder between Maxey "Slapsey" Rosenbloom, light heavyweight contender, and Larry Johnson, hard hitting Chicago Negro, as the feature of a charity show. Johnson dropped a close decision to Pete Latzo in his last appearance here but was given the bout with Rosenbloom anyway. Lou Scozza, Buffalo light heavyweight, takes on Bosy Rosales, of Cleveland, in the ten round semi-final.

On Friday, the Garden show will be headed by a ten rounder between Tony Canzoneri, erstwhile featherweight champion, and Stanislaus Loayza, Chilean lightweight.

At the Chicago stadium on Friday night, Rene Devos, Belgian middleweight, takes on the clouting Texan, Clyde Chastain of Dallas, in the ten round final. Ernie Schaaf, Boston heavyweight, meets Paul Pantaleo of Chicago, in the ten round semi-final.

Philadelphia's weekly card tomorrow night finds George Godfrey, the huge Leiperville, Pa., Negro, pitted against Jack Gross the baker boy from Salem, in the ten round final.

Eddie Mack, Denver's great junior lightweight, meets Goldie Hess of Los Angeles in a ten rounder at Los Angeles Tuesday night.

Other bouts on the national schedule include:

Monday—At Madison Square Garden, New York, Joe Banovic, Binghamton, vs. Henry LaMar, light-heavyweights, ten rounds; at Philadelphia, Vincent Forgione, Philadelphia, vs. Ricardo Alis, Spain, light heavyweights, and Willie Henry, California, vs. Jimmy Herman, Hazleton, Pa., each six rounds; At Tulsa, King Tut, Minneapolis, vs. Wild Cat Monte, Drumright, Okla., lightweights, ten rounds.

AGGIE TRACK TEAM IS ONE OF GREAT PROMISE

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, March 9.—The Connecticut Aggie track team, which promises to be among the best ever to represent the college, will be entered in the A. A. U. meet which will be held at the state armory Monday. Captain Bob Groat, of Niles, Michigan, a veteran track man, is in charge of the squad during the absence of Coach Paul Bitgood who is doing graduate work at Springfield college and who will resume his duties at the State college about April 1. Elliot, White, Dittrich, Gwinn and Tracy are entered in the one mile run, and Groat, Chubbuck, Rathbun, and Geissler are entered in the low hurdles. In the dashes the Connecticut team will rely on Groat, French, Rathbun and Arnold.

The Aggie track schedule for the coming season is as follows: March 10, A. A. U. meet, at Hartford; March 18, A. A. U. meet in New Haven; April 26, Norwich university at Vermont; May 3, Rhode Island State college, at Kingston; May 17, Eastern Intercollegiates, at Worcester; May 21, Trinity, at Storrs; May 24, New England Intercollegiates, at Boston.

Dan Chubbuck, who holds several State college records, and who is one of the most valuable men on the Aggie track team, has been confined to the infirmary with an infection. Last year Chubbuck, who starred in basketball at center, suffered a foot injury which put him on crutches for several weeks, but which did not later materially affect his ability on the cinders. The absence of Chubbuck for any length of time from the Aggie track team would considerably lessen its chances of an unusually good season.

COLUMBIA MAN LIKELY TO BE HIGH SCORER

NEW YORK, March 9.— (AP)—As surely as anything is certain in the world of sports, the individual scoring championship of the Eastern Intercollegiate basketball league for 1930 will go to a Columbia man.

Horowitz of Yale and Lewis of Cornell top the latest compilation of the leading scorers by the Associated Press but both have completed their schedules while Gregory and Bender, of Columbia, third and fourth in the list, have two more games to play.

Horowitz wound up his season with 78 points in ten games and Lewis with 77 in an equal number. Gregory is only a point behind with 76 and Bender also is a contender with 70.

Horowitz has the most field goals, 32, and Burch of Dartmouth the most fouls, 21. Lewis and Booth of Yale have committed the most personal fouls, 12.

PUTNAM DOWNS KILLINGLY IN CLOSE ENCOUNTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 9—A well directed shot from center by Capt. Carman Leo, quickly followed by a foul point by dapper Louis Weiss, scored in the few remaining minutes of the final quarter gave Putnam high school a brilliant victory over its ancient-rival—Killingly high of Danielson, Friday evening in the season closing contest that proved to be one of the most colorful and exciting basketball tilts played in this city in many a year. The game was witnessed by nearly five hundred enthusiastic fans of Danielson and Putnam who packed the local gym to its capacity.

One of the most outstanding features of the game was the high-pitched rivalry between the opposing quintets. The game went into the finale without a substitution. With the score standing at tie mark during most of the meet, the Killonians and the Noyesmen guarded each other making double assurance that not a loophole existed in any part of the defense put up by either side.

Most of the baskets were sunk from mid-floor by the best sharpshooters of both teams—Leo of Putnam and Dascoti of Danielson.

Killingly tried desperately in those final five minutes of play to close the gap in the score and wax themselves into the lead, but the Noyesmen had them licked as surely as any team has ever been licked. The fans went momentarily mad when the game had ended and the score board showed the Putnam victory. The game was without doubt, the best played on any court in the Quinebaug valley this season.

Y SENIORS CLOSE THEIR SEASON NEXT SATURDAY

The Y Seniors will close their basketball season next Saturday night when they meet Torrington Y at the local gym. This team gained a close decision over Coach Demarest's lads in Torrington about a month ago but everything points to a general revision of things this time. The Norwich Girls will play the preliminary for the grand finale of the popular local quintet.

Thursday the second game of the Married and Single Mens' series will be played at the Y. The Benedicts won the first game but only after much hard work and another stiff contest is expected. In the preliminary the Norwich Girls will play Putnam high girls.

"Hank" Morin's Wife Ill

Mrs. Henry Morin, wife of the popular local umpire, is recovering at W. W. Backus hospital from a serious operation performed last week. Hank's many friends hope for a speedy recovery for his wife.

"Signing the Contract" a farce comedy of baseball. Scene laid in Col. "Jake" Ruppert's room in the Princess Martha hotel at St. Petersburg, Fla. Cast of Characters: Col. "Jake" Ruppert, Babe Ruth and newspaper men.

Col. Ruppert, a principal figure in baseball and custodian of the money-bags of the Yankees, is seen reclining in an easy chair figuring how many times the old turnstiles will click at Yankee stadium this summer. There is a knock at the door.

"Come In," calls the colonel. The door opens and in walks the Bambino accompanied by two newspapermen. "Well, well", booms the colonel, "If it isn't the old Babe himself... How's tricks and how's the wife? Sit down."

"Oh, everything's fine, I feel like a two year old. Notice anything about me, Colonel?" asks the Babe. "Sure, you act nervous." "I don't mean that. Colonel, I'm right in shape and I lost a lotta weight, see how slim I am." The colonel gives the Babe the O. O. but shakes his head.

"Well" says the colonel. "You come to fix up about that contract, didn't you?" The Babe nods his head. "I'm glad you came, I was just going to call you up at the Jungle club and ask you to come over."

"You know, Babe, I think this ballyhoo has gone as far as it can. We worked it pretty good too, thanks to your newspaper men (nodding at the two scribes) but the public is getting kind of suspicious and you got to get down to real practice pretty soon, Babe."

"That was a great stunt of yours asking for $85,000 a year for three years. A lotta cash customers believed you was in earnest about the matter. You oughta see the letters I got from the fans. Some says I gotta give it to you and others said I was a sucker if I give you a cent more than $25 a week."

"Them $25 letters was getting so frequent lately that I thought we better get together before the ballyhoo went stale. Now Babe, I gotta contract here for two years at $80,000 bucks per and if you'll just step over here and sign on the dotted line we'll give the scribes something to write home about. Okay, Babe?"

"Sure, it's okay with me, Colonel, but what about waiting about signing until Monday when we can get the cameramen here. They're all out at the golf course shooting some of the big shots. You know pictures of me signing would help the publicity along and give them guys what says I was worth only $25 a week a setback. Ain't they dumb, those guys."

"All right Babe, that's jake with me. And you newspaper boys can say that the Babe is ready to sign. Lay it on thick and tell 'em how the Babe and me haggled for hours trying to reach an agreement and how we finally compromised after a heated argument."

"You know Babe, you really had me worried for a while, you're such an erratic cuss. I didn't know but you was going to gum up the works and with me having this contract made out since the last day of the playing season last year."

"Well, Colonel, I'll tell you something now that it's all over. I didn't know but you meant what you said when you told the newspaper boys you wouldn't give a cent over $70,000. I thought I'd have to live on that $25,000 a year which ain't so much for a guy like me."

"This morning the wife says to me, 'Babe, you go down and see "Jake" and sign up for whatever he'll give you, the old bank roll is taking it on the chin right now.' You know the little woman is always right."

"Well, Colonel, I gotta play a round of golf. The picture boys is waiting for me. I'll be seeing you Monday."

"So long, Colonel." "So long, Babe."

The Babe exits with the newspaper men and the colonel smiles and goes back to figgering gate receipts. Curtain.

ACADEMY TRACK TEAM AT HARTFORD TONIGHT

The Academy track squad nears the end of its indoor campaign with appearances at Hartford and New York city, this week.

Tonight the mile and one-quarter mile relay teams are entered in the big National Guard meet at the Hartford armory, while Wednesday night Coach Murphy will take his charges to the Kacey games in Madison Square Garden.

Entered in the mile relay tonight are Johnny Lyons, Bill Agnew, Johnny Lenkiewicz and Capt. Sam Berkman, while in the quarter-mile event Sera, Bill Mahoney, Walter Sura and Goldberg will uphold the honor of the Wildcats.

The team has secured new uniforms of Cardinal red pants with white jerseys and cord sweat-suits and the name, Norwich Free Academy, written across the front.

So far this campaign the local squad has made a good impression and especially so in the relay events. At Hartford tonight they expect a stiff competition from such schools as Suffield prep, Hartford and New Haven high schools. The Wildcats took the measure of Suffield here in January.

Y SENIORS NOSE OUT MIDDLETOWN WITH LYNCH PLAYING STELLAR ROLE

(Special to The Bulletin)

MIDDLETOWN, March 9—The Norwich Y Seniors Saturday night avenged one of their worst defeats of the season by nosing out the Middletown Y 33 to 32 here in the banner game of the local season. Played before a packed house, the game was nip and tuck all the way and saw Tommy Lynch, Norwich's right forward come out clearly and distinctly as one of the up-and-coming court players in the state.

Lynch played his best game in scoring 16 points and working rings around the locals on the floor. Lynch, who has one more year in high school, is sure to be one of the leading scholastic players next year when Norwich Free Academy returns the court game to its athletic curriculum.

Lynch sent Norwich ahead with a spectacular one-handed shot from the side in the last three minutes and the Rose Cityites then proceeded to successfully "freeze" the ball for the remaining time. At half time the Seniors had a lead of 18 to 15.

GAMMAS BEAT SONS OF PERICLES FIVE

The Gamma club turned in a victory over the Sons of Pericles of New Haven Saturday night at the Y gym by 27 to 20, before a fair-sized crowd. The visitors were severely handicapped as they experienced considerable motor trouble on the way from the Elm City and did not arrive until 10 o'clock and then when the main section showed up it was found that they were minus one of their regulars.

They played through the first half with the material on hand and were cleanly outplayed, trailing 18 to 8 at the intermission.

They were at full strength in the last half and made a better showing, but could not make up the lead piled up by the snappy local five.

Nick Economous was the high scorer with 16 points and Politis led the visitors.

In the preliminary the Phi Delta Nu and Fitchville Phantoms finally tied at 30-30 after a bit of investigating after the final whistle. To all intents the Phi Deltas had won when the final whistle sounded but an error in the scorebook was later found and the game was then declared a tie.

PUTNAM Y TO COMPETE IN STATE TOURNEY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, March 9—The Putnam five gained the right to compete for Windham county in the state Y tournament at Storrs later in the month when they cleaned up Danielson in the final game of a tournament staged at the Community house Saturday night under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. The score of this game was 42 to 33.

In other games Danielson had beaten Woodstock, 30 to 23 and Putnam had taken the measure of Thompson 22 to 11.

Putnam gained the victory in the final game largely through a first period spurt when they ran up 20 points in quick succession to nothing for their Danielson opponents. They were then able to coast along and win although Danielson, mostly the Radio Five, made a strong comeback.

Mayhew, of Danielson and Denning of Putnam, in the final game, were the high scorers for the evening.

TWO GAMES IN THE CHURCH LEAGUE TONIGHT

The Church league will resume its activities tonight at the Y. M. C. A. gym after a week's lapse due to the Y Seniors and girls games last Monday.

In the first game of the evening the Brothers of Joseph, now in third place, will have a chance to advance on the second place club when they play the tall and Stronghearts. Reports have it that Coach Demarest of the Y Seniors has been giving practice to the fellows from Jewett City and plans on having them score a few league upsets.

In the second game of the evening, two old time rivals are brought together when the United Cong. and the Central Baptist churches tangle. The two churches have been rivals not only in basketball of which the Central has always won, but in baseball. The Central Baptist is favored to win because of former victories and their position which is one ahead of the Deltas in the league.

The present standing of the league:

B. O. J.	5	3	.633
Baltic	5	4	.555

RAPID REVIVAL OF CONSTRUCTION WORK WILL REDUCE UNEMPLOYMENT

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP)—While another week passed without appreciable change in the state of business and trade, credit rates turned emphatically downward, and with the approach of spring, rapid revival of building and construction activity is predicted with increasing confidence. Quickening of outdoor activity, furthermore, is expected measureably to reduce unemployment and help to restore public purchasing power.

The reports of President Hoover and the secretaries of commerce and labor on the measure of business recuperation, were generally regarded as reassuring. Estimates placing the number of unemployed at not more than 1,250,000 over last year at this time, and indicating that between 600,000 and 1,000,000 has found work since early in the year, appeared to reflect considerable progress toward normal. That the problem of unemployment in some of the large industrial centers remains distressing is acknowledged.

Although the bank of England and the Reichsbank reduced their discount rates, the Federal Reserve left its rate at 4 per cent. While the cost of loans for residential building and agricultural purposes has not come down proportionately with the rates for other forms of credit, President Hoover indicated that the reserve system is working to relieve this situation.

The most troublesome factor in the business outlook remained the commodity price situation. Cotton again dropped to new low levels for the season, and the textile industry generally was thrown into confusion. Silk prices reached the lowest level in 14 years. The supply of all textiles is large, and there has been price slashing in the finished goods markets. Non-ferrous metals, with the exception of copper, sagged further. Also, some easing was noted in iron and steel. Grains were again heavy, but vigorous support from farm board agencies kept wheat well above the low levels of the previous week.

Little change was noted in automobile manufacturing operations, but a few February sales reports indicate that the used car problem was improving, and that the movement of new cars into consumption was gaining.

Reports on wholesale and retail trade indicated slight improvement in retail buying of spring clothing in certain areas, with more favorable weather, but wholesale buying was generally reported as quiet and cautious.

Manufacturers of farm implements, machinery and hardware continued active.

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP)—Gains in industrial activity to augment the natural recovery from the slump of last year are in evidence, but improvement is proceeding slowly and the pace is still below that of a year ago as measured by the usual statistical barometers. The American Bankers' Association Journal says in its monthly review.

The bureau of railway economics of the American Railway association reports that capital expenditure made by the Class I railroads in 1929 for new equipment and additions and betterments to property used in transportation service totaled $853,721,000, the largest amount of any year since 1926, when $885,086,000 was expended.

An order for 41 elevators to be installed in the new 45-story Starrett building in Cincinnati has been received by the Westinghouse Elevator Co., a subsidiary of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. The elevators will cost about $1,000,000.

COLCHESTER

POWER AND LIGHT COMPANY SERVICE AND METHODS FAULTY

Considerable dissatisfaction is being expressed by the townspeople over the method of collection of electric light bills inaugurated some time ago by the C. C. P. and L. Co. Up to about a year ago, the light company instructed their meter reader to make monthly collections in person; but according to the method now in vogue the company's meter reader is instructed to make no collections since the subscribers receive their bills by mail from the East Hampton office. Payment of the bill is then supposed to be made by mail and if a receipt is desired by the payee, return postage must be enclosed. Everything considered, local people do not regard the new method as a very great improvement. Then too, there is a good deal of dissatisfaction over the low voltage supplied to Colchester. Although a 110-volt current is supposed to be furnished, it is said that as a general rule only a 70 to 80-volt current is supplied. On several occasions during the past few weeks the house and street lights have gone out altogether, being restored again after several hours' delay.

Prof. Leslie P. Beebe of Columbia university visited over Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Beebe.

Misses Margaret, Claire and Alice Brown and Cora E. Carrier, teachers in Hartford spent the week end at their homes here.

Friends of Lloyd W. Brown were pleased to see him on the street again Saturday. He has recovered, after a week's illness.

A year ago today, the 10th of March, 1929, zero mercury readings were reported at different points about the village.

James F. Purcell of Meriden, former local resident visited friends here over Sunday.

When Colchester Fire Co. holds its March meeting in the fire house, Thursday evening, Chief Brown is expected to speak on methods needed to improve the fire-fighting facilities of the borough. Reports will be submitted on the proposed plan of elevating the fire siren so that it can be heard a greater distance from the fire house.

Bradford Cragin of New York, former local resident visited over Sunday with relatives and friends here.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Dashing and glamorous, full of the spirit and color of the great west and of the United States cavalry, is the picture which has played to such large houses for two days at the Palace theatre, the new super-spectacle of military life, "His First Command," which stars William Boyd, Dorothy Sebastian and a strong supporting cast.

This is a story that breathes romance, a tender, ephemeral love theme, developed in a masterly way. Those who have laughed at the blonde, good-natured Boyd before will roar at him in this picture, for it is his best, and that is saying a good deal. Not only is there a grand story told in this film but it is also a gorgeous spectacle. Those who see it, see one of the most thrilling steeplechases ever filmed. They hear some of the funniest dialogue ever written, and they get an inside on the fun and thrills of army life that they may never before have dreamed of.

To tell the plot in full would be unfair to those who have not yet been to the Palace to see "His First Command." Sufficient to say that it concerns a young man from the east, a millionaire's son who got to playing so fast and loose with life that his father decided he'd send him somewhere where he'd be safe, also where he wouldn't find any more women. A faithful Negro chauffeur is packed along to see that the young man is kept out of danger, and the boy sets off for Kansas to take over the management of one of his father's branch offices.

Does he stay away from the women; does he conduct himself with dignity befitting his new office in life? Does he do anything his father had hoped he would do? Well, we'll let you guess, until you see for yourself how the trip west affected this young man's outlook on life.

On Wednesday the Palace brings to Norwich a bill which have the town talking for months to come. It is a double feature program, the like of which has not been seen here at any time, for it includes not only the great George Arliss in his second big screen success, "The Green Goddess," but also "The Grand Parade," a romantic picture of backstage life with a great cast.

Broadway Theatre

"You lose, doc, I'm going!" Were the last words of New York's most famous and squarest gambler, who had just bet the ambulance surgeon 50 to 1 he'd not survive the bullet which was his reward for violating the "code." And to this day, when his famous murder mystery is mentioned to a New York copper, that same copper is at once a very sick man, for the Rothstein case has never been solved. The sentence quoted in the opening lines furnishes the climax to one of the many thrilling scenes in "Street of Chance," in which William Powell, in his first starring role, has the difficult character of "Natural" Davis, thinly disguising the ill-starred Arnold Rothstein. The whole grim story, reconstructed from police records and personal observation by Oliver H. P. Garrett, a veteran New York reporter, is depicted on the Broadway screen with vividness and intensity, and not one line of the original life-drama is sacrificed in the screening. Kay Francis, sleek and beautiful, is the gambler-king's wife, Regis Toomey, his kid brother, unwittingly the cause of his death, and Dorgan, the Monk, Nigger Mastick and other noted New York "high-card" men are depicted with startling accuracy. On the same bill are the latest Paramount Sound news, Laurel & Hardy in a rib-tickling comedy "A Perfect Day." A Paramount talkartoon "Radio Riots," and Will King, noted Hebrew comic with Billy Bevan and a flock of cuties in "Weak but Willing." Preparations are under way for an early showing of Ramon Novarro's first all-talking sensation, "Devil-May-Care," in which stirring adventure, lively romance and strong drama are blended, with plenty of opportunity to display Novarro's magnificent singing voice.

Breed Theatre

Stage fans joined picturegoers yesterday at the Breed theatre for the initial showing of "South Sea Rose," a Fox Movietone production starring Lenore Ulric in her second all-talking role. This feature will run until Wednesday night.

The reception which greeted the noted star's initial appearance on the speaking screen in "Frozen Justice" attested to her wide popularity beyond the logitimate theatre audiences to whom she has been a favorite for many seasons. Her first screen appearance has augmented this throng of fans by enormous numbers, as attested to by the spirited interest exhibited by local theatregoers in "South Sea Rose."

"South Sea Rose," described as a sparkling comedy drama with its central figure a mischievous lass from the tropics, was adapted from Tom Cushing's play, "La Gringa." Charles Bickford has the most important male role, and players in support are Kenneth MacKenna, Farrell Macdonald, Tom Patricola, Roscoe Ates, Elizabeth Patterson, Ilka Chase, Daphne Pollard, Ben Hall, George MacFarlane and Charlotte Walker.

Allan Dwan directed this tempestuous, thrill-laden drama, which will undoubtedly be one of the season's biggest successes. It possesses not only brilliant acting but a powerful story, and also special songs and musical numbers.

Chick Sales in "A Ladies' Man" is an added attraction on this bill; also including the Fox News, a talking comedy and a novelty. Tonight is "Personal Night" at the Breed. All shortage checks for Beautyware will be redeemed tonight

JOSEFJAK'S LOSSES PROVE GREATER THAN SUPPOSED
(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, March 9.—Michael Josefjak, whose home on Converse avenue was burglarized Thursday afternoon, now states that his loss is greater than at first reported. He has discovered in addition to the $500 in cash which was taken that a $100 United States Liberty bond, 2 savings bank books, one on the Rockville Savings bank and one on the Stafford Savings bank, each containing deposits for substantial amounts were stolen. A violin and several phonograph records were also taken. As the outer doors and windows were closed when Mr. Josefjak arrived home from work Thursday he believes that whoever entered the house had a key with which to open the door. The money, liberty bond and bank books were kept in a trunk in a bed-room. The hinges of the trunk were broken off and it was found open by Mr. Josefjak, who keeps bachelor's hall in a ford room apartment in the rear of the Faulkner block, Converse avenue, which he purchased a few years ago. It has been learned that an unknown visitor called on Mr. Josefjak two or three times during the past month and tried to interest him in a machine which he said would manufacture money. Mr. Josefjak says that this man saw him put some money which he had received for rent in the trunk and his suspicions are naturally directed toward him as being the possible thief. He can, however, give only a meager description of the stranger and is unable to state where he came from or where he went after leaving his house.

REAR ADMIRAL CLARENCE A. CARR, 73, DIES SUDDENLY AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 9—Clarence A. Carr, 73, rear admiral, retired, U. S. N., died suddenly early today at his residence, 767 Montauk avenue. Saturday afternoon Admiral Carr suddenly became dizzy and about 5 o'clock he suffered an abdominal hemorrhage. Dr. George P. Cheney was summoned and after prescribing for the patient, Admiral Carr appeared to respond to the treatment. However, about 4:30 o'clock this morning a reaction occurred. A year ago he suffered a severe attack of pneumonia, which left him with a weakened heart, and to this his death is attributed.

He was born in Crawford county, Penn. July 26, 1856 and was graduated from Annapolis in 1878. In 1898 he married at New London Blanche Lanman, daughter of Rear Admiral Joseph Lanman of Norwich. Oct. 19th, 1928, they celebrated the 30th anniversary of their marriage which took place at the close of the Spanish-American war, at which date Admiral Carr held the rank of commander. The ceremony was performed at "The Elm", the Pequot avenue residence of Mrs. Carr's girlhood friend, Mrs. Cornelia Osgood Tyler, widow of Col. Augustus Cleveland Tyler, and formerly of Norwich. The year following their marriage they went to the Philippines, where they remained for two years and during the succeeding years they made their home in many parts of the world. Much of their time in this country was spent on the Pacific coast, but some time after Admiral Carr's retirement 10 years ago they chose New London as the location for their permanent home.

Admiral Carr purchased the sightly residence, corner of Montauk and Gardner avenues, and there, with his garden and other activities he appreciated to the full the privileges of a retired life, after his years of exacting service in the navy.

He was well known as a naval engineer and during the World war was in charge of the engineering work at Philadelphia navy yard.

Both Admiral and Mrs. Carr were converts to the Roman Catholic faith and have been active members of St. Joseph's church, Montauk avenue, New London. Admiral Carr was in full sympathy with the social and welfare activities of his wife, who has been identified with most of the outstanding organizations here since she became a resident of this city, having been chairman of the Red Cross roll call, secretary of the New London League of Women Voters, secretary of the Smith-Robinson club, secretary of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women, prominent in the Garden club, the Diocesan Bureau of Social Service, etc.

Both Admiral and Mrs. Carr were noted for their free-hearted hospitality, entertaining with simple and frank cordiality, happy to have their friends about them.

It is a coincidence that the death of Admiral Carr occurred just a week after the date when the body of Mrs. Carr's cousin, Mrs. Catherine Lanman Burnham, was brought from Washington, D. C., for burial in Norwich and when a number of relatives attending the funeral were guests in New London at the Carr residence. Admiral Carr's burial is also to be in the Lanman family plot in Yantic cemetery, Norwich.

Wherever they chanced to be stationed, both the admiral and his wife became noted for their interest in the welfare of the sailors and others in the different naval stations, by whom both were greatly and gratefully beloved.

They had no children, but have had as a member of their household since her girlhood Mrs. Carr's nephew, Joseph Lanman Richards, of Chicago.

Besides his wife, Admiral Carr is survived by four brothers, Osian Elmer, city manager of Fort Worth, Tex.; Humphrey and Alvah, of Seattle, Wash., and Allen Carr, of Crawford county, Pa.; also by three sisters, Viola and Matilda Carr, of Crawford county and Mrs. Clara Collier, of Cleveland, Ohio.

BRIDE OF A FORTNIGHT BEATS UP HER HUSBAND

Mrs. Robert Champion, a former Hartford girl, latterly a waitress here since her discharge at the State Farm for Women, Niantic, was in the police court Saturday. She was charged with intoxication and breach of the peace, all because she beat up her husband, a waiter in a State street restaurant two weeks after they were at the altar vowing that they would live happily ever afterward. Mrs. Champion, who is but 20, forgot the "Love, Honor and Obey" vow when she married her waiter, for her prosecution before Judge Daniel M. Cronin was the result of her having given her husband a severe beating besides wrecking the furnishings of their newly fitted love nest at 22 Shapley street. Mrs. Champion was surly and defiant when she pleaded guilty to both charges and it was only because of the pleadings of her husband not to send the girl-wife to jail, that Judge Cronin ordered the case continued to April 6 and placed the fighting bride in the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. In temporarily disposing of the case in this manner, Judge Cronin informed Mrs. Champion that unless she amended her ways and if she came before him again, she would be returned to the farm that harbors wayward females.

Champion is employed a part of the night and earlier in the week he visited a Waterford road house in search of his wife. He arrived there too late for the bride had departed. Friday night when his wife absented herself from home, Champion patiently awaited her return. She arrived at the Shapley street house about 2:30 o'clock, accompanied by a girl friend, also an ex-inmate of the State Farm for Women and a "boy friend." When Mrs. Champion insisted that the boy friend be supplied with sleeping accommodations for the night, Champion refused to permit the house being turned into a lodging house. The fighting spirit of Mrs. Champion, together with the fighting "water" that she had partaken of during the night showed her to be a female tartar, for she proceeded to beat up her Robert. While the screams of the women aroused neighbors and the bride was wrecking the furniture, some one informed the police of the fight in progress. Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey and Patrolman Harry Watterson when they entered the rooms saw plainly that a free-for-all had taken place there. Mrs. Champion although not in a mood to be molested in her own domicile, was taken to police headquarters and locked up for the night.

The Champion woman was arrested this afternoon by Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty, upon complaint of Probation Officer Mansfield, charged with violation of her parole. She was locked up and will be returned to the State Farm for Women. The young bride was Mary Zuccardi, of Hartford, also has been an inmate at the House of Good Shepherd, in that city.

Giordani Cesarina, 36, of 27 Summer street, a weaver, employed at he Bloom Silk mill, Garfield avenue, was charged with theft. The case was continued to Monday and Cesarina furnished a surety on his bond of $100. Cesarina was arrested Friday by Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh when the weaver was leaving the mill with his lunch box loaded with fillers, which, it is claimed, he has been selling to a Norwich resident.

Stephen Delaporta, 9 Archer court, charged with reckless driving was found not guilty. He was arrested Friday by Patrolman Carlos Stone.

Frank Cooney, 37 Eastern avenue, an iron-worker, was charged with non-support. His case was continued to April 5.

William Richards and William Wolfenden, both of Willimantic, were charged with being suspicious persons, but both cases were nolled. The young men were arrested early Friday morning when found roaming about State street. An investigation revealed that Richards and Wolfenden, the latter a former resident of New London, came to this city seeking work.

Escape From Mansfield

The New London police have been requested to be on the lookout for two young men, who escaped from the Mansfield Training school, Mansfield, Friday night. One of the pair is Raymond Hanna, 26, about five feet four inches and weighing about 140 pounds. He wore a dark overcoat, black trousers and a blue hat and brown shoes. The other is Joseph Kusyk, 17, about five feet five inches in height and weighing about 130 pounds. He has light hair and blue eyes. Kusyk wore a light gray sweater, dark trousers, white shirt and tan shoes.

An automobile owned by John E. Larkin, 15 Home street, stolen from the parking place, Huntington street, Friday night, was later recovered.

GROTON RECTOR PREACHED AT OPENING DEVOTIONS

Rev. Arnold A. Fenton, rector of Seabury Memorial church, Groton, was the preacher Sunday evening at St. Andrew's Episcopal church at the opening of the Sunday evening devotions during the Lenten period. The services were in charge of the pastor, Rev. E. J. Norris and Mrs. Charles Erwin, the church organist, had charge of the musical program. Rev. Mr. Fenton took as his text: Hebrew 3:14—"For we are made partakers of Christ if we hold the beginning of our confidence steadfast unto the end."

1, Remarkable inventions of past 25 years. Result-complex type of civilization and social unrest. Also brought about a speed mania. Man way ahead of himself.

2, Dangers of advanced civilization. Losing sight of God. Loss of spiritual and moral stability. Also lose sight of main purpose of life. Need poise and equilibrium as never before. Science adds more temptations — therefore not easy to live righteous lives.

3, The challenge—Utilize and enjoy scientific discoveries but do not worship them, thereby placing these things before God. Back of all discoveries is God. These lead us back to God only. In themselves are powerless to aid us in what lies beyond death. "Christ's principles are our federal reserve in a changing world and a changing age." Civilization will be less complicated if we have a clear vision of God and His plan for humanity. He enlightens our minds so that we can intelligently combat modern problems. "Like stately willow let us bend with modern civilization but let us not be broken by modern civilization."

4, Lent as a time to store up spiritual energy. Lent a time to stop and consider what we are struggling for in this life. "For the greater part Life is a struggle for superiority in the realm of usiness, politics and social position, but God has intended it to be a struggle for virtues and spiritual values."

On Friday evening Rev. Thomas Richey, rector of Christ church, will be the speaker at the church.

Miss Gertrude Fontaine, a teacher at West Hartford, spent the week end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Fontaine, on Central avenue.

Breaks Arm In Fall

The many friends of Mrs. William Guinan of Seventh street, will be sorry to learn that she met with an accident Friday evening at home. While descending the stairs in her home her heel caught in some manner, throwing her forward and she fell the length of the stairs. She was taken to the W. W. Backus hospital where it was found she received one broken and a bad sprained arm.

William Carroll, of Waterbury, is spending a few days at the home of his parents on Mowry avenue.

Women Receive Communion

At St. Mary's Memorial church the Children of Mary and other women of the parish received holy communion in a body at the 7:30 o'clock mass which was celebrated by Rev. Frederick M. Coholan, acting pastor, who was assisted in distributing holy communion by Rev. Arthur Sullivan. Father Coholan delivered the sermon, using for his topic, Sin, Pride, Covetousness and Lust. Rev. Sullivan was the celebrant of the 9 and 10:30 o'clock masses.

Many local Knights of Columbus went to Putnam Sunday, to witness the third degree exemplification.

Prayer was offered Sunday for the persecuted Christians in Russia, the Lutheran Church of America having issued a call for prayer at the beginning of Lent.

TAFTVILLE

A largely attended brim-full-of-interest meeting of the members of the Taftville Rod and Gun club was held Thursday evening, with President Fred Dugas in the chair. There were about 60 members answering the roll call. The committee on by-laws brought in a number of new rules and changes to old ones, which were accepted by the meeting and ordered added to the records.

In future, a membership committee will pass on all applications for membership, and application must be made in writing. The membership committee is made up of the executive board of the organization.

Plans were made to offer prizes for the largest trout, bass and pickerel caught by a club member during the coming season. The committee which will make the official weighing record consists of the president, Mr. Dugas, and the secretary, Edward Duprey. Only members in good standing are eligible to compete for these prizes; the awards being made to the winner only if he is in good standing on the day prior to the opening of the season on that particular species of fish. Those who are holders of membership cards on April 14 will be eligible in the trout contest, it was announced.

The treasurer announced that although the fiscal year of the club opens April 1, a number of the members have already secured their newcards and paid their dues.

The meeting listened with interest to six representatives of hunting and trapping organizations, when they spoke on the habits, breeding and protection of different kinds of game; and their plans about working for amendment of state laws governing trapping. A number of the Rod and Gun club members also are members in these hunting and trapping organizations.

At the election of officers, Fred Dugas was re-elected president; Blair Cormier, vice-president; Edward Duprey, secretary; Edward Welsman, assistant secretary; Joseph Benac, treasurer. The executive board consists of Fred Ince, George Barlow, Herman Boenig, Joseph Dugas, Ray Beaudoin, Wilfred Beauchemin, and the auditors are Alfred Labarre and Joseph Dugas.

After adjournment of the business session, a venison stew was served which was most appetizing. The club is continuing its efforts, not only to encourage sportsmanship in the hunting, fishing and trapping field, but to work for an increase in the supply of game and to furnish accurate information to its members regarding the state laws applying to hunting, fishing and trapping. The membership is made up not only of those who like to hunt, fish and trap, but of others who are interested in wild life and desire to see the present supply of game increased for the benefit of intelligent and unselfish sportsmen.

All the members of Peter Gallan post, No. 104, have been invited to the banquet to be held this (Monday) evening, which is being furnished by the losing team in the recent membership drive. Napoleon J. Pepin was captain of the losers, and Napoleon Benoit headed the winning team. When the membership contest began, it was agreed that the team obtaining the least new members was to feast the entire post membership.

President Albert Airey of the Men's club of the Taftville Congregational church has announced that the speaker at the next meeting of the organization is to be Dr. Malcolm Dana of Hartford, who will address the members on "Changing America."

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Linderson and Miss Helen C. Aberg of North Third avenue were in Bridgeport over the week end, where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Linderson's son, Wifred Linderson.

At the Taftville Congregational church Sunday morning, the sermon subject of the pastor, Rev. William Penner, was "Soul Food." There was also a message by Roderick W. Hurlburt of the Hartford Theological seminary.

Miss Virginia T. Cooley, who has been the guest for the past week of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wood of the Old Canterbury turnpike, has returned to Norwich.

Master Charles Helmboldt of Blissville played violin selections at the Sunday evening service at the Norwich Town First Methodist Episcopal church.

The members of the American Legion auxiliary met Wednesday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah Community building, with the president, Miss Aurette Fournier, presiding.

For the past several days men employed by the state highway department have been busy repairing the dangerous rough spots on the Old Canterbury turnpike, which were caused by water from the recent heavy rains getting under the surface of the highway and breaking it up for a distance of several hundred feet.

Signs have been placed near the Hunters road entrance to Mohegan park to advise motorists that the park roads from that point are impassable because of mud and deep ruts.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Schmidt and little daughter have moved from West Main street, Norwich, to Blissville.

DRISCOLL'S LUNCH GOES OUT OF BUSINESS

Driscoll's lunch wagon, for years a familiar sight on Shetucket street, has gone out of business. George F. Driscoll, the proprietor, who personally conducted the lunch counter for 28 years, has moved the cart to his farm on Laurel Hill where it will be kept as a relic of by-gone days. Mr. Driscoll closed up the business the first of this month.

Driscoll's lunch was started over 40 years ago, when Richard Driscoll, brother of George F. Driscoll and who died in New Haven several years ago, purchased a wagon and established himself in business on the easterly side of Shetucket street. The wagon was at that time located in front of the building then occupied by the Chelsea Savings bank. Richard Driscoll conducted the business until 1902, when it was taken over by his brother, George F. Driscoll, who continued to conduct it on the same side of the street. At the time he took over the business, in 1902, Mr. Driscoll purchased a new wagon, which served him up to the time he went out of business March 1. For the past four years the cart was located on the westerly side of the street, about opposite its original position.

During the years Mr. Driscoll conducted the lunch cart he had many interesting experiences. Mr. Driscoll, from his place behind the counter, discovered the Shannon building fire in February, 1909. He also discovered another fire in a ladies' apparel shop on the street, some years ago. Mr. Driscoll has made no definite business plans for the future.

MERCHANTS VOTE TO CARRY ON NORWICH RADIO BROADCAST PLAN

Norwich will be "on the air" in a ten week radio broadcast this spring, according to announcement made Sunday by Secretary John Richardson of the Norwich chamber of commerce. The Norwich Retail Merchants' bureau decided to carry out the radio broadcast from Station WTIC, Hartford, at a meeting held late Saturday afternoon. At the meeting there was a careful consideration of the outlook for the necessary funds, based upon a survey made during the last few days from this standpoint. It is planned to broadcast Norwich, starting either the second or third week in April, continuing ten consecutive weeks, and Secretary John Richardson of the local chamber, under whose supervision the program will be prepared, has already started the work of gathering the material for the manuscripts. This pioneer movement, by Norwich, among cities of New England and many other sections of the country, will enable the city to take its place among New England's most progressive communities, and will bring Norwich with its great natural advantages before an audience of more than six millions of people on each of the ten broadcasts. It will also find Norwich listed among the radio features of more than 400 newspapers, the result being that Norwich should find within her borders this season, tourists from all sections of the country. Places of history and scenic beauty will be revealed by the old doctor and the schoolmaster as they meet the great radio audience of WTIC in their weekly programs. The proposed programs also contemplate the presentation of industrial Norwich and also its institutions. References will be made to all such and with the handiwork of nature and the part played by this section of the country in its first progress toward liberty from the time when the Red Man ruled, it will make possible a story of interest, humor and fact, that will make Norwich known as a city of remarkable historic importance.

The president of the Merchants' bureau will announce his appointment of a historical committee to act as a source of authority on historical matter, shortly, and to carry on the work of securing the balance of the funds necessary in order that this part of the project will be entirely cleared up prior to the first radio program.

It was also decided by the girls that during Lent the meetings will start at 8 and continue until 10 o'clock.

Following the business session, the director of the club, Mrs. W. B. McKean, gave a talk on "Personal Hygiene" to the girls. A recreational period and refreshments were enjoyed by the members. It was announced that beginning next Friday evening the girls will take sewing and fancy work to the meetings and Mrs. McKean will read to them while they are at work.

SCOUT COUNCIL TO HEAR POWELL DINNER DESCRIBED

At a meeting of the executive board of the Eastern Connecticut Council of the Boy Scouts of America, to be held this (Monday) evening at 7:30 o'clock in the chamber of commerce rooms, Charles Colt, national delegate of the council, will describe the dinner held Saturday in New York in honor of the founder of Boy Scouting Sir Robert Baden Powell. Mr. Colt was much impressed with the dinner and in particular with the principal speaker, Sir Robert. According to Mr. Colt, Sir Robert expressed hope for a lasting international amity through the education of the younger generations, declaring that the true spirit of scouting has become manifest. The uplift of our nations by their youth, the founder said, cannot but result in better understanding, not only within nations, but between nations.

When the Girl Scouts ad the Boy Scouts of all countries stand shoulder to shoulder for our ideals of kindness, courage, good citizenship and chivalry, they will be thinking as people in the same terms. When that is settled we shall have world peace. Until that is settled all efforts toward disarmament can enjoy but limited success.

According to Captain Colt, Governor Roosevelt also gave an excellent address: "We have been troubled greatly in this country recently," the governor said, "not only by an apparent increase in reckless crime, but by the increasing number of criminals who come from the ranks of our youth. Crimes of banditry, and particularly that variety known as hold-ups, have become, apparently, a young man's game. History has shown us that punishment in itself will not eliminate the criminal. We are groping more or less blindly for ways of keeping our young men and women from crime. I wish our people understood more fully that in this great Boy Scout and Girl Scout movement we have already one very good and practical solution of the question."

According to the local scout headquarters, Mr. Colt will give a description of the dinner at the scoutmasters' round table Wednesday evening at the Community house and will later speak briey of his impressions of the founder at the coming court of honor.

TALMAN STREET FENCING DAMAGED SATURDAY MORNING

Street Commissioner Herbert B. Wightman reported to the police Sunday night that sometime Saturday morning a section of the iron fencing on Talman street, near Laurel Hill avenue, had been twisted and bent with a resulting damage of about $50. It is thought that some automobile struck the fence and that the driver failed to make a report of the accident.

GROTON RECTOR PREACHED AT OPENING DEVOTIONS

Rev. Arnold A. Fenton, rector of Seabury Memorial church, Groton, was the preacher Sunday evening at St. Andrew's Episcopal church at the opening of the Sunday evening devotions during the Lenten period. The services were in charge of the pastor, Rev. E. J. Norris and Mrs. Charles Erwin, the church organist, had charge of the musical program. Rev. Mr. Fenton took as his text: Hebrew 3:14—"For we are made partakers of Christ if we hold the beginning of our confidence steadfast unto the end."

1. Remarkable inventions of past 25 years. Result-complex type of civilization and social unrest. Also brought about a speed mania. Man way ahead of himself.

2. Dangers of advanced civilization. Losing sight of God. Loss of spiritual and moral stability. Also lose sight of main purpose of life. Need poise and equilibrium as never before. Science adds more temptations — therefore not easy to live righteous lives.

3. The challenge—Utilize and enjoy scientific discoveries but do not worship them, thereby placing these things before God. Back of all discoveries is God. These lead us back to God only. In themselves are powerless to aid us in what lies beyond death. "Christ's principles are our federal reserve in a changing world and a changing age." Civilization will be less complicated if we have a clear vision of God and His plan for humanity. He enlightens our minds so that we can intelligently combat modern problems. "Like stately willow let us bend with modern civilization but let us not be broken by modern civilization."

4. Lent as a time to store up spiritual energy. Lent a time to stop and consider what we are struggling for in this life. "For the greater part Life is a struggle for superiority in the realm of usiness, politics and social position, but God has intended it to be a struggle for virtues and spiritual values."

On Friday evening Rev. Thomas Richey, rector of Christ church, will be the speaker at the church.

Miss Gertrude Fontaine, a teacher at West Hartford, spent the week end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Fontaine, on Central avenue.

Breaks Arm In Fall

The many friends of Mrs. William Guinan of Seventh street, will be sorry to learn that she met with an accident Friday evening at home. While descending the stairs in her home her heel caught in some manner, throwing her forward and she fell the length of the stairs. She was taken to the W. W. Backus hospital where it was found she received one broken and a bad sprained arm.

William Carroll, of Waterbury, is spending a few days at the home of his parents on Mowry avenue.

Women Receive Communion

At St. Mary's Memorial church the Children of Mary and other women of the parish received holy communion in a body at the 7:30 o'clock mass which was celebrated by Rev. Frederick M. Coholan, acting pastor, who was assisted in distributing holy communion by Rev. Arthur Sullivan. Father Coholan delivered the sermon, using for his topic, Sin, Pride, Covetousness and Lust. Rev. Sullivan was the celebrant of the 9 and 10:30 o'clock masses.

Many local Knights of Columbus went to Putnam Sunday, to witness the third degree exemplification.

The flowers at the First Evangelical Lutheran church, Franklin street, Sunday, were given by Mr. and Mrs. Bernhard Krauss, and Gustave Kaempffe, in memory of Howard Kaempffe, and by Mrs. A. Grodotska, in memory of Mrs. W. Hamann.

Prayer was offered Sunday for the persecuted Christians in Russia, the Lutheran Church of America having issued a call for prayer at the beginning of Lent.

TAFTVILLE

A largely attended brim-full-of-interest meeting of the members of the Taftville Rod and Gun club was held Thursday evening, with President Fred Dugas in the chair. There were about 60 members answering the roll call. The committee on by-laws brought in a number of new rules and changes to old ones, which were accepted by the meeting and ordered added to the records.

In future, a membership committee will pass on all applications for membership, and application must be made in writing. The membership committee is made up of the executive board of the organization.

Plans were made to offer prizes for the largest trout, bass and pickerel caught by a club member during the coming season. The committee which will make the official weighing record consists of the president, Mr. Dugas, and the secretary, Edward Duprey. Only members in good standing are eligible to compete for these prizes; the awards being made to the winner only if he is in good standing on the day prior to the opening of the season on that particular species of fish. Those who are holders of membership cards on April 14 will be eligible in the trout contest, it was announced.

The treasurer announced that although the fiscal year of the club opens April 1, a number of the members have already secured their newcards and paid their dues.

The meeting listened with interest to six representatives of hunting and trapping organizations, when they spoke on the habits, breeding and protection of different kinds of game; and their plans about working for amendment of state laws governing trapping. A number of the Rod and Gun club members also are members in these hunting and trapping organizations.

At the election of officers, Fred Dugas was re-elected president; Blair Cormier, vice-president; Edward Duprey, secretary; Edward Welsman, assistant secretary; Joseph Benac, treasurer. The executive board consists of Fred Ince, George Barlow, Herman Boenig, Joseph Dugas, Ray Beaudoin, Wilfred Beauchemin, and the auditors are Alfred Labarre and Joseph Dugas.

After adjournment of the business session, a venison stew was served which was most appetizing. The club is continuing its efforts, not only to encourage sportsmanship in the hunting, fishing and trapping field, but to work for an increase in the supply of game and to furnish accurate information to its members regarding the state laws applying to hunting, fishing and trapping. The membership is made up not only of those who like to hunt, fish and trap, but of others who are interested in wild life and desire to see the present supply of game increased for the benefit of intelligent and unselfish sportsmen.

All the members of Peter Gallan post, No. 104, have been invited to the banquet to be held this (Monday) evening, which is being furnished by the losing team in the recent membership drive. Napoleon J. Pepin was captain of the losers, and Napoleon Benoit headed the winning team. When the membership contest began, it was agreed that the team obtaining the least new members was to feast the entire post membership.

President Albert Airey of the Men's club of the Taftville Congregational church has announced that the speaker at the next meeting of the organization is to be Dr. Malcolm Dana of Hartford, who will address the members on "Changing America."

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Linderson and Miss Helen C. Aberg of North Third avenue were in Bridgeport over the week end, where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Linderson's son, Wifred Linderson.

At the Taftville Congregational church Sunday morning, the sermon subject of the pastor, Rev. William Penner, was "Soul Food." There was also a message by Roderick W. Hurlburt of the Hartford Theological seminary.

Miss Virginia T. Cooley, who has been the guest, for the past week of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wood of the Old Canterbury turnpike, has returned to Norwich.

Master Charles Helmboldt of Blissville played violin selections at the Sunday evening service at the Norwich Town First Methodist Episcopal church.

The members of the American Legion auxiliary met Wednesday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah Community building, with the president, Miss Aurette Fournier, presiding.

For the past several days men employed by the state highway department have been busy repairing the dangerous rough spots on the Old Canterbury turnpike, which were caused by water from the recent heavy rains getting under the surface of the highway and breaking it up for a distance of several hundred feet.

Signs have been placed near the Hunters road entrance to Mohegan park to advise motorists that the park roads from that point are impassable because of mud and deep ruts.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Schmidt and little daughter have moved from West Main street, Norwich, to Blissville.

DRISCOLL'S LUNCH GOES OUT OF BUSINESS

Driscoll's lunch wagon, for years a familiar sight on Shetucket street, has gone out of business. George F. Driscoll, the proprietor, who personally conducted the lunch counter for 28 years, has moved the cart to his farm on Laurel Hill where it will be kept as a relic of by-gone days. Mr. Driscoll closed up the business the first of this month.

Driscoll's lunch was started over 40 years ago, when Richard Driscoll, brother of George F. Driscoll and who died in New Haven several years ago, purchased a wagon and established himself in business on the easterly side of Shetucket street. The wagon was at that time located in front of the building then occupied by the Chelsea Savings bank. Richard Driscoll conducted the business until 1902, when it was taken over by his brother, George F. Driscoll, who continued to conduct it on the same side of the street. At the time he took over the business, in 1902, Mr. Driscoll purchased a new wagon, which served him up to the time he went out of business March 1. For the past four years the cart was located on the westerly side of the street, about opposite its original position.

During the years Mr. Driscoll conducted the lunch cart he had many interesting experiences. Mr. Driscoll, from his place behind the counter, discovered the Shannon building fire in February, 1909. He also discovered another fire in a ladies' apparel shop on the street, some years ago. Mr. Driscoll has made no definite business plans for the future.

MERCHANTS VOTE TO CARRY ON NORWICH RADIO BROADCAST PLAN

Norwich will be "on the air" in a ten week radio broadcast this spring, according to announcement made Sunday by Secretary John Richardson of the Norwich chamber of commerce. The Norwich Retail Merchants' bureau decided to carry out the radio broadcast from Station WTIC, Hartford, at a meeting held late Saturday afternoon. At the meeting there was a careful consideration of the outlook for the necessary funds, based upon a survey made during the last few days from this standpoint. It is planned to broadcast Norwich, starting either the second or third week in April, continuing ten consecutive weeks, and Secretary John Richardson of the local chamber, under whose supervision the program will be prepared, has already started the work of gathering the material for the manuscripts. This pioneer movement, by Norwich, among cities of New England and many other sections of the country, will enable the city to take its place among New England's most progressive communities, and will bring Norwich with its great natural advantages before an audience of more than six millions of people on each of the ten broadcasts. It will also find Norwich listed among the radio features of more than 400 newspapers, the result being that Norwich should find within her borders this season, tourists from all sections of the country. Places of history and scenic beauty will be revealed by the old doctor and the schoolmaster as they meet the great radio audience of WTIC in their weekly programs. The proposed programs also contemplate the presentation of industrial Norwich and also its institutions. References will be made to all such and with the handiwork of nature and the part played by this section of the country in its first progress toward liberty from the time when the Red Man ruled, it will make possible a story of interest, humor and fact, that will make Norwich known as a city of remarkable historic importance.

The president of the Merchants' bureau will announce his appointment of a historical committee to act as a source of authority on historical matter, shortly, and to carry on the work of securing the balance of the funds necessary in order that this part of the project will be entirely cleared up prior to the first radio program.

It was also decided by the girls that during Lent the meetings will start at 8 and continue until 10 o'clock.

SCOUT COUNCIL TO HEAR POWELL DINNER DESCRIBED

At a meeting of the executive board of the Eastern Connecticut Council of the Boy Scouts of America, to be held this (Monday) evening at 7:30 o'clock in the chamber of commerce rooms, Charles Coit, national delegate of the council, will describe the dinner held Saturday in New York in honor of the founder of Boy Scouting Sir Robert Baden Powell. Mr. Coit was much impressed with the dinner and in particular with the principal speaker, Sir Robert. According to Mr. Coit, Sir Robert expressed hope for a lasting international amity through the education of the younger generations, declaring that the true spirit of scouting has become manifest. The uplift of our nations by their youth, the founder said, cannot but result in better understanding, not only within nations, but between nations.

When the Girl Scouts ad the Boy Scouts of all countries stand shoulder to shoulder for our ideals of kindness, courage, good citizenship and chivalry, they will be thinking as people in the same terms. When that is settled we shall have world peace. Until that is settled all efforts toward disarmament can enjoy but limited success.

According to Captain Coit, Governor Roosevelt also gave an excellent address: "We have been troubled greatly in this country recently," the governor said, "not only by an apparent increase in reckless crime, but by the increasing number of criminals who come from the ranks of our youth. Crimes of banditry, and particularly that variety known as hold-ups, have become, apparently, a young man's game. History has shown us that punishment in itself will not eliminate the criminal. We are groping more or less blindly for ways of keeping our young men and women from crime. I wish our people understood more fully that in this great Boy Scout and Girl Scout movement we have already one very good and practical solution of the question."

According to the local scout headquarters, Mr. Coit will give a description of the dinner at the scoutmasters' round table Wednesday evening at the Community house and will later speak briey of his impressions of the founder at the coming court of honor.

TALMAN STREET FENCING DAMAGED SATURDAY MORNING

Street Commissioner Herbert B. Wightman reported to the police Sunday night that sometime Saturday morning a section of the iron fencing on Talman street, near Laurel Hill avenue, had been twisted and bent with a resulting damage of about $50. It is thought that some automobile struck the fence and that the driver failed to make a report of the accident.

WASHINGTON SADLY AWAITS FUNERAL TODAY OF W. H. TAFT

President Hoover and Official Representatives of the Nation Will Attend the Services At 2 P. M. — There Will Be Prayer, But No Eulogies—Infantry, Artillery, Marines, Bluejackets and Cavalry Will Comprise the Military Escort—Both the Army and Marine Bands Will Be In the Procession—Arrangements Have Been Made For Broadcasting the Funeral Services and All Events In Connection With the Ceremonies.

WASHINGTON, March 10—(AP)—The government of a bereaved nation tomorrow will put William Howard Taft to rest with the honored dead in its cemetery overlooking the capital city.

Foregoing the daily work, congress, the supreme court and President Hoover turned today, as cannon boomed a requiem, to make every preparation for the funeral services of America's beloved public servant.

At nine o'clock in the morning the body will be escorted from his home to a catafalque under the dome of the capitol to lie in state at a point only a few paces from where Mr. Taft took the oath of president of the United States and near also to the chamber in which he served as chief justice.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon, the funeral services will be conducted in his church in the presence of the family, the president and the official representatives of the nation. Then, without military cortege, the body will be taken across the Potomac river to rest with America's soldier and statesman dead in Arlington national cemetery.

In the flower filled home, the family received throughout the day messages of condolence from almost every point of the globe. Mrs. Taft and the children, Mrs. Helen Taft Manning and Charles P. and Robert A. Taft, yesterday selected the burial plot in Arlington on a wooded slope overlooking the spires and domes of Washington.

The senate and house met just long enough today to adopt resolutions of sorrow and to appoint committees of 10 and 2, respectively to attend the services. They then adjourned until Wednesday.

In the supreme court the sadness was especially noticeable. On Saturday just a few hours before Mr. Taft passed on, Justice Edward T. Sanford died suddenly. It was the 89th birthday of Justice Holmes and today—the regular meeting time of the court—this venerable jurist spoke for his colleagues.

"Such events must be accepted in silent awe," counseled the distinguished white-haired Justice Holmes.

The black robed justices turned from their bench and filed out past the black draped empty chair of Mr. Sanford.

Arrangements have been completed for broadcasting over the radio tomorrow the funeral services and all the events in connection with the ceremonies. The radio will carry across the country the picture at the capitol.

At noon, the body will be returned to an army caisson to be borne to the All Souls' Unitarian church. The route from the Taft residence to the capitol and thence to the church, leads past the white house in both instances and transverses Pennsylvania avenue between the capitol and white house both ways.

Major General W. F. Sladen, commanding general of the Third corps area, at Baltimore, will command the military procession which will escort the body until it leaves the church. Eight non-commissioned officers from the army, navy and marine corps, will act as pallbearers. The supreme court justices will be honorary pallbearers.

Simple services will be held in the church. As the body approaches the sixteenth street edifice, the church bells will toll. The Rev. Ulysses G. D. Pierce will stand at the door to meet the procession.

Flags and flowers cover the pew where Taft sat. The casket will be taken to the chancel. There will be prayer, but no eulogies. The hymns "Abide With Me," and "Lead Kindly Light," will be played and two of Taft's favorite poems will be read. At Arlington, the committal service and prayer will be concluded with Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar" and the military salute.

President and Mrs. Hoover will go directly from the white house to the church. They will accompany the funeral party to Arlington. At Fort Myer near Arlington, the party will be met again by a military escort, including the navy band, cavalry and a battalion of engineers.

A guard of honor of two officers and 16 non-commissioned officers from the army and a like number from the navy and marine corps will be on duty at the capitol during the time the remains lie in state.

Both the army and marine bands will march in the procession from the house to the capitol and thence to the church. Three battalions of infantry, field artillery and marines, a company of bluejackets and a squadron of cavalry compose the military escort.

The catafalque on which the body will rest at the capitol also bore the remains there of four former presidents—Abraham Lincoln, James A. Garfield, William McKinley and Warren G. Harding.

For one hour and a half the body will lie in state in the capitol, supported by an historic catafalque and surrounded by a selected military and naval guard, while thousands pass in double file to pay their last tribute.

At high noon a funeral procession formed by an extended military and naval detail will file slowly on Pennsylvania avenue, passing the white house, and continuing to the All Souls' Unitarian church, arriving about 1:50 p. m.

At 2:00 p. m., Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce will begin funeral services.

At about 2:35, accompanied by leaders of the nation in automobiles, and without military escort, the body will be borne from the city to Arlington, while 21 gun salutes are being fired by military and naval posts.

At Fort Myer the procession will be joined by a large military escort, which will fire the final salute as the body is lowered into its last resting place.

TO TRANSMIT TO LONDON PART OF TAFT BROADCAST

NEW YORK, March 10—(AP)—As part of its broadcast of the funeral services for William Howard Taft from Washington tomorrow, the Columbia chain will transmit from London a tribute to the late chief justice by Lord Reading, a former viceroy of India. He will begin speaking at 12:30 p. m., eastern time.

Columbia will devote most of its day time periods tomorrow to the Taft funeral, starting at 9:30 a. m. The entire CBS network of stations is to be used.

EVENTS IN CONNECTION WITH FUNERAL OF TAFT

WASHINGTON, March 10—(AP)—The succession of events in connection with the funeral of William Howard Taft tomorrow follows:

At 9:00 a. m. the body will be taken from his home, escorted by a squadron of cavalry.

The procession will move through the streets toward the heart of city, passing the white house and continuing down Pennsylvania avenue to the capitol arriving about 10:20 a. m.

BRITISH LABOR GOVT. NOW FACES BATTLE IN COMMONS

LONDON, March 10—(AP)—The British labor government is facing a double onslaught in the house of commons tomorrow on amendments to its coal-mines bill and its handling of the unemployment program.

David Lloyd George, liberal party leader and former prime minister, opened the liberal attack today, asserting that J. H. Thomas, lord privy seal and minister in charge of the unemployment problem had taken a narrow and timid view of his responsibility.

Citing figures that showed an increase in the number of unemployed of more than 400,000 since labor took office, he declared that "the time has come for a very candid and fearless review of the whole position."

He said the house could not escape its responsibility and that England's failure year after year to cope with unemployment was making a bad impression abroad.

Meanwhile, the house of commons lobbies were buzzing with talk to the effect that the government might be defeated during the voting on some of the amendments to its coal-mines bill, which comes before the house tomorrow night.

CLAIMS KECK WAS HER COMMON LAW HUSBAND

NEW YORK, March 10—(AP)—A former French manicurist—Helen Boby—testified in supreme court today that Thomas A. Keck, retired millionaire, had been her common law husband for 15 years and had "married" her with a ring ceremony of his own innovation.

She is suing Keck for separation, $3,000 a month alimony and $25,000 counsel fees.

Keck, she testified, often spoke of marriage after he met her here in 1910 and sent her many gifts. In 1912, she said, Keck arranged to go to Europe and suggested that she follow him and that they would be married in Paris.

When they later met in Paris, she continued, Keck took her to lunch and slipped a diamond banded wedding ring and a solitaire diamond ring upon her finger.

"I was amazed," she said. "Then he smiled and said 'Now we are married.' I protested that I never had heard of such a kind of marriage and he said that he had taken this course to keep the marriage from his family who were very rich and would involve him in financial difficulties if they knew he was married."

88 MEN WERE RESCUED FROM FIRE-SWEPT MINE

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio, March 10.—(AP)—Imperiled by burning timbers and falling coal, rescue squads went into the flame-swept Wolf Run mine of the Warner collieries near Amsterdam, Ohio, today and brought 88 men to the surface, one of them dead from smoke fumes and the others unharmed.

The only fatality among the men, who for hours were trapped behind a fire wall that cut off the main entrance to the mine, was an old man who suffered from asthma and could not survive the smoke. He was Paul Borkowski, 65.

At 9 o'clock tonight, several hours after the fire started from a short circuit caused by a mine car, officials of the company announced that the workings had been searched thoroughly and that no more miners could be found.

BULLET CRASHED THROUGH WINDOW OF AUTOMOBILE

EAST HAMPTON, March 10—(AP)—A bullet believed to have been fired from a rifle crashed through an automobile window today and narrowly missed two occupants. The car was traveling across the tracks at the Westchester railroad station.

The bullet grazed the left shoulder of an overcoat worn by Max Goldberg, one of the occupants, after whistling by Lloyd Sweet, the driver. The men are Middletown residents.

State police tonight were attempting to ascertain the source of the bullet.

FEELING OF SATISFACTION NOW PREVAILS IN HAITI

NAT. REP. CLUB VOTES TO CALL FOR REPEAL OF 18TH AMENDMENT

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—The National Republican club, at a special meeting tonight, by a vote of 461 to 335, adopted a resolution calling upon the republican members of congress to vote for the repeal of the 18th amendment.

The text of the resolution is:

"Resolved that the National Republican club urges representatives of the republican party in both houses of congress to advocate and vote for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment in order to restore the American form of government."

The vote came at the end of a spirited four-hour session. The meeting was called at the request of 15 members sometime ago and a battle for proxies has been waged since then by wet and dry factions of the club.

Charges and counter-charges reached a climax when Richard W. Lawrence, president, was accused of "attempting to wreck the organization," by a ruling that dry proxies could not be voted on a motion to table the resolution. Lawrence later reversed the ruling and the motion to table was defeated by a vote of 479 to 360.

TESTIMONY POINTS TOWARD MOULTHROPE AS THE SLAYER

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Testimony of two more witnesses today pointed toward Watson Moulthrope as the slayer of Detective W. D. Smith, of Jacksonville, for whose death Jan. 17 Moulthrope and Roland Lalone, escaped Connecticut convicts, are on trial.

Fred H. King of Jacksonville, detective for Duval county, told the jury that Moulthrope declared Smith was "the first man I ever shot or shot at in my life."

E. L. Acosta, detective inspector of Jacksonville, quoted Leo Landry, companion of the defendants in their prison escape and in the gun battle, as saying Moulthrope shot Smith.

Landry, scheduled to testify today against his prison mates, is expected to be heard tomorrow. He also is under indictment for Smith's death but will be tried later.

King gave a detailed account of conversations he said he had with Moulthrope and Lalone in jail at Pensacola, Fla, in which city they were arrested Jan. 24, and later in the Duval county jail in Jacksonville.

"I told Moulthrope," King related, "that I had heard of his conversation with Officer Archie Bowman of Pensacola in which Moulthrope said he shot the man who was searching Leo Landry. He said 'Yes, that's the first man I ever shot or shot at in my life. I shot the man who was searching Landry. I shot one time and then I ran.'"

King said Moulthrope told him Lalone fired "plenty" of shots, "but you'll have to get that from Lalone."

King told the court that Moulthrope had termed the officers who searched him "the dumbest cops I ever saw." King said he asked what the convict meant and Moulthrope answered, "Well, they came to search three men in a stolen car. The cops had their overcoats buttoned up and could not get to their pistols. They were surely dumb."

MAY NOT CALL ELECTION FOR SUCCESSOR OF GLYNN

HARTFORD, March 10.—(AP)— An election in the fifth congressional district may not be called by Gov. John H. Trumbull unless there is need for the filling of the vacancy in the Connecticut delegation caused by the death of Congressman James P. Glynn, who was buried today.

Gov. Trumbull has asked for information on this point from Congressman John Q. Tilson, member from the third Connecticut district who is floor leader in the national house.

Statutes and party rules require about sixty days interval before a special election can be held. If there should be prospect of an early adjournment of congress and the governor should be advised that there was no emergency existing which would require the presence of a member from the fifth district, the election will go over until November which is the time for election of all congressmen in the state.

INDIAN WOMEN INDICTED FOR MURDER OF MRS. MARCHAND

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 10.—(AP)—White man's justice works quickly, it has been proven to two Indian women, against whom the county grand jury today returned indictments for murder, first degree, in the slaying last Thursday of Mrs. Henri Marchand, wife of the noted artist.

Miss Lila Jimerson, 35, allegedly in love without his knowledge with Marchand, and Mrs. Nancy Bowen, 66, whom the younger woman is said to have influenced, through use of Indian "black magic," and the ouija board, to kill his wife, were arraigned immediately this afternoon before County Judge F. Bret Thorn.

The indictments read to the women charge that they caused Mrs. Marchand's death by strangling her with a wad of paper thrust in her mouth. Miss Jimerson, alleged instigator of the crime, chewed gum vigorously while in court. Both she and Nancy wore the same dingy black garments they wore when arrested.

Merger with Bethlehem would challenge the leadership of the great United States Steel corporation. Merger with Republic would put the new company second and Bethlehem third in the steel industry.

Belgium To Proceed With Debt Refunding

Will Establish a "Monetary Fund" To Be Administered By Treasury Department.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, March 10.—(AP)—The Belgian government, being sure of parliament's ratification, today took the necessary steps for debt refunding without waiting for a formal vote of the house.

Under the plan, devised by Finance Minister Maurice Houtpart, a "monetary fund" will be established and will be administered by the treasury department, aided by the National bank.

This fund henceforth will take charge of coins up to twenty francs, for which thus far no legal reserve has existed. The actual amount of various nickel coins and five and twenty-franc notes in circulation totals 750,000,000 francs.

This circulation is to be raised to 1,200,000,000 francs, the total amount to be guaranteed by foreign gold currency to the extent of forty per cent, and the remaining 60 per cent by Belgian state bonds and other debentures guaranteed by the state.

The contemplated paying to the Morgan company of $30,000,000, still owing of the 7 1-2 per cent $50,000,000 loan of 1920, will thus be made by the momentary fund.

The Belgian state will pay off its debt to the fund by means of a $2,300,000 redeeming fund voted yearly to pay off the loan, the remaining $30,000,000 of which was to have been paid by 1945. By refunding this loan now, the government will save approximately 235,000,000 francs.

FUNERAL OF U. S. JUSTICE EDWARD TERRY SANFORD

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., March 10.—(AP)—The nation tendered its final honor here today to Edward Terry Sanford, justice of the United States supreme court, at funeral rites bare of all ceremony save the reading of an abbreviated Episcopal service.

The funeral party arrived here from Washington at 1:30 p. m. Fifty minutes later the body had been carried to the cemetery and the last words of the service had been said by the Rev. Dr. Walter C. Whitaker, rector of St. John's Episcopal church, Knoxville.

The service at the grave, at the foot of a hill fringed with pine trees, was said in the presence of Justice Sanford's colleagues, representatives of the Knoxville, Tenn., and American Bar associations and of delegations from the Nashville, Greenville and Chattanooga bars.

The crowd at the cemetery had been held to the minimum by request, but flowers were piled high about the grave.

Dumesnil, with an American technical observer present, began the task of trying to shake down the French fleet tonnage to harmonize in general the fleets of the five great powers.

This technical work will continue a week or ten days.

Charles Green, arrested and charged with the murder of Cassidy, was acquitted on a directed verdict after witnesses testified he was out of the room when the shooting took place.

HOOVER LAVISH IN PRAISE OF BOY SCOUT MOVEMENT

Spoke At Dinner In Washington Marking the 20th Anniversary of the Boy Scouts—The President Commended the Organization As One That Opens the Portals of Adventure For the Boy, Teaches Him the Joys of Nature, the Value of Discipline and of Unity of Effort, and the Democracy of Play.

WASHINGTON, March 10. — (AP) — Speaking in the full knowledge of parenthood, President Hoover told the nation tonight that the boy—with his sister—is the most precious possession of the American home and counselled that his leisure time be employed to direct his interests to constructive joy instead of destructive glee.

The chief executive pointed to the Boy Scout movement as one by which parents in this period of complex civilization might solve the problem of filling the leisure time of their sons. The speech, which he made at a dinner given by the Boy Scouts of America inaugurating a five-year expansion program, was broadcast nationally.

President Hoover referred to the organization as one that had opened the portals of adventure for the boy, had taught him the joys of nature, the value of discipline and of unity of effort, and the democracy of play.

"His is the plastic period when indelible impressions must be made if we are to continue a successful democracy," the president said. "We assure ourselves that the cure of illiteracy and the fundamentals of education be the three R's—reading, 'riting, and 'rithmetic. To this we must add one more R and that is responsibility—responsibility to the community—if we are not to have illiteracy in government. The convention that every person in the republic owes a service to the republic; that the republic rests solely upon the willingness of every one born in it to bear his part of the duties and obligations of citizenship is as important as the ability to read and write—that is the only patriotism of peace."

The address broke the rigid observance of mourning the president had set for himself out of respect to William Howard Taft and was made by Mr. Hoover after he recalled the love for children for which the late president and chief justice was noted.

The dinner marked the 20th anniversary of the Boy Scouts as it launched an appeal for $10,000,000 to finance the five-year expansion program and to provide a retirement fund for those professionally engaged in scout work. Various officials of the organization and leaders in boys work attended the dinner.

VERDICT IN FAVOR OF MRS. JOHN W. RIDDLE

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., March 10.—(AP) —A supreme court jury today returned a verdict in favor of Mrs. John Wallace Riddle in the breach of contract suit brought against her by Leland H. Lyon, architect. The jury deliberated an hour and 40 minutes.

Lyon had sued for $50,000 claiming that Mrs. Riddle, who was one of the first women architects in the country and builder of the Avon college at Old Farms, Conn., had failed to keep an agreement whereby she was to pay him $10,000 a year for his services.

The contract, Lyon alleged, was to have run during the construction of Avon college for which he had been engaged as architect. The amount of damages asked finally was reduced to $20,000.

Mrs. Riddle spent $5,000,000 in the construction of Avon college as a memorial to her parents.

Lyon now is a member of the New Rochelle, N. Y., city planning board.

LEWIS RETAINS CONTROL OF UNITED MINE WORKERS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 10.—(AP)—John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America who has been the target of repeated unsuccessful attacks during his administration, apparently had passed another test of his control over the union today, when the opening day of the 31st constitutional convention passed without revealing anything but a pro-administration attitude.

Lewis was given a great ovation as he was presented with the gavel, and again when the delegates unanimously voted to continue the constitution in effect indefinitely, legalizing and ratifying the action of the international board two years ago when it submitted the question to a referendum vote. It is on the contention that the constitution expired March 31, 1929 because no convention was called to extend it, that the leaders of the "rump" convention at Springfield, Ill., base their claim to a "reorganization" meeting.

WASHINGTON SADLY AWAITS FUNERAL TODAY OF W. H. TAFT

President Hoover and Official Representatives of the Nation Will Attend the Services At 2 P. M. — There Will Be Prayer, But No Eulogies—Infantry, Artillery, Marines, Bluejackets and Cavalry Will Comprise the Military Escort—Both the Army and Marine Bands Will Be In the Procession—Arrangements Have Been Made For Broadcasting the Funeral Services and All Events In Connection With the Ceremonies.

WASHINGTON, March 10—(AP)—The government of a bereaved nation tomorrow will put William Howard Taft to rest with the honored dead in its cemetery overlooking the capital city.

Foregoing the daily work, congress, the supreme court and President Hoover turned today, as cannon boomed a requiem, to make every preparation for the funeral services of America's beloved public servant.

At nine o'clock in the morning the body will be escorted from his home to a catafalque under the dome of the capitol to lie in state at a point only a few paces from where Mr. Taft took the oath of president of the United States and near also to the chamber in which he served as chief justice.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon, the funeral services will be conducted in his church in the presence of the family, the president and the official representatives of the nation. Then, without military cortege, the body will be taken across the Potomac river to rest with America's soldier and statesman dead at Arlington national cemetery.

In the flower filled home, the family received throughout the day messages of condolence from almost every point of the globe. Mrs. Taft and the children, Mrs. Helen Taft Manning and Charles P. and Robert A. Taft, yesterday selected the burial plot in Arlington on a wooded slope overlooking the spires and domes of Washington.

The senate and house met just long enough today to adopt resolutions of sorrow and to appoint committees of 9 and 2, respectively, to attend the services. They then adjourned until Wednesday.

In the supreme court the sadness was especially noticeable. On Saturday just a few hours before Mr. Taft passed on, Justice Edward T. Sanford died suddenly. It was the 89th birthday of Justice Holmes and today—the regular meeting time of the court—this venerable jurist spoke for his colleagues.

"Such events must be accepted in silent awe," counseled the distinguished white-haired Justice Holmes.

The black robed justices turned from the bench and filed out past the black draped empty chair of Mr. Sanford.

Arrangements have been completed for broadcasting over the radio tomorrow the funeral services and all the events in connection with the ceremonies. The radio will carry across the country the picture at the capitol.

At noon, the body will be returned under army escort to be borne to the All Souls' Unitarian church. The route from the Taft residence to the capitol and thence to the church, leads past the white house in both instances and traverses Pennsylvania avenue between the capitol and white house both ways.

Major General W. F. Sladen, commanding general of the Third corps area at Baltimore, will command the military procession which will escort the body until it leaves the church. Eight non-commissioned officers from the army, navy and marine corps will act as pallbearers. The supreme court justices will be honorary pallbearers.

Simple services will be held in the church. As the body approaches the sixteenth street edifice the church bells will toll. The Rev. Ulysses G. B. Pierce will stand at the door to meet the procession.

Flags and flowers cover the pew where Taft sat. The casket will be taken to the chancel. There will be prayer, but no eulogies. The hymns "Abide With Me" and "Lead Kindly Light," will be played and two of Taft's favorite poems will be read. At Arlington, the committal service and prayer will be concluded with Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar" and the military salute.

President and Mrs. Hoover will go directly from the white house to the church. They will accompany the funeral party to Arlington. At Fort Myer near Arlington, the party will be met again by a military escort, including the navy band, cavalry and a battalion of engineers.

A guard of honor of two officers and 80 non-commissioned officers from the army and a like number from the navy and marine corps will be on duty at the capitol during the time the remains lie in state.

Both the army and marine bands will march in the procession from the house to the capitol and thence to the church. Three battalions of infantry, field artillery and marines, a company of bluejackets and a squadron of cavalry compose the military escort.

The catafalque on which the body will rest at the capitol also bore the remains there of four former presidents—Abraham Lincoln, James A. Garfield, William McKinley and Warren G. Harding.

For one hour and a half the body will lie in state in the capitol, supported by an historic catafalque and surrounded by a selected military and naval guard, while thousands pass in double file to pay their last tribute.

At high noon a funeral procession formed by an extended military and naval detail will file slowly up Pennsylvania avenue, passing the white house, and continuing to the All Souls' Unitarian church, arriving about 1:50 p. m.

At 2:00 p. m., Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce will begin funeral services.

At about 2:35, accompanied by leaders of the nation in automobiles, and without military escort, the body will be borne from the city to Arlington, while 21 gun salutes are being fired by military and naval posts.

At Fort Myer the procession will be joined by a large military escort, which will fire the final salute as the body is lowered into its last resting place.

BRITISH LABOR GOVT. NOW FACES BATTLE IN COMMONS

LONDON, March 10—(AP)—The British labor government is facing a double onslaught in the house of commons tomorrow on amendments to its coal-mines bill and its handling of the unemployment program.

David Lloyd George, liberal party leader and former prime minister, opened the liberal attack today, asserting that J. H. Thomas, lord privy seal and minister in charge of the unemployment problem had taken a narrow and timid view of his responsibility.

Citing figures that showed an increase in the number of unemployed of more than 400,000 since labor took office, he declared that "the time has come for a very candid and fearless review of the whole position."

He said the house could not escape its responsibility and that England's failure year after year to cope with unemployment was making a bad impression abroad.

Meanwhile, the house of commons lobbies were buzzing with talk to the effect that the government might be defeated during the voting on some of the amendments to its coal-mines bill, which comes before the house tomorrow night.

CLAIMS KECK WAS HER COMMON LAW HUSBAND

NEW YORK, March 10—(AP)—A former French manicurist—Helen Boby—testified in supreme court today that Thomas A. Keck, retired millionaire, had been her common law husband for 15 years and had "married" her with a ring ceremony of his own innovation.

She is suing Keck for separation, $3,000 a month alimony and $25,000 counsel fees.

Keck, she testified, often spoke of marriage after he met her here in 1910 and sent her many gifts. In 1912, she said, Keck arranged to go to Europe and suggested that she follow him and that they would be married in Paris.

When they later met in Paris, she continued, Keck took her to lunch and slipped a diamond banded wedding ring and a solitaire diamond ring upon her finger.

"I was amazed," she said. "Then he smiled and said 'Now we are married.' I protested that I never had heard of such a kind of marriage and he said that he had taken this course to keep the marriage from his family who were very rich and would involve him in financial difficulties if they knew he was married."

88 MEN WERE RESCUED FROM FIRE-SWEPT MINE

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio, March 10—(AP)—Imperiled by burning timbers and falling coal, rescue squads went into the flame-swept Wolf Run mine of the Warner collieries near Amsterdam, Ohio, today and brought 88 men to the surface, one of them dead from smoke fumes and the others unharmed.

The only fatality among the men, who for hours were trapped behind a fire wall that cut off the main entrance to the mine, was an old man who suffered from asthma and could not survive the smoke. He was Paul Borkowski, 65.

At 9 o'clock tonight, several hours after the fire started from a short circuit caused by a mine car, officials of the company announced that the workings had been searched thoroughly and that no more miners could be found.

NAT. REP. CLUB VOTES TO CALL FOR REPEAL OF 18TH AMENDMENT

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—The National Republican club, at a special meeting tonight, by a vote of 461 to 335, adopted a resolution calling upon the republican members of congress to vote for the repeal of the 18th amendment.

The text of the resolution is:

"Resolved that the National Republican club urges representatives of the republican party in both houses of congress to advocate and vote for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment in order to restore the American form of government."

The vote came at the end of a spirited four-hour session. The meeting was called at the request of 15 members sometime ago and a battle for proxies has been waged since then by wet and dry factions of the club.

Charges and counter-charges reached a climax when Richard W. Lawrence, president, was accused of "attempting to wreck the organization," by a ruling that dry proxies could not be voted on a motion to table the resolution. Lawrence later reversed the ruling and the motion to table was defeated by a vote of 479 to 360.

TESTIMONY POINTS TOWARD MOULTHROPE AS THE SLAYER

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Testimony of two more witnesses today pointed toward Watson Moulthrope as the slayer of Detective W. D. Smith, of Jacksonville, for whose death Jan. 17 Moulthrope and Roland Lalone, escaped Connecticut convicts, are on trial.

Fred H. King of Jacksonville, detective for Duval county, told the jury that Moulthrope declared Smith was "the first man I ever shot or shot at in my life."

E. L. Acosta, detective inspector of Jacksonville, quoted Leo Landry, companion of the defendants in their prison escape and in the gun battle, as saying Moulthrope shot Smith.

Landry, scheduled to testify today against his prison mates, is expected to be heard tomorrow. He also is under indictment for Smith's death but will be tried later.

King gave a detailed account of conversations he said he had with Moulthrope and Lalone in jail at Pensacola, Fla, in which city they were arrested Jan. 24, and later in the Duval county jail in Jacksonville.

"I told Moulthrope," King related, "that I had heard of his conversation with Officer Archie Bowman of Pensacola in which Moulthrope said he shot the man who was searching Leo Landry. He said 'Yes, that's the first man I ever shot or shot at in my life. I shot the man who was searching Landry. I shot one time and then I ran."

King said Moulthrope told him Lalone fired "plenty" of shots, "but you'll have to get that from Lalone."

King told the court that Moulthrope had termed the officers who searched him "the dumbest cops I ever saw." King said he asked what the convict meant and Moulthrope answered, "Well, they came to search three men in a stolen car. The cops had their overcoats buttoned up and could not get to their pistols. They were surely dumb."

MAY NOT CALL ELECTION FOR SUCCESSOR OF GLYNN

HARTFORD, March 10.—(AP)— An election in the fifth congressional district may not be called by Gov. John H. Trumbull unless there is need for the filling of the vacancy in the Connecticut delegation caused by the death of Congressman James P. Glynn, who was buried today.

Gov. Trumbull has asked for information on this point from Congressman John Q. Tilson, member from the third Connecticut district who is floor leader in the national house.

Statutes and party rules require about sixty days interval before a special election can be held. If there should be prospect of an early adjournment of congress and the governor should be advised that there was no emergency existing which would require the presence of a member from the fifth district, the election will go over until November which is the time for election of all congressmen in the state.

INDIAN WOMEN INDICTED FOR MURDER OF MRS. MARCHAND

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 10.—(AP)—White man's justice works quickly, it has been proven to two Indian women, against whom the county grand jury today returned indictments for murder, first degree, in the slaying last Thursday of Mrs. Henri Marchand, wife of the noted artist.

Miss Lila Jimerson, 35, allegedly in love without his knowledge with Marchand, and Mrs. Nancy Bowen, 66, whom the younger woman is said to have influenced, through use of Indian "black magic," and the ouija board, to kill his wife, were arraigned immediately this afternoon before County Judge F. Bret Thorn.

The indictments read to the women charge that they caused Mrs. Marchand's death by strangling her with a wad of paper thrust in her mouth. Miss Jimerson, alleged instigator of the crime, chewed gum vigorously while in court. Both she and Nancy wore the same dingy black garments they wore when arrested.

Belgium To Proceed With Debt Refunding

Will Establish a "Monetary Fund" To Be Administered By Treasury Department.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, March 10.—(AP)—The Belgian government, being sure of parliament's ratification, today took the necessary steps for debt refunding without waiting for a formal vote of the house.

Under the plan, devised by Finance Minister Maurice Houtpart, a "monetary fund" will be established and will be administered by the treasury department, aided by the National bank.

This fund henceforth will take charge of coins up to twenty francs, for which thus far no legal reserve has existed. The actual amount of various nickel coins and five and twenty-franc notes in circulation totals 750,000,000 francs.

This circulation is to be raised to 1,200,000,000 francs, the total amount to be guaranteed by foreign gold currency to the extent of forty per cent, and the remaining 60 per cent by Belgian state bonds and other debentures guaranteed by the state.

The contemplated paying to the Morgan company of $30,000,000, still owing of the 7 1-2 per cent $50,000,000 loan of 1920, will thus be made by the momentary fund.

The Belgian state will pay off its debt to the fund by means of a $2,300,000 redeeming fund voted yearly to pay off the loan, the remaining $30,000,000 of which was to have been paid by 1945. By refunding this loan now, the government will save approximately 255,000,000 francs.

The funeral party arrived here from Washington at 1:30 p. m. Fifty minutes later the body had been carried to the cemetery and the last words of the service had been said by the Rev. Dr. Walter C. Whitaker, rector of St. John's Episcopal church, Knoxville.

The service at the grave, at the foot of a hill fringed with pine trees, was said in the presence of Justice Sanford's colleagues, representatives of the Knoxville, Tenn., and American Bar associations and of delegations from the Nashville, Greenville and Chattanooga bars.

The crowd at the cemetery had been held to the minimum by request, but flowers were piled high about the grave.

This technical work will continue a week or ten days.

JACK "LEGS" DIAMOND SURRENDERED TO POLICE

The slayings at the Hotsy Totsy club in the Broadway white lights district occurred during a free-for-all pistol battle. William "Red" Cassidy and Simon Walker, an ex-convict, were killed.

Charles Green, arrested and charged with the murder of Cassidy, was acquitted on a directed verdict after witnesses testified he was out of the room when the shooting took place.

HOOVER LAVISH IN PRAISE OF BOY SCOUT MOVEMENT

Spoke At Dinner In Washington Marking the 20th Anniversary of the Boy Scouts—The President Commended the Organization As One That Opens the Portals of Adventure For the Boy, Teaches Him the Joys of Nature, the Value of Discipline and of Unity of Effort, and the Democracy of Play.

WASHINGTON, March 10. — (AP) — Speaking in the full knowledge of parenthood, President Hoover told the nation tonight that the boy—with his sister—is the most precious possession of the American home and counselled that his leisure time be employed to direct his interests to constructive joy instead of destructive glee.

The chief executive pointed to the Boy Scout movement as one by which parents in this period of complex civilization might solve the problem of filling the leisure time of their sons. The speech, which he made at a dinner given by the Boy Scouts of America inaugurating a five-year expansion program, was broadcast nationally.

President Hoover referred to the organization as one that had opened the portals of adventure for the boy, had taught him the joys of nature, the value of discipline and of unity of effort, and the democracy of play.

"His is the plastic period when indelible impressions must be made if we are to continue a successful democracy," the president said. "We assure ourselves that the cure of illiteracy and the fundamentals of education be the three R's—reading, writing, and 'rithmetic. To this we must add one more R and that is responsibility—responsibility to the community—if we are not to have failure in government. The conviction that every person in the republic owes a service to the republic; that the republic rests solely upon the willingness of every one born in it to bear his part of the duties and obligations of citizenship is as important as the ability to read and write—that is the only patriotism of peace."

The address broke the rigid observance of mourning the president had set for himself out of respect to William Howard Taft and was made by Mr. Hoover after he recalled the love for children for which the late president and chief justice was noted.

The dinner marked the 20th anniversary of the Boy Scouts as it launched an appeal for $10,000,000 to finance the five-year expansion program and to provide a retirement fund for those professionally engaged in scout work. Various officials of the organization and leaders in boys work attended the dinner.

VERDICT IN FAVOR OF MRS. JOHN W. RIDDLE

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., March 10.—(AP)—A supreme court jury today returned a verdict in favor of Mrs. John Wallace Riddle in the breach of contract suit brought against her by Leland H. Lyon, architect. The jury deliberated an hour and 40 minutes.

Lyon had sued for $50,000 claiming that Mrs. Riddle, who was one of the first women architects in the country and builder of the Avon college at Old Farms, Conn., had failed to keep an agreement whereby she was to pay him $10,000 a year for his services.

The contract, Lyon alleged, was to have run during the construction of Avon college for which he had been engaged as architect. The amount of damages asked finally was reduced to $20,000.

Mrs. Riddle spent $5,000,000 in the construction of Avon college as a memorial to her parents.

Lyon now is a member of the New Rochelle, N. Y., city planning board.

LEWIS RETAINS CONTROL OF UNITED MINE WORKERS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 10.—(AP)—John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America who has been the target of repeated unsuccessful attacks during his administration, apparently had passed another test of his control over the union today, when the opening day of the 31st constitutional convention passed without revealing anything but a pro-administration attitude.

Lewis was given a great ovation as he was presented with the gavel, and again when the delegates unanimously voted to continue the constitution in effect indefinitely, legalizing and ratifying the action of the international board two years ago when it submitted the question to a referendum vote. It is on the contention that the constitution expired March 31, 1929, because no convention was called to extend it, that the leaders of the "rump" convention at Springfield, Ill., base their claim to a "reorganization" meeting.

Naval fire fighters prevented spread of the flames to a nearby ammunition dump. The fire lasted from 3 to 5 p. m.

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—William Z. Foster, communist leader in America, and Robert Minor, one of his lieutenants and editor of the Daily Worker, were arrested on charges of felonious assault today just after they had been freed in bail on a charge of unlawful assembly.

Both charges grew out of last Thursday's communist unemployment demonstration which ended in a riot in Union square.

They were taken to police headquarters and will appear in the police lineup tomorrow. Three other of Foster's followers, arrested following the riot, have been re-arrested on assault charges after gaining their release on bail.

INMATE SCHOOL FOR BOYS CHARGED WITH HOMICIDE

MERIDEN, March 10.—(AP)—With various investigations still in progress into conditions at the Connecticut school for boys here, today's principal development other than the questioning of witnesses at closed hearings, was the arraignment in the police court of Austin Mills, 16, committed from New London, on a charge of homicide in connection with the death of Rudolph Brown, committed from New Britain, who was stabbed to death with a pitchfork on Feb. 20.

With C. J. Danaher of this city retained by the state to defend him, Mills pleaded not guilty at the preliminary hearing.

PARALYTIC PATIENTS BEING QUARANTINED

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., March 10—(AP)—Quarantine of 105 patients afflicted by a baffling paralytic malady in Washington, Carter and Unicoi counties, was announced tonight by Dr. S. S. Moody, Washington county health officer.

The malady which so far has not proved fatal to any of those afflicted, has not responded to any of various treatments tried, nor have physicians been able to ascertain its cause.

Dr. Moody said there was growing evidence that liquor may be the cause of the disease. Reports of additional persons being afflicted with the malady were being received every hour, he said.

A check of all cases was being made today to ascertain if there was a common cause for the illness. Dr. W. W. King, Carter county health officer, took spinal fluid from several patients for an analysis.

BYRD RECEIVING THE PLAUDITS OF CIVILIZATION

DUNEDIN, New Zealand, March 10—(AP)—The plaudits of civilization were received today by Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, U. S. N., and his party after fourteen months of exploration in the Antarctic, during which they flew the American flag over the south pole.

All day crowds swarmed about his two ice scarred vessels, the Eleanor Bolling and the City of New York, which yesterday entered Dunedin harbor accompanied by a procession of welcoming vessels.

Not only Byrd, but every one of his forty-one men who for more than a year braved the hardships and hazards of the polar regions were warmly greeted by this city of 85,000 which often in the past has sent forth expeditions into that unknown region guarded by a barrier of ice encompassing mountains more than 14,000 feet high.

ESTIMATE OF ERLANGER ESTATE $10,000,00 TO $75,000,000

NEW YORK, March 10—(AP)—The bulk of the estate of Abraham Lincoln Erlanger, theatrical magnate, estimated from $10,000,000 to $75,000,000, is left to his brother and two sisters with no provision for the woman who describes herself as his wife, his will filed for probate today shows. Minor bequests were made to nephews and nieces.

The will, dated October 18, 1927, states that Mr. Erlanger was unmarried, the language of its opening reading: "I, Abraham L. Erlanger, unmarried, of the city, county and state of New York, do hereby make, publish and declare this to be my last will and testament, hereby revoking any other and former will by me at any time made."

URGED FORMATION OF UNITED CHURCH OF U. S.

NEW YORK, March 10—(AP)—The merger of denominations and formation of a United Church of the United States, after the pattern of the United Church of Canada, were urged tonight by the Rev. Dr. William Walker Rockwell, librarian of Union Theological seminary.

Dr. Rockwell spoke at the annual meeting and dinner of the Congregational club of New York and vicinity, which re-elected him president.

Conditions in New York city, he said, showed the need for merging denominations.

FAILED TO FIND POISON IN JAMAICA GINGER

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., March 10—(AP)—Failing to find any traces of poison in eight samples of Jamaica Ginger, C. E. Clifford, city chemist today was inclined to doubt the theory that use of the ginger, as a beverage was responsible for a strange malady which has stricken several hundred Oklahoma Citians. The disease is accompanied by paralytic symptoms.

Clifford pointed out, however, that his analyses were not conclusive as many more samples remained to be tested.

CHICAGO GANGSTER DIED OF NATURAL CAUSES

CHICAGO, March 10—(AP)—A reputed gangster died of natural causes here today which is considered unusual in Chicago. He was "Big Dave" Earsman, who frequently figured in Chicago crime news. Attendants at the hospital where he died said that peritonitis, following an operation for relief from acute appendicitis, was the cause of death.

REFUSES TO APPEAR IN COURT WHEN ORDERED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 10.—Asserting that the police court "could not do anything about it," if he wanted a continuance of his case on a charge of intoxication, James Sheehan of this city nearly succeeded in overthrowing the dignity of the local chamber of justice this morning. In vehement, although not profane, language, Sheehan insisted on a continuance until March 22, stating that he positively would not appear in court Tuesday, as ordered by the court. The court ordered the continuance of one day when the accused pleaded not guilty, making it necessary to summons the arresting officers, John Killourey and F. R. Laramie, to the witness stand. Sheehan's attitude was such that Chief Thomas F. Grady ordered Officer Leo Piche to lock the man up. Later today Sheehan furnished a bond of $50 which will probably be forfeited unless he obeys the court order to appear in court Tuesday.

C., the flag will be displayed at the local postoffice at half mast for 30 days in memory of the late ex-President William Howard Taft. Postmaster Frank M. Smith has instructed Engineer John N. EIGHT-MILL RATE VOTED; TOWN FACES $117,000 SHORTAGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 10.— Over 1,300 citizens of the town of Windham packed shoulder to shoulder in the town hall at the special town meeting tonight and by a vote of 547 to 143 levied a tax rate of eight mills on the grand list of 1929. Despite the fact that a revaluation of the property in the town during the past year by a service company brought about an increase of nearly six million dollars the eight-mill rate, as levied tonight brings the town face to face with a shortage of $117,547.48.

Unless the condition is remedied in some manner Windham will experience a financial catastrophe much as the one that embarrassed Chicago in recent months.

The grand list, following the revaluation, amounted to $23,405,588 as left by the board of relief. Of this amount two deductions were necessary. One, for soldiers exemptions amounting to $191,527, and the other was on an error made in entering the Y. M. C. A. building for $70,000, this building being exempt. The net grand list, therefore amounts to $23,144,061. An eight mill tax will bring in $185,152.48, provided that it is collected 100 per cent, which is an almost impossible task.

The town receives about $100,000 in other incomes, such as tuitions from outside towns, state grants, etc.

The total income of the town during 1930 will then be $185,152.48 if collected exactly, while the 1929-30 budget, as drawn by the selectmen and approved at the annual town meeting, amounts to $402,700, leaving $117,547.52 to be paid from a source concerning which there appears a prominent question mark, at present. The budget shows an increase of about $64,000 over that for the previous year. It was pointed out tonight that the tax levy will not even provide for the appropriation for schools, which amounts to $200,000, and is part of the budget.

Tonight's special town meeting broke all records for attendance and interest, although there were not as many remarks from representatives of the newly organized Taxpayers association as had been expected. An unknown number of people failed to gain entrance, even to the outside corridors and could not participate in the meeting. Justice George E. Hinman was elected moderator of the meeting and Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton read the warning.

In bringing the matter for action Town Counsel Arthur T. Kelley moved that a tax of 12 mills be levied. The tax last year was for 14 mills. Town Assessor George H. Gifford endorsed this motion with an appeal to the people that the town should not be run into further debt. The amendment to Attorney Kelley's motion that the tax rate be fixed at eight mills was then made by J. Nelson Gilman and the hall shook with voices of approval. Taking an accurate vote was physically impossible owing to the crowded condition of the hall and the fact that some 300 persons, standing in adjoining lobbies were unable to hear the procedures inside. Moderator Hinman called for a showing of hands, which brought an overwhelming majority for the eight-mill amendment, according to the returns of the following tellers: John C. Barstow, Lyman Nichols, Judge Frank H. Foss, Raymond A. Parker and Albert J. Fournier. In remarking on the resolution as amended, Attorney John Harvey offered an amendment for a ten-mill tax, with a caution that an eight-mill tax would work an even worse hardship on the taxpayers than a somewhat higher tax, not so conducive to indebtedness.

Attorney Harvey said that if the intent of the taxpayers was to teach the town officials a lesson a ten-mill tax would be sufficient for that purpose without running the town so forcibly into the proverbial hole. Attorney Harvey's amendment was lost and the original amendment of eight mills prevailed, the meeting adjourning without further business.

DR. SPECTOR NAMED AS CITY HEALTH OFFICER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 10. — Dr. Nathan Spector was elected city health officer to succeed to Dr. W. P. S. Keating at the March meeting of the common council held tonight with all present and Mayor Walter R. King in charge. Dr. Keating resigned to take up new duties as surgeon at Soldiers' home in Noroton Heights.

The board voted to hold all future monthly meetings at 7 o'clock, instead of 8 o'clock, which has been the convening hour since the inception of the city government. This new departure in the meeting hour is the result of a mutual agreement of the councilmen. A resolution to grant a pension to former Chief of Police Edgar H. Richmond, for "conspicuously meritorious duty and permanent injuries sustained as an officer" was introduced by Alderman William E. Webber and referred to the trustees of the pension fund and the mayor for action. Ex-Chief Richmond resigned years ago to enter the employ of the American Thread Co., with which he is still affiliated.

The airport commission of the council, Alderman Webber and C. A. Lamoureux, reported that no suitable field existed within the city limits but that one did exist on Windham Plains and recommended the furtherance of the air field project. On motion of Alderman Robert A. Hanna the acting city engineer was placed under direct orders of the mayor and instructed to render a monthly detailed account of expenses to the council. The resignations of James P. Kearns and Daniel Connell as supernumeraries of the police department, were accepted. Repairs, not to exceed cost of $250, were ordered for the public library on motion of Alderman John P. Carlsen. It was said that such repairs would be the first to the library within 20 months.

TAILOR LEFT FLAT HEATING— ENDANGERED OTHER TENANTS

An over-heated electric flat was the cause of a small fire in the tailor shop of Anton Krivsky in the Gary building on East Main street Saturday night. When Mr. Krivsky closed his shop about 8:30 he neglected to turn off the electricity. People living in the neighborhood detected the odor of burning cloth as early as 9 o'clock, but it was not until 10:40 that one of the tenants in the building, becoming alarmed by the strong smell of smoke, determined to make an investigation, and upon looking through the glass door in the tailor shop observed the red hot flat. Night Officer Kealey, who is also a member of the local fire company, was notified and a hurried call was sent for Mr. Krivsky. Upon opening the front door of the shop they found the room full of smoke and a table on which the iron was left was burning rapidly. A few pails of water put out the blaze and the burning table was carried outside. Some of the goods in the shop were slightly damaged from smoke.

Oil thins out quicker in winter
—then motors wear out faster
Play safe—refill with Socony today!

OIL thins out quicker in cold weather because the choke is used oftener to give a rich mixture for starting. Every time the choke is used, a small amount of raw, unburned gasoline is sure to find its way into the crankcase. There it mixes with the oil—

Thin oil will not prevent parts from grinding together

Diluted (thinned) oil cannot maintain that protecting film between parts which is so essential to keep them from grinding together. Motors become noisy, wear out quicker. Watch your oil closely in cold weather. Don't let it thin out to the danger point.

A change of oil brings new life to your motor

Perhaps your oil has thinned out so gradually that you have not noticed the noise your motor makes. You will notice the difference at once as soon as you put in new oil. Your motor will run perceptibly smoother, and the noises—which mean wearing of parts—will quickly quiet down.

Flush your crankcase when you change your oil

There is no way, winter or summer, to avoid a certain amount of dirt, metal particles and carbon finding their way into your crankcase. You don't want them to mix with the new oil, and the only way to get rid of them without taking down the motor is to have your car flushed. Socony Dealers and Service Stations are justifiably proud of the efficient service they render in this respect with Socony Flushing Oil.

Your hard-working winter motor deserves a change of oil

Winter is by no means over. There is still cold weather to come. Get through it safely and comfortably by changing your oil now. Have the old oil drained off—your crankcase flushed—and refill with Socony lubricants. The Socony dealer or Service Station knows exactly which lubricants have the proper body to give you the best lubrication at varying temperatures.

With the motor flushed and fresh oil added you'll have nothing to worry about—for Socony lubrication is Certified Lubrication.

KILLINGLY LOOKS FOR SMALL REDUCTION IN TAX RATE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, March 10—Killingly's tax rate may be 28 mills this year. It may be 29 mills, all depending upon such action as may be taken by the electors at the special town meeting and the adjourned annual town meeting Wednesday evening. Last year the rate was 29 1-2 mills. If the budget as prepared by the selectmen, and which is set forth in detail elsewhere on this page today, is adopted the rate will be 28 mills. If the town votes for a general revaluation of its property, the rate will be 28 1-2 mills. It might be even more if estimated appropriations are increased.

The selectmen's budget as it will be presented to the adjourned annual town meeting calls for expenditures totaling $95,607. The school committee's budget calls for an additional $93,627, a total of $189,234. On a net grand list of $6,789,220, a 28 mill tax will raise $190,098.

Budget items of special interest include one of $13,000 for the care of outside poor and for child welfare. This is an increase off $3,000 over the original estimates and comes about, because of unfavorable industrial conditions in some sections of the town and through the fact that the town has been put to considerable expense, and will continue to be for some time to come, in caring for families where the head of the house has been caught violating liquor laws and has been heavily fined or imprisoned.

Killingly's state tax this year is $3,719.23, a reduction from $4,243.80 last year. The 1930 military tax of the year is $1,244.22, as against $965.66 last year. A lighter burden for the town this year is the county tax, $4,619.11, as against $9,490.62 last year.

Of interest is the $1,000 item for snow removal in the budget, this for the town generally, and an additional $600 for snow removal in the business section of Danielson. Killingly's fiscal year begins August 1. Up to now, with more than seven months of the year elapsed, only about $27 has been expened for snow removal in the town generally. The $600 remains intact. If no heavy snow comes after this late date in the winter, practically all of the $1,600 will remain unexpended this year.

Another item of $7,500, a special fund, is for graveling roads. This is the same amount as was appropriated last year for this purpose, and is divided between the three districts of the town.

Incident to road work equipment and cost, First Selectman C. A. Tillinghast has during the winter season had the road grader thoroughly overhauled and repaired so that the town would not have to buy a new one this year, in this way effecting a big saving to the town.

It is also of interest that the American Legion turned back into the treasury of the town $100 of the $200 made available for meeting part of the expenses of the Armistice day celebration last fall, the returned money not being required.

An item of $1,000 that appears in the budget this year is for contingent expenses—a fund that it is felt is required to meet unforeseen items of cost that arise from time to time.

Against its many items of necessary expense the town has some credits. Of these appearing in the selectmen's budget (there are others in the school committee budget) there is one of $3,000 for income from the town hall building. Others, as near as can be estimated, are $2,500 from the town farm; interest on tardy taxes, $800; personal tax, $7,000; penalties on delayed personal tax payments, $250; dog money, $900; bank stock tax, $3,500; child welfare, $600.

As was pointed out last year, if there are increases of the estimates contained in the carefully prepared budget that will be submitted to the voters this week, additional appropriations must be made to care for them, the slogan of the town of Killingly—"New Money for New Business"—applying this year as in the past.

FUNERAL

Miss Evelyn Lemmelin

This morning the funeral of Miss Evelyn Lemmelin, who died Saturday, was held from the home on Broad street, with funeral services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. The officers of the solemn high mass of requiem were Rev. J. A. Demers, M. S., Rev. Philip Masicote, Moosup, and Rev Francis Baldwin, M. S. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery, Willimantic, Rev. Fr. Mathieu conducting the committal service. The bearers were Leopold Lemmelin, Lorenzo Lemmelin, Edward Lemmelin, Raymond Lemmelin, Wendell Messmer and Joseph Boucher. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

As to the matter of having a general revaluation of the property of the town, an interesting angle developed today. It is set forth as the reputed ambition of at least some of the voters in outlying sections of the town supporting the revaluation program in order that larger appropriations for roadwork may be available later, and having the major part of the cost fall on property owners of the Danielson section, or first district, from which the bulk of the town's tax money comes. This alleged program is countered here by the suggestion that the money for road repair work be apportioned to the districts in accordance with the amount of money each district pays in on the tax account. Neither proposition sounds good, it would appear from conversations heard today, to those who have the best interests of the town as a whole at heart.

OBITUARY

Mrs. James Kent

Mrs. Mahala Kent, 72, wife of James Kent, died about 10:30 this morning at the home in Elmville. Mrs. Kent was not regarded as being seriously ill until Sunday. A woman who during her nearly 40 years of residence in Elmville had become one of its most beloved people, Mrs. Kent's death has caused general sorrow. She was kindly to and thoughtful of everyone, outstandingly generous and of an unvarying pleasant temperament. Her acts of graciousness through the years she spent at Elmville are of untold number. Her home was a haven of happiness.

Mrs. Kent was born in Hartfordshire, England, and came to this country as a young woman. She leaves in addition to her husband a son, George, of Elmville, and a daughter, Mrs. Oliver Bettleton, of Perryville.

This afternoon state officers of the Danielson barracks and on the Danielson-Elmville state highway just opposite the barracks checked scores of operators of automobiles, to determine whether or not they were in possession of proper registrations and operators' licenses. Everyone checked was found to be complying with the law in the respects mentioned. There were no orders issued for drivers to appear in court.

As chaplain of the Connecticut State grange, Rev. C. A. Downs of Goodyear is giving much attention to the office. The past week he visited various granges in various sections of Connecticut, being at the meeting of Killingly grange Monday evening, at Good Will grange in Glastonbury Tuesday night and at the New Haven County Pomona meeting in North Haven Thursday morning and afternoon. Making a day of it, he made an official visitation to Columbia grange Thursday evening. Friday night his official visitation was at Stonington grange. Rev. Mr. Downs has attended 23 grange meetings since being installed as state chaplain of the organization in January.

The Westfield Congregational church has welcomed to its membership Mrs. John R. Pratt, A. Curtis Pratt and R. Meredith Pratt from the Congregational church of Brooklyn. Mrs. Pratt is the widow and Curtis and Meredith the sons of the late Rev. John R. Pratt, pastor of the Brooklyn Congregational church for a decade.

State Officer and Mrs. Henry T. Mayo have returned from their wedding trip.

At Goodyear last Saturday evening, Mrs. Vida Helen Osterhoudt and John Flood, both resident in the Mashentuck section of the town, were united in marriage by Rev. Charles A. Downs of Goodyear. They will make their home at the Burlingame farm, where Mr. Flood has lived for some time.

Attorneys Arthur G. Bill and Harry E. Back were in Sterling this afternoon appearing as counsel in a case arising in a justice's court in that town.

When Rev. Charles A. Downs of Goodyear preaches at the Methodist Episcopal church in Gales Ferry next Sunday evening members of granges in Norwich, Groton and Ledyard will be in attendance.

It was indicated today that the town of Killingly is in harmony with the nation-wide program intended to furnish as much work this year as is possible, and hopes to do its bit in stabilizing business through this means.

It was indicated today that the Attawaugan-Ballouville section of the town will be heavily represented at the town meeting Wednesday evening. A chief interest of this important group of voters is said to be the achievement of better road conditions, especially on the highway leading from Attawaugan Center to Attawaugan Crossing.

For the second time recently after a week end there was no session of the town court this Monday, no court business of any importance developing during Saturday and Sunday.

PUTNAM

LOCAL POLICE MAKE SEVERAL LIQUOR RAIDS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 9.—A squad of patrolmen of the local police department, operating under the direction of Sergt. A. J. Sponcey, went out shortly after noon today, invaded the north end of the city and staged five successful liquor raids. In each of the alleged speakeasies visited an arrest was made and in one place a mother and son were taken into custody on charges growing out of violation of the liquor laws.

Those under arrest are: Alvin Jarvis, confectionery and newsdealer of Providence street, against whom police secured a sale. The warrant for his arrest was served by Patrolman Benoni Durand. Jarvis is at liberty under bonds of $500 for his appearance in city court Tuesday morning.

The home of Mrs. Odelia Tetreault, 54, of 14 Powhatton street, was raided by Patrolman Joseph Page who found and confiscated 20 bottles of home brew beer and about 3 gallons of home made wine. Mrs. Tetreault was placed under arrest and later released on bonds of $500 for appearance in city court Tuesday morning. Edgar Tetreault, 24, son of Mrs. Della Tetreault, is also under arrest, charged with sale of intoxicating liquors. He was taken into custody by Patrolman Benoni Durand and is being held at police headquarters in default of $500 bail.

Arthur Dupre, proprietor of the Providence street 20-cent Taxi company, is under arrest on charges of sale of intoxicating liquors. A warrant for his arrest was served by Patrolman Joseph Durand. Dupre was released on bonds of $500.

Sergt. Sponcey visited the home of Wilfred Champagne, 284 Church street, and placed Champagne under arrest, charging him with sale of intoxicating liquor. Champagne was successful in posting bonds of $500 for his release.

Since the liquor seized in the home of Mrs. Tetreault was all the contraband taken in today's raids the whole jam appears to be the result of undercover work of dry agents who have been at work in the city since the state police of Danielson barracks, assisted by county officers visited the north end about a month ago and failed to find evidence of law violations in many of the places raided.

PUTNAM VOTES 13 MILL TAX RATE ON GRAND LIST

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 10.—Less than a half an hour was required to carry on the business that came before a handful of voters at the adjourned annual town meeting held this morning in the town hall on Church street. Judge M. H. Geissler of the city court, acted as moderator and Henry H. Benoit, town clerk, recorded the proceedings. Upon the recommendation of the board of selectmen, headed by Clarence H. Pierce, the voters approved a bill to lay a tax of 13 mills on the dollar on the town grand list for 1930.

The tax rate is an increase of one half mill over the rate of the previous year. It was explained at the meeting that the rate was increased to defray additional expenses incurred by the town during the past year in the administration of the government. Despite the fact that town taxes will be increased this year, Putnam enjoys one of the lowest tax rates of any town its size in the state which is significant of the fact that the board of selectmen is exercising economy to a great degree in discharging the duties of their office.

Town taxes by a vote of those present will be collected on or before the first day of May. Alfred A. Bonneville, of Woodstock avenue, is town tax collector and will begin his duties for the new year shortly.

This being the only business to come before the adjourned meeting, Judge Geissler adjourned the session at about 10:30 o'clock.

Railroad police of the New Haven division are investigating the burglarizing of two freight cars which were standing in the local freight yards and were entered by thieves Thursday evening and robbed of a quantity of cloth and silver knives. The robbery was discovered Friday morning by Railroad Detective John E. Murray who was making his rounds in the yards. Property reported to the police as missing were 434 yards of cloth taken from one car. The fabrics were consigned to the car by the Sturbridge Finishing company of Fiskdale, Mass. From another car it was discovered that 36 stainless silver grapefruit knives had been taken. The breaks were reported to the local police who are assisting the railroad authorities in the investigation.

At a naturalization hearing in superior court Saturday afternoon five aliens appeared before Miss Marjorie C. Bradford, assistant clerk of courts, and filed applications for second citizenship papers. They were Dionosie Becela, of North Grosvenordale; Mrs. Elvey Gustafson Swanson, of Pomfret; Miss Ellen Driscoll, of Pomfret; Stanley Piolunek of Sterling, and Apostolo Paun, of North Grosvenordale.

Capt. A. J. Dubreuil, of the local police, was in Boston today on business.

George H. Liard, of School street, recently appointed a deputy game warden, has been assigned to the game patrol of Windham county by Warden Harry Daniels, of Plainfield.

Workmen were engaged today in applying the finishing touches to the new four story building of Montgomery Ward Co., in Bugbee square. The block is completed except for a few minor installations and will be occupied this week.

Of interest to the people of this city is the announcement made this morning in a bulletin from the New Haven office of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. company that effective at 12:01 o'clock Monday, March 10, the New England Transportation company and its interests would be absorbed by the New Haven railroad.

Since its organization, the New England has been a subsidiary of the New Haven road, operating independently of the railroad organization. The merger however, will not effect the personnel of the New England, which is the motorized branch of the New Haven, the employes remaining under the direction of the New England officials. But the freight forwarding and passenger service activities of the New England trucks and busses will be regulated by railroad authorities.

At the present time the New England conducts a bus line between Willimantic and Putnam and is forwarding much of its freight overland, aboard the New England motor vans, four of which are operating out of Putnam.

Walter S. Carpenter, a native of Greenville, R. I., but for many years a resident of Putnam, died late last evening at his home on Putnam Heights. He was in his 82nd year. He had been ill for nearly a month. For a number of years Mr. Carpenter was a groceryman and catered to residents of the rural sections about Putnam where he was widely known. He was born in Greenville on Aug. 24, 1848, the son of Elijah and Mary (Green) Carpenter. He came to Putnam as a young man. Fraternally, Mr. Carpenter was affiliated with the Masonic order.

JEWETT CITY

DR. RAINVILLE BOUND OVER ON HARTFORD CHARGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, March 10.—Dr. E. E. Rainville was presented in the Griswold town court Monday morning before Judge John T. Barry, the complaint against him being made by a married woman, a resident of Hartford.

It is alleged by her that Feb. 22, the doctor performed an illegal surgical operation which has placed her health in a precarious condition since that date. State Trooper Royal V. Scranton, of the Danielson barracks, who made the arrest Saturday, was in court. Dr. Rainville entered a demurrer which was overruled by the court. Judge Barry found probable cause for binding the accused over to the next term of the superior court. The doctor furnished bonds of $1,500 for his appearance. The prosecuting attorney holds the physician's bank book as security on the bond.

John Cadarette, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Cadarette, was buried Monday in St. Mary's cemetery, Lisbon. Funeral Director E. E. Gilbert was in charge of the committal.

Close to 100 legal voters of the town of Griswold met at the town hall in the second voting district at Pachaug Monday afternoon. The meeting was called to order by First Selectman Daniel F. Finn. Town Clerk John Welsh read the warning. Dr. George H. Jennings was chosen chairman.

It was voted that $3,000 be appropriated toward the lighting project for the new Quinebaug viaduct. The same appropriation as last year was made for the support of the schools. A tax of thirty mills was laid on the taxable property of the town, to meet the current expenses. Action relative to the revaluation of the town property and the proposed purchase of a new truck is deferred for two weeks. The meeting adjourned until March 24th.

McCabe, sub-deacon. James Olsen was at the organ, the singing being by the children's choir. There were beautiful flowers. The board of directors of the borough advisory engineers has received a half dozen new applications for membership. T. B. Duggan has been admitted and has already taken over the responsible position of walking delegate. That the treasury may show some resources F. H. Gilbert has made a voluntary deposit of five cents. It was first decided that no person who had a job would be eligible for membership. But, because John Potter and James H. Shea are obviously so qualified to serve as active members, they have been admitted with the understanding that they give up their present occupations within 15 days.

PARTY FOR CALVIN YORK ON HIS 91st BIRTHDAY

A party of 15 neighbors and friends called on Calvin York of Griswold, Sunday evening to assist in the fitting celebration of his 91st birthday. The visitors carried with them all the necessary supplies for a good old-fashioned oyster supper. Mr. York reported himself as in the best of health, saying that he chops all his firewood and feels better when he works every day. Mr. York, one of Griswold's successful farmers, was for a long term of years keeper of the Griswold town farm, with records to prove that he made it pay as a town asset. For many years his familiar figure was seen about the borough streets. All through his younger life he was identified with the affairs of the town. Recounting incidents that happened 75 years ago, his stories were of much interest to his birthday visitors.

MOUNTAIN CLIMBING IN CALIFORNIA STRENUOUS

From the Hotel Constance, Feb. 26, comes the following from the Ross tourists:

We have been looking at Mount Lowe for some time, so the other morning took the trolley to the steep incline where the cable cars take up a grade of 65 degrees. We then take cars again and circle and twist, making 129 curves and crossing 27 bridges until we reach Mount Lowe tavern—from the tavern to the peak is 2½ miles. It was a fine piece of engineering to build this railway. It takes about two hours to reach the Mt. Lowe tavern.

On the cable car you begin to think you will never reach the top; the distance on the cable car is 1254 feet and as it moves rather slowly some people are "inclined" to be rather nervous. At the end of the cable line is Echo mountain—some people do not care to go further. At the top of the incline is the largest searchlight in the world. There are so many things in California that are the biggest in the world that a person begins to doubt the statement and thinks that the "expression" is the largest in the world.

This reminds me that in going from Santa Monica over and through Topango canyon, 16 miles, not a level place the whole distance and at times we could see cars coming toward us a half mile away either hundreds of feet below us or the same distance above us—the views are "said" to be some of the finest in the world.

We could look to the east and see for miles the San Feurnando valley lying between the Santa Monica and San Gabriel ranges. The little village of Calebassas we reached as we came out of the mountains and here was a very large sign—"This is the largest walnut grove in the world." This seemed to us as if it might be true, as the trees stretched in long rows till there seemed to be no end. On both sides of the road were these trees and they are the only trees that have no leaves.

To go back to Mt. Lowe. After lunch we walked over to Inspiration point. Here, I quote, "you look down on a magnificent panorama." Starting at the foot hills of Attadena your eye takes in a checkerboard of orange grove, vineyards, streets and homes, through Pasadena to the maze of thoroughfares, buildings and bustling activity that is Los Angeles.

You may see Long Beach, Hollywood, Venice, Santa Monica and scores of other communities.

Across Wilmington harbor can be seen Catalina island, 27 miles distant. This view is one of the most spectacular sights in Southern California and is unforgetable.

We were two and one-half miles from the summit of Mt. Lowe and the rest of the family wanted to reach the peak and the only way to get there was to walk.

They left on a very good path but as the trail mounted and rose higher and higher the trail began to get too narrow and the distance down some of the canyons was a mile or so (too far to fail). One of the family did not wish to take the risk, so sat down and waited for Mrs. Kate to go to the top and back, the whole distance she walked was about six miles—this on Mount Lowe!

I did not start as I could see all that was necessary from Inspiration point.

We will be at the Roosevelt hotel in San Francisco until the 22d of March, when we sail for New York via Panama.

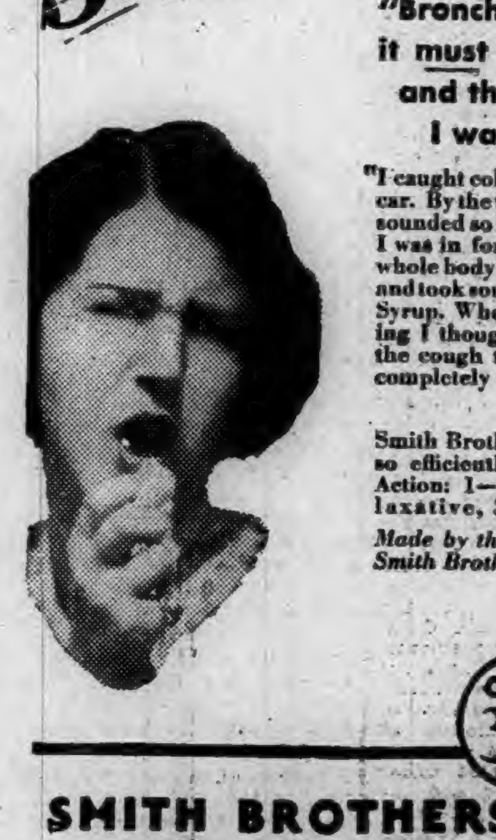
Miss Blanche Gilman Tells How Cuticura Healed Pimples.

"I suffered with pimples for two months. I really felt embarrassed when in company, and I was ashamed to go places. They were large and red and some of them festered. The pimples burned terribly, sometimes causing me to scratch. I also had some pimples on my arms and when I scratched them they festered.

"My sister recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment and purchased some for me. After using them I could see that the pimples were drying up, and in about four months I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Blanche Gilman, 56 Summer St., Andover, Mass., Sept. 17, 1929.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. H, Malden, Mass."

Stops coughs!



"Bronchitis—I thought—it must be bronchitis . . . and the next morning I was well again."

"I caught cold while riding in an open car. By bedtime I got home my cough sounded so bad, I was convinced that I was in for a serious sickness. My whole body felt grippy. I went to bed and took some Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup. When I got up the next morning I thought I must have dreamed the cough the night before—I was completely well." —Miss M. Hefner.

Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup works so efficiently because it has Triple Action: 1—it soothes, 2—is mildly laxative, 3—clears air passages. Made by the makers of the famous Smith Brothers' Cough Drops.

THE SHERIFF APPOINTMENT

In the naming of George H. Bradford of Montville as high sheriff for New London county, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Sidney A. Brown, Governor Trumbull has picked the man who knows his county, who is in every way capable to administer the duties and who it is believed will get the hearty endorsement of the people when the time comes.

Mr. Bradford has long been a leader in this county. He was a close friend of the late sheriff, for years state central committeeman from the Shoestring district and for the past several years he has held an office in the motor vehicle department of the state. In addition to that he has been honored by his town and district by being sought for service in both the house of representatives and the senate, where his work was a credit to the state, the town, the district and himself.

Since the vacancy has existed, sentiment has been strongly in favor of the naming of Mr. Bradford to the office. Such was the answer which the governor got in his inquiry as to the best equipped man for the place. He is the logical man for the place. It was a case of taking him from one important post to place him elsewhere. It means a loss to the motor vehicle department to be deprived of his conscientious service, but it was a case where New London county needed him and the change has accordingly been made, to the advantage of the county.

Than the late sheriff, probably no one has a wider acquaintance in the county than Sheriff Bradford. He has been for years closely identified with its activities as a member of the board of county commissioners. He knows its requirements and he will be able to step into the new duties as if to the manor born. It can be expected that he will give the same high degree of service that was furnished by his predecessor and it is not too early to express the belief that the appointment will make such a favorable impression that he will be elected to the office by a handsome majority when the voters of the county have a chance to express their sentiments in the fall. Governor Trumbull is to be commended for the manner in which he has filled the vacancy at this time.

SUPREME COURT CHANGES

It was only a few days ago, following the resignation of Mr. Taft from the chief justiceship, that reference was being made to the several members of the supreme court and the changes that might be expected there within a few years in view of the ages of the respective members.

At that time there was every expectation that Justice Edward T. Sanford, then only 64, would be permitted to serve for many years, perhaps as long if not longer than other members on the bench. Such was of course based upon the relative ages alone. How easily that may be a poor basis for judgment was furnished by the sudden death of Justice Sanford, when, so far as known, he was in good health. It served most emphatically to illustrate the uncertainty of life, or the length of service as a supreme court justice, when on the very day of the unexpected death of Justice Sanford, his associate, Justice Holmes, was observing his 89th birthday.

Justice Sanford had served as an associate justice for seven years, having been named by President Harding. He had made an excellent record on the bench and was one of its valued members. Death had claimed him when he was yet in his prime and in his passing there will have to be faced in all probability the same kind of a fight in the senate over the choice of his successor that developed over the choice of Chief Justice Hughes.

In view of the attitude that was displayed against the universally accepted excellence of the president's nomination for chief justice, President Hoover has little if any reason for giving consideration to that opposition. When a small group insists upon defeating the best, it is quite apparent that nothing will satisfy it except what comes within its narrow requirements. The importance of the supreme court is too vital to let any such influence sway the decision. Ability and fitness are the requirements that have governed heretofore and they can be expected to be the guide in the filling of the present and future vacancies.

POISON LIQUOR

In these days of prohibition when there is an unwillingness to abide by the effort to keep people from strong drink and when people are turning to anything and everything that looks and acts like liquor, there is still grave danger of getting something that is decidedly more harmful to health than pre-Volstead liquor was ever considered to be.

The insistence upon having something, almost without regard for what it might be, has resulted in many untimely deaths. Poison liquor has been the cause of much business for the doctors and undertakers and in many instances despite the knowledge that the stuff they were drinking was dangerous.

Out in Oklahoma there has just come to light a new illness which is attributed to poison liquor. This causes partial paralysis of the legs and feet and more or less trouble with the control of the hands and the voice. It is the assertion of the health officer of Oklahoma City that the trouble is due directly to poison liquor and several hundred persons have been affected thereby. It has, in fact, created such a situation in that city that the enforcement officers of the state and national government have been giving added attention to it and in their efforts they have stopped the importation of a certain brand of jamaica ginger brought from two mid-west cities.

Oklahoma City is experiencing a condition not so different than the Connecticut River valley some years ago when poison liquor was distributed extensively in that section for the observation of Christmas. There numerous deaths occurred from the drinking of wood alcohol of which the liquor had been made. Out in Oklahoma some other method of appeasing the thirst of the wets has been resorted to without regard to the fact that it might have bad results. It was a case of getting the dollar and letting the consumer take care of himself.

On the other hand, it discloses the determination of many people to have liquor regardless of the expense or the character of the stuff. In one form or another it is similar to situations which have cropped out often since the advent of prohibition.

SPEED IN HAITI

When the president asked for a commission to make an investigation in Haiti there was time for an extended inquiry if the senate had acted. When the senate did act there was but a short time before the time for election in the island republic. Notwithstanding that, and all the handicaps that the senate threw in its way, the commission went directly to work, heard what the people of the island had to say, made it apparent that they were there to get the facts and to aid the country in every way possible, and the result is that it has been able to make recommendations to the president which have gotten his endorsement.

Haiti was disposed to show the commission a cold shoulder. It considered that the commission was sent there to uphold existing conditions regardless of what was learned. It didn't take them long to find out to the contrary and to realize that it was in a way to get the full benefit of this country's aid when it could be shown that conditions warranted it and the needed cooperation could be furnished.

Haiti is determined there shall be no continuance of the Borno government. It is dissatisfied with the manner in which developments have occurred under the high commissioner. It is ready to refrain from trouble and bloodshed if assured that they will be given the opportunity to establish their own government again.

Thus far it would appear that the Haitian people had been able to make out a good case in the eyes of the commission. There are economic problems which are faced which will require efficiency and economy in government. If the islanders are prepared to furnish that and to protect their own interests they may not only be able to participate in the setting up of their own government under a civilian commission but of bringing about the end of the military government and the withdrawal of the marines. Nothing would please this government more than to have Haiti demonstrate the possibility of a complete withdrawal. Thus it is possible that the visit of the commission will fully impress this upon the minds of the leading and thoughtful Haitians.

PINCHOT'S HAT IN RING

Pennsylvania is getting ready for a political battle in the fall that promises to arouse unusual interest in the state. For a time it looked as if William S. Vare would insist upon being a candidate for United States senator again, but he has wisely decided to withdraw on account of his health. That will leave two tickets in the primary for the republicans to select from, but additional fun or trouble is promised by the announcement that former Governor Pinchot is going to be a candidate for the nomination for governor again.

Ex-Gov. Pinchot is going to run on a platform against monopolies. On his last try for office, that of United States senator, he succeeded in electing William S. Vare, who was refused his seat in the senate. Then he was running as a dry and because he drew a sufficient number from Senator Pepper he succeeded in giving Mr. Vare, a pronounced wet, the victory. If he makes no more of a success for himself in his announced plan and brings about as much of a fizzle for the state as he did before there can be no great degree of satisfaction in the Keystone state over his injection of his hat into the ring. It will, in fact, be a bit surprising if Pennsylvania doesn't remember that he was responsible for the state having but one representative in the senate for many months and treat his candidacy accordingly, in the belief that he will do no better this time. On the other hand, it is questioned whether his handling of the governorship made such a favorable impression that there will be a demand for a repetition.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Republican Floor Leader Tilson of Connecticut has been wrestling with the federal trade commission regarding the use of the words German silver or nickle silver, constituting a misleading statement as to the metal employed. Colonel Tilson assured the commission the words nickle silver had been in use in Connecticut for more than 78 years and was an accepted term that could not possibly mislead purchasers. Connecticut wants to use it. Now Tilson thinks he has an argument to offer that will be a clincher to his claims. He was talking it over with Representative Eaton of Colorado, and Eaton sent him some "comments" he had on the subject; here they are:

"There are no nuts in doughnuts; Ivory soap is not made of ivory; Gold Dust washing powder is not made of gold; Old Crow whiskey was not made from crows; there is no bull in Bull Durham; Pearline contains no pearls; White Rock is water; there is no cream in cream of tartar, cold cream or chocolate creams; no milk in milk of magnesia, milkweed or coconnuts; they are as remote from the cow as the cowslip; there is no grape in grapefruit; there is no bread in breadfruit; a pineapple is neither pine nor apple; an alligator pear is neither an alligator nor a pear; a sugar plum is not a plum; apple butter is not butter; the butter has been removed from buttermilk; there is none in either butternuts or buttercups; and flies in the dairy are not butterflies."

Tilson will send the "comments" to the commission.

Senator Bingham has been devoting much time the past few weeks to the location of what will be the air port of the capital of the nation. Mr. Bingham is not only chairman of the commission and committees appointed by congress and the District of Columbia to select the site, but is also president of the National Aeronautic association, so he is in fact the most influential "air-man" of congress. Several sites have been proposed, and Senator Bingham has given much time and consideration to the problem of selecting one that is best for present, and also for future development of aviation.

Connecticut is fortunate in not having a senatorial campaign on her hands this year. The entire nation seems to be in a state of political and partisan upheaval, and those New England states which have a senatorship election on their hands find themselves in what the folks way down in Maine would term "a peck of trouble." And Maine, with three announced candidates for that position, finds itself included in that category. Wallace White, now member of congress, Brewster, a former governor, are running as drys, and there is also a wringing wet candidate, whose entrance into the field is said to have shocked old-time dry Maine folk beyond recovery.

Senator Ashurst of Arizona is one of the senators who openly confesses to keeping an old-fashioned diary of the day's doings. He hasn't missed a day in years, and can turn back the pages and give his life history without skipping a mite. And it is a varied life that the little book unfolds. Ashurst has a mild biography in the Congressional Record. It doesn't half tell the story. He is a lawyer and back in 1916 entered the senate as the state entered statehood, after emerging from territorial status. Before that Ashurst had been a cowboy, ranchman, miner and a lot of other things. He is one of the few men in the senate who seldom fail to wear the conventional black frock coat when in the senate; he is tall and carries himself with rather marked dignity. There is nothing to suggest his cowpuncher days, except when he occasionally flares into flame and with wild gesticulations, loudly denounces acts and methods of procedure not in line with his views. When it comes to hurly-burly senate debates that affect Arizona, Ashurst, a staunch democrat, defends his state, his party and his policies not only with voice, but with clenched fists, if need be. I recall several instances a few years ago, where fisticuffs were barely escaped. All the same, Ashurst is a personal favorite in the senate. He always plays fair.

There seems to be a revival just now, of anecdotes concerning the famous undecipherableness of the handwriting of Horace Greeley. Representative Temple of Pennsylvania adds one that seems to outrank them all.

It runs like this: Greeley had been interested in raising fancy breeds of pigeons. One day there came to his office a rather frail box in which there were a half dozen lively young squabs. The box was left on his desk and very soon the little squabs escaped, tipped over the ink bottle, then fluttered up and down the desk, leaving tracks on some sheets of paper which Greeley used for his copy for the printers. They left a wild mixture of tracks, before hopping elsewhere.

It was time for the printer to get the Greeley copy, so one of the men came in, and finding the pigeon track-covered sheets, took them back to the composing room, and after studying them awhile began to put them into cold type, believing them to be Greeley's editorial. Finally he came to a word he could make nothing out of, so he hunted up Greeley, and pointing his finger to the pigeon track, he said, "Mr. Greeley, here is a word I can't make out." Greeley took the papers, gazed at the marks intently for a moment, then handed them back to the man and said firmly, "Why that is perfectly plain—it is the word congressional"!

What happened next is not known to this generation.

Washington folk are not entirely devoted to trivial and official social functions, though they take part in many such. They find time to remember those less fortunate and those who are ill. The women of high social rank, including Mrs. Hoover, have a very pleasant custom of sending flowers to hospitals and to sick friends.

The Flower guild takes care of those sent to hospitals. Mrs. Coolidge and Mrs. Harding were both especially thoughtful in sending white house flowers to the sick. Flowers from the white house conservatories carry with them a distinction not to be obtained from those merely "bought at stores." Mrs. Harding realized this, with that fine intuition that guided many of her acts. So she often sent pinks and roses to persons whom she knew would be especially cheered by that kindly gift. Her generosity was one of her most lovable traits; for "The Duchess," as the president called her, was always a staunch and generous friend to those who had won her friendship. She was one of the sort, as was the president, that we usually refer to as "standing by their friends through thick and thin," to use a New England colloquial.

Cutting ahead of an automobile that was just about to turn into a driveway at Buffalo, N. Y., Cecil Pickett, 16 years old, was struck by the car and thrown from his bicycle. The lad landed on the hood, slid off and landed on his feet, escaping with a few minor bruises.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NUPTIALS

"Do you realize," expostulated Jerome solemnly, "that we've been engaged for three weeks and you haven't set the day yet?" Lola Lou snuggled a trifle closer.

"Oh, dear," she sighed, "I suppose we'll have to decide on one some day."

"Hm!—have to!" ejaculated Jerome. "You sound as if you were talking about an appointment with the dentist." Lola Lou squeezed his arm with sublime disregard of the sudden swerve to the left made by the little car.

"But, honey, you've no idea what a lot of things I'll have to do to get ready."

"What is there to do—outside of getting a license and maybe a new dress or something?"

"Silly!" cried Lola Lou with pitying contempt for masculine ignorance about such matters. "There's my trousseau and the bridesmaids and the invitations, and—"

"Invitations!" said Jerome fearfully. "I thought we'd have a simple affair—just get into our best clothes, you know; say 'I will' to the parson and then be off together."

Lola Lou thought twice, then replied with wily intent, "I think, too, that a simple wedding would be nicer. A great church affair seems like a public pageant, doesn't it?"

"Then we'll just slip off somewhere and have it over with," decided Jerome in a relieved tone.

"But you'd not expect me to be married without a wedding gown would you, honey?" Lola Lou's voice held a plaintive note.

"Oh, of course—a wedding gown."

"And a wedding breakfast."

"A wedding breakfast!" groaned Jerome, "don't tell me that you mean one of those ghastly afternoon functions with a cake the size of a dog-kennel and toasts that make a guy wish he were in a cyclone cellar."

"And," went on Lola Lou dreamily, quite disregarding his outburst, "a wonderful honeymoon trip. It will be the nicest time of the year for one."

"Meaning when?" asked Jerome rallying.

"Why, meaning October, of course," said Lola Lou happily.

"Getting married's a horrible thing," remarked Jerome confidentially to his about-to-be best man. "Why do people make such a fuss about it anyway?"

"Women like it," pronounced the best man in the manner of one who has exhausted the subject.

"Here I am with my knees shaking three days before the spectacle is to take place," said Jerome, "and it might just as well have been over by now—no fuss—no ordeal; just a peaceful time for all."

"Well," said his companion too cheerfully, "it appears that it's not being done that way in our best families."

Behind a mass of greenery the violins were playing the Lohengrin wedding march. The rustle of the guests and the craning of necks toward the broad stairway announced Lola Lou's descent toward the flowery arch where Jerome waited, pale but valiant. He hoped that now, if ever, his knees would serve him well. The worst was soon over, and Lola Lou, looking so adorably lovely that Jerome decided that after all, perhaps a wedding was worth going through with, whispered, "You did beautifully, honey." Then, as the crowd began its stampede toward them, she said, "I'm so proud of you." She was enveloped by feminine arms.

"Well, said Jerome to his best man, feeling considerably set up by Lola Lou's words of praise, "didn't I make a fairly creditable go of it, old man?"

"Darned if I know," replied the best man, "but I wouldn't worry about it if I were you. Nobody saw you. The groom's always the most insignificant thing at a wedding."

"Why didn't you tell me that before?" asked Jerome resignedly.—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 10—Uncle Sam's marines are a contentious lot. They admit it. More than that; they boast of it. They recite in song the tale of their various official contentions "from the halls of Montezuma to the shores of Tripoli."

It is with some surprise, however, that the Bystander discovers one ex-devildog who has contended his way into the halls of congress. He is Melvin Joseph Maas of St. Paul, sometime U. S. marine in France, an enlisted aviation leatherneck at that, now a captain in the marine corps reserve and also, the only congressional aviator still in the business of flying himself about. If you don't believe it, take in the newsie-movies. You'll see him do it.

And Maas allows in his biographical sketch that he "never contended for any political office" until he successfully contended his way into the 70th and later the 71st congress. Most of his congressional colleagues talk of "seeking" office or "running" for office; but not Devildog Maas. He "contended," and no doubt he's right about it. Getting into congress is a highly contentious matter for most folks.

Watchdog, Too

Having arrived, Representative Maas believes he has made an important discovery. He thinks he has found the spiggot through which part, at least, of the postal deficit dribbled away.

It's some ninety millions, to be sure; but Maas has a resolution pending asking for a sweeping inquiry into the circumstances of post office leases of privately owned buildings all over the country.

By way of specifications the "whereases" if his resolution assert that Uncle Sam contracted to pay $120,000 a year as rental for a post office "commercial station" in St. Paul "on a property appraised by a commission appointed by a federal court at $317,000."

The postmaster at St. Paul is Charles J. Moos. You cannot read what Maas had to say to the house about him and fail to note that a Maas-Moos controversy is in full swing, and has been for some time.

For the ex-marine seems to be a blunt man in speech. He minced no words, nor did he confine his attentions to the St. Paul case. He used a scatter-gun and took in Los Angeles, Chicago and other points west where he alleged post office leases should be investigated.

Landing Party

Maas is a heavy-shouldered, stalwart chap with a big voice. When he cut loose on the lease policy of the post office department, he made a direct frontal attack of it in true marine fashion. Whether he is going to get action on his resolution or not the Bystander does not know; but it seems clear that both the house and the post office department will have to take same sort of notice of his sweeping charges as to the St. Paul situation.

The marines have landed. Something seems bound to happen.

Stories That Recall Others

Small Change.

To the library came a six year old with a book one day overdue.

"You owe two cents for this," the librarian remarked. With obvious reluctance the youngster laid a nickel on the desk.

"I haven't any small change," he said regretfully, "have you?"

Fast as They Could

A 16 year old youth, oldest of a family of three boys, was being cautioned by his parents on the dangers of fast and reckless operation of automobiles. He was told that it would be only a matter of a few months before he would be entrusted with the family car and that he would have to demonstrate his responsibility.

"There can be no 40 and 50 miles an hour driving," he was admonished by his father.

"You know," followed the mother, "that when I was a girl and your father was a boy, all we had was a horse and buggy and the best speed we ever made was only 10 or 12 miles an hour."

"Yes, mother," chimed the irrepressible youth, "but don't forget that you went as fast as you could."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

World Problems

Mr. Editor: This letter on the conditions that confront the world today is not alone of local interest but ought to be of interest to everyone, no matter how far removed may be their thoughts, for the world is facing a serious problem that must be noticed, as it concerns us all. I do not intend to touch upon the question of prohibition, nor upon the futile efforts that are being made to enforce what has become a question of secondary importance, but something that is today becoming a menace to the lives and happiness of the people. There is at this time an unrest through the whole world. Due to the fact that there is a prostration in the business world, the ones who are idle find time to find fault with many things they do not rightly understand. We know work is scarce. We know there are thousands of men who are willing to work and are idle, and we grope around for an answer. We see the conditions that exist in Russia where the churches have been invaded and all the sacred emblems in some cases have been torn down and trampled under foot. But that is only the beginning, for England in her Indian possessions is compelled to rule the people by force of arms. And all this is just a flareback from the World war which has left an imprint upon the minds of the people who are idle. What is the cause of all this depression in business? Many causes could be cited to answer that question, for every nation is confronted with the same problem. We note England has had to give a dole, so-called, to try and help the ones who are out of work. Some who receive this haxe gotten to that stage where if they were offered work they wouldn't accept. This is no random statement, for just recently I saw where a young man had been offered a job and was told he could start at 40 cents per hour and he refused, for he said, "I won't work for no such money." If we dig down further beneath the surface we find that today every country is competing with each other for business and there can be but one answer to this later on.

Germany is today competing with every nation for world business. England, France and even Italy under the domination of Mussolini must expand and here, where before they were buying goods from this and other countries, they have begun to erect factories. It is moving on with the nations of the world as a great industrial nation. They are beginning to produce and as a natural result are consuming their own products, where before American-made goods were in demand and were used. This was the country that was devoted to agricultural pursuits, for they produced wines, olives and many kinds of fruits which with the wines, found a ready market here, but with the advent of the prohibition law one door for its sale was closed. As they must live, they entered another Richmond in the field and their doors were closed to our products.

England at one time had the field to itself in China, India, Italy, through the Balkan states and many of the other European states. India now has its cotton mills, China is making its own cotton goods, and now America is sending out vast quantities of cotton piece goods and, in order to try and control the markets, is restricting the exportation of the raw cotton. Even Poland, which for 1,000 years has been an agricultural country, is building factories rapidly to supply the different things that are needed by the people. Another market that is almost closed to American manufacturers is Brazil. There we still sell our goods in return for rubber, coffee and many other of the products of those countries that lie under the equator, and many other of the South American states are gradually but surely requiring less of our goods as they begin to create their own. All these things are a contributing factor to the prostration of business that we see through the many idle men who are thrown out of work through the markets of the world being slowly but surely closed against us, as well as the other countries that formerly supplied them. All these which are now becoming industrial countries are putting across tariff laws to protect themselves against other countries from coming in and competing with home products, and today congress is trying to put across a law against the cheap goods of China. There is another alarming condition that confronts the people, for when the people leave the farms and invade the cities in search of work there is less productive power in the agricultural sections, less is produced and there becomes a scarcity of farm products. Then up go the prices and this is but the ultimate answer to supply and demand. The communist idea is spreading through the world, but it is little understood. Yet it is slowly and stealthily poisoning the minds of those who are followers and not leaders.

There is no question but what there are many changes taking place in the lives of the people and the end is not yet, for scientists are combing the universe for new ideas, for new thoughts.

The First Norwich Burial Ground

Mr. Editor: Herewith is a copy of a letter written to a lady living in New York who asked me for information. It may interest others.

E. H. W.

Norwich, March 10, 1930.

The letter follows:

Dear Mrs. ——:

I received your note of the eighth this morning and hasten to reply by return post as I fear you labor under a misapprehension about the cemetery I am trying to save.

The first cemetery of Norwich, Conn., lies up Bean Hill way and is considerably back from the town road.

It was surrounded by the Edgerton Post and Gager home lots (now divided and sub-divided) and in it lie John Mason, John Bradford and the first Christopher Huntington, and their wives and some of their children and others of the first settlers, who died before the second cemetery was opened. That is the cemetery which, as you say, is in Norwich Town and whose entrance from West Town street is a narrow lane between a Huntington house and another property. There is also another entrance on another side called Cemetery lane and in this second cemetery, which is much larger than the first, lie Thomas Adgate, Simon Huntington, John Waterman and the second Christopher Huntington, and their wives and some of their children and grandchildren, and of course many, many others.

I am very familiar with both these burial places, though of course I visited the second burial place before I visited the first, as almost everyone who comes to Norwich does.

There seems to have been made, I am sorry to say, a deliberate effort by some people to ignore and obliterate the first grave yard. Fortunately sufficient proofs still subsist of its existence and by constant vigilance for two years, I have been able to ward off complete destruction.

I hope with the aid of those who have joined me to preserve and restore it for future generations, who, I am sure, will be grateful to us.

Yours sincerely,
EDITH HUNTINGTON WILSON.

YOUR INCOME TAX

No. 32

The tax on dividends is an important item in the returns of many taxpayers. As defined by the revenue act the term "dividend" means any distribution made by a corporation to its shareholders, whether in money or other property, out of its earnings or profits accumulated after February 28, 1913. If a dividend represents profits earned by a corporation prior to March 1, 1913, there is no tax.

A dividend may be payable out of current profits or accumulated surplus, but it has no legal existence until it is "declared" by a formal resolution of the directors of the corporation. The ordinary form of dividend is a periodical cash distribution of current profits. However, dividends may be paid in securities or other property. For example, a corporation may distribute among its stockholders securities in which it has invested its earnings. Such securities are to be reported as dividends by the stockholders at the fair market value on the date the dividends become payable. Dividends paid by a domestic corporation are subject to surtax only, which is imposed upon net income in excess of $10,000.

The rate of tax on the income of corporations is reduced to 11 per cent.

YOUR HEALTH

GOOD FOR THE TEETH

W. C. Stone, M. D., Westminster, England.

There is a great deal of undernourishment in people who get plenty to eat. Our diets are made up too largely of starchy foods, sweets and meats. Every child for the first eighteen years of life at least, needs a quart of milk a day. Eggs, liver, bacon, sweetbreads, cabbage, greens, salads, fruits, whole wheat and graham breads should be included in the regular diet. The food should be taken at the regular meal time and eating between meals should be avoided.

The kinds of food that are essential to the formation of strong teeth, bones and organs are those mentioned above. The second teeth begin to form at about the second year. If teeth are to be strong they must be properly nourished. So it will be seen that the first cause of defective teeth is defective feeding. The back teeth that come about the sixth year are "Second Teeth." They are the most important teeth in the human mouth and should not be neglected.

If food is allowed to remain in contact with the teeth, whether they be strong or not, there is bound to be a softening of the enamel, and decay. But it is surprising how free even soft teeth will be from decay if they are kept clean. They should be given careful attention at least twice a day. The most important time to clean the teeth is just before going to bed, because if they are cleaned at this time they will be clean for half of the twenty-four hours.

Dental floss should be used to move the particles of food that become wedged between the teeth. It is not possible to brush out this wedged-in material and the use of a tooth pick is likely to crack the enamel. If teeth are allowed to decay and their usefulness becomes impaired, there is bound to be an extra burden thrown upon the digestive system. This extra work is going to mean, sooner or later, digestive disorders and disease. But there is a much more serious aspect of the matter. The poisons produced by, and in, germ infested teeth, are carried to every part of the body, causing damage to, or destruction of any of the vital organs.

And when you are doing your best to feed your teeth properly, and keep them healthy, remember that two visits a year to the dentist will save you pain, trouble, and money in the end.

"The Peace of Fidelity"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "Angels came and ministered unto him" (Matthew 4:11).

Read: Psalm 119:161-168.

MEDITATION: Jesus had come victoriously through His temptation. His last words to Satan were the closing words in the passage for today: "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God and Him only shalt thou serve." One must go the way that God and his universe are going or else be at sixes and sevens with the world and himself. When Shelley was a child he once set fire to a fagot pile. When questioned as to why he had done so he replied that he had wanted "to make a little hell" of his own. This is not hard to do. The easiest way to do it is to throw off all sense of standards to which we must be loyal. The happy man is the one who keeps faith with his ideals. "Angels come and minister unto him." This is the peace of fidelity.

PRAYER: O Thou, who are the strength of all souls, abide in us this day and make us strong. May we have courage to follow the right with such fidelity that there may abide in our hearts the peace of God that passeth understanding. Amen.

Prohibition By The Clock

LONDON—Many complex forms of "prohibition" face the American visitor in London, only one of which is the prohibition of alcoholic beverages sales at certain hours.

It's the other forms of prohibition that worry the newly-arrived American. They're so new to him—and equally as complicated for a time.

He may, for instance, thoughtlessly send for a steak on a Thursday afternoon. He won't get it. Selling meat on Thursday afternoon is prohibited except where local authorities have arranged to prohibit meat sales on some other afternoon instead.

For a tobacconist to sell cigarets or cigars after 8 o'clock also is prohibited. It is not illegal, however, for a slot machine to dispense cigarets after that hour.

Loopholes

It may happen that the visitor has run out of cigarets between the closing time of the "pub" and the end of a nearby theater performance. In that case he can buy a ticket to the show and buy his cigarets inside, for the sale of tobacco to a bona fide patron of a theater during the performance is not prohibited.

If the idea of entering a theater doesn't appeal to him he can go to a restaurant and buy something to eat and smoke, for "tobacco supplied at a meal for immediate consumption shall be deemed part of the meal."

The American who likes to take home a quart of ice cream after attending the movies would have to change his habits here.

Selling ice cream or chocolate after 9.30 is prohibited except on the "late day," usually Saturday, when 10 o'clock is the deadline. By going into the "pub" next door, however, one can get a box of liqueur chocolates up to 10.30 or 11, according to the district.

Get Used To It

Naturally these and other restrictions on the sale of foods, beverages and tobacco seem amazingly complicated to Americans spending only a few days or weeks here. Continued residence, however, gradually smoothes out the aggravation.

One eventually learns all the "hours" and all the little ways of providing in advance for the emergencies they create.

Outside the East Providence, R. I., police station one evening stood a truck well filled with great chunks of steel. Inside the station in a cell sat a Fall River junk dealer, charged with damaging property and larceny in connection with a vain endeavor to steal a steam shovel. The junk dealer had attempted to steal the shovel piece by piece. He was discovered breaking up a part of the shovel with a sledge hammer, by an employe of the owner of the shovel, and the junk man's arrest followed.

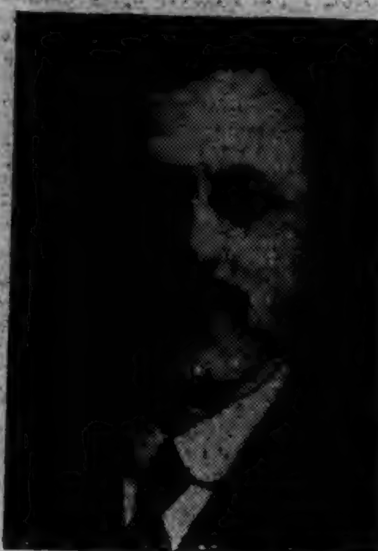
GEORGE BRADFORD NAMED HIGH SHERIFF OF NEW LONDON COUNTY

Governor John H. Trumbull, Monday afternoon, appointed George H. Bradford, of Montville, high sheriff of New London county, as successor to the late Sidney A. Brown. Mr. Bradford will serve the unexpired term of the late Sheriff Brown, and will be in office until June 1st, 1931. There will be an election of a high sheriff for the county next fall.

Mr. Bradford's appointment as successor to the late Sheriff Brown had been anticipated. He is one of the most widely known republicans in the eastern section of the state, is a member of the board of the county commissioners, and has for years been a member of the state central committee from the 20th district. At present he is state gasoline inspector.



GEORGE H. BRADFORD

Mr. Bradford was born in Montville, May 6, 1863, and attended the district schools in his native town until he was 17 years of age. On leaving school he took up the many duties connected with the operation of the home farm which had developed upon by the death of his father. For about 12 years he continued to conduct the farm and then, desiring a change, became a brakeman on the N. Y., N. H. and Hartford railroad in the passenger service between New London and New Haven, a position in which he continued for about one year, during part of which time he acted as baggage master.

January 15, 1900, he purchased the general store located at Oakdale, which, had been conducted for years by his father-in-law, the late Judge Henry A. Baker. On March 7, 1903, he was appointed postmaster at Oakdale. In his political belief he is a staunch republican and has always been active in the work of his party.

In November, 1902, he was elected to represent his district in the state legislature, and served as a member of the committee on roads, rivers and bridges.

In August, 1907, Mr. Bradford was appointed game and fish warden for New London county which office he resigned in the fall of 1913. In November, 1908, he was elected state senator from the 20th district and was again elected to that office in 1916. In November, 1917, Mr. Bradford was appointed a state deputy motor vehicle inspector and in December of the same year received his appointment as inspector of motor vehicles. Mr. Bradford has served on the board of New London county commissioners for a number of years and has been state gasoline inspector for sometime. With the new high sheriff of the county will rest the appointment of deputy sheriffs for the county.

Mr. Bradford is a member of Uncas lodge, No. 17, A. O. U. W., of Montville; of Thames lodge, No. 22, I. O. O. F., of Montville, and of Oxoboxo lodge, No. 116, F. and A. M., of Montville.

TAFTVILLE MEN HELD FOR ROBBING PROVIDENCE SAFE

Confessing that they broke into and robbed a safe in a small laundry at No. 234 Hartford avenue, Providence, and admitting all other details, Raymond Cheverette, 23, and William Turcotte, 21, both of No. 23 North A street, Taftville, held Monday at Providence in default of bail declared they got only $1 and some change out of the safe, while the owner, whose loss is protected by insurance, says he was robbed of $279.98. The prisoners had $108 between them when they were trapped in the laundry, which they say they had previously. No trace of the amount indicated by the discrepancy in statements has been found.

The Taftville men who were caught in the laundry by Mounted Patrolman James P. McDonough early Sunday, were held Monday in default of bail in the Sixth district court for trial on March 21. Pleading not guilty to charges of breaking and entering and possession of burglar tools, bail was fixed on each of the two counts at $5,000.

Cheverette, according to the Connecticut state police, began his career at 17, robbing church poor boxes.

McDonough, patrolling his long beat, heard a noise in the laundry office. He continued on for a short distance so that he would not arouse suspicion, and, after tying his horse, notified the watchman at the Colwell Worsted company mill at the corner of Hartford avenue and Heath street, Providence, to call reserves from the station.

McDonough then set a watch on the building, and in a few minutes Lieut. Parker arrived with nearly a score of patrolmen. The building was quickly surrounded, and police entered the office.

They found that the door of the safe had been ripped by means of a long "pry-bar" after the combination had been knocked off. In front of the safe they found the bar, a heavy sledge hammer, chisels and other tools.

After warning the officers on the outside to shoot anyone who attempted to escape from the building, Lieut. Parker ordered a search of the interior of the entire plant. Twenty minutes later they discovered two forms huddled in the shadows on top of a boiler. Cheverette and Turcotte covered with dirt and soot, were hauled down from their hiding place and taken to the station.

Michael Nahigian, proprietor of the laundry, after checking up with his bookkeeper, notified police that $279.98 had been stolen from the safe. When searched at the station the prisoners had but $104.39 between them.

When first questioned they gave their names as Joseph LaBarre and Raymond Smith of Philadelphia and Bangor, Me. Later they admitted their real identity.

State police from the Groton and Danielson barracks visited the accused men's home in Taftville, and during a search of the house for loot discovered a plan of the Porteous & Mitchell store of this city. The plan showed the locations of the safe and cash registers in the store.

The men, who are locked up in the Howard county jail in Providence, deny that they were involved in any other breaks. They refused to talk, according to the police, when questioned regarding the plans of the Porteous & Mitchell store found in their home. The men are brothers-in-law.

SENT TO JAIL FOR SLAUGHTER HOUSE THEFT

In Preston town court Monday afternoon before Justice of the Peace Walter Tarbox, Albert Carpenter, 24, colored, of West Main street, charged with theft of a quarter of beef from the Preston slaughtering house of a local butcher, was fined $25 and costs, and given a sentence of 30 days in jail. The accused, arrested Monday morning by Officers Albert Lamphere and Patrick Murphy, is alleged to have sold the beef to a Greeneville butcher.

It is understood that Carpenter will later be tried in the city court on charges of having in his possession and selling stolen goods in the town of Norwich. The accused is an employe of the local butcher, from whom he stole the beef.

SCIENTIST, FORMERLY NORWICH MAN, DIED ALMOST PENNILESS

Capt. Benjamin F. Leavitt, Brooklyn, N. Y., scientist, and former Norwich resident, who with his invention of a suit of diving armor made the sea disgorge much buried treasure and who developed the first ignition distributor device for automobile and a score of other devices now widely used throughout the world, died almost penniless. This was revealed Sunday at his funeral in Brooklyn, by Capt. Leavitt's friend, Capt C. A. Selleck, U. S. M. C. R.

According to Captain Selleck, Captain Leavitt's last device on which he was working at the time of his death, was a foolproof parachute. Though complete success eluded him, despite long labor and free expenditure of his dwindling funds, it had progressed far enough from its sale to provide for Mrs. Edith Leavitt, the widow.

Captain Leavitt had typical inventor's luck. Legal costs and failure to realize on his ignition distributor device made that profitless to him. Though the diving armor development made him independently wealthy for a time, he spent his money from that and other patents on submarine devices, such as a powerful incandescent lamp to illuminate the ocean depths made of glass so tough one could bang it like a football, and a cutting implement to slice the armored side of a sunken vessel like so much cheese.

Besides Mrs. Leavitt, his second wife, the inventor is survived by Harold, a son; Nina Leavitt, a daughter, living in Chicago, and a sister, Mrs. E. R. Kimball of North Cambridge, Mass. Captain Leavitt, who was 62, had lived for many years at 1120 Nostrand Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Some years ago Capt. Leavitt was secretary of the B. L. Co., makers of roller bearings, with plant on North Main street, at the foot of Eleventh street. The family removed from Norwich about 1911. While in Norwich Capt. Leavitt resided at No. 208 West Thames street.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, March 10—The police arrested a Negro tonight on suspicion of having entered the residence of Mrs. Alice Clay, 83 Fremont street, which is unoccupied during the winter. He is being held pending an investigation. The Negro was observed prowling about the Clay premises by Mrs. William Belcher, who notified the police. Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin was assigned to the case and as he was walking along Fremont street, the Negro was seen approaching, but when Martin was observed, the Negro turned and walked rapidly in the opposite direction. He was overtaken by the officer and being unable to give a satisfactory reason for being in that neighborhood, he was arrested. An inspection of the house revealed that a heavy wire screen had been removed from one of the cellar windows, but it has not been determined whether the house was entered.

PETER VONG CARELESS—WET GOODS FOUND IN STORE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 10.—Peter Vong, proprietor of a Main street confectionery and fruit store, was charged with violation of the liquor law on two counts, possession and keeping with intent to sell. The case was continued until tomorrow. Vong's arrest was the result of his personal carelessness and his act may cost him a tidy sum. When Vong decided to close his store about 11 o'clock last night, he neglected to lock a rear door so that when Patrolman Frank Philopena was making his rounds, the entrance was found unsecured. The officer entered the store and his search to determine if a thief had entered resulted in the finding of several bottles of gin and Scotch whiskey. Vong was found and after securing the entrance, he was arrested on the charge of liquor law violation.

The evidence of the stool pigeons, one a woman, and a New London resident, was most unsatisfactory for the raiders visited stores and homes on Truman, Shaw and Bank streets, where the spotters declared that they had purchased liquor. A search of these places did not reveal any evidence of liquor with the result that the stool pigeons were discharged with a minimum amount of compensation for their work.

SPOTTERS' EVIDENCE ENTRAPS ONLY TWO WOMEN

Mrs. Mary Falliet, 32 Douglass street and Mrs. Stella Stefanski, 27 Winthrop street, were charged on two counts of violation of the liquor law, possession and keeping with intent to sell. Each was fined $200 and costs on each count. The women were arrested late Saturday night upon information provided the police by a pair of stool pigeons. When the officers entered the Douglass street house, which had long been reputed to be a resort where liquor could be purchased by the drink, but not by the bottle, Mrs. Falliet threw the contents of a pitcher in a sink and then poured disinfectant on top of the hooch, to kill the odor of alcohol, leaving only a milky colored liquid in the sink. A search of the house did not reveal any liquor, but the woman was arrested. At the Winthrop street house, the raiding force found three and one-half quarts of alcohol and a bottle of coloring. These were seized as evidence of violation of the law. Two frequenters in the home of Mrs. Falliet, Joseph Saunders, 34 Reed street and Louis Kaminsky, Groton, were not prosecuted for a nolle was ordered in both cases.

THEFT CASE OF CESARINA CONTINUED TO MONDAY

Giordani Cesarina, 36, of 27 Summer street, a weaver at the Bloom Silk company, Garfield avenue, was charged with theft. The case was continued to Monday. Cesarina furnished a surety on his bond of $100. Cesarina was arrested last Friday, suspected of stealing "fillers," for hundreds had been missed within a short time. When officials of the mill were satisfied that Cesarina was the thief, complaint was made to the police. Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh went to the mill and when Cesarina was about to go to his home, he was intercepted. A search of his lunch box revealed a large quantity of the fillers which the weaver was intending to take to his home, where they were accumulated, it is said, until a sufficient amount was on hand to sell. Then it was claimed, the fillers were sold to a Norwich man. Believing that additional fillers or other forms of silk had been stolen and stored in Cesarina's home, Judge Daniel M. Cronin today issued a search warrant ordering the searching of Cesarina's house, but the officers did not find any additional evidence of Cesarina's guilt.

MRS. ROBERT CHAMPION ALLOWED TO GO WITH HUSBAND

Mrs. Rose Champion, 20, girl-bride of Robert Champion, 32 Shapley street and a waiter, who was arrested yesterday for the second time within 24 hours charged with violation of parole, was not in court today. During last night Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer ordered the young woman given into the custody of the husband, who had assured the authorities that he would deliver the girl at the home of her parents in Hartford. The bride, for she was only married two weeks ago, is on parole from the House of the Good Shepherd, Hartford, and the State Farm for Women, East Lyme. It is apparent that since her marriage she has formed indiscreet companionship. It was late hours and parties that brought about her arrest the first time early Saturday morning when she had attended a "party" and drank freely, only to return home and engage in physical combat with her husband, besides wrecking one of the living rooms. In court the same day the case was continued a month. Sunday afternoon, Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield made complaint to the police because of the young woman's conduct and she was arrested a second time by Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty. About 11 o'clock last night the order was given to release the young woman to her husband, that she might be returned to Hartford.

Two Cars Still Missing

In New London Sunday night four cars were stolen, but two of them were recovered. Frederick Swanson, parked his 1930 Buick on Broad street and when he returned for it two hours later, it had been stolen. It was not recovered. Clayton Smith, proprietor of a Williams street pharmacy, is the owner of the other car not recovered. He parked it for an indefinite time and when he wanted to go home discovered that the auto had been stolen. Joseph B. Bunker, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., parked his Dodge on Meridian street and later discovered it stolen. Automobile Patrol Officer found it abandoned on Federal street. Clarence W. Thompson, 925 Bank street, left his auto on Huntington street while he attended a theatre, only to discover it missing two hours later. The car, a Chevrolet, was recovered when found abandoned on State, near Union street.

Later this evening, Benjamin Hockman, 17 Belden street, found Swanson's automobile entrenched in the mud on a side road in Chesterfield, the stolen auto blocking the highway, which is not frequently traveled. Hochman, with the assistance of a farmer, succeeded in getting the machine to the farm of Louis Zolmaa, where it is being quartered until the owner can arrange to bring it to New London tomorrow.

PATROLMAN NEGLIGENT, BUT NOT INTOXICATED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 10—The hearing of Patrolman Patrick Sheehan charged with conduct unbecoming an officer in remaining away from duty last Friday and drinking liquor, did not result in the officer being disciplined, when testimony was taken before City Manager William A. Holt at 10 o'clock this morning, at the municipal building. The witnesses were Captain Charles A. Pinney, who preferred the charges; Desk Sergeant William T. Babcock, who was on duty at headquarters when Sheehan was brought in and Street Sergeant Patrick Murphy, who accompanied Captain Pinney to North Bank street, corner of Douglass street, after Captain Pinney had been informed that Sheehan was intoxicated at North Bank and Douglass streets. Sheehan testified that he had supposed that he had been allowed a day off to attend a funeral and that he did not realize that he had misinterpreted the captain's edict that the officer must return to duty after the funeral. He said that he was tired from loss of sleep and decided to exercise by walking a short time. He walked to North Bank street where he engaged in conversation with a friend and had just concluded his talk when ordered by Captain Pinney to go to headquarters. Desk Sergeant Babcock told of Sheehan entering the station house and that the latter appeared to have been drinking. Sergeant Murphy said that the patrolman was sober, but had a tired look. Sheehan was examined by two physicians before he was allowed to leave the station house Friday afternoon and both doctors said that Sheehan might have partaken of liquor, but that he was absolutely sober. After the statements had been made to the questions of the city manager the decision of that official was reserved. This afternoon it was announced that the officer had been reprimanded for not reporting for duty after the funeral, but that Sheehan had been exonerated of any charge of drinking. City Manager Holt lifted the suspension imposed by Captain Pinney and ordered the officer to resume duty at once.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

Gardiner Hall Jr. Company, South Willington.

Btwen 1840 and 1860 several attempts to establish a cotton thread mill in South Willington had been made and discontinued by a group of Connecticut men. In 1860 Gardiner Hall, Jr., started in a small way to manufacture cotton thread but due to the outbreak of the Civil war he was forced to close his mill for a short period. In 1862 he again started manufacturing under the firm name of Gardiner Hall, Jr. and Co. Several men were, for short periods, connected with Gardiner Hall, but from 1868 until his son William Henry Hall became connected with the business in 1893, he was a sole proprietor.

During these years several machines used in the mill were invented by Mr. Hall; the most important being the thread dressing machine and automatic spool printing press.

Upon the death of Gardiner Hall, Jr., in 1915 the management was assumed by William Henry Hall until his death in 1922. It was then assumed by Robert T. Jones, a son-in-law of Gardiner Hall, Jr., who had become associated with the firm in 1912. In 1926 R. T. Jones retired and on Jan. 1, 1927 the business was incorporated.

The company has enjoyed a steady growth through these years and today all kinds and types of cotton threads are manufactured. The mills are in South Willington, with sales offices in the larger American cities.

The officers today are: R. O. Hall, president; R. H. Paige, vice president and secretary; W. R. L. McBee, treasurer and agent.

Breed Theatre

Lenore Ulric, talented Broadway star, is at the Breed theatre today and Wednesday in 'South Sea Rose," her second Fox Movietone all talking picture.

As the exotic and voluptuous maid of a tropical island, Miss Ulric's role is similar to the memorable characterizations she created in her two most famous stage hits, "Lulu Belle" and "Kiki."

"South Sea Rose" is an adroitly contrived comedy drama with the bulk of its stormy action laid in a remote tropical island and aboard a trading vessel on the high seas. It is full of bizarre adventure and ruthless events stirred by the tempestuous lass who is restored to civilization by a rough crew of wayfarers.

Charles Bickford, who won considerable fame by his performance in "Dynamite," portrays a hardened sea captain. The remainder of the supporting cast include Kenneth MacKenna, Tom Patricola, Farrell Macdonald, Elizabeth Patterson, Roscoe Ates, Daphne Pollard, Ilka Chase, George MacFarlane, Ben Hall and Charlotte Walker.

The play by Tom Cushing, "La Gringa," was adapted for the screen, having been written for Miss Ulric originally. Allan Dwan, who has directed many notable Fox successes, is responsible for this big hit.

JOSEPH FRASER WEDS MISS MARY A. LAWRENCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 10.—The wedding of Town Councilman Joseph Fraser and Miss Mary Ann Lawrence of Westerly, formerly of Aberdeen, Scotland, took place at 8 a. m., Monday, at the residence of the bride, 33 Newton avenue, the home of her sister, Mrs. Robert Duff. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Luther G. Coburn, pastor of Pawcatuck Congregational church, which church is attended by both. The only witnesses were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Duff.

Councilman Fraser eluded some of his friends by having the ceremony take place at an earlier hour than originally planned, at the Congregational parsonage. The bride wore a three-piece traveling ensemble, the coat being blue. Mr. and Mrs. Fraser left by automobile for New York and Philadelphia, later Washington, D. C., and St. Petersburg, Fla. They will be at home at 45 Summer street, after March 20.

Sunday evening reports came to the police of the suspicious actions of a boat on the Pawcatuck river and all haste was made to the river bank by police with visions of the theft of lumber or coal. Great was the surprise to discover that the river party was a well-known Italian Pawcatuck river smelt fisherman, who has recently had to contend with mutiny in his fishing gang. This "captain of smelters" was out on the river in an endeavor to make every minute of his time count and to overhaul his seining gear.

March 7. Peter C. Olechowek to Peter K. Halleck Olechowek, above-described property.

March 8. Louis Salimeno and wife to Harry Geary and wife, land with buildings and improvements on the northerly side of Narragansett avenue bounded northly by lands of Antonio Reale and easterly by lands now or formerly of Joseph Coduri.

March 10. Vachel W. Anderson of Westerly to Mary A. Coombe, land with buildings and improvements at Watch Hill deeded by William P. Langworthy to Jacob S. Burnet, Aug. 12, 1887, being lot No. 46 Cottage Sites, Everett Farm, Watch Hill.

Judge Edward M. Burke held a special session Monday of Westerly probate court, to consider the estate of Col. Adolph Dick, who died in Switzerland. Howard Thorp had been previously appointed by the court to represent the estate. He reported proper obligation against the estate and with no objection claim was allowed as valid by the court.

Estate of Thomas McKenzie. The Industrial Trust company, executor. Howard Thorp was appointed to represent the estate in certain obligations and to report at a special court session March 25 at 9 a. m.

Westerly chapter, Order of DeMolay, Arthur Hustwit, master councilor, held its March meeting Monday evening in Masonic hall. Following the meeting a social and dance was enjoyed in the armory banquet hall of Narragansett commandery, No. 27, K. T. At the next regular meeting the DeMolay degree will be worked by Westerly chapter officers. Light refreshments were enjoyed after Monday night's meeting.

The gravel work train on the New Haven railroad has been operating during the past weeks from Bradford, R. I., to Mystic, Conn. At the Bradford gravel pits filling material has been loaded by a ditcher upon dump cars and the material taken to Mystic where the trestle work approach to the Mystic river drawbridge is being filled in, nearly to the Mystic river channel edge.

Workmen in the employ of the South County Public Service company Monday morning completed removing the two remaining wooden electric light and telephone poles from the Broad street bridge over the Pawcatuck river. The poles were located on both sides of the bridge, near the Rhode Island-Connecticut line. The base of the poles rested on the iron supports of the bridge and were set in concrete. Workmen employed in removing the poles found that they had practically rotted off at the bottom and they were toppled over with little difficulty. It was evident that the poles had been largely supported by the overhead wires. The work of clearing the main highway from these poles will be continued on West Broad street, where all wires will be placed underground from the Pawcatuck river bridge to the junction of Mechanic and West Broad streets. It is planned to replace the wooden poles removed Monday with ornamental iron poles and arc lights, such as have been constructed on Broad street. Two such poles and lights will probably be located at the west end of the Pawcatuck river bridge.

LISTLESS AND DULL?

MAYBE IT'S WORMS

THEY are much more common than most mothers think. Is it any wonder that your child is listless if intestinal worms are robbing him of nourishment and poisoning him with their secretions?

Look also for the following symptoms: grinding the teeth, picking the nose, crossness, crying in sleep, offensive breath, loss of appetite or weight, nausea or general restlessness. Any one of these signs may be your warning that worms are present.

Wise mothers take no chances with these dangerous and disgusting childhood pests. Even if worms are only suspected they give the child

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

The Wood Thrush

In misty gold
The morning was told
From the towers of the templed sky;
And a chanson fell
(Like the chime of a bell)
From the throat of a lover shy.

"The red morning breaks," the melody rang;
He waited a moment in silence, then sang:
"O sweetheart, sweet, sweetheart, the red morning breaks,
And all the gray world to ecstasy wakes."

He paused and was still while I stood athrill
In the gossamer breath of a dew-drenched hill;
Then caroled again in consummate strain,
The passionate joy of dawn on the plain:

"The world is dew-pearled in the morning that breaks,
And all the dim prairie to ecstasy wakes;
O sweetheart, come near me, O hear, I entreat,
O sweetheart, sweet, sweetheart, O sweetheart, sweet, sweet."

—Roy W. Van Liew.

May Magic

May-time smiling on the hills,
Where the mock-bird's calling.
Rippling rhymes in all the rills,
And the silver rain a-falling.

May-time soft and sweet with bloom,
Where the nesting thrush is singing;
Sunbeams chasing ghosts of gloom,
And the first blue bells a-ringing.

The Flower Fairies lightly dance,
To the black-bird's merry piping;
And Love still reads the old romance,
With all its tender typing.

May-time merry, May-time mad,
With the emerald wildwood tingling;
And the world, no longer winter-sad,
With a festal throng in mingling.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDEAWAKES

How many members of the Wide-Awake circle have a hobby? There are a great many varieties of hobbies in life and everyone of them is good if looked upon right. Each and every member of the circle should have at least one hobby, to take up their spare moments. It is very educational, if taken up in the right way.

There are among children collectors of stamps and of buttons and of pictures and of leaves and of colored earths and of woods and of shells and of stones. Many parents call this collecting trash, and it is trash unless the collector learns all that is to be learned from these objects. Don't forget this point. Most everything has character and a history and it is profitable to learn what it is.

There is little use of collecting things to look at because they are pretty. When they may be wonderful and be a source of constant pleasure because of what they represent. Study things. Find out what they are made of, what they represent and any fact that might be of interest.

The stones at your feet may be fire rock or water rocks and they may be 100,000 years old, and they may contain crystals or fossils or metals. Have you ever stopped to think of these things?

You may have heard that "a rolling stone gathers no moss." The moss has no chance to grow upon it, for it keeps getting less jagged and smoother all the time until it is worn round and glossy. That is what the pebbles are having done to them that roll up and down with the waves on the sand of the sea beaches.

Be the searchers for the why and wherefore every day of your lives and you will be sure to be well informed. Be sure to have an active and not an idle mind. If you don't know about a thing, be sure and ask questions. That is a good way to learn.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY THE WIDE AWAKES

I Forgot

Dear Uncle Jed: One day as I came home from school I found everyone excited, preparing for a home coming party for my grandmother who was moving to Westchester. They had a great deal of work to do getting the house ready, while I thought I had a great of work preparing supper for them when they came home. Before they left, my mother and father gave me strict orders to have supper ready when they returned.

Well, when the mail came, I ran downstairs to see if I had any. I got a letter. After awhile I came back upstairs and sat down on the couch to read my letter. I was so interested, that I scarcely heard someone say, "whew!" I'm nearly frozen. A cup of good hot coffee surely will hit the spot." Looking up, I saw my father coming over to the couch. He said, "Well, kid, how's the coffee?" Jumping up, I looked at the stove, then the empty coffee pot, and stammered, "Gee, dad, 'I-I forgot.'" Well, I didn't enjoy the rest of my letter.

GLADYS GRANT.
North Westchester.

Putnam Wins Prizes

Dear Uncle Jed: My story this time is about the spelling match that was held in the high school auditorium on Feb. 12 between the Tourtellotte high school and the Putnam high.

There was a large crowd there and all the people seemed excited. The first of the contest was a written lesson of 50 words. The people were not allowed to see this, but were read the results. Putnam won this contest.

The eighth grade was the first to have the oral contest. There were ten persons on each team and the one who gave out the words was a man from East Woodstock. There were many good spellers from the Tourtellotte Memorial high school, but Putnam finally spelled them all down. The winner from the eighth grade from Putnam was Marion Sedar.

The next contest was between the high school grades of both schools. For a long time the lines remained unbroken and after a long time Putnam also defeated the Tourtellotte high again. There were only four prizes given out. One for first prize for both oral contests and one prize to be given to the school being the winner of the contests. Putnam managed to get all four.

After the contests were over the people were served refreshments which consisted of brick ice cream and cookies of different sorts. The spellers were served first and then the visitors. Everybody was happy and I think they enjoyed the evening of educational fun.

Her First Letter

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I am going to tell you something about my pet cat. The color of my cat was gray and I called him Tommy. He got caught in a trap and half of one of Tommy's feet was broken off. He had to hop on three legs. He was a very old cat but he used to catch mice. He got sick and then died. I was very sorry that my cat died because he was my pet.

Four Foolish Girls

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have ever written to you. I am going to tell you about four foolish girls.

Mother said, "Today, I am going to town to buy good things to eat on Christmas." You four girls must watch your little sister. Mother went out and got into the car and drove away. The girls said, "Let us take our little sister for a ride." The oldest said, "I am going to push the carriage," and the next said, "No, I am." The third sister said, "I will push the carriage." They went out and the oldest sister pushed the carriage. The other girls started to shake the carriage and the baby fell out and broke her arm. The girls started to cry, but this did no good. Then they said, "How foolish we were." After that they never did anything foolish again, but always obeyed their mother and father.

Had German Measles

Dear Uncle Jed: I am quite a stranger, am I not Uncle Jed. I have just recovered from the German measles, and that is what I am going to tell you about. Wednesday morning, Feb. 26, I got up as usual. My mother said I did not look well, and I did not feel well. Later in the morning my sister said to my mother, "Ruth has some rash on her face and neck." Mother said to come to her. I had the German measles. I did not care for there was vacation and I was not missing school.

In our town there are quite a few cases. I hope the other Wide Awakes don't get it for I know how it itched when it was healing up. Don't you think it was a funny way to spend a vacation?

RUTH ABRAHAMSON, age 11.

My Pet Rabbit

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have ever written to you. I am going to write to you about my pet rabbit.

One day my father went to a farmer who kept many rabbits. My father bought a rabbit which was black and white. He brought it home. My father built the rabbit a little house. I gave the little rabbit some vegetables every day.

One day we went to bed very early. The next day I awoke and went to feed the rabbit. I could not find him there. I went and told my father and mother. We looked for him, but could not find him. One day my mother went to the garden to pick some asters. There, right in the middle of the asters, she saw my rabbit lying dead. She took the rabbit away from the asters. My father dug a hole and buried the rabbit. I picked flowers every day and put them on the rabbit's grave. I was very sorry that my little rabbit had died.

Jocko

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about Jocko. Jocko is a ring-tailed monkey. Some people brought him up from Jersey last summer. The folks that came on the New York train arrived at 2 o'clock. The man had Jocko in a small cage in the baggage car. We had to buy some peanuts for him. We tied the cage on the back of the car and Jocko came inside. He began jumping around to everybody as if to say "hello." He put his hands on the steering wheel as if to drive. Then he stepped on the horn and found out that it made a noise and kept it up. We told him to stop.

While he was here we kept him in one of the rooms that we don't use much. My mother had her jelly closet there.

Jocko liked the smell of onions and tobacco. He used to take onions and rub them on himself till his eyes watered, but still he kept it up. One time he took a cigarette from a man and began rubbing it on himself. It was lighted; he burnt himself good. Then he began rubbing the sore spot. I hope the Wide Awakes will enjoy my letter.

My First Aeroplane Ride

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I am going to tell you about my first aeroplane ride. I went to Pomfret in the afternoon for I wanted to have a ride in an aeroplane. My mother bought tickets for my two brothers, my sister and myself. We watched others go up and saw the aeroplane "take off" and land. When it was time for us to go up I did not want to because I was a little frightened, but I did not mind riding after I had been up a very short while. We were only up about three minutes when the aeroplane came to the ground again and after we stepped out I wished I could go up again.

Our pilot was Lieutenant Dixon who had won honors in piloting aeroplanes. After we had landed we watched him do several stunts with his plane in the air. I also saw a pilot who was only 19 years old do the "dead stick" in the air. He shut off his engine when he was very far up in the air. Before shutting the power off he turned his plane over several times and then circled to the ground and made a safe landing.

My Lesson in Driving

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you how I learned to drive a car. Last summer I went to my aunt's farm for a week. One day my cousin came down and asked me if I knew how to drive a car. I told him I didn't and he asked me if I would like to learn. I said I would. So we got in the car. He had the motor running and I pressed down on the clutch. He shifted the gears for me and we started off. After we had shifted and gotten into high gear we were going quite fast. I had quite a hard time keeping the car in the road, which was very narrow. I steered it about half a mile, then I pushed down on the clutch, and put on the brake and we stopped. That was how I drove the car. I was very glad to know how to do it.

An Accident

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to you. I am going to tell you about an accident I had in Cranston, R. I., in the fall of 1929. The nuts were about ripe so three other friends and I went to gather some of them. Each of us took several bags. When we arrived in the woods we saw that the nuts hadn't fallen. We climbed the trees and gathered nuts in our hats and came down often to empty them into the bags. I was gathering some while another boy named Peter was emptying his nuts into my bag. I was climbing down a branch instead of the trunk. I wasn't looking where I was climbing but instead I was looking at my nuts. I held onto a limb too small for my weight. All at once the branch broke and I fell to the ground. I never knew what happened to me for I was knocked unconscious.

I reached home about two o'clock and went to bed for I did not feel very well. When I woke up it was time for supper, and I felt better.

Lamb Disappears

Dear Uncle Jed: I am a little girl eight years old. I live on a farm with my father and mother. Last summer I got a little lamb, it weighed 20 pounds. It grew very fast. Soon it was big enough to eat grass, and we tied her to a stake on the lawn. She liked very much to play with the dogs. When I let her loose she followed me all around. I named her Mary and fed her twice a day. Last week she went away on a vacation, but she will return in a few weeks.

PAULINE SLIGHT, age 8.
Woodstock.

Dog Runs Away

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to the Wide Awakes, and I hope you will like it. It's a story about my dog, Rover.

I used to have a big Scotch collie dog. His name was Rover. My daddy made a harness for him and a cart, too. He would drag me around for hours. I haven't my Rover any more. I will tell you what happened to him. One Sunday in August, 1927 my daddy was driving my mother and brother and I to my grandmother's in Oakland, R. I. We got as far as Plainfield and another car smashed into my father's car. We all were thrown out of the machine and landed beside a telephone post. Rover was in the front seat with my daddy. He was also thrown out. He was so frightened that he ran away and we never saw him again. My father tried hard to find him several times, but with no results.

CURIOUS CREATURES

Went To Philadelphia

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would tell you about my trip to Philadelphia during the Christmas vacation. This was my first visit to Philadelphia.

I went to see Carpenter's hall, Independence hall, Old Christ church, and Betsy Ross' house. Her home has been kept just as it was when she was living there. I visited Fairmount park and saw all the animals, birds and reptiles. Some of the animals I saw were deer, elephants, monkeys, lions and a very tall giraffe.

At Philadelphia I rode in the subway for the first time. I saw an aeroplane at Grand Central station.

ANNA KALLGREN, age 11.

My Trip To The Beach

Dear Uncle Jed: I have not written to you before so I hope the Wide Awake circle will like my story. I am going to write about my trip to the beach last summer.

We started out about nine o'clock in the morning. There were four cars that went. We got to the beach about 11 o'clock. We did not have our dinner just as soon as we reached the beach, but put on our bathing suits and went in the water for a swim while the men dug quahogs. About 12 o'clock we ate our dinner.

After dinner we played a few games on the beach while the older folks sat on the bank talking. Then we went out into the water again. We went home in the afternoon. The next day we had quahogs for dinner.

Cat Breaks Foot

Dear Uncle Jed: I have not written to you before, but I hope the Wide Awake circle will like my letter. I have a cat named Tommy. A neighbor gave him to me. When he was small he would play with a string, but he is too big now to play. He got his foot caught in a trap. His foot was broken and he could not walk for a long time, but now his foot is getting better and I am glad.

NORINE DURRIN, age 9.
Putnam.

Spot, My Pet Cat

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to the Wide Awake circle.

Spot is the name of my cat. She is a little kitty and is black and white. Her nose is half white and half black. She likes to play with people. Sometimes she fights with another cat which is brown and white. If your shoestrings are untied she plays with them. She will roll over. One day the belt on my dress was untied, she started to play with it. I did not know what was pulling on the belt until I looked back and saw my cat. When I go for a walk she goes too.

ANNIE ZIPKIN, age 10.
Putnam.

My Trip

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I am going to tell you about my trip to Portland, Maine. We traveled by automobile. I saw many things along the road. When we first reached Portland, I walked around town and then I went to the movies. When the movies were over I went down to the harbor. I saw a fire truck pumping water. It pumped water about 200 feet. We next went down to the place where they clean the fish. We saw many lobsters. We watched them being baked. The next day, which was fourth of July, we started home. On our way home we saw two aeroplanes. One went up and the other remained in the shed.

When a man is in trouble he believes a good many things that he would doubt at any other time.

SHE THOUGHT:
"We'd squeeze you in somehow—if it weren't for 'B.O.'"
Yet, to be polite,
SHE SAID:
"We'd give you a lift if we weren't so crowded."

Another invitation lost
...all because of "B.O." (Body Odor)

PEOPLE all agreed he was a nice chap. But somehow they never had room for him. The car was already filled. The bridge table already arranged. A dance already promised.

Then one day he discovered his trouble. "B.O."—body odor. At once he adopted a simple precaution. Now he's welcome everywhere. He knows the easy way to keep perspiration odorless.

A risk we all run

People won't tell us when we're guilty of "B.O." They merely avoid us. The offender is the last to realize his fault because we so quickly become used to an ever-present odor. But remember, pores give off a quart of odor-causing waste daily—even on cool days.

Why risk offending? Adopt this easy pleasant way to be safe. Wash and bathe with Lifebuoy. Like millions of other particular men and women, you'll say it's the finest toilet soap in the world. Leaves you glowing with freshness and healthy vigor—gloriously, satisfyingly clean. Lifebuoy's creamy, abundant, antiseptic lather cleanses and purifies pores—ends every trace of "B.O."

Radiantly fresh complexions

"A wonderful complexion soap!" say thousands of delighted women. Lifebuoy's deep-cleansing lather gently frees clogged pores of impurities—makes dull skins bloom with healthy, radiant beauty. Its pleasant extra-clean scent—that vanishes as you rinse—tells you Lifebuoy purifies.

TWENTY BATTERY CANDIDATES REPORT TO COACH BRIGHAM AT ACADEMY

About a score of battery candidates answered Coach Brigham's first call for the 1930 Academy baseball team Monday afternoon at the campus and were sent through a short but snappy drill, lasting about an hour. Included in the list were Butsy Weisgraber, last year's pitching mainstay, and Bud Fontaine, his catcher, together with Les Crowell, another letterman, who appeared both behind the bat and in the outfield during the 1929 campaign.

Others who turned out and who are figured as having a good chance of making things hot for the veterans included Boots Greene, Pop Richards and Johnnie Caron, of the pitchers, and Billy McGuinness, catcher. Hack Pepin, a 1929 letterman, who both caught and played in the infield, was not able to be present for the opening drill.

Another practice is scheduled for today and towards the last of the week the remainder of the squad will be called out. The field was not in the best of shape but is away ahead of the usual condition at this time of the year. This is probably the earliest an Academy baseball squad ever took to the outdoors.

Slightly more than three weeks remain before the opening game, Saturday, April 5, with the Richmond Radiators of the Industrial league.

FIRST GAME OF SERIES BETWEEN BUDDIES AND SHYMA

Tonight, the fans who go to the Parish hall, Taftville, for the weekly basketball game will have a chance to see the newly crowned amateur champions of the eastern part of the state when the Plainfield Buddies come to town to take on the Shyma team in the first game of the series. This game should be a hummer for these two teams in their last appearance played one of the best game seen in these parts this season, the Shymas taking the verdict by one point and the newly crowned champs will be out for revenge and they are also aware of the fact that a defeat in the first game of the series will be quite a setback in their claim. The Buddies are bringing to Taftville the same club which defeated the Danielson boys in the last game, which will be Lang and Mercer, in the forward position; Eaton, at center, with Bromley and Marriot guards; Mette and Allard will be held in reserve.

Not to be outdone, Manager Sullivan will present a fast lineup in an endeavor to take the opener of the series. He has had his boys practicing hard for this game and he feels sure that the Buddies will return home on the short end of the scores. Owing to injuries amongst several of the players the Shymas will present a different front, namely, Ray Yerrington, of the Y. Seniors; Peltier or Labarre, forwards; Pete Finn or Jim Murphy, center; Les Pingree and Lemieux in the backcourt. There will be a fast preliminary game which will start at 7:45 o'clock, with the big game at 8:45.

The Shymas and the Buddies will continue their series at Plainfield Wednesday night.

In the 440, Mahoney finished third and Sera, both of Norwich, fourth. Mahoney was given a medal.

Susie Says

Little Jimmie suggests that Mame and her girl friend should be sent to night school to acquire some more knowledge. His version of their first night at the school follows:

"Hurry up Mame, or you'll be late. Never mind the rouge and lip-stick, the teachers are all women. No, Mame, the teacher isn't going to call a doctor when she says she's going to give you an examination. It's just to see if you have any brains."

"Oh, is that so? Let me tell you something, girlie, they never had to put a netting over my crib to keep the woodpeckers out. 'Course if you wanta be iggerant all your life why you don't have to go to night school."

"All right, Mame, let's go into the room now. And Mame, act like you'd been in a school before. Oh, good evening, Miss ——. Yes, we're two new students or at least I'm just coming here with my friend so she won't be lonesome. What'll we take up? Well, what have you got?"

"As for me I'll take a little arithmetic and English but you better give Mame here the whole works. You know the school burned down when Mame was in the second grade and she lost her books so she never went back. But you'll find that out soon enough."

"All right we'll take those two seats over there if you don't mind. Hey Mame lookit that guy over there, the one with the patent leather hair, he told me in the store yesterday that he'd been through college. He may have gone through but he didn't stop long."

"No, Mame, 2 and 2 don't make 22, it only looks that way when you write 'em on paper. Oh, my gosh, girlie, it's too bad they don't have a night kindergarten. You'd be so much better cutting out paper dolls. You must have been born twins 'cause no one person could be so dumb."

"Oh, Mame, let me take your eraser a minute. For the love of heaven Mame you've chewed it all up. Of course, I make mistakes, if I didn't I wouldn't be going around with you. No Mame the grand canyon wasn't made when a Scotsman dropped a penny in a gopher hole. That's only a joke on the Scotch, that ain't a fact."

"Sal listen if you don't pay less attention to that sheik over there and more to your lessons you ain't going to be learnt nothing. Oh, is that so? Well tell him to get another feller and we'll both go. He ain't so bad at that."

"What's that Miss ——, you want Mame to recite. Say, she never spoke a piece in her life, it's all she can do to remember her prayers. And she ain't so hot at that either. Oh, you want her to tell what she learned tonight, that's different, it won't take her long."

"All right Mame go ahead. Hey, hey, Mame, sssh, sssh, she said recite not confess. Where do you think you are, anyway. Oh, no Miss—— I'm not coaching her, I'm just trying to save her a lot of embarrassment."

"Well come Mame the session's over and if you made a date you better get going. Hey wait till I'll get ready. Let me take your compact willya?"

"All right, let's go."

(Another of a number of articles recalling local baseball of other years.)

According to The Bulletin of Thursday, April 20, 1905.—On the Academy campus Wednesday afternoon the schoolboys administered a crushing defeat to George Charbonneau's Laurel Hills, by a score of 8 to 6. The fielding and base running of Manchester and a star catch by Corning in right were the features. Lucas and Perkins pitched for the schoolboys. The latter was effective but wild as a hawk. Capt. Gallivan put up a good game at second.

CARNERA TO MARRY AND LIVE IN ENGLAND

LONDON, March 11—(AP)—The London Daily News today says that the Italian heavyweight boxing giant, Primo Carnera, has lost his heart to Miss Emelia Tersini, a British subject, and will return here this year to marry her and settle in England.

Carnera's romance, according to the newspaper, began when the heavyweight visited England for a bout with Young Stribling, the American boxer. The Daily News quotes Miss Tersini herself and her friends as authority for the story.

Miss Tersini, who is described as of typical Italian appearance but born in England, lives with her uncle Nani who keeps a restaurant in the West End of London. Emelia's sister, Ines Tersini, is a member of the Carl Rosa Opera company.

PLAINFIELD-SENECAS CLASH TOMORROW

The Seneca Indians, the most extensively traveled basketball team in the United States, return to Plainfield on Wednesday evening to seek revenge for their defeat by the Plainfield club earlier in the season. In the previous meeting the Plainfield team nosed out the Indians by a single point.

The Seneca Indian players are engaged in farming during the summers, each of them cultivating the land on the reservations given to them and their parents by the United States government, and as a result of being outdoors most of the year around, they are always in the best of shape physically, and are able to outrun the best athletes. They win a lot of their games by tiring out the opposition through their marathon running tactics.

The Seneca Indians seem to possess more stamina than white athletes, and, as an illustration, they point to their "tough" trip of one month's duration of last season, on which they have covered 5600 miles by automobile, during which they have played 24 games, winning sixteen and losing eight, and covered twelve states. That is a record to "shoot at," and it is doubtful if any white team will ever accomplish that feat, because while it may be possible for another club to travel such a long distance by automobile, it will be almost impossible to play 24 games during thirty days, with only six players making that trip, and the same five playing most of the games.

On Saturday, Feb. 15, 1930, the Seneca Indians played the Mighty Majestic Radio Five at the Broadway armory in Chicago, Ill., before a record throng of over 7000 persons, which was the largest crowd that ever attended an independent basketball game in the history of Chicago, and, by far, the largest crowd that the Seneca Indians have played to in any one game during their career.

Plainfield will use the same line-up that performed so well against the redskins in the other game.

For a preliminary, the second game of the Shyma-Buddies series will be played, the first game being played tonight at Taftville.

ROSENBLOOM WINS FIERCE BOUT FROM JOHNSON ON FOUL IN 6TH

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—Maxey Rosenbloom, play-boy of Harlem, won from Larry Johnson, stiff punching Chicago Negro on a foul tonight in the sixth round of their ten-round feature match in Madison Square Garden. A swinging left, deep in the groin, stretched Rosenbloom writing on the canvas after 29 seconds of the sixth; Rosenbloom weighed 173 1-2, Johnson 174 1-2.

It was an unsatisfactory ending to a vicious battle that was fought on fairly even terms through the first five rounds. The thumping Negro, swinging into action with solid left hooks to the body, an occasional right to the head, annoyed Rosenbloom considerably but could not spike the Harlem Harlequin's whirlwind attack.

A crowd of 15,000, thoroughly enjoying one of the best fights of the season, howled at the anti-climax but there seemed no question that the blow, entirely accidental, was palpably foul. Rosenbloom was badly hurt and was unable to leave the ring for several minutes.

Rosenbloom turned loose the same bewildering attack in the first round that has dumbfounded almost every top-notcher in the light heavyweight ranks in the past year or two. He slung rights and lefts into Johnson's head from all angles, roughed the Negro at close quarters, and had him smiling to himself in perplexed fashion when the first round was over.

Johnson opened a gash in Rosenbloom's head early in the second round and followed this advantage with a blistering two fisted attack that drove the play-boy to cover. With blood trickling into his eyes, Maxey held frequently and could not quite offset the Negro's husky punching in both the second and third sessions. Twice Johnson slammed Rosenbloom full on the chin with his deadly right hand but Maxey's knees held together and he fought back furiously.

The Harlem Hebrew set the pace in the fourth and was solving Johnson's aggressive style in the fifth, as in the first round. The Negro was bewildered at times by the fists that drummed in from outlandish positions. The battle was about even at the start of the sixth.

The sixth and final session lasted only 29 seconds, as Johnson leaped into the attack, Rosenbloom started forward, then stopped, and the Negro's left hook smashed home, far below the belt line. Rosenbloom fell and rolled across the floor while Referee Patsy Haley waved Johnson aside. The crowd lustily booed the foul, another of a string of disqualifications that have marred important bouts of the winter.

Rosenbloom, who weighed 173 1-2 to 174 1-2 for Johnson, signed today for a light heavyweight title match with Jimmy Slattery in Buffalo, April 1.

YESTERDAY IN THE TRAINING CAMPS

Robins

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 10—(AP)—Brooklyn's Robins took things comparatively easy in today's practice session as they prepared for the opening of their exhibition season against the Detroit Tigers here, tomorrow.

The regulars even laid off to the extent of letting the yannigans beat them 5 to 2, in the daily practice game, which was reduced to six innings. Bucky Newsome and John Krider pitched well for the second team and were deprived of a shut out only by Johnny Frederick's batting. Frederick drove in both regular runs with a triple and a homer.

Red Sox

PENSACOLA, Fla., March 10—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox started their third week of spring training here today with a mild workout. The Sox are in for a strenuous week as four practice games have been scheduled. The usual regulars-yannigan game will be put on tomorrow, a tilt with Pensacola is carded for Thursday and games with Mobile will be played on Saturday and Sunday.

Reds

ORLANDO, Fla., March 10—(AP)—Three outstanding reasons today caused the Cincinnati Reds to dash through their spring training workout with unusual vigor and zest. One was the arrival of Sidney Weil, their president, another was the presence of a microphone and movie camera which recorded their deeds for posterity and the other was Dan Howley, fiery manager, who drove the squad at top speed for four hours.

Howley today sent the veteran pitchers to the mound for the first time. Joe Stripp, a leading third baseman candidate suffered an eye injury when he was struck by a bounding ball.

Cards Trample Athletics

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 10—(AP)—For the second straight day, the St. Louis Cards defeated the Philadelphia Athletics, 16 to 9, in a slugfest today. The Cards thus took the lead in the four game series, two to one, and the final will be played at Bradenton, tomorrow.

A fairly close game at the start was changed when Rube Walberg faced the National leaguers in the fourth. Before he had finished his three innings workout, the Cards had knocked out ten hits for eleven runs, sewing up the game. Homer Peel, formerly of the Phillies, swatted two doubles, a triple and a single, driving in half of the Cardinals' runs. Score:

St. Louis	010 506 400	16	17	2
Philadelphia	000 221 022	9	13	4

Bell, Grabowski, Derringer and Mancuso; Earnshaw, Walberg, Shores and Cochrane.

Phillies

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 10—(AP)—Mayor Harry A. Mackey, of Philadelphia, visited the Phillies' training camp today and watched as the players worked.

In the field drills, the National leaguers worked with both Hurst and Jack Sherlock at first base, Hurst taking charge at the start and later retiring to the outfield. Although the placing of Sherlock at first base inspired considerable gossip, Hurst is said to be a good bet to be the regular first baseman.

George Susce, strong boy of the catching staff who suffered a fractured left clavicle yesterday when hit on the shoulder by a foul tip, put on a uniform today and did several laps around the park. George's one aim in life is to become the first string catcher of the Phillies and he feels fate had dealt with him severely with his present injury.

HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS

Seven of the eight teams were picked for the Class A-B state interscholastic basketball tournament at a meeting of Connecticut high school officials in New Haven Saturday and of these only two are Class A schools. The schools named were Harding and Central of Bridgeport, West Haven, Torrington, Meriden, Manchester and the present champions, Bristol. The eighth position was declared a tie between Windham and Naugatuck and they are to play this week to break the deadlock. The game will be played in Hartford.

The C-D teams, which will meet at Storrs, are Putnam, Simsbury, Glastonbury, Stafford, Plainville, Branford, Madison and Woodbury.

Both tournaments open this week Friday and will be concluded Saturday the A-B played at Yale, in the evening, and the C-D in the afternoon.

New London Bulkeley will play 17 baseball games this spring. The season opens April 12 with Plainfield and closes June 4 with Westerly at Westerly.

Even before a ball is thrown, there is interest aplenty in just who will be the leading pitcher for the Academy during the coming season. From a quick glance, it seems that six strong and willing boys have a chance for this honor. They include Butsy Weisgraber, last year's mainstay; Boots Greene, Pop Richards, Johnnie Caron, Mike Abugle and Johnnie Cotter, the latter the only left-hander of the bunch. There will likewise be a hot race for the top catching berth with such prospects as Bud Fontaine, Les Crowell, Hack Pepin, Billy McGuinness and Johnny McKenna on hand.

Bulkeley and Chapman Tech will meet in their second inter-city clash at New London Tuesday. Tech won the first game by 16 to 10, when Bulkeley made a surprisingly good showing.

PRESTON

The C. E. society recently held a most enjoyable social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bennett of Ledyard. About twenty young people met at the church and had a straw ride to the Bennett home in a wagon made ready for the trip. With the ringing of bells, laughter, yells and songs the party left Preston City about 7 o'clock, arriving at their destination about 9 o'clock to find that a party of about forty had already gathered there. A program of music, contests and games was enjoyed, a short business session held and a lunch of doughnuts, cheese, cake and coffee was served. The committee in charge was Richard Cox, Catherine Turner and J. A. Smith.

Mrs. Lillian Beckwith has been spending a week at her home in Mystic.

Miss Dorothy Bennett has been in Stamford for a few days the guest of relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Alderbert Magee and son, Clifton, who have been spending the winter in Florida, have returned home.

The Congregational Missionary society held its meeting with Mrs. Charles Geisthardt Wednesday afternoon. The devotional service was led by Mrs. Frank Crary and the program was in charge of Mrs. Sidney Hall. Cake and coffee was served during a social half hour.

The Baptist Ladies' Aid society held an all-day meeting at the church Thursday.

The C. E. society leader Sunday evening was Mildred Slater and the topic discussed was "Faith and What It Does."

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Whitefoot Is of Two Minds

To be unsettled in your mind
Is most disturbing you will find.
—Whitefoot the Wood Mouse.

As you know, Whitefoot the Wood Mouse is an exceedingly timid little fellow. When that big wasps' nest in which he had had his own nest all winter, was cut down by Farmer Brown's Boy, Whitefoot had been frightened almost out of his wits. You see, he hadn't known what was happening. As he dashed out of the little, round doorway, and discovered Farmer Brown's Boy and Bowser the Hound and Flip the Terrier, poor little Whitefoot was so terrified that he could hardly think. He dived into a private little path through the grass and a moment later was in a hollow log in the bushes. The opening was just big enough for a Mouse to get in and he felt quite safe there.

It was a long time before Whitefoot so much as peeked out of that hole. Indeed, it was a long time before his little heart stopped going pit-a-pat, pit-a-pat with fright. When at length he did peep out of that hole and finally ventured forth, he was of two minds. He knew that his home had been cut down. He wanted to go for a last look at it. At the same time, thinking that he was now homeless, he felt that the wise thing to do would be to go back to the Green Forest to one of his old homes.

First, Whitefoot started toward the bush where the big wasps' nest had been. Then he turned and started toward the Green Forest. Again he stopped and turned back. "I must have a look and see that nest just once more," said he to himself. He made sure that the way was safe. Then he ran over to where that nest had been dropped on the ground by Farmer Brown's Boy. He rubbed his eyes. There was no nest there. "He took that nest away," thought Whitefoot. "Now I know that the only thing for me to do is to go straight back into the Green Forest, and the sooner I get there the better."

Perhaps it was habit. Anyway, Whitefoot looked up in the bush where that big hornets' nest used to be. He almost fell over with surprise. Once more he rubbed his eyes. There was that big nest up there. It wasn't quite where it had been, but it was very near it. There couldn't be any doubt about it. Once more Whitefoot was of two minds. He wanted to scramble up and see if his nest inside that wasps' nest was undisturbed. At the same time he was afraid and being afraid, he wanted to run away.

Before Whitefoot could quite make up his mind, Peter Rabbit came along. "Hello, Whitefoot," said Peter. "What are you looking at up in that bush? Haven't you ever seen a wasps' nest before? That nest has been there all winter. I've seen it every time I've passed this way. In fact, I saw it last summer, but I took good care not to get too near it then. By the way, Whitefoot, aren't you ever going to tell me where that home of yours is?"

"I don't know," replied Whitefoot in his squeaky little voice.

"Do you mean you don't know whether you are going to tell me, or that you dont know where your home is?" demanded Peter.

Whitefoot didn't say.

AMUSEMENT, MANUFACTURING AND SPECIALTY STOCKS AT HIGH LEVELS

NEW YORK, March 10—(AP)—Encouraged with their success in attracting a public following in the stock market, bull forces continued to bid up a wide assortment of amusement, manufacturing and specialty stocks to new high levels for the year today. Trading expanded considerably, the day's turnover falling just short of 4,000,000 shares, the largest since early February.

The upturn was hampered by rather heavy liquidation for a time during the morning, and by realizing just before the close. The advance was not uniform, a sprinkling of shares, in which the utilities were prominent, closing a little lower. In more bullish circles, the opinion prevailed that the lull in the business recovery is but momentary, and that by the end of the month a spring acceleration of business activity would be in full swing.

A sizeable element of the speculative community remained cautious, however, pointing to the rather cheerless trade reviews appearing over the week end, and the approach of the mid-month income tax settlement date, which may cause considerable liquidation.

The item of the day's news received with greatest interest was the U. S. Steel report of unfilled tonnage as of the end of February, which showed a gain of only 11,038 tons for the month. While this was almost a negligible change, Wall street would not have been surprised at a substantial decrease, in view of the high rate of operations maintained by the steel corporation's plants during February. Reports of current operations of steel mills generally show moderate declines from last week's rate of operations at both Pittsburgh and Youngstown.

Reports that a plan of merger for Bethlehem Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube had been virtually completed and would be formally announced on Wednesday caused a run-up of 8 points in Youngstown stock, which touched 150. Profit-taking quickly appeared, however, and the shares closed at 144 7-8.

Bethlehem was rather heavily sold through much of the day, evidently in realizing on its upturn late last week. It closed more than 2 points lower. The banking syndicate which underwrote the additional issue of 800,000 shares of stock just before the market broke last fall are understood still to be holding much of it.

Radio Corp. and Radio-Keith were strong and active features of the amusement shares, rising 2 and 3 points to new peak levels for the year. Loews advanced about 2 points more, and some of the less conspicuous members of the group, such as Consolidated Film Industries, Pathe Exchange A, and Shubert Theatres, also reached new top levels. Several of the Tobacco shares also reached new peak levels, including Liggett and Myers, Reynolds and Porto Rican American. The American Tobacco issues, however, eased. Some of the oils were in continued demand, Barnsdall and Mexican Petroleum reaching new 1930 tops. The food group was again prominent on the upside, Coca Cola and Hershey Chocolate rising about 5 points.

Vanadium was a buoyant feature, rising about 11 points. Auburn sold up 10 and Eastman Kodak made an extreme gain of 7, then slipped back 4 from the top. Allis Chalmers reached a new high on announcement of unfilled orders in excess of $13,000,000, and Celotex rose to 60, on election of a General Motors representative to the board. Underwood Elliott, Remington Rand, Goodyear, Sharp and Rohme, Pacific Gas, Peoples Gas and Packard were among other issues selling at the best levels of the year. The Federal Reserve board's report that department store sales for February showed a reduction of 2 per cent from the previous February was without visible influence on department store stocks, Gimbels was sent up over 2 points to a new top.

Credit conditions remained easy. Call money renewed at 4 per cent, but was quoted at 3 1-2 later. No further reductions were reported in the outside market, however. Foreign exchanges were firm. Sterling cables ruled at $4.86 5-16, up 1-8.

The commodity markets were again reactionary. Cotton futures dropped to further new low levels for the season, and rallied but slightly from the day's lowest levels, closing 45 to 85 cents a bale lower. Wheat futures broke 2 cents and more, by the March and May positions rallied to close only fractionally lower. July, however lost 2 3-8 cents, net. The decline was prompted by a further increase in the United States visible supply, and weakness at Liverpool. Corn futures lost more than a cent.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, March 10—(AP)—Extreme irregularity in price movement developed in today's curb market, a score or so issues moving into new high ground while probably half that number sank to new low levels for the year. Airplane issues gave one of the best demonstrations of group strength. The curb market will close at 12:30 tomorrow afternoon out of respect for the memory of former Chief Justice Taft.

Public utilities ran into heavy profit-taking. Electric Bond & Share closed fractionally lower after fluctuating within a rather narrow range while Cities Service and American Superpower recorded slight gains. Nevada California Electric, which had quite a spurt last week, jumped 9 1-4 points to a new high at 83—and retained all but a point of its gain, while United Light & Power B dropped nearly 10 points. Central Public Service (new) and Middle Western Utilities sold at new highs for the year.

In the airplane group, Aeronautical Industries, Aviation Corporation of the Americas, Consolidated Aircraft, Fokker and National Aviation all moved into new high ground for the year. Western Air Express advanced a point.

Ford Motors Limited advanced 1 1-4 points on buying stimulated by reports of large earnings by some of the Ford European subsidiaries. Johnson Motors also advanced a point.

Investment trust, trading and holding corporation shares were mixed. Goldman Sachs, Prince & Whitely preferred, Sun Investing preferred and Lehman corporation sold at new peak prices although the last-named lost its gain and closed fractionally lower. Blue Ridge preferred, which was strong last week, fell back more than a point.

Except for a drop of 1 3-4 in Solar Refining, the oils showed only fractional changes, most of them upward. Among the many stocks to reach new high ground were American Chain, Bowman-Biltmore first preferred, Corron & Reynolds preferred, Gleaner Combine Harvester, Loews debenture warrants and Mead Johnson. On the other hand, I. Fischman & Son, General Printing Ink, Kawneer Co., Marshall Field, and Lesta Machine sold at new 1930 lows. Deere & Co. old stock ran up 15 points and the new 3 7-8.

NEW YORK, March 10—(AP)—Out of respect for the memory of the late Chief Justice William Howard Taft, the New York Stock exchange, Curb exchange will close tomorrow afternoon at 12:30 o'clock instead of the regular closing hour of 2:00 p. m. The Unlisted Security Dealers association and the Association of Bank Stock Dealers will cease trading at 12:30. Among the commodity markets which will close early are the cotton, rubber, metal, raw silk, hides and the coffee and sugar exchanges.

Walter A. Reynolds, formerly of Tacoma, Wash., and Earl A. Ross, formerly of Portland, Ore., have been elected directors of the J. C. Penney Co., succeeding J. M. McDonald and B. G. McDonald, who had resigned. Mr. Reynolds is sales manager of the company.

It was reported in Wall street today that the Manhattan company, holding company for several banking institutions, was negotiating for the Central ational bank with a view to merging it with the Bank of Manhattan Trust Co.

The Maue Oil Co., retail distributors of Petroleum Products, at Ossining, Briarcliffe and Rye, N. Y., has been acquired by the Richfield Oil Corp. of New York, a subsidiary of the Richfield Oil Co. of California. B. F. Maue, head of the company bearing his name, will remain with the Richfield organization in an executive capacity.

The Knickerbocker National Corp. of New York, has acquired a substantial interest in the Boston investment banking house of Sawyer, Fiske & Spencer, Inc.

The Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York reports that the production of standard cotton cloths during February totaled 266,849,000 yards, that shipments totaled 274,543,000 yards, or 102.9 per cent of production, and that sales during the month totaled 243,861,000 yards, of 91.4 per cent of production. Stocks on hand at the end of the month amounted to 445,126,000 yards, a decrease of 1.7 per cent. Unfilled orders on Feb. 28, were 360,889,000 yards, a decrease of 7.8 per cent from Jan. 31.

Treasury aBlance.

WASHINGTON, March 10—(AP)—Treasury receipts March 7 were $4,946,074.95; expenditures $10,671,101.29; balance $15,951,759.11.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, March 10—(AP)—All grain values underwent setbacks today. Conditions being so abnormal that Liverpool quoted wheat there lower than equally good wheat can now be bought in Chicago. With the United States wheat visible supply continuing to increase and no export outlet in sight, rye tumbled to below any price reached in many years and corn dropped to a new bottom level for the season. Government estimates today on domestic farm reserve stocks of wheat, corn and oats were construed as bearish, but were not received until after trading was at an end.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were nervous, 1-4 to 2 3-8 a bushel below Saturday's finish. Corn closed 1 1-4 to 1 7-8 cents down; oats 3-4 to 1c off, and provisions showing 20 to 25c decline.

Confronted by evidence that North American export business in wheat had been brought to a virtual standstill, and that stocks of wheat afloat for Europe were increasing, the wheat market here pursued an irregular downward course throughout nearly the entire day. An especially depressing influence was that Liverpool wheat values showed new downturns regardless of advices Saturday on this side of the Atlantic, and that ordinary price differences which make allowance for freight rates between this city and the British port were more than wiped out. In addition, dispatches were at hand saying that European demand for overseas wheat was likely to remain slow for some time, requirements having been definitely reduced owing mainly to finances and to lessened use of bread.

Reports of high winds in Nebraska and Kansas and of dearth of moisture in parts of Kansas and Texas failed to check the general downward trend of wheat prices, although at times considerable buying of new crop deliveries was done here for the southwest and west. Buying support for Chicago May wheat gave relative firmness to that delivery, and was ascribed to efforts of farm board allies.

On the other hand, wheat as a whole was bearishly affected to a greater or less extent by the fact that the companion breadstuff, rye, was selling at exceptionally low figures in Hamburg. Furthermore, wheat sympathized with the corn market which was semi-demoralized here by liberal receipts and by lack of adequate storage room.

Corn receded more on account of lack of any aggressive buying than as a result of pressure to sell future deliveries. Receipts of corn in Chicago today totalled 394 cars compared with 281 cars a year ago. Arrivals at all primary points were 1,542,000 bushels against 1,100,000 bushels at this time last year. Oats weakened owing to sympathy with corn. There were also reports that Canada is buying oats from Europe and that Cuba is making oats purchases from Chile.

Provision went lower, influenced mainly by breaks in hog values and in grain.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, March 10—(AP)—Improvement in bond prices extended today to the foreign list which made a broad upward swing. Latin American issues displayed pronounced strength and gains of one and two points were numerous in this subdivision.

Although the day's total business was considerably below last Friday's, the market had sufficient depth to keep domestic corporation bonds at the levels attained in last week's advance. Inquiry for the prime rails was only moderate in comparison with the spirited turnovers of recent sessions, but a number of bonds touched new highs for the year. Utilities and industrials were quiet and firm. The reported Bethlehem-Youngstown merger directed some attention to steel company obligations. Youngstown Sheet & Tube 5s sold off 1-4 and Bethlehem purchase money 5s rose 1-2.

Amusement company bonds were strong with the stocks. Loew's 6s touched a new high at 122, showing a net gain of 1 3-8. Pathe 7s with warrants moved up more than 3 points, Shubert Theatre 7s more than 4 and Paramount Broadway 5 1-2s one point. Most of the advances were retained through the close.

Brazilian bonds were very active, and all the listings made new 1930 highs. Rio Grande Do Sul and San Paulo State issues, as well as the Colombia 6s, Peru first 6s, Buenos Aires 6s, Pernambuco 7s and Chile 6s, participated in the demonstration. Argentines were quiet. In the European section, there was buying of Belgium 7 1-2s and 7s, German Agricultural Bank 6s, Rome City 6 1-2s and Berlin City Electric 6 1-2s.

The syndicate floating the $25,000,000 issue of Alleghany Corp. convertible collateral trust 20-year 5s reported a substantial oversubscription and the bonds, traded when issued, went to 97 3-4 against the offering price of 97. The listed 5s of 1944 and 1949 rose a point.

Other convertibles also improved, although not extensively. American Telephone 4 1-2s moved narrowly. American International 5 1-2s gained 2 points.

The firmer investment rails included Canadian Pacific debenture 4s, Kansas City Terminal 4s, New York Central 4s and 3 1-2s, Northern Pacific General 3s, Southern Railway General 4s and St. Louis San Francisco prior lien 4s.

Easy credit conditions found reflection in a small upturn in the Liberty and Treasury issues. Activity was limited, but all of the listings either equalled or edged across the previous 1930 highs. Net gains ran from 1-32 to 1-4.

Time money proved to be a little firmer in the short maturity, but call loans again dropped to 3 1-2 per cent after renewing at 4.

Prospective new offerings include a $10,000,000 issue of American Commonwealths Power convertible 6s, due 1940.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

St. Mary's Players.

St. Mary's play is rapidly rounding into form. The cast has been hard at work during the past several weeks. It is one of the best St. Mary's has had. Mr. Murphy is again directing; and with a good cast and a competent director—and such is the case—a very fine performance is to be given. Do not fail to see this show. The prices are within reach of all. Box office opens tomorrow at 11 a. m.

Al-Pierre Tabarin, Willimantic.

The Al-Pierre Tabarin, Willimantic, one of the most popular gathering places for dance and music lovers of eastern Connecticut will score again next Wednesday night, March 12th, in presenting McEnelly's Victor Recording orchestra. McEnelly's is an orchestra of repute, in fact it has won nationwide popularity with dance lovers. That this group of artists could reach the pinnacle in Terpsichorean music is based on a superiority of playing that is as fascinating and captivating as the verses of a great poet stand out against the work of a mediocre. McEnelly's orchestrations have a "little something" and scoring methods that lend a distinctive charm. Edward J. McEnelly's and his 12 other talented musicians play selections rich in the three essentials to good dance music —rhythm, melody and harmony.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

George Arliss, the man who made thrilling screen history with his "Disraeli," returns again to the Palace theatre tomorrow, this time in a new super-spectacle, "The Green Goddess." But that is not all there is to the Palace program for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. This popular local theatre is presenting Mr. Arliss as part of a double feature bill that includes also "The Grand Parade," a powerful backstage romance starring Helen Twelvetrees, Fred Scott, Richard Carle and a powerful supporting cast. Needless to say, "The Green Goddess" alone would be a capital show. First of all it has Arliss, probably the world's greatest actor, a man who has held hundreds of thousands spellbound by his work on the stage and who knows his art as no other actor does. Secondly it is a ripping story, the tale of a powerful Rajah in a mysterious, occult land. It is one of the best plots that has ever been adapted to the screen, for it combines adventure with cunning and intrigue and love.

The story concerns the adventures of Major Crespin and his wife, Lucille, who, while flying over a little known region of the Himalaya mountains, are forced to make an emergency landing near a native temple where the Green Goddess is worshipped. Crespin and his wife are unhappy together, but it is obvious that their host, Dr. Traherne, the owner of the airplane, is in love with Lucille. Thus do this ill-assorted trio embark upon a weird series of thrilling events.

"The Grand Parade" is a heart-gripping story of old-time minstrelsy, with all its pageantry and parade, a heart-breaking love theme, the blind loyalty of a wife who wishes only to help and uplift a man enchained by an ignoble love. It catches at the heart strings at times, and again sets the pulses dancing with its wild, rhythmic music. Today for the last times the Palace presents that powerful drama of military romance, "His First Command," starring William Boyd. Those who have not yet seen this picture, should take advantage of an unusual chance to witness some of the most exciting and thrilling scenes ever filmed, as well as watch a great story unfolding.

Broadway Theatre.

Today for the last times the inside workings of New York's sinister Gangland, with its inexorable "finger" putting violators of its code "on the spot" will be shown in "Street of Chance," William Powell's first starring vehicle in which he has the thinly disguised role of Arnold Rothstein, whose memory still rankles in the bosom of every New York detective. Beginning tomorrow, a sensational double-feature unfolds on the Broadway's magic screen, headed by red-headed Nancy Carroll in her starring debut in "Dangerous Paradise," an exotic and daring story of a little cabaret musician in a dangerous south sea resort. Her physical charm nearly proves her undoing, for she is menaced by the hotel proprietor, his pal, a white island renagade, and an unscrupulous sea captain, but she escapes their attentions by hiding on the boat of a young recluse, who lives alone on a nearby island. The three bad hombres are Warner Oland, Gustave von Seyffertitz and Francis Macdonald, ably assisted by George Kotsonaros, and surely a more sinister group never bedevilled a pure white screen before. Richard Arlen is the young American, seeking solace for a broken heart in island solitude, and whose Eveless paradise is ruthlessly invaded by the fiery Nancy. Stirring adventure, plenty of rough action, and a delightful romance blooming neath the Sourabaya moon furnish an exciting and romantic plot, with the tropical atmosphere perfect because the picture was actually filmed in the southern Pacific isles. The companion picture, a screaming comedy, brings the famous Nugent family to the screen in "Wise Girls," a free adaptation of the famous stage comedy "Kempy," which was presented locally with great success last season by the Saint Mary's players. J. C. Nugent is the fussy old "Pa" Bence, and Elliott Nugent as the stammering but redoubtable "Kempy," a rising young plumber with an architectural complex, and a great desire to marry, which he fulfills, not wisely but too well. Soon, or very soon, next Saturday in fact, comes the newest all-talking drama, "Devil May Care," in which swift action, stirring romance, rib-tickling comedy and military splendor are cleverly blended, with the famous Novarro displaying his magnificent voice in some wonderful vocal numbers.

SEVEN BUILDING PERMITS GRANTED DURING FIRST WEEK IN THE MONTH

There was a slight increase in building activities in Norwich and vicinity during the past week as noted by the number of new building permits granted at the office of Fire Marshal Henry R. Taft. After a very slack period during February the first week in March showed an increase in the activities in the building trades. At the office of Fire Marshal Taft there were seven building permits granted and two applications received.

Among these permits granted there was one for a new dwelling house to be built by Henry G. Montie on Boswell avenue as an investment. This house is of two stories and has six rooms and bath. The other six permits were for alterations and additions to present buildings in the city. The total expense of the new building as declared by the applicants in the permits is approximately $7,000.

The permits were as follows:

To Contractor P. F. Sweeney, to add a porch on the three-story brick building on Franklin street owned by Ralph Divito. The porch will be 8x23 feet and three stories in height. The estimated cost is $400.

To Contractor P. F. Sweeney, to build a frame sunporch on the house owned by Frederick Bois on East Baltic street. The porch will be 6x20 feet and of frame construction with stone foundation. The estimated cost is $450.

To Walter Konikowski, to build a sunporch on his house at 123 North street. The porch will be 8x18 feet and will be built on the second floor and braced by three 15-foot posts. The exterior will be finished in clapboards and the roof will be covered with asphalt shingles. The estimated cost is $150.

The foundation will be of brick and the super-structure of frame. The estimated cost is $700. (This permit was refused by the fire marshal but was granted by the court of common council.)

To the Sons of Herrmann, to make alterations to their building at 32-42 Market street. The work, which is to be done by a local contractor, will include the taking out of several partitions and the reinforcing of the second floor with steel beams and lally columns. The estimated cost is $350.

To Henry G. Montie, to erect a two-story frame house on Boswell avenue for himself. The house will be 26x26 feet and will have six rooms and bath. The foundation will be of concrete with brick underpinning. The exterior finish will be in clapboards and shingles with composition shingles on the roof. The interior will be in hardwood with oak floors and hard pine trim. The walls will be in hard-finish plaster. The estimated cost is $4500.

To Peter Wrona, to erect an addition to the present building on Summit street. The addition will be 12x17 feet and will be used as an office. The estimated is $500.

Considerable progress has been made on local building operations in the city during the past week and with the advent of mild weather contractors are preparing for rapid strides along these lines. A number of the building projects now in hand were brought along at a good rate during the past week.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week there were 13 sales of real estate seven more than for the corresponding week in 1929 when there were six. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $32,400 and $10,200.

In New London there were three sales of real estate during the past week as compared to two sales for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $23,818 and $33,150.

BUILDING PERMITS IN STATE

The first week in March brought a satisfying gain in the Connecticut building permits record. The totals for the past week in the leading construction centers, as shown elsewhere in this issue, represent an increase over the preceding week and also as compared with the corresponding week a year ago. A total of 249 permits were reported during the week by The Commercial Record, these reports covering 20 Connecticut cities and towns. A year ago, during the like week, the total of permits issued was 197.

NEW LONDON

Sixteen building permits, four of which were for new houses, were granted by the city for February. Four of the remaining 12 permits were for new garages, two for storage and office buildings and the rest for alterations and additions of a comparatively minor nature.

The interior wood work is under way on a house being built for Thomas H. Moran in Ocean avenue and a second has been enclosed. The more complete of the two houses is of frame construction and modeled after the old English type with A roofs, white stained shingled sides and red composition roofing. The foundation is of stone. The interior is finished with six large rooms and bath and all modern improvements and conveniences including steam heat, brass piping, hardwood floors, built-in features, etc. The second of the two houses has a stone foundation and is to be of frame construction and will have a sun porch in front. The work is being done by the day under the supervision of the owner.

Work has been started on the construction of a house to be built for Norris M. and Vera J. Treadway in Sander street. The new dwelling is to be a two family structure of frame construction with a 16-inch stone foundation. The exterior walls will be finished with wood shingles and the roof with composition material. The house will have cinder concrete firestops, three flues and an A roof with false cornices. A two-car garage, 18 by 18 feet is also being built and will have novelty siding a concrete floor and brow and hip roof. The cost of the project is estimated at $14,000.

The framework is up for a house being built for H. B. Prentice in Woodlawn road. The new structure is being erected from private plans and work is being done by the day under the supervision of the owner. It is two stories high with a stone foundation. The roofing will be of composition material. The plans also provide for a two car garage, 18 by 18 feet, with a concrete floor, and brow, novelty siding and a hip roof. The estimated cost is $9,000.

COLONIAL DESIGNS IN BUILT-IN SETS

Matching the grace and charming simplicity of early colonial pieces in line, materials and workmanship, built-in folding dining sets may now be used in homes furnished in the spirit of the colonial without striking a note of discord. Red gum wood is used for the table and benches. It is finished in light walnut or it may be painted to order. Two attractive glass paneled doors hide the equipment when it is not in use.

Each of the benches accommodates comfortably two persons. Should the purchaser desire the benches may be equiped with backs. Such folding dining sets may be installed in old as well as new homes. The regular four-inch stud wall provides all the space needed for recessing. Table and benches fold easily and quietly for the mechanism is amazingly simple and yet dependable.

Equipment of this sort is particularly suitable for the really small home. Here space is at a premium and must be utilized to the fullest advantages. With folding furniture this is possible. When folded away the space may serve as a play room for the children, sewing room, den or for other purposes.

PIPELESS FURNACE LIMITED IN USES

There are two general types of furnace systems for the warm air heating plant; the so-called one-pipe or pipeless, and the multi-pipe. Either involves the continuous movement of a large volume of air entirely through the force of gravity.

The one-pipe system has definite limitations, and should never be selected where conditions are not entirely in its favor. With it the furnace is installed under the middle of the house, and the single register opens into the room directly above it. Usually this register is surrounded by a jacket through which cool air is permitted to flow to the furnace for reheating.

It is highly desirable that every room have direct communication with the room containing the register; that all doors be high and ceilings comparatively low, in order that pockets cannot be formed in the upper parts of the room; that nothing obstructs the flow of air from one room to another; that the house be of better than usual airtight construction. Under favorable conditions, a one-pipe system can be operated as cheaply as more elaborate equipment, and may produce entirely satisfactory results.

MODERN LIGHTING BRINGS CHARM

Of all the things that go to make up an attractive home interior, there is perhaps no single item more important that the lighting equipment.

Nothing can mar the effect of an interior as completely as poor or important that the lighting equipment.

Nothing can mar the effect of an interior as completely as poor or improper lighting. Nothing can add the exquisite finish and charm that lighting equipment of modern design and good workmanship can impart.

STATELY MARBLE

For formality and the ultimate in richness, marble is in a class by itself. Whether in a checkerboard of black and white or patterned in its many colors, it has dignity and stateliness not otherwise to be achieved. Its use is rarely possible beyond entrance halls, except in houses of stately formality, and so dominant is it that furnishings must be in full accord.

SAFETY PRECAUTIONS

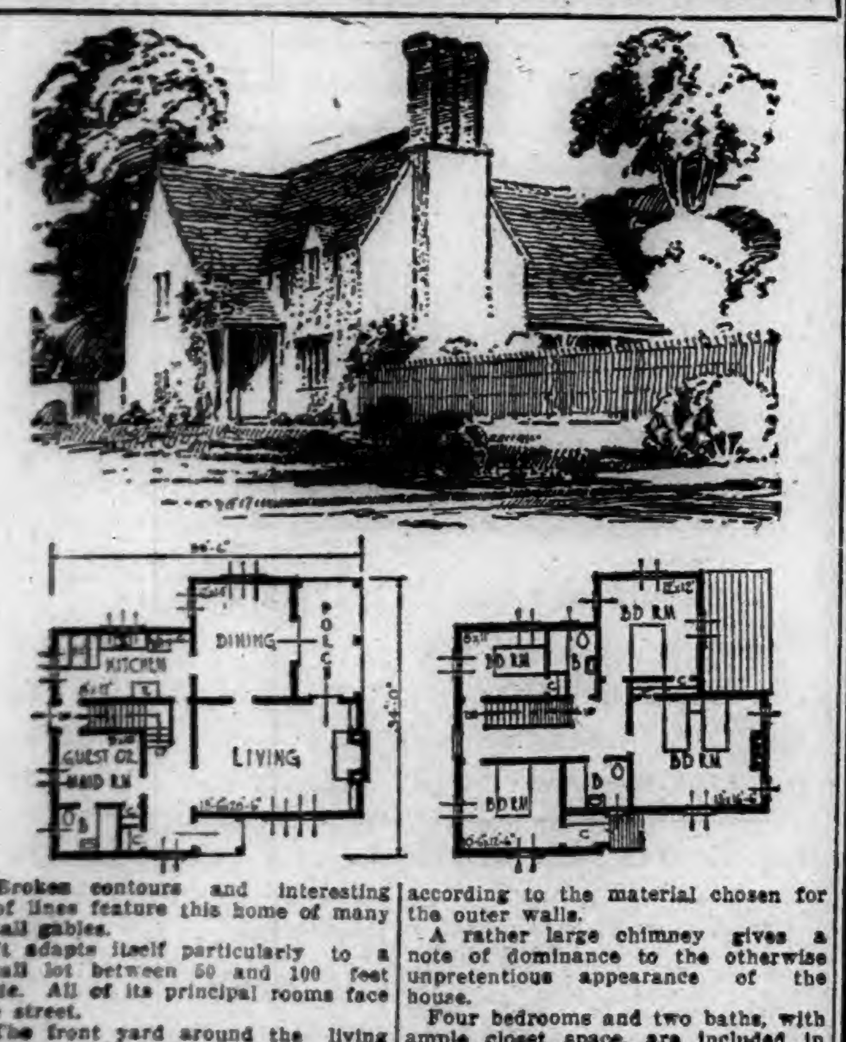
Steam heating systems ordinarily carry a pressure of two pounds to the square inch. Even under forced conditions this rarely exceeds five pounds. Yet one large manufacturer asserts that every boiler and radiator of their make is tested to a cold-water pressure of at least eighty pounds to the inch before it is allowed to leave the factory. In addition, each steam boiler is equipped with a safety valve to release automatically any extra pressure higher than fifteen pounds.

If there may be said to exist greater safety than this, it is reached in the hot water system. A water pressure may break the apparatus which contains it, but it can never explode. For water cannot be compressed, and without compression there can be no explosion.

REFLECTIONS ON MIRRORS

Mirrors having a tracery of metal over the glass seem to be gaining favor on all sides. If the glass is not covered in part with some metallic design, it is deeply cut or elaborately etched. One dealer is showing a long narrow mirror, with a tracery of metal suggestive of a cathedral window.

Small House of Stone Has Many Gables



Broken contours and interesting roof lines feature this home of many small gables.

It adapts itself particularly to a small lot between 50 and 100 feet wide. All of its principal rooms face the street.

The front yard around the living room, porch and dining room is enclosed to give privacy that is frequently desired on a lot of restricted size.

All except one of five bedrooms have cross-ventilation. There are three baths, with one just off a small bedroom downstairs that might be utilized as a maid or guest room.

Stucco or other stone is recommended for the exterior, with a shingle roof that may vary in color according to the material chosen for the outer walls.

A rather large chimney gives a note of dominance to the otherwise unpretentious appearance of the house.

Four bedrooms and two baths, with ample closet space, are included in the second floor plan. Each fits itself into a gable with a minimum of waste space. There is a rear porch off the dining room.

The cost of this home ordinarily ranges between $10,000 and $12,000, with labor costs and type of materials determining any variations. In a smaller community, where costs usually do not come so high, the house probably could be built for the lower figure.

HOME OF D. J. O'CONNOR ON GRANT COURT

The above is a picture of the new house built on Grant court for Daniel J. O'Connor by Contractor Homer J. Monty, of 63 Grant court. The house is of modern American design and is very attractive. The house is set on a lot large enough to show it off to advantage and the exterior is very effective. The exterior finish is in clapboards and brown stained shingles. A large porch extends along the front of the building and this is shingled in the brown shingles. The porch roof is supported by round white pillars. The windows are of the six-over-one design.

The interior arrangement of the rooms is very convenient with a large entrance hall and living room in the front of the house. In the rear is the dining room and kitchen and on the upper floor are the bed rooms and bath. All the rooms are finished in hard wood trim and oak floors with hard-finish plaster walls.

There are a number of built-in features in the living room, kitchen and bathroom. The bath is in white tile. The basement is well finished and the heating plant is for steam. The house is one of the most attractive in that section of this development.

SEE MUCH NEED TO MODERNIZE

It does not take a man with an enlarged bump of observation, nor an extra amount of intelligence and discerning powers, to see as we drive through the streets of the average American town or small city, the need for changes necessary to bring the majority of houses up to date. If he enters a number of these houses picked at random he will quickly see the lack of convenient arrangements, and the need of modern materials to make them conform to the prevailing idea of what a 1930 home should be.

The work of modernizing the home that has been built for some years, especially the house which was constructed of wood and which has not been kept well-painted, is no cheap undertaking. The home owner usually looks for an inexpensive way to do the work, but he should remember that the first cost is not the only one to be considered as often the upkeep of poorly chosen materials adds to the ultimate cost.

A man who is well qualified to express the opinion, states that between thirteen to fifteen million homes in the United States need to be modernized. It is estimated that to do this work it will mean the expenditure of a vast sum of money; if from $1,000 to $2,000 were expended on each home it would amount to between thirteen and thirty billions of dollars—a vast sum, past the comprehension of most of us.

CLOTHES MOTHS ARE ALWAYS ON JOB

Clothes mothes breed throughout the year in furnace-heated houses, but the adults are more numerous in early spring and late summer than at any other time, according to Miss Grace Griswold of Cornell university. There is no quick and easy way to keep a house free from clothes moths, she says.

Do not store articles of fur, wool or feathers which will never be used, in the attic. Garments which are worth keeping, but which are not in use, should be packed in chests or trunks where they may be easily fumigated at least once each year. Carbon tetrachloride is safe and satisfactory to fumigate trunks and small closets. It is non-inflammable, and if used correctly it will kill both eggs and larvae of the clothes moth. When exposed to the air it forms a heavy gas which settles to the bottom of the trunk or closet. For this reason the liquid should be placed in shallow dishes or pans and placed above the garments to be fumigated. Use a fluid ounce of carbon tetrachloride to each cubic foot of space, and fumigate when the temperature is about 70 degrees Fahrenheit.

Just to fumigate trunks and closets is not enough. A repellant such as paradichlorobenzine, moth balls, or camphor should be kept in the trunks to deter the egg-laying females from entering and causing a reinfestation. Probably the hardest problem for the housekeeper, according to Miss Griswold, is to care for the woolen garments which must hang in the closet because they are worn occasionally. The best way is to buy a paper garment bag for each garment and place about two ounces of the paradichlorobenzine crystals in each bag or tie the crystals in cheesecloth and fasten to the clothes hanger at the top of the bag.

The ink fish gets its name from the fact that it carries its own smoke screen—a dark liquid which it expels when it wishes to hide from an enemy.

NEW STYLE BOILER HAS COPPER TUBES

And now comes the decorative boiler. The ingenious home-owner who plans the adornment of his basement with the same care he devotes to other parts of the household may now obtain a specially designed boiler in any color to harmonize with the color scheme he has selected. This boiler, built for use, however, in connection with automatic heat, combines new features of construction with the decorative effect, and differs from boilers of ordinary design in the use of perfected copper tubes which provide for a rapid transfer of heat from the flame to the boiler with a medium of fuel consumption.

AN ELECTRICIAN'S JOB

If your lights blink when you turn them off, call in an electrician immediately to check up on them. It is no job for an amateur and neglect frequently allows a fire hazard to develop. Better spend a small sum and feel secure.

POETRY

Forward

Forgetting those things which are behind . . . I press toward the mark.

'Tis not in the past I'll find thee,
O heart of my heart, gone home;
'Tis not in the fields of mem'ry
For me to idly roam.

But I must keep pressing forward
If the mark I would attain;
I must seek God's pathway heavenward
If I thy side would gain.

So I'll strive in days remaining,
Though I cannot keep apace,
With the lessons thou art learning
In higher schools of grace.

Yet with eyes fixed ever forward
I'll not tarry in the past;
But, with God's help, hasten homeward
To heaven and thee at last!

—By Gertrude Adams Graves.

Romany Road

I want to go down at Romany road—
But doubt if ever I will—
Cross sedge and brake and circle the lake
And climb to the top of the hill
Where lilies grow and where roses blow
And the dells are bright with dew;
But it wouldn't be a Romany road
Unless I went with you.

I want to go down a Romany road—
But doubt if ever I may—
Though swamp and swale and along the dale,
A new and a trackless way;
Past fishing streams where the moonlight gleams
A tangle of rushes through;
But I couldn't find the Romany road
Unless I went with you.

I want to go down a Romany road—
But doubt if ever I can—
By fen and dell where the pixies dwell,
To the home of the fairy clan,
With a fife to play I'd make my way
Where the lights are far and few,
But what the good of a Romany road
Unless I went with you?

A rabbit's foot has been reputed to bring luck, but Clarence Kern, of Naper, Neb., demonstrated that a real live bunny can also bring good fortune. When a rabbit escaped from Clarence and his friends, the lads chased it into a hollow tree. Clarence, determined to recover the animal, reached into the animal's refuge. Instead of a bunny, he brought out a tin box. Wide eyed, the boys examined their find. Opening it they discovered ten rolls of paper money, each roll containing ten $10 bills, making a total of $1,000.

Pictures that were carved into the rocks long ago by Indians have been discovered in British Columbia. Harlan I. Smith, Canadian government archaeologist has reported. Mr. Smith came upon the rock pictures twenty miles west of Victoria at a point overlooking the Pacific ocean. It is regarded as remarkable that these carvings have escaped the notice of archaeologists who worked in the region for many years. Mr. Smith has spent the field season collecting Indian specimens in western Canada, making motion picture records in the Indian areas, and photographing the crude old paintings and carvings placed on the rocks by Indian artists.

ADJUSTING FIRE LOSSES:
A Fine Record of Fair Dealing
The last licking flame has been quenched. The firemen have returned to their stations. Ashes—smoke—stains—water-soaked contents—then the adjuster.
All day long and every day the adjuster meets people who have sustained losses against which they were insured. Whether greeted cordially or gruffly, the adjuster must handle his problem with tact and fairness. The reputation of his company goes with him into every case.
Nearly a million reports of fire loss are filed annually with the Stock Fire Insurance companies. Of the claims arising from these reports, more than 99 percent are adjusted without resort to litigation; a splendid tribute to the fairness of the contracting parties—the public and the fire insurance companies.
It is the constant effort of the Stock Fire Insurance companies to employ only honest and competent adjusters, to the end that legitimate claims may be settled fairly in conformity with the rights of the interested parties.
The adjuster is appraised by his ability to arrive at the proper amount of loss and to avoid claims originating from that enemy to society—the arsonist.
The public confidence in Stock Fire Insurance is in a large measure due to the fair dealing of its adjusters.

E. O. REYNOLDS DROVE PRESIDENTIAL PARTY

Elmer O. Reynolds, son of the late Oliver H. Reynolds, stated Monday night that he was the driver of the hack in which the late former President William Howard Taft rode in the procession, July 5, 1909, Mr. Reynolds, whose father was for years engaged in the livery business here and who owned the hack in which Mr. Taft rode while he was in Norwich, takes issue with the statement in Monday night's paper that Samuel Lacy drove the hack. Mr. Reynolds has in his possession a picture of the presidential party, showing former President Taft, Winslow T. Williams, the president's aide, Major Butts, riding in the back, with Mr. Reynolds on the driver's seat, in charge of the pair of horses. Mr. Reynolds produced the picture at The Bulletin office, Monday night to back up his assertion.

The subject is "Seventh Heaven," taken from a moving picture. There are four levels in this great picture and Rev. Mr. Potter will speak briefly on each. The story of the play teaches well the lesson that there is a ladder which leads from the depths to the heights. The soloist of the service will be Charles Helmboldt, a violinist from Lisbon. AMERICAN ASSOCIATION TO INSPECT STATE COLLEGE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, March 10.—Application to the Association of American Universities for the placing of the Connecticut Agricultural college on its list of accredited institutions has been made by President George A. Works. An inspection of the state college will be made in the near future by a representative of the association, and accreditation will be ascertained some time next fall when the annual meeting of the association is held. Dr. Works has made a thorough study of the various organizations accrediting colleges, and his final selection was the American association.

More than 20 of the leading colleges of the country have been accredited by this organization. Among the many listed are Yale university and the University of Chicago. In applying for a place on the accredited list of the Association of American Universities, Dr. Works desires such recognition of the state college by other institutions that when its students transfer to other colleges they may do so without being penalized a half year or a full year's work. In the past students of exceptional ability have not been so penalized but the average student suffered a loss of time and credit because the college was not recognized by an official agency. As soon as the college is accredited it is believed that the morale of the student body and faculty will be raised.

To become a member of the Association of American Colleges, the college at Storrs must meet certain set requirements. According to Dr. Works, the institution has practically fulfilled the demands and by next fall will be fully in accord with the requirements.

Before next fall the library, which is sufficiently large, must have a larger appropriation with which to buy more new books. At the present time the college is pending less than three dollars per student each year while the minimum is set at five dollars. Although the library has an appropriation this year of $1,500, the college has in the past spent only $700 annually for this department.

Money has already been appropriated for additional supplies and laboratory equipment for the physics department and other science departments. By the end of the college year or by next fall all the departments are expected to meet the accreditation requirements. Among the requirements which must be met by the faculty of the college before the association accredits the institution are listed the following: The total scholastic load of each instructor should not exceed 16 hours a week; and the members of professional rank in the college should have at least two years of study at a recognized graduate school in their respective fields.

One of the most important of all factors which will be revealed by the report on this college by the association will be the results obtained by the investigating committee from the various colleges and universities on the quality of advanced work done by Connecticut graduates who have attended these institutions. The report will cover state college graduates doing advanced work for the past six years.

CONTACT CLUB ENDORSES NORWICH RADIO PROJECT

The Contact club, at its weekly meeting Monday noon at the Wauregan hotel, endorsed the Norwich radio broadcast project as proposed by the Norwich Retail Merchants bureau. The club also voted $25 towards the fund being raised to defray the expenses of the 10-week broadcast programme over station WTIC, Hartford. President E. D. Rodier conducted the meeting, and John Fitzgerald was the song leader. James F. Fleming, president of the Merchants bureau, outlined the broadcast plan and stated that the club could aid in two ways, by endorsing the project and helping in the financial campaign. The club adopted a resolution to the effect that as the Norwich chamber of commerce has undertaken to further the interests of the city through a major programme on the historical and scenic advantages of the city and town, and as the Contact club believes in this undertaking and believes that it will contribute to both the civic and material advantage, the club went on record as giving the project its hearty approval.

A membership contest was started with Laurence E. Millea and John Fitzgerald named captains of respective teams. Francis T. Diggins was named chairman of the program for April.

The speaker of the day was Charles W. Pearson of Charles W. Pearson and Sons of North Main street. He spoke on "Biscuits and Food Specialties."

LIEUT. GOV. ROGERS TO BE MADE TALL CEDAR

Announcement was recently made by Supreme Tall Cedar H. Franklin Brossman of Reading, Penn., that the governor of Connecticut, John H. Trumbull, had accepted an invitation to become a member of New London Forest No. 72, at New London. The supreme tall cedar now advises that Lieutenant Governor Ernest E. Rogers and the grand master of Masons of Connecticut, Elbert E. Darbie, have accepted like invitations. Mr. Brossman, accompanied by Senior Deputy William A. Brinkman, of Lancaster, Penn., Junior Deputy Harry W. Wenniger of Wilmington, Del., and other supreme officers, will attend a mammoth ceremonial of the forest, to be held at the Bulkeley high school auditorium in New London, on the evening of April 5, at which time he will confer upon these distinguished Masons the highest honor of Cedarism—that of making them Tall Cedars "at sight." This outstanding honor is one infrequently conferred by the order, and will be witnessed by many prominent members from all sections of the country. The Tall Cedars of Lebanon is what is commonly denominated as a social, fraternal, "playground" organization, composed only of Master Masons. There are now 119 forests located in cities throughout the country. While there are but three regularly constituted forests in Connecticut, located at New London, South Manchester and Moosup, plans are now under way to institute other forests at Meriden, Bridgeport, Hartford and New Haven.

Larrabee opened the meeting by calling upon Charles Coit to describe his trip to New York city where he went as a delegate to the dinner given in honor of Sir Robert Baden Powell, the founder of Boy Scouting. According to Scout Executive John L. Sellman, scouts have started numbering the houses in the city streets again, cub den work is progressing, and the publicity committee will take measures to "sell" camping to the parents of Norwich, every scout to be in camp at least one week.

The board went on record to try to get representatives from Stafford Springs, Putnam, and Willimantic, at its next meeting; and for the meeting following it was proposed to meet in one of the three territory centers.

GRAPHIC PEN PICTURE OF THE FUNERAL OF W. H. TAFT

Grandeur of the Character of the Former President and Late Chief Justice Was Reflected In Civic and Military Honors That Preceded Burial of His Body In Arlington Cemetery—Soldier's Requiem At the Grave Followed Simple Services At the Church—President Hoover, Chief Justice Hughes and Other High Officials of the Government Stood With the Widow and Family At the Graveside.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 11—(AP)—Under rain-sodden soil of wooded glade, lonely in its peace and isolation, William Howard Taft lay tonight, the long, eventful story of his mortal journey ended.

At his feet, a dozen yards away down the gently sloping hill side, towers an ancient and mighty oak. Through its leafless limbs, thrilling now with the stir of the coming spring, the far lights of Washington gleam dimly toward that restful sylvan nook in Arlington National cemetery where he sleeps in eternal fellowship with other great dead.

There is an old highway that passes just below, where the busy traffic of the workaday world ebbs and flows. Beyond that comes the wide, quiet sweep of the Potomac, and then the city where his life time of public service was spent.

Honors greater than have come to any American since the first president, who perhaps saw that sturdy old oak in its youth, fell to the lot of the man whose last sleep it now shelters with kindly, far-spreading boughs. His countrymen made him president, almost against his will. Then again they called him to high service as chief justice.

Yet above and beyond all that, greater than the honors and dignities of high place that set him apart, was the love men bore him all his long life for those personal, homely virtues upon which friendships are founded that transcend political differences, loyalty, kindliness and the saving grace of humor.

In these qualities Taft of Ohio was richly endowed, and through all the splendor of tribute by the nation and the world as he was carried to his grave today, ran the thread of that wealth of friendships he left behind among men of all parties and creeds, that he had never lost in victory or adversity.

Just over two decades ago, William Taft entered the white house on a March day of bitter winds, cold and snow. Today another March day played the gamut of its vagaries as he passed on his last parade, received his ultimate honors.

Cold, drenching rain beat upon the columns of soldiery that made up his escort. The lowering sodden clouds turned back from that last scene at the grave thousands who otherwise would have crowded every point of vantage.

Yet, just at the end, as the triple rifle blast blazed its last salute and the sweet, clear tones of an army bugle sounded in "Taps," the blue showed through above and a shaft of yellow sunshine poured its benediction upon the dripping canvas tented above that hillside grave.

It bathered in beauty the great mound of dripping blossoms there besides the grave.

It peered in beneath the canvas to cast its beneficient spell upon the weeping widow, bowed over the slowly lowered casket in her last farewell.

It caught the trim lines of troops, marines and sailors ringing that woodland half acre about as a frame, to touch saber blade and polished button with glinting lights, to wake the rain sodden coloring of flag and guidon to new and glowing life.

And it was thus they left their dead, those weping women of his household, those many, old, old friends of the most distinguished men in national life today who gathered with him for the last time.

They left him sleeping under the glow of sinking sun, which was flaming gloriously among the old trees from which the shadows of night were stealing down the hill even as they went down it and back to the busy city beyond the river.

Cavalry Escort

There was just a scattering of rain in the morning as the cavalry escort clattered to its place before the Taft home on Wyoming avenue, waiting to escort the dead man on his last journey to the capitol. The black caisson, with its gun team of six gray horses, told of the errand on which the troopers rode.

The flourish of trumpet due his one time place as commander-in-chief, alone sounded as the flag-draped casket was carried out by non-commissioned officers of the sister services and set in its place.

Down all the way to the great building that was the center of his ambitions on life the way was cleared. Despite heavily overcast skies and intermittent showers, sidewalk edges were fringed all along. They stood, bareheaded and silent as the cortege trotted slowly by without sound of drum or bugle to give cadence to its going. Only the rattle of steel shod hoofs upon hard pavements broke the hush of the saddened capital.

But long before the cavalcade wound up through the curving drives of the capitol grounds to that wide east plaza where the man now escorted in death once walked in the prime of his strength and manhood to take his oath as president, thousands were waiting behind roped lines to pay their own brief tribute.

In front of the wide steps to the rotunda, the caisson halted while the troopers rounded into line to sit motionless save for the restless pawing of their mounts and with saber's at stiff salute while the casket was carried in to be placed on the low catafalque in the center of the great stone circle.

The Honor Guard

Already the honor guard, still as though cut of bronze, stood grouped in place with gleaming bayonets fixed.

Two soldiers, facing inward toward the coffin, now opened to expose the tranquil features of the man resting there, stood to the east side, and across from them a sailor, with jaunty white watch cap, and a marine in trim blue with scarlet facing, made up the detail.

At the head of the casket the officer in command took his stand, a knot of crepe wrapped about the hilt of the sword he clasped with both hands, blade resting across his breast. Every fifteen minutes for the time the casket rested there in state, the guard changed in order that the strain of motionless watching might not be too great.

And that was almost the only sound during those hours save the shuffling scrape of feet on the stone floor as ten thousands Americans moved in double file beside the casket to look their last on that dead face. They came trooping from the eastward as the great bronze doors were opened, moved by without stopping and then on down the marble stairways that lead the way down to the west and Pennsylvania avenue below.

Mass of Blooms of Every Color

Two sides of the rotunda were all but hidden behind the mass of blooms of every color, wrought into every shape, that were banked around. They bore cards on which were the names of great men all over the world, of kings and princes and presidents. And some humbler offerings among them, too, bore the names of men and women who knew and loved William Taft for himself alone, who had long served him in lowly place.

Out in the great plaza, the rumbling of gun wheels had heralded the coming of the escort that would bear the casket away to the church service. Rank on rank, foot troops, marines and sailor battalions trudged up the hill to take their stand at the foot of the wide steps. The caisson waited there again, and as the hour struck, the lines of ordinary folk were broken, their hour of honor to the dead at an end.

As the casket was carried out again into a world now shot with cold rain and tormented by gusty breezes that drove the drops like shrapnel before them, a great army band below broke the silence. Deep and strong came the tones of "Onward Christian Soldiers" lifted amid echoes of the quadruple trumpet flourish to the former rank of the dead which marked the coming of his casket. The troops below stood motionless and dripping, rifles and sabers at present.

Again sidewalks were fringed with thousands as the funeral procession wound its course down from "the hill" and over the long way to All Souls' church, far out Sixteenth street. When Mr. Taft was president, that broad way leading down directly to the front door of the white house, was for a time known as "The Avenue of the Presidents." Now it gives place on Meridian Hill, far out from the busy center of Washington, to many embassy and legation.

And from each of these, great banners hung in wet folds or flapped with rifle like reports in the grip of a fierce March gust. They made a special way of rich coloring close about the church where Mr. Taft had been the most distinguished parishioner ever since he first came to Washington to live, more than a quarter of a century ago.

Marched in Driving Rain

It was a hard march for the soldiery and sailors against the driving rain. Overcoats were drenched, the white hats of the Jackies washed out of their perky shape long before the end. Even the crimson saddle blankets of the gun teams, vivid spots of color an hour earlier, were dark with moisture as the procession wound finally over the top of the Sixteenth street hill to pass before the church.

Meanwhile an endless string of cars had brought President and Mrs. Hoover, the comrades of the dead man from the supreme court, the committee from senate and house, the cabinet officers and diplomats and the high generals and admirals, including General Pershing, again in uniform and wearing his sword, to their reserved places within the church. It was a mass of fresh blooms within, crowded with flowers. Their fragrance came out against every opening of the door way, overcoming even the stormy drive of March wind outside.

Within, too, sheltered from public gaze at her coming was the widow and the large group of those near of kin to the dead man. She was heavily veiled to hide her sorrow.

As the troops reached their places outside, to form a wall of living khaki or blue against the far curb of the street, some hundreds of onlookers still braved the rain to mass along the sidewalks and others clustered in every doorway or beneath every building lea. There was no sound but that of tampling hoofs as the caisson with the casket beneath the rain drenched beauty of the great flag, came to a pause at the canopied doorway.

Then again the four flourishes of bugles rang out and the marine band lifted softly that old hymn, "Lead Kindly Light," as the body bearers stepped forward to stagger out of public sight with their heavy load.

Within the church an old friend of the dead president, Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, waited to offer such religious comfort as was in keeping with the simple faith of the man who had passed on.

There was little of the ritualistic service, just the kindly old hymns with organ and the chiming bells far above, joining, the prayers and the Scripture readings, with only a poem or two beloved of Mr. Taft and read by his old friend. It took less than half an hour in all.

The Final Scene

Then the final scene. Outside the troops had waited again to salute as the casket was carried to a motor hearse for the long trip to Arlington. Only the cars carrying Mrs. Taft and the family members, President and Mrs. Hoover and others of the distinguished group that gathered in the church followed it. For the moment, army and navy had paid their respects and the battalions could turn

$1,000,000 FIRE LOSS ON NEW ORLEANS RIVER FRONT

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 11.—(AP)—The Mandeville dock, a wooden structure, stretching three blocks along the Mississippi river, was burned late today from a mysterious fire starting under the structure. It was filled with lumber and staves and was believed to be a total loss.

The flames spread to the steamship Munaires, of the Munson line, tied alongside, and it burned until the fire tugs Samson and Deluge cut her loose and towed her blazing across the river, where the fire was put out. During the rescue the Deluge caught fire but escaped with slight damage. An early check failed to disclose any serious injuries to persons.

The fire marshal estimated the loss at approximately one million dollars. Another ship, the Pacific, British-owned but under lease to the Munson line, was cut loose before she was seriously damaged.

Cause of the fire was undetermined.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., March 11.—(AP)—Asa Keyes, for 25 years a public prosecutor here, left Los Angeles tonight bound for San Quentin prison to take up his quarters among the thousands of prisoners he had helped send there as district attorney.

Keyes' last day in Los Angeles, spent as had been the past 13 months in the county jail, was marked by farewell visits of many of his friends. Judges, lawyers, newspapermen and other friends came for a final word with the convicted man. Among these was Donald MacKay, Keyes' former deputy district attorney, who himself is awaiting trial on bribery charges.

GERMANY FINANCIALLY AND POLITICALLY SERENE

BERLIN, March 11.—(AP)—The German financial and political scene was serene tonight, with a new president chosen for the reichsbank and three important reparations measures approved on second reading in the reichstag.

He succeeds Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, who resigned last week because of dissatisfaction with the final form of the Young plan. The appointment will be effective April 3.

The reichstag approved the Young plan by a vote of 251 to 174, with 28 abstentions; the Polish liquidation agreement by a vote of 224 to 207, with 30 abstentions, and also approved the American liquidation agreement—all on second reading.

Labor Govt. Defeated In House Of Commons

Prime Minister MacDonald Will Not Resign Until Beaten On a Major Issue.

LONDON, March 11.—(AP)—Prime Minister MacDonald's second labor government went down to defeat in the house of commons tonight for the first time in its existence. The margin of defeat was eight votes, one less than the margin by which it triumphed over the combined opposition forces Feb. 27.

It had been evident for a week that the liberals were lining up their strength and stiffening party discipline in preparation for an attack against labor's controversial coal mines bill and unemployment program.

Today they joined the conservatives and successfully pushed through an amendment to the coal bill by 282 votes to 274.

Immediately after announcement of the result, Prime Minister MacDonald made it plain that he had no intention of resigning until he was beaten on a major issue. He said he intended to go on with the coal bill because the amendment carried by the opposition made no essential change in the main structure of the measure.

Former Prime Minister Baldwin, leader of the conservatives, provoked an indignant denial from him by asking whether he intended to go on with it.

"I am amazed at the question," Mr. MacDonald declared. "Mr. Baldwin will have an opportunity two days from now to move his party's vote of censure. I will be glad to accommodate him if he will make his vote of censure general, and we will accept the decision."

The prime minister showed no sign of discomfiture after the defeat and asked the house to continue with its work. Debate upon another amendment then proceeded.

FRENCH HOLDING OUT AT NAVAL CONFERENCE

LONDON, March 11.—(AP)—That there is not a vestige of a possibility of the United States becoming entangled in any sort of European political alliance as a result of the London conference was made clear here today.

No such proposal has been made formally but indirect approaches have reached such a stage that the American delegation let it be known the United States could not accept even a consultative pact as a means of effecting a reduction in the French naval tonnage figures.

They made it clear that the opposition was not because America is necessarily fundamentally opposed to such agreement, but because one arrived at in the present state of London negotiations would entail more obligations than appear on the face of it.

Not only the opposition likely to be incurred from the senate but the spontaneous opposition of the whole American delegation has been the deciding factor in this critical issue of the conference.

Any consultative pact, Secretary Stimson and his colleagues believe, would develop into the nature of a military alliance—from the European viewpoint—should war clouds gather in Europe.

As they see it, France, for instance, might scale down her naval program on the basis of American and other pledges here in London, and when trouble threatened the United States would be under a moral obligation to render material assistance in Europe.

With this American position definitely known, pressure was being brought today by Prime Minister MacDonald's own supporters for him to hold firm against giving political pledges as a means of bringing France into the present disarmament schemes.

GANDHI OPENS CAMPAIGN OF CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE

AHMADABAD, India, March 12.—(Wednesday)—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi, Indian leader and mystic, led his pioneer band of volunteers out of his quarters here at 6:30 a. m. today and started his march to the Gulf of Cambay, opening his campaign of civil disobedience to the Indian government.

The history of their demands shows a constant increase in the measure of emancipation sought.

Police said they believed he was slain because he tried to "muscle in" on the local narcotic traffic.

Moulthrope Slayer Of Detective Smith

According to the Testimony As Sta[illegible] Witness of His Pal, Leo[illegible]y.

JAC[illegible]LLE, Fla., March 11.—(AP)—[illegible]dry, one of three escaped Co[illegible] convicts, today testified th[illegible] former pal, Watson Moul[illegible]red the shot that killed Detec[illegible] D. Smith, in a gun battle here [illegible]anuary. Moulthrope and Roland [illegible]ne, the third member of the trio, on trial for the slaying.

Landry, also charged with the murder, was granted a severance and took the stand today as a state witness. Landry told of robberies the trio committed after they escaped from the Connecticut state prison Jan. 4. He shifted the blame for the actual robberies on his two companions, saying he always remained in their stolen automobile.

Once during his testimony, Landry became confused and Moulthrope, turning to Lalone, whispered, "He's getting groggy now." Again when Landry was describing the shooting, Moulthrope turned to a group of newspaper correspondents nearby and said, "I hope you boys don't believe what he's saying. We'll tell you the truth of what happened when we get on the stand."

On the night of the shooting, Landry said the trio was returning to their room after an unsuccessful attempt to break into a house, when they were stopped by an automobile containing Smith and Detective Willie Jones.

Moulthrope at the time, he said, was carrying a .38-calibre pistol, while Lalone carried a .45-calibre automatic pistol. Landry said he was unarmed.

Landry said that when Lalone, who was driving, got out of the car, he drew a pistol on Detective Jones and said "Stick 'em up! You yellow ——." At that time, Landry testified Detective Smith was on the opposite side of the bandit car, searching him. While the search was taking place, Landry said Moulthrope got out, stepped to the rear of the car, drew a gun and fired. Detective Smith fell mortally wounded.

During his testimony, Landry left the witness stand and demonstrated with tables and chairs the positions of the automobiles and men when the shooting occurred. He said only one shot was fired while he was at the scene, but that as he ran down the street he heard another one.

On cross-examination, Ion L. Farris, chief defense counsel, attempted to break down Landry's testimony by trying to make him say the shots were fired before he fled from the scene and that the one which killed Smith was not fired by Moulthrope. Landry, however, said that he didn't know "anything about that."

When questioned regarding the statement which he made to officers following his arrest, Landry denied that it was given in "an effort to save myself." After the shooting, Landry said he hid under a house for two days and was arrested when he came out for food. Moulthrope and Lalone were captured in Pensacola several days after the killing.

Attorney Farris had not contemplated a cross-examination of Landry when court adjourned late today. Landry will be back on the stand tomorrow. William A. Hallowes, chief prosecutor, said that he had one more witness to present and that the state would then rest. Moulthrope and Lalone will probably take the stand late tomorrow or Thursday and the jury is expected to get the case on Friday.

MENTIONED TO SUCCEED LATE JUSTICE SANFORD

WASHINGTON, March 11.—(AP)—President Hoover will give immediate consideration to the selection of a successor to the late Justice Sanford of the supreme court and intends to announce his choice within 30 days.

Friends of more than ten men already mentioned for the vacancy on the highest tribunal are prepared to go to the white house to press their cause, but the president expects to confer with Chief Justice Hughes and Attorney General Mitchell.

Some complaint was voiced during the recent debate over the confirmation of Chief Justice Hughes that Mr. Hoover had failed to heed the constitutional provision that he name government officers with the "advice and consent" of the senate. It is not unlikely that the president will consult, too, with senate leaders on the new jurist.

The name of Judge Arba S. Van Valkenburgh of Kansas City, Missouri, was added today to the list of those mentioned as possible successors to Justice Sanford.

Senator Patterson, republican, Missouri, plans to urge the president tomorrow to appoint Judge Van Valkenburgh, and Senators Overman and Simmons, democrats, North Carolina, also are expected to see the chief executive in the interests of Judge John J. Parker of Charlotte, N. C.

FOUR MEN HANGED AND BURIED IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, March 11.—(AP)—The bodies of four men who had been hanged and then buried beside a road at Topilejo, a few miles from here, tonight furnished a mystery to the Mexican police.

The mystery was partly solved by identification of two of them, General Leon Ibarra, retired, and Roberto Cruz Siqueira, cigar vendor. Both disappeared from their homes a week ago, and it is believed they fell into the hands of bandits who robbed and hanged them.

There is no clue to the identity of the bandits.

BYRD WELCOMED BACK TO CIVILIZATION BY RADIO

Listeners All Over the United States Heard Commander Byrd, At Dunedin, New Zealand, Respond to Welcome Extended From New York—Most Elaborate Hook-Up Ever Attempted—Voices Were Carried More Than 10,000 Miles and Fed Into Broadcast Channels to Complete the Two-Way Link.

NEW YORK, March 11.—(AP)—Admiral Richard E. Byrd and his Antarctic expedition were welcomed back to civilization today over the most elaborate radio broadcasting hookup yet attempted.

Dunedin, New Zealand, and Schenectady, N. Y., were connected by wire, short waves and a broadcast channel. On top of that listeners all over America tuned to nearly 50 stations of the National Broadcasting company chain, heard the voice of Admiral Byrd respond to the welcome made by Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of the New York Times, and others.

The two-way conversation was considerably marred by static and fading. It was necessary to pay close attention to catch the voice of the explorer, who was speaking from the studios of 4-YA, Dunedin. From there the radio impulses went by wire to 2-YA, at Wellington, and then were sent on 420 meters to Sydney, which used short wave station VK2ME, 28.5 meters, to reach Schenectady.

The receiving station at Schenectady was cut into Station WGY of the General Electric company and the NBC chain signals from the short wave transmitter, W2XAF, 31.48 meters, the medium over which the voice of Mr. Ochs and the others who greeted Admiral Byrd were carried more than 10,000 miles away to Dunedin, also were fed into the broadcast channels to complete the two-way link.

Although the rebroadcast, due to the unfavorable atmospheric contions in some of the regions the signals traversed, did not equal similar pickups made from Europe, its quality was sufficiently good to warrant much favorable comment by listeners and engineers. The latter pointed to the event as marking another advance in the drive of radio broadcasting to make its scope world wide.

Incidentally, Admiral Byrd was speaking at 12:30 a. m., Wednesday, although it was only Tuesday morning in America.

BYRD EXPEDITION ON VERGE OF BANKRUPTCY

DUNEDIN, March 11.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd said here today that his expedition which returned Monday from its conquest of the South Pole's vast region of ice was on the verge of bankruptcy. He hoped, however, that it would "pull through all right."

Scarred by battering ice floes, his ships, the Eleanor Bolling and the City of New York, equipped at cost estimated at $750,000, are being refitted at Dunedin's docks. Within ten days, it is planned, they will carry Byrd and his 41 courageous men homeward through the Panama canal to New York.

The ships will bear small cargoes. Behind them in the Antarctic they left the airplanes used by Byrd and his men to map 280,000 square miles of land which previously had kept its secrets locked in mountains of ice.

Even the plane which carried Byrd and three other men on their epochal flight over the South Pole was left at Little America, the base camp, while the ships fought their way from the great barrier of ice through floes to the open sea.

But these planes are not to be sacrificed. Norwegian whaling ships are to bring them safely to civilization when the winter king yields his dominion next season.

Poor in purse, rich in scientific accomplishments, the most completely equipped expedition ever to visit the polar regions is receiving the plaudits of New Zealand.

Officials and plain citizens alike hail the Americans' success and extend hospitality and entertainment.

The men who endured the cold and hardships of the Antarctic for 14 months are tired but happy. They are indulging in joy rides in American automobiles. They like the feel of hard pavements under their feet in crowded streets after treading on snow in desolate loneliness.

But even those accustomed to the hurrying traffic of New York display a curious hesitancy in crossing the streets of this city of 85,000 inhabitants.

"Once I thought New York was the biggest city in the world," said Maurice Hanson, chief radio engineer, "but Dunedin seems like the hub of the universe."

In the meantime, the state board of health is continuing its survey of the institution from a general health standpoint, by request of the governor.

INSURGENT MINERS REVISE CONSTITUTION

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 11.—(AP)—The constitution of the insurgent faction of the United Mine Workers of America was revised today to provide for a five-day work week.

The action also provides for a six-hour work day.

The constitution as written originally limited the work day to six hours but did not specify the number of days per week employment was to be provided.

The resolution, unanimously adopted by the rump convention of the mine workers' organization, was heralded as the most important step taken since the insurgent group broke with the parent body.

The average work week for miners heretofore has been between one and a half and two days and strenuous opposition to demands for a five-day week are anticipated from operators.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 11—The directors of the Welfare Bureau met at the office on Meadow street in the afternoon and elected the following as directors for the ensuing year: Miss Nettie Hall, Mrs. Wallace I. Hill, Mrs. J. B. Fullerton, Mrs. E. Frank Bugbee, Mrs. Joseph B. Riordan, Miss Myrtle V. Jordan, Louis H. Arnold, Dr. Nathan Spector, Judge Frank H. Foss, Miss Elizabeth Stone, Mrs. Frank P. Lombardo and Mrs. Bertha Thompson. Officers will be elected at an adjourned meeting next week.

Secretary Miss Elizabeth P. Anderson gave a brief review of the important work of the bureau during the year. The bureau has been established for service in Willimantic and vicinity for 16 years, much of the work now being for the adjustment of personal relationships and the raising of moral and physical standards rather than giving material relief, although the latter phase of welfare work remains an important part of activities. The office frequently acts as a clearing house for state and local organizations and institutions. The bureau holds membership in the National Travelers' Aid society, the National and State Probation Officers Council of New London and Windham counties, and the State Conference of Social Work. The report indicates that a few real needs in the community are a phychiatric or guidance clinic and a detention home for persons who are temporarily placed in the custody of the bureau. Better housing conditions and recreational facilities and increased assistance to underprivileged boys and girls who are a demand for improvement. Secretary Anderson expressed appreciation for the aid rendered by the Rotary and Exchange clubs and the B. P. O. Elks in behalf of crippled and underprivileged children and in providing a milk fund. There have also been appreciated donations from merchants, the Needlework Guild, the King's Daughters, the Woman's clubs, Eastern Star chapter, churches, several sewing clubs and the service of physicians and dentists. The statistics of personal service show 1,236 office calls; 793 home visits; 1,161 telephone calls; 137 relief; 8 letters; total interviews, 3,179.

The report of Treasurer Pierre J. Laramee showed a balance on hand of $164.30.

ACTION OF TOWN MEETING IS VIEWED WITH NO ALARM

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 11—This town was fairly buzzing today with post-town meeting talk on the overwhelming vote to levy an eight mill tax on the 1929 grand list. The fact that this tax rate brings the town face to face with a deficit of over $117,000 became generally realized today and many opinions were expressed on the possible methods the selectmen would resort to in "getting out from under."

It appears, however, that there is a definite and wholly legal way out for the town officials, a means over which the taxpayers have no or little control. The method of meeting this looming deficit appears to rest in House Bill No. 937, Chapter 332, of the public acts of the state of Connecticut passed at the special session September 1920 and the January session of 1921.

This act, amending an act concerning estimates of expenses and the laying of taxes in towns, as related to Section 1254 of the general statutes, reads as follows: When any town shall neglect to lay necessary taxes, or shall have failed to lay a tax which, in addition to the other estimated yearly income of the town, shall be sufficient to pay the current expenses of such towns, its selectmen shall make a rate bill upon its list last completed for the amount necessary, or for an amount sufficient to pay the deficit in such current expenses, and cause the same to be collected as other taxes.

STATE COP DISCOVERS BROCKTON CAR THIEVES

When Lieut. Russell I. Harman of Stafford Springs state police barracks was on his way home from Union, Sunday night, his car was crowded into the ditch by a Buick coach in which two suspicious looking young men were riding. The lieutenant hailed the car and after giving the occupants, who gave their names as Vincent Nowosadho and Joseph Szczepainak, a severe grilling placed the two young men under arrest and presented them in the borough court Monday morning on a technical charge of breach of the peace. The officer believed that all was not well with the two young men and an investigation showed that the car in which they were riding had been stolen in Brockton, Mass., about four weeks ago. The breach of the peace case was continued to Tuesday morning and the Brockton police department was notified. Two officers from Brockton arrived in town Tuesday and identified the young men. They had a warrant in their possession charging them with the theft of the car. When the case came up in the local court, Tuesday morning, Judge Heald released the two prisoners and they returned to Brockton with the officers. Nowosadho gave his address as 230 Maple avenue, Hartford, and Szczepainak said that he lived at 40 1-2 Alden street in the same city. Each of the young men gave his age as 22.

Only a doctor knows what a laxative should be

YOU don't want to use a laxative every day. Nor once a week. This should not be necessary. And it never would be required if all of us would learn the danger that lies in a careless selection of laxatives.

By taking the first thing that comes to mind when bad breath, headaches, dizziness, nausea, biliousness, gas on stomach and bowels, poor appetite, or lack of energy warns us that our bowels are sluggish, we risk forming the laxative habit.

Rely on a doctor's judgment in choosing your laxative. Here's one made from the prescription of a specialist in bowel and stomach trouble. Its originator tried it in many thousands of cases. He found it safe for women, children and old folks; thoroughly effective for the most robust man. There were so many calls for this prescription and its fame spread so rapidly that druggists began to fill it in quantities; kept it ready for calls. Now Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is prepared from the freshest herbs and other pure ingredients under ideal conditions. You can get the generous bottles of it from drug stores in any part of the world.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a real corrective of constipation. Millions have proved this. That's why it is today the world's most popular laxative!

PIONEER · OF · THE STRAIGHT-EIGHT

Four years ago, the Hupp Motor Car Corporation predicted that the Straight-Eight motor was destined to dominate the fine car field . . . Ending the reign of the Six in the field above $1500 . . . Even then the Hupp Motor Car Corporation was building a superb Straight-Eight . . . backed by years of development and experimentation.

IN VOICING this prediction, Hupp stood practically alone. For no other organization matched its Straight-Eight experience. It spoke, not as a visionary, not as a theorist, but as one of the earliest and largest of Straight-Eight manufacturers.

1930 witnesses the fulfillment of this prediction. Nearly all important makers . . . and many of them for the first time . . . are now sponsoring the Straight-Eight principle in their finer cars.

But Hupmobile meets this new era of the Straight-Eight as a seasoned and successful Straight-Eight pioneer. It meets the demand for the greater luxury of Straight-Eight transportation with two new and unparalleled Eights, perfected by more than a decade of eight-cylinder research and development.

In October came the first of these new Eights . . . the 100 horsepower Hupmobile revising all standards of motor car values in its power and price class. Then, in January, to crown the Hupmobile line with the finest car in its history, Hupmobile presented its second new Eight . . . the 133 horsepower Hupmobile . . . with a speed of 90 miles an hour.

In these new Hupmobiles, the Straight-Eight motor has been developed to its ultimate. Engineering tests and comparisons have shown it to be supreme in power. These are cars for the motorist who wants complete and incontestable mastery of the roads. DANIELSON

ROADSIDE TETE-A-TETE BROKEN UP WITH SHOTGUN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, March 11.—While it did not appear up to this afternoon that there was an actual intent to kill motivating the person responsible, someone with a shotgun terrified William Pockoski of North Main street and Miss Annette Despathie at a lonely spot on the Brooklyn-Canterbury highway about 10 o'clock last night by discharging both barrels of a shotgun loaded with heavy buckshot into the side of the Pockoski machine. Neither of the young persons was injured, but the car was peppered with the heavy charges.

The Pockoski machine had been driven into a cartpath in a dark and secluded spot under trees near a sandpit, a short distance below the Brooklyn fairgrounds, and parked. While the young people were conversing there came the resounding discharge of a shotgun, the first discharge immediately followed by another one, and shot rattled like hail against the sides of the machine.

Horrified, Pockoski and Miss Despathie crouched low down in the machine to avoid being hit by any further shots. When it became apparent that whoever fired the shots had retreated, Pockoski backed the machine out into the highway and headed for Brooklyn village. One tire of the machine had gone flat from being punctured with shot, and by the time the car had been run to the vicinity of Mortlake Manor it stalled, the gas tank having leaked dry as the result of being punctured by other shot.

Pockoski telephoned from Brooklyn to notify the state police of his experience and then ordered a taxi to bring Miss Despathie and himself back to Danielson. An examination of the Pockoski car showed that shot had penetrated the body and a fender in addition to entering the tire and gas tank. The spread of the shot appears to indicate that the firing was from close range.

State Officer Elton, immediately after receiving a report on the affair, went to Brooklyn and awakened residents of the neighborhood, a farming section, but without uncovering anything that might fix the responsibility for the shooting. The investigation was being continued today.

The theory generally held relative to the incident is that it was staged to discourage petting parties in the location where the shooting occurred. For several years on moonlight nights young couples have found the location a pleasant one at which to park and while away an hour or two. This method of bringing discouragement is of such a serious nature, however, that a special effort is to be made to find out who did the shooting.

REVALUATION PROJECT COMES BEFORE MEETING TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 11.—There was lively interest in Danielson today in the special and adjourned annual town meetings scheduled for Wednesday evening. Interest today appeared to center in the general revaluation matter that will come before the special town meeting for settlement. The proposal is certain to meet with strong opposition as well as support. Since it was pointed out the past week that no penalty attaches to the possible failure of the town of Killingly to carry out a statute provision requiring towns of the state to make a general revaluation at least once in ten years, many citizens are minded to let the matter rest for the time being. Another factor creating this attitude is that the time limit for making the revaluation during a given ten-year period expired last Feb. 1.

If the revaluation is decided upon Wednesday evening, there seems to be a unanimous opinion, or nearly so, that the work should be done by the assessors, as provided by law. The cost of the work would run close to $6,000, it is estimated. Of this amount, $2,850 is asked for transportation, clerical hire, advice, supplies and incidentals of those making the revaluation. In addition the assessors, three in number, seek $6 a day each for doing the work, which likely would take into late September, and the estimate of the amount required to reimburse the assessors is about $3,000. The total cost would require that an additional mill would be needed in the tax rate, making it 29 mills, if the work is undertaken.

The prospect this afternoon was for a largely attended meeting and a frank discussion, pro and con, of the entire subject, including the value of having an increased grand list in order that the tax rate may be made lower. The present condition of general business is expected to have a considerable influence on the way in which voters electors will vote.

That rare phenomena, a sun-dog, was of interest to many residents of Danielson about 11 o'clock this morning. Last night there was a circle around the moon. These things recalled to the minds of some who associate such "signs" in the heavens with coming weather disturbances that tomorrow, Wednesday, March 12, will be the 42nd anniversary of the terrific blizzard of 1888.

Next week brings the annual borough caucus for the nomination of officers for the ensuing year. The election comes on the first Monday in April. As Warden Harry E. PUTNAM

COURTROOM CROWDED AS LIQUOR CASES ARE TRIED

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 11.—The courtroom in the basement of the municipal building on Church street was jammed way beyond its doorways this morning fully an hour before Judge M. H. Geissler ascended to the bench to try the cases of five liquor law violators, who were arrested Monday in raids staged by Sergt. A. J. Sponcey and a squad of local police.

The hearings slated to have taken place this morning aroused city-wide interest but came to an unexpected climax when, at the request of Attorney Irving H. Miron, counsel for the quintet of alleged liquor sellers, Judge Geissler granted a continuance of the cases until next Monday morning when the cases will go to trial. Mr. Miron inferred that since the arrests had been made only yesterday, he had not had sufficient time to prepare the cases.

A slight discussion ensued between Prosecuting Attorney Eric H. Johnson and Attorney Miron, when the latter in a plea to the court desired that Mr. Johnson amend the warrants against the liquor sellers to show specific allegations, such as is ruled in the superior court and entitled him under law. Mr. Johnson in a somewhat indignant manner argued that in a conference with Attorney Miron preceding the opening of court, he had agreed to an amending of the warrants so as to furnish Mr. Miron with the desired information now in possession of the police.

It was understood today that four of the men under arrest intend to fight the charges of sale of liquor being pressed against them by the police as the result of arrests made yesterday. Aside from being present and witnessing the negotiations of their attorney in their behalf, the violators played no part in the hearing.

Attorney Miron, retained by Peter Racette, proprietor of an automobile livery, under arrest on a charge of violation of a statute pertaining to the operation of the taxi service business, was successful in having the case of his client adjourned until Saturday morning. The lawyer argued that the case at present is merely a question of law, involving a man in business. He said he desired more time to acquire definitions of the text of the law before presenting the case. The motion was granted and Racette will appear on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. The case of John Daigle of Green street, under arrest on a charge of assault, was also continued until a later date.

Francis Basto of Woodstock was before Justice A. C. Scranton in Woodstock Monday, charged with a violation of the fish and game laws. He was found guilty and fined $1 and costs of court which amounted to $11.50. Basto was arrested by County Game Warden Thomas G. Daniels of Plainfield and Deputy Warden George H. Liard of this city. It was found that Basto was illegally trapping game.

Jean Marie Lucier, one-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Lucier, died late Monday evening at her home on Bullock street, following a brief illness. The child was born in this city on Nov. 17, 1928. Her mother, before marriage was Miss Noella Guilbault, formerly of Providence.

Fourteen tables were in play Monday evening at the Masonic club rooms on South Main street when the Elks and the Masons met for their weekly indoor sports grind. The Elks were successful in winning at eight tables and raised their seasonal score to 105 points to give them a 12-point lead over their opponents. The Masons took six bridge games but dropped two cribbage contests to the Elks. At bridge (Elks first), Chadwick and W. Sherman defeated Holden and Miron; Berth and Cavanaugh defeated Decoudres and Marcy; Champlin and W. Averrill defeated Sherman and Stanton; Gregoire and Mansfield defeated Chase and Johnson; Wheelock and Girard defeated Mansfield and P. Gagne; Brousseau and Miller defeated Schoonover and Shaw; Milot and Gagne lost to Freeman and Dow; Cotter and Murray lost to Merriam and Miner; Benoit and P. Auger lost to Lewis and Geissler; Dupre and Larose lost to Dean and Wheaton; Bourgeois and Wheatley lost to Duffy and Lucas and Charron and Gallant lost to Mellor and Myers. Flags were at half staff throughout the city today in respect to the late William H. Taft, former president and chief justice. This afternoon radio listeners heard the account of the funeral of the former president, which was broadcast over a nation-wide hookup of stations.

A shipment of 60 cock pheasants was received this morning from the state department of fisheries and game and was taken in charge by Game Wardens Daniels and Liard for distribution in the various preserves in this section of the county. Warden Daniels said that the birds are all fine specimens and are all of a tested breed. They will be released in Thompson, Putnam and Pomfret and are released for breeding purposes. During the 1929 hunting season, sportsmen took scores of pheasants out of the game marshes hereabouts, necessitating the action of the game officials in order to replenish the game supply before the opening of the next season. Other sections of the county will be favored with allotments of pheasants during the next few weeks, the chief warden asserted this morning. The officers are being ably assisted by members of the Northeastern Connecticut Fish and Game club in the releasing of the fowl.

The fifth attempt to sell the assets of the National Rhea company, bankrupt textile corporation of Rhode Island with a plant in this city, will be made Wednesday afternoon when auctioneers of Providence meet to dispose of the property by auction. The plant will go to the highest bidder or if a buyer for the property in its entirety is not present the assets will be auctioned off to highest bidders in lots. It was said this afternoon that the receivership of the plant is confident the mill will be sold to one purchaser.

Captain A. J. Dubreuil said today that new parking signs are being made to conform with the city's new code of traffic regulations, which go into effect this week. Two hour time limit parking will in the future apply to practically all of the downtown section. As the signs are not expected to be ready for installation on the sidewalks abutting the parking lanes, Captain Dubreuil said that police would not begin a rigid enforcement of the new laws at once.

Today was the 42nd anniversary of the beginning of the great blizzard of '88, which, according to historic recordings, buried Putnam along with the cities of the Atlantic seaboard beneath a blanket of snow several feet deep. Those who remember the snow storm, which has not since been duplicated, said today that the winter of 1888 was until March 11, as uneventful and mild as the present one and in view of this fact were inclined not to be too optimistic about an early spring.

JEWETT CITY

ELEVEN MEMBERS REMAIN OF DEBATING SOCIETY

Fifty years ago the old Pachaug debating society, preceded in its date of demise, by a few years the last days of two other once flourishing local lyceums. Among the list of records which he has preserved, relative to such matters, John E. Phillips has found that, twenty years ago, after being in a dormant condition for thirty years, the society held a meeting and by unanimous vote of the surviving members turned over $339.40, the amount in their treasury, to the Pachaug Cemetery association. The late Calvin Wilcox, told at that time about two entertainments that had netted the society $92. Nothing more was added except the interest, which accumulated and built up the surprising sum in 50 years, which is noted above.

The list of charter members of the debating society, which like the Hopeville lyceum and the Jewett City lyceum, flourished over a half century ago, contained the names of 64 of Griswold's descendants, from its oldest line families. A check-up on that membership roll today, shows that of the 64 members, only eleven are alive: Miss Lucy Lathrop, Mr. and Mrs. Frank I. Ray, Fred S. Leonard, J. Audubon Webb, Daniel L. Phillips, Mrs. Jane Lester, Arba Browning, Henry Morse, Mrs. Lodema Howard, Mrs. Nellie Mott Thompson.

Fred S. Leonard was hurried to Backus hospital in Norwich Monday by Dr. J. H. McLaughlin. There Dr. David Sussler performed an emergency operation, which will be followed by another operation in a few days. Tuesday evening, he was resting comfortably.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Edward F. Burleson

The funeral, which was private, of Mrs. Edward F. Burleson, was held at her home in Lisbon, Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock. The services was read by Rev. eGorge L. Drowne, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Plainfield. Burial was in the family lot in Jewett City cemetery. The bearers were Charles A. Burleson of Erie, Pa., Richard Meyer, New Britain, William Congdon, Willimantic and Alfred Raymond, New Canaan. The floral remembrances were very beautiful. Relatives were present from Erie Pa., New Haven, East Orange, N. J., New Britain, Willimantic, Bridgeport, and New Canaan. Undertaker E. E. Gilbert was in charge of the arrangements.

O. C. Watson, who lives off to the east of Mount Misery, on a part of the state game preserve, came up to the headquarters of Lloyd Congdon, the keeper of the land, about two weeks ago, to see if he could find out about getting a radio set. Mr. Watson says that a man down there by the name of Doc, who was tinkering around the pipes in the state trout hatchery told him to come up to Jewett City and find a man named Wilbur, and he would fix him out. Mr. Watson did just that, and carried back to his Mt. Misery home two boxes of wires, lamps, screws and general junk. A man who said his name was Palmer, gave Mr. Watson a battery that had been running an old incubator, both of which had been thrown out behind the barn. Between the four men, they set the thing up in a soap box and nailed it together. Ten miles back in the woods due east and west, the set worked like a charm. Mr. Watson declared Tuesday, that he didn't expect to hear anything beyond Hartford or maybe Springfield. "What do you think?" he said. "This morning out of that old box I heard Admiral Byrd speaking in New Zealand, on the other side of the globe, and this afternoon there came the funeral of Mr. Taft, with Lead Kindly Light, clear as a bell." Mr. Watson was pleased and evidently so overcome, that he went up and paid Wilbur 60 cents, which he said he hadn't figured to do.

"WHAT CHARM ALWAYS ALLURES?"

Movie Directors say: "Lovely Skin"

"The one thing which is universally alluring is smooth, velvety skin," say 45 of Hollywood's most famous directors. "To a screen star it is invaluable for the public takes to its heart only those whose skin shows flawlessly smooth in the close-up."

Ruth Elder

Hollywood has long been aware of the great appeal beautiful skin has to the emotions. For years 9 out of 10 screen stars have been relying on Lux Toilet Soap to give their skin the lovely smoothness the public demands.

Ruth Elder's beauty and daring have made her famous. She is now under contract to Hoot Gibson and her lovely skin passes the severe test of the close-up easily. "Lux Toilet Soap keeps my skin so wonderfully smooth," she explains.

Betty Francisco

Charming Betty Francisco also uses this delicately fragrant white soap. She says: "It leaves my skin like velvet."

Delightful Kathryn Crawford states: "I always use Lux Toilet Soap." No wonder it is the official soap in all the great studio dressing rooms.

THE DUTY TO YOUTH

There isn't any more enthusiastic supporter of children and child health than President Hoover. He was thus the logical person to address the dinner in observance of the 20th anniversary of the Boy Scout movement and he did it in a manner which not only placed great credit upon the Scout movement but emphasized the importance of it in helping to solve the great problem of citizenship.

Declaring that the Scout movement has opened for the boy "the portals to adventure and constructive joy by reviving the lore of the frontier and the campfire, by establishing contacts with the birds and sometimes with the bees, by matching his patience to the deliberative character of fish; by the efficient operation of the swimming hole, and by peeps into the thousand mysteries of the streams, the trees and the stars," he pointed to the fact that there cannot be Boy Scouts without organization and leaders and through this method there is solved the problem of what to do "with him in his leisure time that will, of course, contribute to his health and his education and his morals, but in the main that will direct his interests to constructive joy for the balance of his life."

President Hoover bore down on the fact that through the movement "our boys learn of discipline, they learn the unity of effort, cooperation and the democracy of play and work, they learn of the duties and satisfactions of service," and made it apparent that he was an enthusiastic supporter of the organization which is doing so much for boys. Not only did he give recognition to what it is doing but he pointed out the opportunities for still greater results.

When he called attention to the fact that in looking over the republic today "we find many failures in citizenship—we find many betrayals of those who have been selected to leadership. I cannot conceive that these failures would take place if every citizen who went to the polls was a good 'Scout', and every official who was elected had ever been a real boy Scout."

Through training the boy in the way he should go for his own good and the good of everyone else a magnificent service is being rendered for the future citizenship of the country, and as the president says, it is unfortunate that the benefits of the Scout movement cannot be felt by the millions of boys outside of its ranks.

APPROVING THATCHER

When President Hoover named Judge Thomas D. Thatcher to be solicitor general in place of Charles E. Hughes, Jr., who resigned when his father was made chief justice, there was an opportunity for the judiciary committee of the senate to display its all-powerful control by hinting that there was a question whether he could be approved because it had been learned that he owned some stock in power corporations.

Judge Thatcher stands in the foremost ranks of lawyers and jurists. He has gained wide recognition for his ability and fairness, for his judicial temperament and his excellence as a judge in the federal court. His appointment was regarded as a most creditable one by all who were acquainted with his career as a member of the bar and as a judge. The chief concern that had been manifested by those who have expressed themselves concerning his willingness to become solicitor general was that it was hard to understand why he was willing to give up a judgeship which was certain for a long period, possibly life, to accept the uncertainties and more arduous work of solicitor general.

Nothing was brought up that would tarnish his qualification for the office but his possession of some stock and when that was called to his attention by the judiciary committee he not only agreed to dispose of it but informed the committee that he had already done so. That was before the committee had taken action, but it eliminated any possible excuse for opposition.

In view of all circumstances the committee has been over-careful in reaching its decision, but how it could do otherwise than approve, as it has, no reasonable person could understand. The appointment was, in fact, so high class that it could do nothing else and the senate should speed action upon it.

SERVING THE GREATEST NUMBER

With the increase in the number of automobiles, the parking problem is one that bothers city officials who are charged with the responsibility of handling traffic. It bothers because there is naturally a limit to the available parking area and because of the disposition of some to monopolize all the privileges.

In some cities it is met by stopping the parking. In others there are time limits as well as forbidden areas and yet it is found that there are those who ride to work in the morning and leave their machines in the parking places the entire day to the exclusion of any and all others who would like to leave their cars for a short period of time for shopping and other purposes.

This is a development which has occurred in Springfield where the benefits of a public parking place are seriously impaired by the all-day parkers. In dealing with the situation the authorities have decided to prohibit all parking there until after 10 o'clock in the morning, in the belief by that time the all-day parkers will be forced to get a parking place elsewhere or go to a garage before that hour and the space will therefore be left free to those who will be more considerate of the privileges extended them.

Driving to work in an auto is not so different from the practice in other days of riding to work in a buggy. In the days when the horse was the medium of transportation, it was the practice of the owner to maintain a shed or stable near his work, or for the company to provide a place for putting the animal and wagon under cover as a protection against storm and sun. There are those concerns which do the same thing for their auto-owning employes and they restrict such parking grounds to their employes. Other concerns do not and the auto owner seems to think that he ought to have a place to park his car, even though it be in the highway, for the entire day, weel in and week out. The convenience he enjoyed may mean inconvenience every day for a score of peopl, and it is not surprising that the Springfield authorities believe that it is a case where the greatest good for the greatest number should get consideration.

FRANCE'S PROPOSITION

It has been intimated from time to time that there was no disposition on the part of France to plunge into reduction of naval armament without some assurance that it would be protected against assaults resulting therefrom. France has been severely burned. It cannot forget everything in too short a time. It is disposed to go very cautiously, but in asking for a surety pact as the price of its willingness to sanction the disarmament which is sought it places a big problem before the other countries.

There are all kinds of angles from which European nations are forced to look at such questions. France hasn't gone in for its full tonnage of battleships. It has put its reliance on smaller warships, especially the submarine, and its plan seems to be to come to some understanding with the British relative to a non-aggressive policy. Then again it has set forth the fact that it would like an agreement whereby there would be a consultation of nations in case of war-like demonstrations, and in such a consultation it would be happy if it could get the United States as a participant.

There might be no direct harm from sitting in at such a conference but it has been the policy of the United States to keep out of European affairs, and it seems hardly possible that there could be a war threat involving the European nations in which this country would want to participate, except possibly in the role of peace-maker. The idea of placing our war machine at the disposition of any one of the European countries has never been looked upon with favor.

Possibly that is not the manner in which France regards its proposition and that it will be able to so set forth its views that there can be a compliance on the part of several nations If such is so it rests with the French delegation to use its best diplomacy and to produce a sound proposition, the reasonableness of which will appeal to those with whom the decision rests. France is asking much, far more than had been anticipated when the conference was planned and called.

COVERED BRIDGES

If, as claimed, Henry Ford is looking for a covered bridge to add to his museum at Dearborn he must realize the importance of making his selection before it is too late. Covered bridges haven't disappeared, but they are disappearing. When one goes it is not the practice to replace it with another, and even if it were it would be of a far different type than many of the old-time covered bridges which are to be found in northern New England.

It is to this part of the country that Mr. Ford has logically turned in getting many specimens of ancient things for his collection. He can find some of the bridges constructed after old-time plans, bridges which it would not be easy to take apart and reconstruct, but bridges which represent the sturdy construction of many years ago which have withstood the ravages of time, the wear and tear of long years of service and in some instances the threats of floods and fires. Those are, of course, the bridges built of heavy wooden girders and planks, the kind you marvel at when riding through them and the ones that gain your admiration and hold your gaze before and after using them to get from one side of a river to the other. There are the cute, modern, covered bridges, some of them kept in attractive red, which might go with the little old red school house of other days, but they do not begin to reflect the work or arouse the interest that the real old-time covered bridges do.

Most every New England community of any age has had its covered bridges, if so situated as to require such structures, but they are giving way to the modern steel or reinforced cement structures without cover. Mr. Ford needs to do his picking before time makes it impossible to obtain the really desirable.

STANCE VERSUS APPROACH

"Fore!"

"Listen to that silly man behind us," said Milly Kreston to her friend Sally Jones. "He must think he owns this golf course, trying to play straight on through that way!"

"But we are rather slow," said Sally.

"Yes, I suppose to," agreed Milly, "but these men think they're the salt of the earth, anyhow!"

"Aren't they?" asked Sally, smiling.

"Fore!"

"Look out, Milly! He's getting ready for a brassie shot.

"Let him get ready and see if I care. Watch me place my ball right up next to the pin."

Z-z-z-z-z-z! A hard-hit pellet sailed straight over two feminine heads. Sally laughed. Milly frowned and drew back her mashie for a pitch shot to the green. The mashie zipped through the air, carrying with it several pounds of assorted grass, roots and earth. In the midst of this sod shower was a little white golf ball, which dropped about four feet away.

"Fore!" Milly and Sally turned to see a tanned young man in knickers. He had evidently just witnessed the mashie shot with pronounced disapproval.

"Who taught you how to play golf?" he asked.

"What concern is that of yours?" asked Milly.

"Plenty," said the tanned athlete. "If you women would only learn to play golf properly before coming out here on the course we men wouldn't have to continually shout our heads off to get through a feminine twosome."

"Bravo," said Sally. "What a heroic speech from one of such tender years!"

"I'm not so young," said the interrupting golfer, "I am at least old enough to know that the first principle of golf is to keep one's eye on the ball."

"Say, have you any more advice to offer?" asked Milly.

"Yes, indeed. Your stance is all wrong and your grip is terrible. You don't follow through and that club you're using ought to be in a home for antiques." Milly glowered.

"Well, I'm sorry," said the young man. "I'd like to stick around and show you a few pointers about the game, but I'll have to move along. Good-by." Milly searched her ordinarily cutting vocabulary for adequate words, but failed miserably, by all the customary standards.

"I-I-I hope you're a flour salesman!" she finally managed to shout.

The young man, walking rapidly toward te green, puzzled this remark over in his mind. "I wonder what she meant by that crack?"

Two weeks later Milly Kreston, purchasing agent for the Consolidated Bakeries, Inc., sat at her desk admiring a handsome new set of golf clubs reposing over in one corner of the office. A boy came in.

"Today's first salesman, Miss Kreston," he announced. "Are you in conference?"

"No, Johnny, send him in," said Milly, still contemplating the golf clubs. The door opened and a figure in tweeds, carrying a sample case, walked into the office. A familiar tanned face gave start to a smile.

"I-I-I-I—" said the young man.

"Out with it!" snapped Milly.

"Er, er, er, my name's Jonh Templon of the Flourville Brook company —I mean the Brookville Flour company and—"

"Come, come," said Milly, "it's masculine salesmen like you that slow up the day's work for feminine purchasing agents like me."

"I want to—that is I thought you'd like to buy a couple of carloads of flour, maybe."

"Say, listen here," lectured Milly, "why don't you learn something about salesmanship before you come into a person's office? Your approach is awful and your sales talk is terrible! Your sample case is shabby and you don't keep your eye on—you don't keep your eye on the purchasing agent!"

"Well, that last would be a mighty easy matter for yours truly!" he exclaimed. Then his earlier threatened smile broke out all over his face.

"No flour today, then?" he asked.

"Not one tiny ounce, let alone two carloads!" stated Milly, emphatically.

"Then how about a round of golf this afternoon?" he asked.

"Accepted," agreed Milly. "And be sure you're on your game because I've been taking lessons from the best professional in town for the last two weeks!"—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 11—Once upon a time Senator Doctor Copeland of New York wore "whiskers, a Prince Albert coat and a silk hat."

There is no doubt about; he said so himself in the senate during the celebrated silk hat tariff debate he precipitated.

Still, it is hard to believe. The senator has been known so long as a man with a fixed sartorial habit. His blue serge sack suit, set off with a red carnation in his button hole, seems a part of the senate itself. And the notion that those well rounded, smooth shaven cheeks once were adorned with a crop of dark whiskers, worn a la Tinkham, also is startling.

The Copeland carnation, the Copeland long curly forelock of once dark but now almost gray hair, toppling in graceful abandon over the Copeland right eye to be thrust up and back with a wave of the hand as a gesture in debate are senate institutions. Whiskers, a long coat of funereal cut and a silk tile have no place in the picture.

Equipment

To be sure, those former adornments were in the days when the senator was "a young doctor." That was quite a while ago and doctors either young or old no longer find a silk hat as necessary a part of their equipment as a clinical thermometer or a stethascope. Times have changed.

Despite the levity of the senate Dr. Copeland managed to get a big boost in tariff rates approved by mobilizing a group of low tariff democrats to his support. Certainly, boosting rates on silk hats involved no political flareback for them. The number of silk hat voters must be very small.

Once New York city had a total of 600 silk hat makers. Now there are left "just a few old men," Senator Copeland figured, while silk hats are imported, about a thousand dozen of 'em a year.

"That must have been when we had Saint Patrick's day parades," Walsh of Massachusetts suggested, speaking of the more flourishing time for the domestic silk hat industry.

Still Heeman

"Yes, and we still have them," Copeland said. "Of course not in Boston; they have become too dignified. But we are still human in New York. I'll show the senator a real celebration there March 17th next."

"With silk hats?"

"Yes, silk hats and all."

On the first vote to shoot up the silk hat duty, Copeland's was the only "aye" to a roar of noes. It did not daunt him.

He called for a division and when noses were counted a flock of grinning democrats had been rousted out of cloak rooms to stand with him. Smoot, playing old faithful to the bill schedules his committee turned in, alone rose in oposition. The rest of the republican side just sat—and grinned.

YOUR INCOME TAX

No. 38

Various penalties are imposed by the statute for failure to file a return and pay the tax on time, and for making a fraudulent return. Distinction is made between failure and "willful failure" to file a return. For failure to file a return on time, the penalty is 25 per cent of the amount of the tax, unless a return is later filed and it is satisfactorily shown to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue that such failure was due to a reasonable cause and not to willful neglect. If a taxpayer exercised ordinary business care and prudence and nevertheless was unable to file a return within the prescribed time, the delay is due to a "reasonable cause."

For willful failure to make a return the penalty is not more than $10,000 or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both, and in addition 25 per cent of the amount of the tax. For willfully making a false or fraudulent return, the penalty is not more than $10,000, or imprisonment for not more than 5 years, or both, and in addition 50 per cent of the amount of the tax.

"A Hero's World"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "Be strong and of good courage" (Joshua 1:9).

Read: Joshua 1:1-9.

MEDITATION: The promise of "good success" is made only to the strong. Only the courageous can come to terms with life. Brave people only can feel at home in this world and rejoice in life, for this is a hero's world. It is not amiable or indulgent; it coddles no one. The timid and those who are afraid of struggle and wounds find life difficult. It is these who are the pessimists. The end of creation seems to be the making of great souls. This world is fitted to make souls of that sort. It is to the courageous heart that God promises His strength.

PRAYER: Grant O Father that this day we may take our full share in the world's work and hazards. Help us to be faithful in those useful things that are difficult and trying and accept them as a challenge to our souls. In Jesus' name. Amen.

YOUR HEALTH

Is Your Child Protected?

By Dr. Fred M. Meader, Detroit, (From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Here is a record of fact in a great city:

153,000 protected children had no diphtheria cases and no deaths.

142,800 unprotected children had 1805 diphtheria cases and 222 deaths.

In which group would your child be? If he is in the protected group as evidenced by a negative Schick test, you do not need to worry about diphtheria. If he is in the unprotected group (has not had toxin-antitoxin and six months later a Schick test), are you willing to run the chance of his being among the ones who will contract diptheria during the next year and possibly die from it? During the next four months, cases will develop and children will die. The need for immediate protection is apparent. Delay in obtaining toxin-antitoxin will unquestionably result in cases of diphtheria and deaths. Immediate protection of these children will in cases of diphtheria and deaths. Immediate protection of these children will avoid these unnecessary tragedies.

If your child should contract diphtheria and perhaps die from it, what possible excuse could you make to yourself if you had failed to give him the advantage of protective treatments? Ample means have been provided for obtaining toxin-antitoxin at a very nominal fee or free of charge to those who cannot afford to pay. If you have a physician, go to him. If you have no physician, write or call the Department of Health for a list of physicians who will give toxin-antitoxin.

We cannot emphasize too strongly the disastrous results of delay and the need for immediate protection. Most children contracting diphtheria today have contracted it because their parents have delayed—put off—having toxin-antitoxin. Don't be guilty of negligence.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Whitefoot Investigates

He's seldom master of is fate
Who never will investigate.
—Whitefoot the Wood Mouse.

Whitefoot the Wood Mouse gave Peter Rabbit the slip. It wasn't difficult to do. Whitefoot is such a little fellow and can move so quickly that he can slip into a hiding place without being seen, almost while you are looking at him. When Peter discovered that Whitefoot had disappeared, he grumbled a little and then went off to look for Chatterer the Red Squirrel, to find out if Chatterer had discovered Whitefoot's home yet.

No sooner had Peter disappeared than Whitefoot slipped over where he could look up at the big wasps' nest in which his own nest had been built and which had so long been his secret home. Courage was coming back to him now. He looked hastily in all directions to make sure that no sharp eyes were watching him. Then he quickly climbed that bush. When he came to the place where Farmer Brown's Boy had tied the branch holding the nest to another branch, he stopped to examine the string. It bore the man-smell and that made him a little uneasy.

But now that he was so near the entrance to that nest, he just couldn't turn back. In half a minute he was inside. Everything seemed all right. He went all over that nest of his, every particle of it. Nothing had been disturbed. Just around the entrance he caught just a faint whiff of that man-smell. That was where Farmer Brown's Boy had poked his finger in through the doorway. Otherwise, nothing was wrong. This man-smell was very faint. Whitefoot poked his head out the doorway and peered down. He couldn't understand maters at all. He couldn't understand how that nest was back where it had been after it had been cut down. Finally, he gave up trying to understand.

"Perhaps things are all right after all," said he to himself. "Perhaps Farmer Brown's Boy didn't know I was living here when he cut down this nest. I guess I'll stay here a while and see what happens. Farmer Brown's Boy is the only one who has found out yet where I live and somehow I have a feeling that he won't bother me. What I need now is a good nap. I'm all tired out. I suppose it is the fright I have had. Never did I have a worse fright."

So Whitefoot curled up in his bed and in no time at all he was fast asleep. Meanwhile, Peter Rabbit had found Chatterer the Red Squirrel and had speedily discovered that Chatterer was no wiser than he was, so far as Whitefoot's home was concerned.

So Whitefoot curled up in his bed and in no time at all he was fast asleep. Meanwhile, Peter Rabbit had found Chatterer the Red Squirrel and had speedily discovered that Chatterer was no wiser than he was, so far as Whitefoot's home was concerned.

"I tell you," said Chatterer, "I don't believe it is around here. Whitefoot is smart, but he never has been and he never will be smart enough to fool me."

"You've got a good opinion of yourself, haven't you?" said Sammy Jay, who came up just then.

Chatterer turned his back to Sammy and pretended not to hear him. Peter thoughtfully scratched a long ear with a long hindfoot. "I saw Whitefoot just a few minutes ago," said he, "and I still can't believe that his home can be very far away. You know as well as I do that Whitefoot never is found very far from home."

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Cyprus to Remain British Colony.

The island of Cyprus, a crown colony of Great Britain, has recently asked for permission to throw in its lot with Greece; or failing that, to be given self government. Both requests have been refused and Cyprus will continue to be administered by a governor appointed from London. The island is the subject of the following bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society:

"Cyprus can be described as an island of Greek people, Turkish customs, and British overlordship," says the bulletin. "Four-fifths of its 325,000 inhabitants are Greek Christians and nearly all the remainder are Turkish Mohammedans. The island is about the size of Porto Rico and lies in the northeastern corner of the Mediterranean sea offshore from the meeting place of Turkey and Syria. In the Mediterranean only the islands of Sicily and Sardinia are larger than Cyprus.

"Until 50 years ago Cyprus was wholly under Turkish control for two centuries. And although it has been under British administration since 1878, and a British colony since the outbreak of the World war, Turkish influences linger. Thus the governmental subdivisions of the island are the old Turkish ones; the laws are those of the Turkish code, with some changes; and Turkish weights and measures are still used. Cyprus grain is bought and sold by kiles instead of bushels; olives and raisins and butter are measured by okes instead of pounds, and if you buy the beautiful handmade lace that Cyprian women make, you buy it by the pic, not by the yard.

"Cyprus is an excellent example for the forester who preaches the importance of conserving trees. In ancient times the island was noted for its fine forests. Perennial streams watered its plains and prosperity reigned. Today the central plain of Cyprus and many of the mountain slopes are treeless save for scattered orchards. The streams are torrents, entirely dry for a large part of the year; while the washing of the soil has created marshes in some sections. Under British control, afforestation has been begun and the plantations of trees are being extended and protected from the depredations of goats. Other constructive contributions by the British are the beginnings of a sorely needed system of good roads, and irrigation works, and improvement in educational facilities.

"Cyprus and copper are synonymous. In ancient times the island was famous as the best known source of the red metal that make the bronze age possible. But whether the island was named for copper, or copper for the island, remains one of the mysteries of history. What is left of Cyprus' copper ores is not rich, but an American company works the mines and removes considerable quantities of the mineral. This and a British company mining asbestos; a silk filature; and several cigarette factories, constitute the island's industrial plants. The only railway is a narrow gauge affair about 75 miles long extending across the island from east to west.

"A great deal of the work of Cyprus is done by women. They work in the fields and even break stone and help build highways as well as make lace and embroidery in their homes. The men have a distinctive costume—a straw hat with a mushroom brim, a plain shirt sometimes with a jacket, voluminous Turkish trousers whose seats are tucked into their belts for cross country walking, and heavy leather boots with their tops turned down and tied above the calf. The Moslems wear a kerchief with lace flower fringes about their red tarbooshes, and pink and orange shirts, blue trousers and purple stockings.

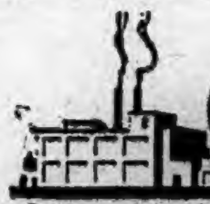
The first day that the clocks in Waterville, Me., were changed for daylight saving, one milkman set his clock ahead an hour. His father, not knowing it, set the clock ahead another hour. Upon going to the barn the next morning he found all the cows asleep and had a dreadful time getting them up to be milked.



A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut,

The Geometric Tool Company, New Haven

The Geometric Tool company was organized in 1905 upon the foundations of an older company known as The Geometric Drill company which was organized in 1893. The Geometric Drill company was organized by William J. Smith and financed by the four Beecher brothers of match machinery fame. They invented those remarkable match making machines that meant so much to the match industry. The Beecher company was consolidated in 1870 with the Swift & Courtney company of Wilmington, Del, and the resultant company was later absorbed by and became the nucleus of the Diamond Match company of Connecticut at the time of its organization December 3, 1880. The head office of the latter company at that time was in New Haven, and remained so until immediately after the reorganization of the company to The Diamond Match company on February 13, 1889 when it was moved to Chicago.

The Geometric Drill company, as the name would imply, made a drill to make irregular holes in metal. It was an ingenious device, but impractical. Very few wanted to drill irregular holes.

In 1894 the late Howard E. Adt, a young man of talent and ambition, was taken into the company as manager. He quickly cast about for something to manufacture that would be in demand. He hit upon an automatic device to cut threads on metal. The idea was to have the threading chasers, or cutters, withdraw from the cut when a pre-determined length of thread was cut, so as to obviate the necessity of reversing the spindle of the machine to get the cutters off the thread.

Here was born the well-known geometric self-opening die heads and self-collapsing taps that are known and in use in every industrial country of the world. They revolutionized the art of cutting threads and were an important factor in reducing the cost of all fabrications and machines that used bolts and nuts and threaded parts in their construction.

The plant of the company is in the Westville section of New Haven. It employs an average of 300, many of whom have been on the payroll of the company for 20 years or more. The first employee of The Geometric Drill company is still on the payroll and working every day.

As may be surmised, the product of the company requires great skill in its manufacture. Tenths of thousandths of inches are not uncommon tolerances. But the entire force takes pride in meeting these exacting requirements and would not be happy in any other environment.

Officers of the company are: James W. Hook, president; James W. Sneyd, vice president; C. C. Gamble, treasurer; Albert F. Breitenstein, works manager; George A. Denison, sales manager.

If

Kipling's Poem Was A Favorite Of Chief Justice Taft's

If you can keep your head when all about you
Are losing theirs and blaming it on you.
If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you,
But make allowance for their doubting too;
If you can wait and not be tired by waiting,
Or being lied about, don't deal in lies,
Or being hated don't give way to hating,
And yet don't look too good, nor talk too wise;

If you can dream—and not make dreams your master;
If you can think — and not make thoughts your aim;
If you can meet with triumph and disaster
And treat those two imposters just the same;
If you can bear to hear the truth you've spoken
Twisted by knaves to make a trap for fools,
Or watch the things you've given your life to, broken;
And stoop and build 'em up with worn-out tools;

If you can make one heap of all your winnings
And risk it on one turn of pitch-and-toss,
And lose, and start again at your beginnings
And never breathe a word about your loss;
If you can force your heart and nerve and sinew
To serve your turn long after they are gone,
And so hold on when there is nothing in you
Except the will which says to them: "Hold on!"

If you can walk with crowds and keep your virtue,
Or walk with kings—nor lose the common touch,
If neither foes nor loving friends can hurt you,
If all men count with you, but none too much;
If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds' worth of distance run,
Yours is the earth and everything that's in it,
And—which is more—you'll be a man, my son!

—Rudyard Kipling.

The Water Lily

"O star on the breast of the river!
O marvel of bloom and grace!
Did you fall right down from heaven,
Out of the sweetest place?
You are white as the thoughts of an angel,
Your heart is steeped in the sun—
Did you grow in the Golden City,
My pure and radiant one?"

"Nay, nay, I fell not out of heaven!
None gave me my saintly white;
It slowly grew from the blackness
Down in the dreary night.
From the ooze of the silent river
I won my glory and grace;
White souls fall not, O my poet,—
They rise to the sweetest place."

Only one of the bathtubs in the Kansas Statehouse still is in use. When the big building was erected fifty years ago each of the suites assigned the elective state officials contained an elaborate—for those days—bathroom. Until a few years ago they were used more or less frequently and the state supplied the bath towels and sponges and even bath rugs. But the custom of taking baths in the Statehouse has about disappeared, the secretary of state having the only tub that is used. Most of the others have been taken out of the building and the space used for files.

Middle-aged golfers who wear bifocal glasses for near and far vision may have advantage over their younger opponents, if a suggestion found in the Optician, an English magazine, proves correct. One bifocal wearer has reported that his glasses keep him from topping the ball. It is suggested that scientific bifocal wearers might test the theory by experiment. In bifocal glasses the lower part of the lens gives the wearer correct vision for close work, such as reading and writing, while the upper part is for distant vision. In order to see an object on the ground directly in front of him, such as a golf ball, the bifocal wearer must hold his head down and look through the upper part of his glasses. As a result, he keeps his eye on the ball and does not top it.

A Clear Complexion

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

HAVE KIDNEYS EXAMINED BY YOUR DOCTOR

Take Salts to Wash Kidneys if Back Pains You or Bladder Bothers

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

This is the first appeal to be taken following the completion of the present grand list more than a month ago by the assessors and the completion of the revised grand list by the board of relief.

Women In The Business World

The modern business woman is having a special week in recognition of her achievements in the business world.

Ten years ago there were but 37 of the 372 occupants which women had not invaded. Now it is doubtful if there are any. Ten years ago clerical workers led the number of women employed, there being 1,426,116 of them. Probably this ratio will be increased by the next census, for the drift is increasingly away from industry to what we would call, if men were occupying them, the "white collar jobs." The National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs has tended to focus nationwide attention on the value of a better education to the prospective business girl.

The number of women in public service increased 61 per cent between 1910 and 1920 and the figure is expected to be even greater between 1920 and 1930. Equally significant was the increase of the percentage of women in trades by 42 per cent; and of women in professions by 39 per cent.

TWO DAMAGE ACTIONS SETTLED, ANOTHER ON TRIAL BEFORE JURY

Two damage suits scheduled for jury trial in the superior court at New London were settled Tuesday morning. The $10,000 action brought by Alfred Muench, administrator of the estate of Charles Muench of Norwich, against Malcolm H. Austin of Montville, was one of the suits settled. It was to have gone on trial before a jury Tuesday morning. The suit arose from the death of Charles Muench as a result of being struck by an automobile operated by the defendant at Thamesville, September 21st, last. The case is reported settled for approximately $4,000.

The other suit settled was the $50,000 damage suit brought by Elizabeth E. Ballantyne, now of Wilkinsburg, Pa., against Dr. Charles Kaufman as administrator of the estate of Dayton O. Atwood, late of Groton.

In the complaint it was alleged that in 1903 the late Mr. Atwood became the father of a son born to the plaintiff and named Cradoc E. Atwood. It was further stated in the complaint that Mr. Atwood promised to pay for the support of the child and for its college education and that this was not done during the life of Mr. Atwood and no provisions were made for the expense in his will. Mr. Atwood died Jan. 24, 1928.

Following the settlements reached in these actions trial in the $10,000 suit brought by Louis Dixon of Waterford against the Jordan Mills, Inc., of Waterford, and others, was started before Judge Christopher L. Avery and a jury. The jury was impaneled at 11 o'clock and one witness, George H. Bathgate, president of the Jordan mills, was on the stand at 1 o'clock when court recessed until 2 o'clock.

Mr. Bathgate resumed the stand at that time. His testimony had to do with the relation of property occupied by the plaintiff on March 22, 1929, when it is alleged he received a broken leg and other injuries as a result of alleged negligence on the part of the Jordan Mills Co.

It is claimed that Dixon was working in his garden adjoining the Jordan mills when a cable being used in the installation of a big boiler snapped and struck the plaintiff with considerable force.

The jury for the case is as follows: New London—William Geer, Charles H. Kenney, Henry Tisdale. Groton—John P. Ebbets, James E. Griswold. Stonington—George P. Cella, Fred G. King. Montville—Burke G. Hewitt. Ledyard—Carroll S. Hurlbut. East Lyme—Harry B. Morton.

NORWICH ART ASSOCIATION HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

According to the new plan for promoting the interests of the organization, the annual meeting of the Norwich Art association was held Monday evening in place of the usual time in June. The walls of the Converse Art gallery were lined with the framed photographs on exhibition, and the attractive setting was enhanced with potted plants, and groups of lighted candles in tall stands.

The recently elected president, Joseph Henry Hall, Jr., presided.

Following the routine business, a witty annual report of the difficulties encountered during the past year was read by the secretary, Mrs. Austin B. Goodyear. The treasurer, Mrs. Fred Sudlow, showed a larger balance, owing to the impossibility of engaging lecturers.

The report of the museum extension committee, Miss Faith Leavens, chairman, told of the valuable educational work done in the public schools; this very important department of the association gives to the children of Norwich an opportunity equalling that of much larger cities. During the past year over 600 children of the sixth grade learned of Greek mythology through two talks given in each school by Miss Vera Bushnell, the new instructor, followed by a visit to the museum and another talk by Miss Elsie Church, the museum guide. The instruction, begun in October, ended in February with the completion of the attractive note books written by the children. The stories awarded the first and second prizes were read by Miss Blanche Wilbur.

The first prize was given to John Angeopoulos of the Broadway school; Faith Jennings of the Bishop school and Margaret Bedat of Elizabeth street school were tied for the second prize. These prizes were stories of mythology, and books were given, also, to the prize winners of each school, 17 rooms in all. An expenditure of $250 had been made for successfully carrying on this educational work.

Miss Amanda Fisher proposed the names of 14 for active membership, who were accepted: Rev. and Mrs. Thomas Richey, Fred Sudlow, Mr. and Mrs. H. La Tourette, Mrs. Hattie Kline, Mrs. Aurin E. Payson, Mrs. Arthur Payson, Mrs. Lee Roy Robbins, Mrs. Shepard B. Palmer, Mrs. Cartering Larrabee, Mrs. Eben Learned, Mrs. Frank Drisler and Mrs. George Stead.

The nominating committee, Mrs. Frank Hempstead, chairman, Miss Nancy Lucas and Charles J. Dyer, proposed the following officers, who were elected: President, Joseph Henry Hall, Jr.; vice president, Miss Ruth A. Hamilton; recording secretary, Mrs. Austin B. Goodyear; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Claude Wilson; treasurer, Mrs. Fred Sudlow; councilor, Mrs. Ozias Dodge.

Committee chairmen: Program, Miss Blanche Wilbur; museum extension, Miss Katherine B. Hempstead; press, Miss Sarah H. Leavens; admission, Miss Amanda Fisher; hospitality, Mrs. Thomas P. Sears; auditor, Frank Hempstead.

The president stated that it was hoped to engage worth-while speakers during the year, with additional time for making engagements, and with the increased funds available. Already 22 had become sustaining members. With the yearly dues of $15, and with the small addition to the dues of active members, there would be opportunity for better programs without curtailing the museum instruction in the public schools. A brighter future seems assured as the association starts on its 36th year.

The meeting then adjourned for a social hour, during which ice cream and cake were served by the hospitality committee.

Opportunity was given for closer examination of the exhibition of photographs of foreign views by Joseph Henry Hall, Jr. There are 115, which Mr. Hall has enlarged artistically from smaller views taken on various trips. Hung in a conspicuous place is the Church of St. Jean; another favorite is The Moat, Château de Sigy, and perhaps the most quaint is the view of the tenth century church named, Light of a Thousand Years, (St. Loup de Naud). An unusual scene is Morning Sun at Vielle Brioude, Auvergne, and also Un Conte de Fees. Among the water scenes are the Canal at Provins, and Reflets dan l'Eau. Every picture is interesting and the subjects varied.

Mrs. Daniel McGuire, of Mystic, was a Norwich caller at the week end.

R. GALE NOYES ADDRESSES WOMEN'S CITY CLUB

The literature department of the Woman's City club, at the Wauregan hotel Tuesday evening, sponsored an interesting lecture by R. Gale Noyes, of this city, a teacher in the English department at Harvard university, who spoke on John Hardy, the English novelist. Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn, who introduced the speaker, made several announcements, of the literature round table meeting on "Literary Norwich" and of the play, "The Jade Doll" to be presented under the auspices of the music department at Masonic temple next week.

Thomas Hardy, whom Mr. Noyes said was the last of the great Victorian novelists, was born in Dorsetshire on June 2, 1840, and was educated in the local schools of that place, but did not secure a university education. In 1856, he was articled to John Hicks, ecclesiastical architect of Dorchester and in 1859, he began writing verse and essays, but in 1861 was compelled to apply himself more strictly to architecture. In 1863, he won several medals for essays, while engaged in architectural work.

In March, 1865, his first short story was published in a magazine and during the next two or three years he wrote a good deal of verse, being somewhat uncertain whether to take to architecture or to literature as a profession. In 1867 and 1868 he wrote a "purpose" story, but he was advised not to print it, but to write another, with more plot. The manuscript was withdrawn and re-written, but was not published.

In 1870, Mr. Hardy constructed a novel that was all plot, which was published in 1871 under the title Desperate Remedies, which was a mystery story. A Pair of Blue Eyes was published in 1873, which Mr. Noyes said was not his best. His first popular success was Far From The Madding Crowd, said the speaker.

This, with two other successful novels, The Return of the Native and the Woodlanders, were discussed by Mr. Noyes, who gave a synopsis of each book. Mr. Noyes pointed out that the writer's books were not popular with the women, because of the way in which he handled the women characters in his novels.

Mr. Noyes gave several examples of Mr. Hardy's humor, after which he extoled the writer. He said he was a good plotter, but was sensational at times, being a master of tragic effects. He was a master of picture drawing and a portrait painter. He saw details that other writers did not, said Mr. Noyes.

His novels had to do with English peasant life, said Mr. Noyes, his peasants having been compared with Shakespeare's. He was rich in dramatic powers, he said, a dramatic sense even permeating his dialogue. Mr. Noyes also spoke of his philosophy. At the close of his interesting talk Mr. Noyes was given a rising vote of thanks.

Sued for $30,000

Damages of $30,000 are claimed from Theodore R. Staplins of West Haven in two suits brought in the superior court here, as the result of the death of Rosa M. Staplins, late of Waterford and injury to Edward W. Staplins of Waterford. Both actions are the result of an automobile accident on Sept. 18, last, near Shelburne, Vt., when a car in which the Staplins of Waterford were riding, operated by Theodore R. Staplin of West Haven, went over a steep embankment on Shelburne Hill. Mrs. Rosa M. Staplins died five days after the accident, and Edward W. Staplins of Waterford, as administrator of her estate brings the suit.

Damage Suit Settled

The $10,000 damage suit brought by Fred Carlson, administrator of the estate of his son, Frederick Daniel Carlson, of Waterford, against Mrs. John A. H. Wood of Waterford, has been settled out of court. The suit arose from the death of the Carlson boy March 13, 1928, as a result of being struck by an automobile truck operated by the defendant.

EDUCATION COMMISSIONER TO BE NOMINATED SOON

Several names have been mentioned as possible successor to Dr. Albert B. Meredith as state commissioner of education. Among these is Dr. John Cayce Morrison, New York state deputy commissioner in charge of elementary education. He is a native of Illinois, has served in educational administration in his home state and in New Jersey and for three years was a member of the faculty at Ohio State university. From 1920 to 1923 he was with the New York state education department and he returned there in 1926 as deputy commissioner, his Ohio state service intervening. Two members of the Connecticut state board staff have been mentioned, N. Searle Light, director of the division of rural education, has been with the board for about 20 years. He is a Yale graduate and entered state board work soon after receiving his degree. Dr. Franklin E. Pierce is supervisor of secondary education, succeeding a few years ago Dr. Jesse B. Davis, now a member of the Boston university faculty, who also is referred to as a commissionership possibility. Zenas Scott, superintendent of schools in Springfield, John Young, assistant superintendent in Bridgeport, Superintendent F. A. Verplank of South Manchester, N. F. A. '84, Yale '88, and Superintendent Stanley H. Holmes of New Britain are also on the preliminary list one hears discussed on Capitol hill.

The nomination of a new commissioner will be made by a sub-committee of the state board. It includes Walter D. Hood of Winsted, Mrs. Helen E. Lewis of Stratford and Henry A. Tirrell of Norwich. Commissioner Meredith, who has held the office since 1920, will become a member of the New York university education school faculty next September.

REV. S. A. ICIEK GIVES ADDRESS ON BEES

An interesting and instructive talk on "Bees" was given Tuesday noon by Rev. S. A. Iciek, pastor of St. Joseph's church, at a luncheon meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club at the Wauregan hotel. Rev. Fr. Iciek, who has a great many hives placed about Norwich, described the life of the bee within the hive and the methods by which the honey is procured. The bee family consists of three divisions. There is the queen of the hive, a large well-fed and well-cared for insect, is the center of the family. She does no work but stays within the hive, receiving food and attention from the other bees and laying the eggs. The workers, or other female bees, collect the nectar and make the honey. The drones, the third division of the family, do not work but fly about and enjoy life in the warm summer days.

They alone never enter any hive other than that of their own family. However, when winter comes and food is not so plentiful, these drones are cast out and allowed to perish. When a queen dies or becomes inactive, a new larva is selected within the hive, is fed fattening foods and is raised to become a queen.

In some hives bees make their own combs or storehouses. However, this means extra work for the bees and consequently the amount of honey produced is smaller. In the case of those bees raised by Father Iciek, large combs are placed in the hives and in these the honey is stored. When they are full, the honey is removed and the comb may be used again.

Many delicious things may be made from honey and cakes in which honey has been used will keep fresh for a very long time. Honey is not only a delightful substitute for sugar but is more healthful.

The members of the club were not only pleased and interested with all that Father Iciek told about his apiaries but thoroughly enjoyed the opportunity given them to sample the honey from his hives.

Birch of Hartford, while she was crossing the Norwich-New London highway near her home.

More than 100 religious workers, teachers and guests heard a splendid address by J. Quinter Miller of Hartford, new state executive secretary for religious education, at a supper conference held Tuesday evening at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, Tuesday evening. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Norwich Council of Religious Education.

Mr. Miller outlined in his address the programme of religious education that the state regards as ideal. He spoke upon the subject, "Whither Religious Education in Connecticut?" His address followed a supper served at 6:30 o'clock. Rev. Joseph Cooper, pastor of Trinity M. E. church, is president of the council.

Sisters Graduate Same Day

Mrs. O. MacInness of No. 46 Union street has returned from New York after attending the graduation of her daughters, Misses Vera and Mary MacInnes, at Mt. Sinai School of Nursing.

Miss Vera MacInness gained outstanding honors as a student nurse, for which she was rewarded at the graduation exercises when she was awarded the Carrie M. and Gustav Blumenthal scholarship and a beaded purse of $100 in gold for kindness and proficiency in actual bedside nursing. The scholarship gives Miss MacInness the income of a $5,000 trust fund.

The graduation of the Misses MacInness marked the termination of an intensive three years of training at the Mt. Sinai School of Nursing. Both are graduates of the Free Academy and entered the nursing profession together. Miss Vera MacInness was formerly employed as a stenographer at the office of the Thermos Bottle Co. here, and at graduation was remembered by her many friends at the Thermos office with gifts and cards of congratulations.

TAX RATES OF 24 1-2 MILLS EXPECTED AFTER NEW LONDON COUNCIL MEETS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 11.—A special meeting of the city council has been called for tomorrow night at 7 o'clock. The purpose of the meeting is to permit the third and final reading on the ordinance relating to the appropriations necessary for the conduct of city business for the current year, also to permit the first reading of the ordinance fixing the tax rate. It is understood that the appropriation ordinance, when read tomorrow night, will contain a provision insuring $4000 to the New London public library, which was stricken from the original budget and $2000 for Bulkeley high school. It is also understood that the tax rate will be fixed at 24 1-2 mills.

DELINQUENT TAX-PAYERS GET TOTAL OF 1,200 WARNINGS

In an effort to collect the unpaid personal tax on the levy of 1929 Tax Collector Hull Manwaring today sent out 1,200 notices to delinquents, giving the men and women the customary five days in which to make payment. The final day in which this tax can be paid, without an additional penalty of $1, has expired. If the tax remains unpaid March 16, it remains to be seen whether Collector Manwaring will follow in the foot-steps of former Tax Collector Hibbard N. Alexander and cause city sheriffs to collect the tax, which will make a total cost to the delinquent of $10.50. Last year several delinquents were committed to jail until their friends came to the rescue and paid the tax and added costs.

Miss Verena Considine, 9 Jay street, a patient at Home Memorial hospital was dismissed today.

Charged in the East Lyme justice court yesterday with violation of the state motor vehicle law, William J. Burgess, of Milford, was fined $5 and costs.

ASSOCIATED CHARITIES HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

The quarterly meeting of New London Associated Charities, Inc., was held today at the offices in the Plant building. The principal business transacted was the election of officers, as follows: President, J. P. T. Armstrong; vice president, Rev. Philip M. Kerridge; secretary, William H. Reeves; treasurer, E. Victor Goldsmith; general secretary, Mrs. Lewis J. Phillips.

Injured in New York

Francis Redden, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Redden, 361 Bank street, is a patient at Roosevelt hospital, New York, suffering from serious injuries which he sustained last night, the nature of which was not revealed in a message of the New York police to the New London police today. Mr. and Mrs. Redden have been notified of their son's condition.

FORMER SALVATION ARMY WORKER TURNS JUNK TO PROFIT

The police have started a search in an endeavor to arrest a former employe of the Salvation Army for he not only stole a miscellaneous quantity of junk, but he stole a horse and wagon to dispose of his loot. The ex-religious worker went to Mather court Sunday night and stealing a horse belonging to the Army, hitched it to a wagon and then loaded the vehicle with beds, bedding, brass and other junk owned by Isadore Gruskin and which was stored in the same building as was the horse. The theft was committed during the early morning hours for the thief then drove his load to the vicinity of Shaw street where the entire quantity of beds, bedding and metal was sold to a junk dealer. After the sale the thief drove the team to the rear of the Connecticut company property on Montauk avenue and abandoned the outfit.

In the Groton town court yesterday, George Sidel, of Taftville, was fined $5 and costs on a charge of violating of the state motor vehicle law in failing to provide proper lettering on his truck. The costs amounted to $12.55.

Thomas Denehee, of Brooklyn, formerly of New London, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital and where he will be operated upon this week.

Mrs. Helen Harris is confined to her home, Georgiana street ill with a severe attack of grip.

COAST GUARD ACADEMY WORK GREATLY DESIRED

The city of New London is disposed to do all that is required of it to make the site of the proposed Coast Guard Academy to the satisfaction of the government and the coast guard officials. The water system of the city is to be extended, by an outlay estimated at $80,000. This will necessitate laying new mains and the provision of another reservoir. The city engineer has submitted plans to the council and that body referred them to a committee, which is ready to report to the council in the matter. The report will, it is expected, be an unqualified endorsement of the plan, and it will be submitted to the council at the next regular meeting.

Every resident here is anxious that work on the academy begin without delay, that there may be more employment provided for labor than has been in sight of late.

NEW SHERIFF UNLIKELY TO MAKE MANY CHANGES

It is not expected that the newly appointed sheriff, George H. Bradford, who succeeds the late Sidney A. Brown, will make any changes in the personnel at the jails in Norwich or New London, the complete management of which he will have. Nor is it likely that he will elect to make any changes among the deputy sheriffs, who have served so satisfactorily during many years. All are experienced men and have been most satisfactory in past years.

In Groton, when the town meeting last week voted to cut the tax rate from 24 to 18 mills, it was apparent that some real economies must be practiced to keep the expenses of the town down where the amount of taxes collected would meet the expense. The selectmen have already begun to economize and have reduced the number of men and trucks on the street maintenance work. It is expected that some other minor savings will be effected. They must be made if the town is to pay its bills and do work actually necessary.

The Maple Avenue Project

Petitioners before the city council for the opening of Maple avenue to Pequot avenue will soon be given opportunity to present their reasons for the privilege they asked for. The council has three plans in view but they are so expensive that neither of them is likely to be undertaken without a great deal of consideration if indeed the council can see its way to meet the expenses even of the cheapest of the plans. One of the plans calls for an outlay of some $90,000, another about $12,000 and still another for a few thousand less than the last named figures. The railroad company to wipe out a crossing at grade at the avenue erected a fence and that shut out travel over the tracks. The courts have decided that the railroad company was within its rights in erecting the fence and it will be maintained here.

PETER VONG, A POOR LIAR, REALLY CONVICTS HIMSELF

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 11.—Peter Vong, proprietor of a Main street fruit and confectionery store, was in the police court this morning, charged on two counts with violation of the liquor law, keeping with intent to sell and possession. He pleaded not guilty, but because of his ridiculous and apparent false testimony, Judge Daniel M. Cronin found Vong guilty and imposed a fine of $200 and costs on each count. Vong gave notice of an appeal and furnished a bond to assure his appearance at the next criminal term of the court of common pleas.

Vong was arrested Sunday night when he failed to lock one of the doors of his store at closing hour. When Patrolman Frank Philopena made his rounds the officer discovered the entrance unlocked and making an investigation to determine whether a thief had entered the building, discovered several bottles of gin and Scotch whiskey. Vong, who has the reputation of having sold liquor a long time, was sought and arrested. On the witness stand today Vong testified that he purchased the liquor for his personal consumption and that he had not sold any of it. However, when Vong testified that he did not know the bootlegger who provided him with the gin and whiskey nor did he know the identity of the man that arranged the sale, Judge Cronin discredited the testimony and imposed the double penalty.

to barracks to shift from wet uniforms.

But the day itself had relented. Gray skies still gloomed above as the faster trip was made to Fort Myer, the old post that flanks Arlington cemetery. The rain had all but stopped although there was threat of more to come.

And at the gate of the fort the cavalry again waited, this time headed by its own mounted band. Beside them, ranked among the trees, stood a battery of artillery with gunners waiting to fire.

As the hearse crossed the reservation line, the first brazen clamor of a twenty-one gun salute, the salute to the president of the colors, belched forth to send its echoes reeling down the hillsides to the company waiting at the grave far below. Minute by minute the guns drummed out their tale of soldierly sorrow as the slow procession wound its way down among the trees and the many, many graves of the valorous.

It is a wonderful glade, where this first president to sleep in a national cemetery takes his rest. Perhaps an acre of woodland sward is set close about by the red and white oaks, young and old.

The fine old tree that was there when George Washington come a-courting to the Lee mansion on the heights about, stands alone in the center. Westward, up the gentle hillside, is a group of a half a dozen younger oaks.

And it is beneath their spread boughs that a place had been made for the newcomer to this last sanctuary of valor and fame.

About the squared sides of the glade the troops were ranked. Soldiers held two sides, marines and bluejackets the others, and just back of the wide tent flies spread from their poles to cover the grave and the few dearest and nearest who could crowd about, the full strength of the navy band was mustered.

Within the square stood a single rank of riflemen, waiting to fire the last volleys, and the same sergeant-bugler who sounded taps for the unknown soldier, for Woodrow Wilson, for Warren Harding and for William Jennings Bryan. Close beind the soldier lines were the few hundreds who had dared even this journey in rain and wind to say a last good-bye to an old friend.

Far away came the strains of the cavalry band, broken by the clamor of the guns booming their minute signals above. As they drew closer the guns ceased, their tale told, and the music rang through the wooded hollows. It was a dirge old to the army that the band played and as they came nearer and nearer to the open space at the foot of the rifle-ringed square, the men below snapped to stiff attention.

Down wound the troopers, glimpsed first vaguely through the trees, the band instruments gleaming even in that dull light. Then they broke out into the open with the muffled mutter of the drums lost in the clatter of their chargers' hoofs. On and on the column moved, turning at last to form in a solid, living mass of men and mounts behind the foot troops on the north side of the square.

Mourning Party

The dignitaries, from president down, alighted from their cars, awaiting Mrs. Taft and the near relatives. The body bearers again took up their burden and finally, led by Dr. Pierce, the little column moved slowly up and the flag-draped casket vanished into the shelter of khaki-hued, tented inclosure. Mrs. Taft with members of the family passed within, then President and Mrs. Hoover and a few nearer, dearer friends of the dead. For the others of the mourning party, for admirals and generals, for senators and representatives, it remained to stand clustered outside, bare-headed, as the simple burial service was completed within.

No word of what was said inside reached the ears of those about the outer ring of troops. Rifles of the men in lines about the great square were at parade rest now, the present salute having been rendered as the casket was carried up the hill. In that interval, too, the band played softly amid the trees the final hymn of the funeral service of William Howard Taft, "Abide With Me."

Then came a signal of hand. The troops snapped to attention.

"Ready! Aim! Fire!" called a crisp military voice, and the 16 rifles spoke as one in the cracking volley amid the trees.

"Fire" came the order again, and a rifle blast. Again, "Fire!" and the third and last crashing note of the soldier's last salute was given.

Standing now within the tent shelter, at the head of the grave, the bugler raised his trumpet to his lips. Soft and clear the notes to "Taps" rose in the air, and almost at that instant the clouds just over the trees at the hill top above drew aside and for the first time in all the day, the sunlight came beaming down.

Full upon the tent above the grave it played, to light all within to soft, filtered glow. Full it fell upon the ranked troops and the cavalry with rigid sabres flashing back to the glow and horses nodding and pawing at the soft turf.

And as the little group about the grave turned away to waiting cars and every-day affairs again, they could look back up the hill to the tree-framed nook, bathed in such splendor of waning sunshine as must have softened that moment of parting.

And behind them, eternally at rest from his labors, William Howard Taft of Ohio remained, alone, save for a soldier guard for a little time; but unforgotten by countrymen he had served long and well.

CASES CONTINUED TUESDAY IN STONINGTON TOWN COURT

A crowd which overflowed the courtroom attended the Tuesday morning session of Stonington town court, Judge William A. Wilcox, of Pawcatuck, presiding.

Alec Panciera, alias "Hookie Jackson", of 27 East avenue, Westerly, on request of Stonington Prosecutor Henry P. Hammacher, had the case against him charging a breach of the peace continued two weeks. The prosecutor stated that considerable investigation should be made of a case involving a serious offense. Judge Wilcox granted the two weeks' continuance with bond of $1000 continued with Sam Grills' surety.

In the case against Edward Joseph, of Water street, Stonington, Judge Herbert W. Rathbun, for the defense, waived the reading of the complaint charging an assault upon a Stonington woman with intent to rape and entered a plea of not guilty. He said the serious charge had unusual aspects. By agreement with the prosecutor who had conferred with the complaining witness a conference with the woman's husband was desired and the history of the family was desired to be looked into. Prosecutor Hammacher stated he was ready for trial but agreed that the defendant had a right to ask for a continuance. Judge Wilcox granted a continuance of one week to March 18th, subject to a further continuance, should either side make the request.

The case of the sale of one pint of alcohol charged by State Trooper William E. Mackenzie against Mr. and Mrs. Edward Putrowski of Old Mystic, March 3rd, was continued to March 25th.

The reckless driving case against Eugene J. Boucher, 51, of 45 Georgia street, Providence, who on March 3rd drove the car of his mother, Mrs. Mary M. Boucher, of Providence, past the West Broad street school in Pawcatuck, was continued for a second time, to March 25th. Officer George L. Seidel made the arrest and the surety in the sum of $50, Otto Seidner, bondsman, was continued.

Other court cases included:

Kenneth M. Hite, 20, of 68 Golden street, New London, fined $10 and costs of $11.95 for not having a reflector on the Dodge truck he was operating. Mrs. J. W. Adams of New London was appointed his guardian. Hite was arrested by Trooper Arthur Whitmarsh of the Groton barracks.

NORWICH PROBATE RECORDS MENTIONED IN MAGAZINE

Just received by members here is the March number of the magazine of Daughters of the American Revolution which gives an account of the last meeting of the board of management, at which time 1900 members were admitted. The drawing for seats at the Congress to be held in April was held, there being 52 to draw from. Connecticut drew number 7, therefore assuring good seats for Connecticut at the annual congress. The library rooms are in the new Constitution hall, and they are visited daily by numerous persons, looking up ancestry. This library has the best references to be found. Since the last meeting Connecticut has added the following books: Two volumes from Connecticut Daughters; History of Connecticut, Its People and Institutions, by G. L. Clark, 1914; Griswold, Connecticut, from earliest times to 1927, by D. L. Phillips; Historical Papers, Berlin, E. S. Brandegee, given by Miss Emily S. Brandegee through the Emma Hart Willard chapter; Early Probate Records of Norwich, Volume 3, from Faith Trumbull chapter, Norwich; Genealogy of the Families of Old Fairfield, Volume 1, D. C. Jacobus, 1930, given by Eunice Dennie Burr chapter, Fairfield; The manuscript, Inscription and Index of Wolcott Centre Cemetery, from Hannah Woodruff chapter.

A letter received by a friend in the village from Mrs. Charles B. Allyn, who, with her husband, is spending the winter in Orlando, Florida, says that they have had delightful weather, except for a short cold spell, that did not harm the citrus fruit in that section. Trees are blooming most luxuriously, indicating that there will be plenty of fruit next season. Frost in Okeechobee section has done great damage to garden truck. Mr. and Mrs. John D. Avery, who have been spending the winter near Mr. and Mrs. Allyn, are planning to leave next week for their home in North Stonington.

Allison Whipple, of Middletown, spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Whipple.

GAINS OUTWEIGHED LOSSES IN SHORT STOCK MARKET SESSION YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, March 11—(AP)—The bull contingent encountered increasing opposition in today's brief session of the stock market, but waded gingerly through the rising flood of liquidation. Scores of issues were pushed further into new high ground for the year, and although there were sharp setbacks in spots, gains slightly outweighed the losses.

The price index of 90 leading shares closed 4-10 of a point higher at 138.4, the highest since last October, and slightly less than 10 points below the level of a year ago. Trading was the swiftest seen since December, and the ticker was delayed as much as half an hour for the first time this year. For the 2 1-2 hour session sales totaled 2,635,500 shares. The market closed at 12:30 p. m., in respect to the memory of ex-President Taft.

The approach of the mid-month tax settlement date and continued uneasiness in some quarters lest the market has more than discounted the improvement in industry contributed largely to the selling. Tax settlement dates are likely to cause firm monetary conditions, and normally are preceded by a moderate amount of liquidation. Furthermore, about $80,000,000 worth of new securities come due for payment this week. Call money was firmer, renewing at 4 per cent and failing to recede to 3 1-2 as it did yesterday. Interior banks were said to be drawing on balances at this center.

The consolidated statement of the weekly reporting federal reserve member banks showed the first substantial increase in loans on securities this year, amounting to $36,000,000, approximately equivalent to the gain of $34,000,000 in brokers loans reported for the same period. This probably reflected the growing public participation in the market. There appears to have been a sudden awakening to the fact that it is considerably less costly to carry stocks currently yielding, say 5 per cent, with call money averaging 4, than it was to carry stocks a year ago yielding around 3 per cent with call loans commanding an average rate of about 9 per cent. A favorable feature of the bank statement was an increase in commercial loans for the first time in weeks, which may reflect increasing activity.

Among important stocks reaching new high levels for the recovery, General Motors was conspicuous, selling up 1 1-2 points to 45 5-8. Since the split-up of the shares more than a year ago, creating approximately 43,000,000 shares, market operators have found this capitalization rather unwieldy for their purposes, but old time sponsors of the stock are understood to have renewed operations, feeling that the current low levels are unjustified. Radio sold up nearly a point to a new top at 53 1-8, then lost its gain.

Utilities were mostly inclined to ease, but Electric Power and Light was a firm spot, rising more than 5 points to a new 1930 high. Most of the steels move din narrow ranges, but Inland jumped 6 points to a new top. Wall street gossip has it slated to become a part of the Republic combine. Other issues reaching new peak levels for the year included Du Point, Coca Cola, Underwood Elliott, Reynolds Tobacco B, Philip Morris, Union Carbide, Timken Roller Bearing, Packard, Chicago Pneumatic, Real Silk Hosiery, and Weston Instrument. Estimates indicating a further reduction in crude oil production last week stimulated bullish activity in the lower priced oils. Barnsdall A, Atlantic Refining, American Republics, Rio Grande, Amerada and Texas Pacific Land climbed 1 to 3 points to new top levels for 1930.

Simmons and U. S. Industrial Alcohol were again selected as targets for bearish operations, and hammered down about 5 and 3 points, the former to a new low for the year. Fashion Park sagged to its previous low on passing of the dividend. Air Reduction, Byers, Case, Hershey Chocolate, International Cement, Indian Refining, Loews, and Mexican Seaboard were among issues reacting 2 to 5 points.

Commodity markets were irregular. Cotton rallied from $1 to $1.50 a bale as firmer Liverpool quotations prompted covering. Wheat, however, was again under pressure. The July positions lost nearly 2 cents more, selling close to $1.05 a bushel.

Foreign exchanges eased slightly, sterling cables ruling at $4.86 3-16, off 1-8.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, March 11—(AP)—Accumulation of foreign bonds proceeded vigorously in today's short market session, with the result that many issues in this group broke their previous high marks for the year or longer.

Much of the recent buying of dollar obligations of foreign governments, states, corporations and municipalities has come from abroad, and the impressive response to these inquiries indicates that floating supplies are rather limited. The current of this group is received with considerable enthusiasm in investment circles in view of the fact that the flotation of several important foreign loans, including the reparations issue, has been awaiting signs of definite market improvement.

Domestic rails rose rather easily during the two and a half hours of trading and new highs were numerous. Utilities took an upward course, while the industrials held steady. United States governments, none of which is now at a discount, were very quiet, but the Treasury 4 1-4s rose to the new 1930 high of 113.

Latin American issues, which offer substantial yields, moved in some volume, and were almost uniformly higher. Brazil 8s touched par, the highest price in months. New tops for the year or longer also appeared in Buenos Aires 6s, most of the Argentine 6s, Chile Mortgage Bank 6s, Bolivia 8s, Peru First 6s, Rio Janeiro 6 1-2s, Rio Grande Do Sul 7s and others. Among the European government and municipal bonds, Italy Kingdom 7s, Dresden City 7s, Berlin City Electric 6 1-2s of 1959 and Milan 6 1-2s exceeded their previous highs.

Trading in the rails reflected the favorable sentiment toward all divisions of this group and a miscellaneous assortment, especially the high grade bonds, was bid up to peak prices. This movement embraced Chicago & Alton 3s, Chicago & Northwestern 4 3-4s, Rock Island General 4s, Great Northern 5 1-2s, Canadian Pacific 4s, Denver & Rio Grande Western 5s, Louisville & Nashville Collateral 5s, and Missouri Kansas Texas First 4s. New York Central 3 1-2s rallied 1 3-8, Southern Railway General 6s and Union Pacific refunding 4s rose 7-8 each.

Amusement company bonds made further gains. Keith Corp. 6s advanced 3 points and Shubert 6s and Pathe 7s one each. Loew's 6s sold off 1 3-8 to 120.

Obligations of cement manufacturers declined, North American Cement 6 1-2s losing 3 points and Penn Dixie 6s one. Otherwise the industrials were able to absorb selling rather easily, although fractional net declines came out in Armour 4 1-2s, American Smelting 5s and a few others. Shell Union Oil 5s, well supported, improved half a point.

Buying of utilities was fairly active. Utah Power & Light 5s, Peoples Gas of Chicago 6s, New Orleans Public Service 5s and American Telephone 5s of 1965 rose 1-4 to 1-2.

Bonds with stock conversion privileges were dull. American Telephone 4 1-2s, unchanged, International Telephone 4 1-2s and New Haven 6s, up 3-4, and the new Allephany Corp. 5s led in activity. The last named issue closed at 97 3-4 against the offering price of 97.

Today's offering of three-year 5 1-2 per cent gold notes of the Baldwin Locomotive company, totalling $12,000,000, was oversubscribed. A New York syndicate, bidding 97.32, won a $4,260,000 new issue of Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railroad 4 1-2 per cent equipment trust certificates.

WASHINGTON, March 11—(AP)—Treasury receipts for March 8 were $11,119,267.96; expenditures $16,916,836,67; balance $10 054,230.39.

MONEY

NEW YORK, March 11—(AP)—Call money firmer, 4 per cent all day. Time loans steady: 30 days 4 1-4; 60-90 days 4 1-4 at 4 1-2; 4-6 months 4 1-4 at 4 1-2. Prime commercial paper easier, 4 1-4 at 4 1-2. Bankers' acceptances unchanged.

The Atlas Stores Corp., operators of a chain of sporting goods and radio stores, has opened a new unit in Cleveland. The company now has 60 stores in its chain, some of which are located in New York, Chicago, Detroit and Cincinnati.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, March 11—(AP)—Extreme irregularity in price movement developed in today's abbreviated session of the curb market, with many of the leaders doing little more than marking time. Pools succeeded in marking up about a score specialties to new high levels for the year, but efforts to extend the advance in some of the public utilities and other leaders were met with heavy profit-taking.

Electric Bond & Share, selling ex-dividend, closed at 100 for a small fractional gain. Cities Service closed unchanged at 39 1-8. Middle West Utilities crossed 36 to a new peak for the year while Electric Power & Light optional warrants were marked up more than 5 points to a new peak at 50 1-4 in sympathy with a rise in the stock on the "big board." American & Foreign Power warrants, American Gas & Electric, and Cleveland Electric Illuminating dropped a point or more.

Revival of rumors of new consolidations in the natural gas field stimulated the demand for United Gas, which was bid up 2 3-8 points to 36. Other natural gas stocks showed little change. Ford of Canada issues were in brisk demand, probably as a result of the excellent earnings statements being published by some of the Ford European subsidiaries.

A sudden outburst of buying in New York, Rio & Buenos Aires carried that stock up more than 2 points to within a small fraction of the year's high. Fokker advanced nearly a point to a new 1930 top but the other aviation issues showed only small fractional changes. With the exception of Humble, which dropped 1 3-8 points, the oils made little response to the drop of more than 80,000 barrels in the daily average of crude oil production last week. The demand for the investment trust, trading and corporation issues tapered off, with several of the leaders showing moderate net declines.

New peak prices for the year were registered by American Cigar, Chain Store Development, Gorham Inc., preferred, Midvale Co. of Delaware, Schiff Co., and Starrett corporation. Federal Screw and Hartford Electric (new) were among the few issues to sell at new low levels for the year.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, March 11—(AP)—Fizzling out of crop scare reports today did much to tumble wheat down to new bottom prices for the current season. July and September contracts, representing wheat yet to be harvested, were much more depressed than March and May, which stand for wheat ready to be milled at once. Dust storms today in Nebraska and persistent dry weather in Kansas aroused more or less anxiety among traders, but no actual serious crop damage to wheat was heard from.

Closing quotations on wheat were heavy 3-8-2 1-4c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1c off to 1c up, with oats varying from 1-8c decline to 1-8-1-4c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 120.

Lowest prices of the day in the wheat market here, and also for the season so far, came just before dealings were ended. To some extent the setbacks were due to increased weakness of values at Winnipeg and Liverpool. May wheat at Liverpool having dropped to 1 1-8c under the same month in Chicago, with export demand for North American wheat showing no improvement.

Meanwhile, Canada was reported to be competing sharply with Argentina and Australia in efforts to capture the small amount of European business available.

In addition, there were advices here that German farmers are in a desperate plight, and that further government measures restricting grain shipments into Germany are impending.

Contributing to selling pressure on the Chicago wheat market was the fact that official figures relative to farm reserve stocks of domestic wheat were larger than had generally been expected. On the other hand, more or less unfavorable crop conditions in Nebraska and Kansas, as well as some other states, acted at times as a rallying influence. A good deal of notice was also taken of statements from farm board officials that there is no intention of sending United States wheat abroad at prices lower than those which American millers are now paying. Nevertheless, buying power dwindled toward the last, and the finish was near to the bottommost level reached.

Rye collapsed with wheat, and sold at prices not touched before since July, 1914. Corn broke the current season's low-price record. A bearish factor was that farm stocks of corn in eight leading states were shown to be larger than at this time last year. Oats sympathized with weakness of other grain.

Provisions were responsive to upturns in the value of hogs.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—May 106 7-8-107, 112 3-4-7-8; July 101 1-4; 107 3-8-1-2; Sept. 103 1-4-3-8, 109, Corn—May 79 1-4-3-8; 82 1-4; July 80 1-2, 84 1-8; Sept. 81 7-8, 84 3-4.

COLUMBIA

A special meeting held by Columbia grange, Thursday evening, was attended by 80 patrons, mostly from Columbia and Hebron granges. The third and fourth degrees were conferred by the degree team from Gilead on Misses Alice and Adeline Brown, Bertha Strickland, Ellen McDermott, Mrs. Daisy Tatro, Homer Brousseau and Carleton Hutchins, the other three candidates being unable to be present. Worthy State Chaplain Charles Downing of Killingly grange was present to inspect the meeting and spoke briefly. At the close of the meeting supper was served by the refreshment committee, consisting of creamed chicken on biscuits, potato chips, cake and coffee. The next meeting, March 19th, will be in charge of the Home Economic committee. The special feature will be an exhibition of hand-work of Grange members.

German measles has struck town and has appeared in Center school with three cases in the last two days. West street school has had several cases and their teacher is at present suffering with them, a substitute being in charge during her absence.

The March town meeting was held Saturday afternoon at the town hall with a good attendance. The first clause in the warning was in regard to unused highway rights in the North District, and this matter was left to the selectmen to adjust. The second clause was to see if the town would consider the matter of sending high school pupils to Lebanon, instead of to Windham high school. This was voted down with a nearly unanimous vote the parents of the children opposing any change in this respect. The third clause in the warning was to take action regarding traffic lights on the Green. After much discussion this matter was finally voted down. The fourth clause was in regard to a vote passed last fall at the annual town meeting, to purchase land and make a connecting road just below the Green with the old road and the new state road. As those who would use this proposed new road were decidedly opposed to it, preferring to use the old highway, the vote to purchase the land was rescinded. The fifth clause was in regard to purchasing additional seats for the hall, and this matter was left to the selectmen. The sixth clause was to make necessary changes in estimated expenses of town and one thing that was added was $1000 toward paying for the towns share of the new Jonathan Trumbull highway. The last clause was to lay the tax and date for same to be paid, and a tax of 15 mills was voted on the grand list of $962,749 as submitted by the assessors and board of relief. The taxes will be due April 1st.

The local girls' 4-H club, 13 in number attended the annual 4-H Round Up at Storrs, Saturday afternoon and evening. In the singing contest, Columbia girls came out a close second to Bolton, the Bolton's winning by two points.
